—Le Devoir reported in an Ottawa story that the federal government had partially acceded to a second FLQ demand that police suspend their investigation. The newspaper said that federal authorities, without making it public, asked police to reduce to the minimum their inquiries and other investigations.

—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the government is willing to appoint a negotiator from any level up to cabinet minister to negotiate with the kidnappers, who could choose the level.

—The FLQ rejected the idea of a mediator to establish communications between the government and the abductors, in a note left in a phone booth after an anonymous call to a radio station.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of our dear father, Robert Reid, who died accidentally, two years ago, October 8, 1968.
But he left us quietly, his thoughts unspoken,
But, he left us treasures we are proud to own,
He treasured him God, to year dismiss of rest.
For that is what he was one of the best.
—Lovingly remembered and never forgotten, daughter Joyce and son-in-law Bob.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank my many friends, neighbors and relatives for cards, visits and telephone calls while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Also Dr. Moss, Carley, Palmer Bath, Drs. Hall and Hall, Dr. Hamilton and the nurses and staff of 3 West for their excellent care. Ernest Cronk.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our friends, relatives and neighbors who so kindly sent floral tributes, donations, cards and messages of sympathy, and that in any way helped during the recent illness and passing of our dear husband, father and grandfather. Special thanks to Father Ferguson, Reginald and Magdalene and Bev from Funeral Home.

The Brennen Family.

I wish to thank my friends and relatives for the many flowers and cards while I was a patient in hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Hall and Dr. Hall and the nurses for their wonderful care. Harold Shultz.

GRAHAM — Words cannot express our feelings for all the acts of kindness extended to the family during the illness and passing of Gordon. The Ferrol Orchestra, members of the Belleville Fire Department, and of sympathy from relatives, neighbors, fellow workers and friends will be long remembered. Special thanks to Rev. H. Heath and Rev. Ken Hall, Mrs. Heath and Mrs. Hall for their kind words of comfort during a sad time.

Mabel Graham and Family.

Displays of minerals and jewellery (polishing of rocks for construction of jewellery) will be featured by members and visiting rock hounds from the time doors open at 10 a.m. until closing time, 10 p.m.

Dealers will be present selling equipment for polishing and cutting and specimens of gems and fine stones.

Door prizes, films, swapping and trading will be some of the features at the day - long show.

Sunday features will be two trips, one to the Stockiosar Quarry, four miles north of Madoc and the Armstrong Quarry in Marmora.

Buses will leave the curling rink at 10 a.m. and are expected to return to Belleville sometime near 4 p.m.

Membership Drive Slated

PICTON (Staff) — Pollution Unwanted, a group of Prince Edward County residents who banded together this summer protesting the location of a kraft paper mill in Hillier will begin a membership drive soon.

The steering committee for PU, chaired by, William West has collected facts regarding possible pollution of air and water by the location of a kraft mill in the county.

A spokesman for the steering committee noted that certain facts have come to light which deserve wider distribution in the county.

Pollution Unwanted has described its aims as follows: to support the introduction of new industry that will serve the county's immediate economic needs; to oppose the introduction of new industry that will prevent the development of the county's maximum economic potential, and to support the introduction of new industry that will allow the county to develop its maximum economic potential.

At a meeting earlier this week, the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce endorsed a motion to support the Canadian International Paper Company's interest in the county as a proposed kraft pulp mill site. County council last month voted to support location of the proposed mill in Hillier township shortly after Hillier township council backed CIP's interest in the Adolphus Reach Point area for a mill site.

Annual Agricultural Society Banquet Ball

The Club Cedars at Canniffon was the scene last night of the annual agricultural society banquet and ball. While ladies' fair board president Mrs. Jeannette Hamilton and society president Cameron Bunnett discuss plans for the evening, first vice-president and Mrs. Jack Bush, second vice-president and Mrs. Phil Flagler, Mrs. Bunnett, and director Ron Hamilton prepare to receive guests.

Montreal Students Tour P.E. County

PICTON (Staff) — A group of 26 students from St. George's School, Montreal, has completed a four - day observation tour of agriculture and farm product processing in Prince Edward County.

The youthful travellers, accompanied by two of their instructors arrived here last Monday following visits to historic points of interest in Kingston. Enroute to Prince Edward the boys and girls stopped at the Bath seed farm of Peter McKinnon and were shown the original deed to his property, dated in 1802.

The students were taken on a guided tour of the Ontario Fisheries Research Station last Monday where they spoke with biologist Jack Christie. The following day a trip to the Sandbanks and Outlet provincial parks provided the group with insight concerning county geology and botany. After a luncheon in Cherry Valley the tourists stopped at Windy Acres, owned by West Lake farmer, Reginald Windatt. Connected with the farm is a large fruit and vegetable stand typifying roadside marketing in the county. A tour of Baxter Canning Ltd., Bloomfield provided the highlight of the day for most of the students. They registered surprise at the number of factory employees needed to tin vegetables for grocers' shelves.

Guests at the Woodrous Corners farm of Maynard Gertler during their stay in Prince Edward, the study group divided into twos and threes Wednesday evening to visit with local farm families.

Before leaving for Belleville Thursday, the young pupils studied the ecology of Beaver Meadow, property owned by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority, and also visited the county's cold storage plant. Topics of the day, such as pollution, industrial development and water use were discussed by the students during a meeting with Prince Edward County municipal officials.

Their visit was planned to bring them in direct contact with rural life and afford them opportunities to study ecology and related geography as well as farming.

Campbellford Council Has Busy Session

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Vandalism at the town constaph, what to do with the former public school, and the operation of the new town dump, were all subjects of discussion at the last meeting of Campbellford council.

Steel posts and chains and new lighting have been installed at the constaph as a guard against vandalism.

Some residents feel they are being charged unfairly for use of the new town dump. Names of the dump committee members will be advertised so that complaints can be made to the proper source.

The former public school now owned by the municipality is in need of extensive repairs to the heating system and an income fails to meet expenses there is indecision on what should be done with the building. The matter of repairs and insurance will be investigated.

Quinte Island Theatre Rehearsals Under Way

PICTON (Staff) — Theplans cast in the Quinte Island Theatre production of Neil Skeon's Barefoot in the Park' entered rehearsals this month with plans for a November opening night. The comedy play will begin a three-night run in Prince Edward Collegiate Institute auditorium on November 12, with its leading roles filled by enthusiastic Picton performers.

Since its formation more than two years ago, the theatre group has concentrated solely on the production of children's plays. The starring roles were played by talented young performers attending Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. With the production of "Barefoot" the QIT has appealed to Prince Edward County adults with secret aspirations to succeed in show business.

One of QIT's busiest members, Elizabeth Hirst, reported that the response to the casting call for their new production "just flattened us by its success." It was expected that perhaps one person would arrive to read for each role in the three - act play. Instead, approximately four aspiring actors competed for each part when the play was cast last month.

Mrs. Hirst, in the leading lady role of Corie Bratter, a starry-eyed newlywed with a Pollyanna's talent for discovering silver linings in every cloud. Her first "love nest," located in a six floor ramshackle building is, to Corie, heaven on earth. Paul Bratter, her somewhat conservative husband is played by Jeremy Vincent who in real life is a teacher at PECI. Acting in the supporting role of Ellen Banks, Corie's widowed mother, is Elisabeth Harris. Robert Nihill portrays the part of Victor Velasco, the gentleman Corie attempts to match with her widowed mother. Jack Evans, news editor of the Picton Gazette, makes his stage debut in the role of Mr. Pepper, a telephone service man. The cast is round out by P. J. Robertson, a PECI teacher who appears in a walk-on part.

Behind the scenes, many of the teenagers customarily involved with QIT productions are assisting with makeup, lights, props, sets and costumes. "Barefoot" will be directed by Hugh Kenney, a PECI teacher with a flair for drama.

An enthusiastic supporter of all QIT activities, Mrs. Hirst remarked that casting also has been completed for the Eastern Ontario Drama League's non - act festival play competitions. The play chosen by QIT actors for the competition is called Resounding Tinkle and in Mrs. Hirst's description is "from the theatre of the absurd." The leading roles will be played by PECI students Jane Webster and Frank Creamer supported by Jane Alexander. The play will be performed in Cornwall next month.

The Movies

Perhaps it is advancing age, but somehow movie fare of late seems to have taken a much less appealing turn. Where once we would attend the movies with some regularity, today we are hard put to find anything really worthwhile.

But suddenly some big names of the past have been jogging us out of our lethargy on this score. There has been Myra Breckinridge with the incredible Mae West — and right out of the past, Showboat (Kathryn Grayson, Ava Gardner and Howard Keel) and Sweethearts (Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy). They have been showing at the Belle.

At the Park too there is stimulating fare with a piece called 1925: The Moonshine War and a suspense attraction starring Rowan and Martin. The Belleville Drive-In has the incomparable Zero Mostel, Kim Novak and Clint Walker in that comic effort, The Great Bank Robbery. It is rumored that The Wild Bunch, concerning "nine men who came too late and stayed too long."

Speaking of names from the past, who should turn up in a recent episode of television's Bewitched but Cesar Romero. The New York-born actor is now 63. One does not see much of him or many of his contemporaries these days and significantly it seems to be the comedians who wear best — ageless personalities like Jimmy Durante, now 77, Jack Benny 78, and Bob Hope 95.

Benny is not seen too often, even though he may still be holding out for a year short of 40. Still, the fact that he and the others are performing at all makes many of us feel a lot younger than our years. We cannot quarrel with that!

Thankless Task

Chairman of the Classification Board as he is more formally titled, Mr. Silverthorn has a thankless task. As Kingston While-Standard reporter Roger Bainbridge (who interviewed him recently) said: "He has been on the board for 36 years and has put up with a lot of abuse. He speaks in a quiet, weary voice, and admits he is publicity shy. . ."

But hear his blunt statement in the interview: "The films are getting worse and worse and worse. They are sticking a little bit of sex in every film that is coming out. Some things are coming through that are worse than any stag film ever was."

Bainbridge notes nevertheless that the board's attitude has been changing with the times. Today, he adds, complete nudity in films is approved by the board almost without question. And offensive language, too, is no longer a problem.

With regard to sex and violence, however, censorship is still exercised. Mentioned in the latter context is The Wild Bunch, showing at the Belleville Drive-In. According to Mr. Silverthorn, the film seems "to be a deliberate comment on violence in movies," and in this light it was approved. "I felt no violence and laughed at it." But some Italian westerns, which have come to the fore in recent years, Mr. Silverthorn criticized for "exploiting brutality."

One wonders in this category about Bonnie and Clyde and its cataclysmic finale. It was very strong stuff, really too much, as the pair died in that unforgettable hail of bullets — but it passed the censors.

Against this kind of background, extending over three decades, doubtless embracing the earlier good-lasting of the James Cagney-Edward G. Robinson-Lloyd Nolan-George Raft years, Mr. Silverthorn's sense of weariness is understandable. He is said to be planning to resign soon.

Significantly, the censors reflect public taste (rather than their own exclusively) more than might be supposed. Viewing films as ordinary members of an audience rather than in a private screening room, they gauge audience reaction. Moreover, when Mrs. Evelyn Dunlop, a five-year-member of the board leaves soon, the challenge is hoping to recruit a young, 25-year-old girl, thus catering to varying tastes which, overall, Mr. Silverthorn is the first to admit differ widely.

Little Change

If there is to be any change this fall toward the dowdy look of the past in women's fashions, there is certainly little evidence of it as of now. The scenery downtown remains very fair, with barely a handful heeding the dictates of the designers. The possibility exists then of the non-appearance of the longer length, now or later, and consequently the biggest flop the fashion industry has ever witnessed. Clearly, contemporary fashions are still winners and may stay that way indefinitely.

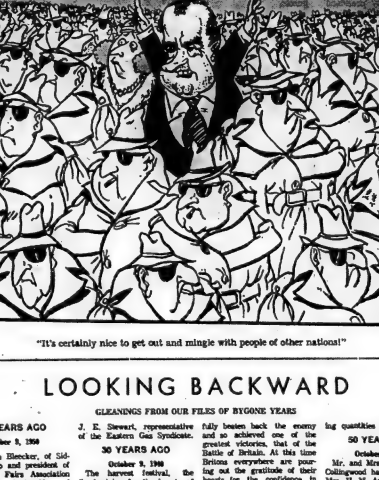
Mr. Benson the Man in the Middle

Senate and Commons Committees on Tax Reform

The Clubs and Hall

The reports of Senate and Commons committees on Finance Minister Edgar Benson's white paper on taxation exactly indicate the difference between appointed and elected bodies. Senators are appointed, and the report of the Senate Standing committee on banking, trade and commerce accurately reflects the interests of the privileged group from which it was drawn. The report is selfish, with almost no attention paid to public welfare or public opinion, but it is at least logical in its selfishness.

Commoners, on the other hand, are elected, and must be sensitive to the electorate. Therefore the report of the Commons standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs waivers along a somewhat illogical course. Its members obviously having one eye for what the Government wanted and the other for what the witnesses who appeared before them were prepared to accept. This has led them to overlook the distorting effect of some of their proposals on the overall tax structure proposed by the Government.



Take, for instance, the maximum rate of income tax. At present it is 80 per cent. Mr. Benson wants to reduce it to 70 per cent, because he wishes it to be approximately the same as the corporation tax rate with integrated with it, so that there would be no incentive for taxpayers to try to avoid taxes by taking most of their gains in one years or the other (and tax system).

The Senate would throw out integration but reduce the maximum rate of income tax to 35 per cent. The Commons group go for half integration (where Mr. Benson wanted full integration), and it would make the maximum rate of income tax 55 per cent. Thus, presumably, it wishes to split the difference, which, as witnesses appeared before it in numbers, by giving them half the present system for tax avoidance, and by lowering their present top tax-rate; and at the same time it would command itself to the bel pitied by seeming to be harder on the rich (60 per cent) than Mr. Benson (70 per cent). Yet by throwing the income tax back out of relationship to the corporate tax level, it could precipitate at least some of the very tax avoidance which Mr. Benson is trying to remove.

In a few areas both the Senate and Commons committee were in agreement. They both want the higher personal exemptions proposed by Mr. Benson. They both disliked his proposal to raise tax rates on capital gains, however his plan to require revaluation of capital assets on payment of capital gains tax every five years, the distinction between foreign held shares of Canadian corporations, the degree to which he would reduce tax incentives in the mining industries and small incorporated businesses and the degree to which he would have preferential taxation come under capital gains tax.

Mr. Benson has described the two reports as "very useful documents" which "in many agree in many respects". Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, predictably, has described the Commons report as a "slap in the face" for the Government. The two New Democrat members on the Commons committee have damned the majority report as "equity for the rich and revenue from the poor."

Politics. Yet the further political fact is that Mr. Benson is the man with the responsibility to try to bring about a tax structure which is as equitable as possible without seriously endangering economic growth, because a significant slow - down in growth would hurt the poor more than the rich. He was more than polite when he described his two parliamentary reports as "useful". In their separate ways they are both self-serving. They leave most of the hard, honest decisions to Mr. Benson.

The harvest festival, the thanksgiving for the bounty of the growing season which has come to an end, is particularly fitting at this hour, for if there were no official thanksgiving, there would still be thanksgiving in the hearts of Canadians as there is in the Motherland, that the autumn has come and that the harvest for Island heroes, the centre of the British race, has resisted the German forces with such success. Through unity and devotion, through sacrifice and leadership and through the ability to endure and fight the sinister powers which are arrayed against her by Hitler and Mussolini, she has successfully beaten back the enemy and so achieved one of the greatest victories, that of the Battle of Britain. At this time Britons everywhere are pouring out the gratitude of their hearts for the confidence in their strength and powers to fight evil.

Liquor Laws Still in Doghouse

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

There has been much palaver concerning the advertisement for the Kitchener-Waterloo Oktoberfest, and it appears that the street display of posters for Canada's great beer festival has been prohibited by the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario.

When is this province going to wises up and keep up with the times, or better still, go ahead of the times? It seems to me that this high society of ours is too intent on keeping away the image of beer bottles from the younger generation, who no doubt are extremely familiar with such a sight.

Gone are the days when the beer bottle was hidden away in cupboard only to be furtively out and consumed when the children were asleep. We only have to drive down any road or freeway in the province to see these bottles in all sizes stood unsightly and haphazardly and anyone who travels is aware of this situation, young or old. With television throughout our homes today, even the fact that beer bottles or the sight of beer is not allowed in our commercials is absurd, when a high percentage of American networks are viewed on our screens throughout Southern Ontario, where the majority of the population is located.

So I ask you, just what is so terrible or nauseating about seeing six steins full of foaming ale, Antapaulonian style, being served by a delightfully wholesome, gorgeous Hund German girl garbed in her native costume with a Bavarian Umpa-band in the background? What is the matter with our society that we can't accept this festive spirit in the fun and mood which it depicts? Having attended the largest Beer Festival in Munich, during the Oktoberfest celebrations, as well as other fests of a similar nature which many Canadians have attended, I find that the atmosphere created is only indicative of the fashion in which the European whole-heartedly enjoy themselves at such events. One can only assume that by prohibiting such a conventional poster that there is something evil or sinful about it. Our antiquated liquor laws in this province leave a lot to be desired and it's high time we, as members of present day society, sat down and took stock of ourselves and answer the question, what can be done to improve this image?

There is not half the problem of drinking over-indulgence that there is here in our North American Society. This is a way of life with the Europeans, many of whom have come to Canada, and brought with them their own creed for a feeling of being accepted, of happiness, and something which has to be done undercover.

I can only suggest that our provincial Liquor Control Board start looking ahead in doing so, perhaps it will do away with some of our ever-increasing archaic regulations. I'm certain the harvest reaped by such a clean - up would be most productive, and one which Canada has yet to enjoy.

SAM NEWMAN

Pollution in the Moira

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In September, 1970, there was a broken sewer pipe and over two million gallons of raw sewage, every hour, went into the Moira River. The red waste from this sewage covered the water, the color of blood.

From the lower bridge, to the mouth of the Moira River the water is covered by weeds, glass and plastic containers of all descriptions, phosphates, and almost anything you can name are thrown and discarded into the Moira River. It almost makes you think you are looking at the city dump.

How many open drains are running into the river and the Bay of Quinte? How many times has sewage been poured into our waters without the people of Belleville knowing anything about it?

I have seen the water in the Bay of Quinte so green you would think it was green paint. On a windy day you can see suds building up along the shore line of the Bay.

You see black smoke pouring into the sky from some of the factories, scrap yards burning waste materials, causing smoke and fumes, that at times you can barely see the roads. Some of these put out such an odor it is a wonder that more of our people are not sick, or their health badly impaired by such conditions. In the downtown area the streets a n e l l of exhaust fumes.

This, all in the name of progress. I am sure that our elected representatives are going to do about these conditions. They are elected by the people, on issues that affect the health and welfare of our people.

I have been reading a book, let plit out by the Federal Department of Energy, Mines and Resources on water pollution, called Everybody's War, in which Ajax was cuoted.

"Water pollution has probably killed more people than all the wars in history. Despite the advances of medical science, millions still die every y e a r from water - borne diseases, and every year, in Canada, water pollution costs us more than all the fines, floods, accidents, and other disasters across the country.

How with fall rains, the water will rise in the Moira River, and flush this junk into the Bay of Quinte. Then we can hide our heads and say pollution is not too bad in Belleville and the surrounding area.

I have been as guilty as most other people for these disgraceful conditions, for let's all get together — industry, labor, churches and all citizens — to wipe out war against all kinds of pollution. Then future generations will have a country to be proud of.

TODAY IN HISTORY

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 9, 1978 . . .

Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, medical missionary, died 30 years ago today—in 1940—at his retirement home on Lake Champlain. Only 77 years old when he began the L a b r a d o r outpost' first medical mission, Grenfell treated 100 patients in the first two months. His bravery and the needs of the people there led to the foundation of the International Grenfell Association to sponsor medical and children's home at St. Anthony on the northern tip of Newfoundland.

1858—Pope Pius XII died.

1953—B r i t a i n assumed control of British Honduras, a state of emergency declared; Premier Chedli Ajjan was ousted.

1945—Pierre Laval was condemned to death.

1914—A n t w e r p surrendered to Germans.

United Appeal

Students Come in for Praise

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

My sincere thanks to all the students who offered their time, energy and good will to make the "United Appeal Residential One Night Blitz" such a success. Their performance was outstanding.

So much is said about students that is critical and derogatory; so many are misunderstood: so few are dearly loved by those who feed their parents. People are often so quick and willing to find fault and so reluctant to praise. I want to say that the students who were out in force Monday night deserve high praise, because what they did, they did without thought of reward; they did what they had to do willingly and well. From the bright - eyed Grade 9's — eager to be the best — to the sophisticated senior graders — all grades gave their time in a cause they knew was worthy.

My very special thanks go to my key contacts in the schools who gave of their services without reservation. They worked hard and long, and I have great respect for their organizational ability. Without their energy and zest, this Blitz could not have been the success it was. Thanks are also due to the principals of all the schools, because without their co-operation, the task would have been much more difficult for all involved.

Thank you, also to Sea Cadets, the Hillcrest Teen Club, and the YMCA Youth Corps. They, too, contributed greatly to our cause.

Greatly appreciated as well are the women who gave their time to canvass that night. Their help was invaluable; And last, but not least, my thanks go to the men who gave up their evening to round up all the proceeds and to count it all so we would know quickly how well it had gone.

So, from my heart and most sincerely, I wish to thank you all.

Septic Tanks and Pollution

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is with great interest that we have followed your last subject of pollution. There is much talk of the housewife's cooking and sink and laundry's infractions of the holy laws of clean water, etc., yet it was only about two years ago that our city allowed a septic tank system to be installed at a private residence on Bridge Street near the railroad station. Since that time, or last year, the city was prepared to let a local contractor sell a parcel of land north of Pine Street for the construction of rental housing where a septic tank would be necessary for sewage disposal.

Now maybe we're ignorant. Maybe septic tanks cannot contribute to this horrible problem, in which Bloc we beg forgiveness, but, on the other hand, if they can, why are our city fathers allowing them to be installed, in this day and age, especially if they are so sincere about pollution as they pretend to be?

NEW YORK (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa, seeking American capital to build up Quebec, says he thinks no more than five per cent of the Canadian people would accept higher taxes to reduce foreign investment.

He told the annual dinner of the Canadian Society of New York Thursday night that foreign investment is needed in Canada, and especially in Quebec to help reduce the province's unemployment problem.

He said he and his associates are encountering the attitudes of the American investment community.

"The Quebec government has witnessed a heart-warming interest and a renewed co-operation from small sectors of industry and finance, and from all levels of government in Ottawa and our sister provinces.

"They all realize — as we do, that the future of Canada as a nation and as an integral part of the North American continent rests heavily on the speed with which we, in Quebec, are able to catch up with the more advanced economy that exists in other parts of the continent."

Bourassa, on a scheduled three-day visit to New York, said the priority in Quebec today is to boost investment to provide the jobs sought by a highly-skilled, high productivity work force.

The premier added, Hydro-Quebec, a government-owned utility created in 1944, controls the bulk of the production and the distribution of electric power in the province.

He said Quebec feels that it could have a major role to play in solving the northeastern United States energy problem.

The premier said Quebec is seeking an investment of $2,000 million for the development of the James Bay hydroelectric potential in Quebec's sub-arctic region.

"The power from the Churchill Falls project in central Labrador and from further developments planned for the Manicouagan will supply Quebec's needs for the next 15 years, without the fear of shortages and blackouts such as have been experienced in the United States."

"We propose to move even further ahead and become a potential output of millions of kilowatts a year which exists on the river flowing into James Bay.

The premier cancelled a scheduled appearance on the NBC's Today Show at 8:30 a.m. today. A spokesman said it was the policy of the government not to comment on the kidnapping of James Richard Cross, Britain's trade commissioner to Quebec, and that this question would certainly have been brought up.

However, in answer to a question from the audience following his speech, Bourassa said the kidnapping last Monday "obviously was not an easy thing for the prime minister of Quebec."

Alberta Says Limiting Gas Exports is an Error

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta, which produces 98 per cent of Canada's natural gas and ranks as an export on the subject, says the federal government has taken the wrong approach regarding gas exports to the United States.

Last week Ottawa approved the biggest single increase in exports to the U.S. since pipeline exports began in the late 1950s, but reduced the amount sought by five companies to 6.3 from 9.8 trillion cubic feet.

The reduction was a mistake, says Russell Patrick, Alberta mines minister. There already is a serious slump in oil and gas exploration in Western Canada and closing export outlets would "really aggravate" the situation.

In the first eight months of 1970, Alberta government revenue from sales of Crown reserves, an indicator of exploration activity, were only $19.99 million. Final returns for the year are expected to be the lowest since the province started its honeymoon with the petroleum industry in 1947 and far below the $162.18 million collected in 1969.

Mr. Patrick brushed aside arguments that higher exports will result in higher prices to Canadian consumers and will eventually leave Canada without adequate gas supplies.

Canada had enough surplus gas to provide adequately for the country's foreseeable future requirements, The Canadian Petroleum Association had estimated that Canada had potential gas reserves of 464.1 trillion cubic feet.

In Alberta, the oil and gas conservation board had estimated the province's established reserves at 43.2 trillion cubic feet and ultimate reserves at 100 trillion cubic feet.

The estimates compared with export commitments of 18 trillion cubic feet during the next 20 to 25 years.

PM and Greene Sued for Blocking Denison Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Roman Corp., principal shareholder in Denison Mines Ltd., has issued a writ suing Prime Minister Trudeau and Energy Minister Greene for damages in connection with the blocked sale of Denison stock to a United States-controlled firm.

A second writ was issued by Denison, against Justice Minister John Turner asking for a declaration that the Atomic Energy Control Act, as amended, is ultra vires of or beyond the authority of Parliament.

Costs are asked in both writs, but damages are sought only by Roman Corp.

The federal government in March blocked a planned sale of a 33-per-cent Denison interest to Hudson's Bay Co. and Hudson's Bay, "without legal or constitutional right."

The federal government blocked the sale with regulations limiting total foreign interest in any Canadian uranium company to 33 per cent, with a 10-per-cent limit on any individual foreign holding.

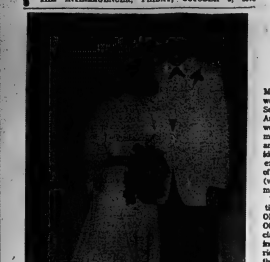
Randall Hits Out

Nationalists 'Out of Line'

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's "militant nationalists" are "way out of line in constantly and needlessly alienating foreign investors," Stanley Randall, minister of trade and development, told an industrial development seminar Thursday.

"If the nationalists need children exercise, why don't they turn their toy guns and blank minds on Ottawa's wonder paper on taxation and the freezing of the Canadian dollar, which are also hindering the attempts of adults who are trying to create needed jobs?" he said.

He told about 150 industrial commissioners, "It's been wisely said that to close the 49th parallel or any of our borders would be to retire into a garrison state, to admit we are second-rate. To close our frontiers would be to save Canada as a fossil while the caravan of humanity rolled by."



Ads Provincial Area

TORONTO (CP) — The minister in charge of the Ontario consumer protection bureau said Thursday the constitutional separation of powers gives only to the provinces the right tools to regulate advertising and consumers' affairs.

Bert Lawrence, Ontario minister of financial and commercial affairs, told a meeting of the Association of Canadian Advertisers that provincial governments derive their constitutional powers for consumer protection "in relation to property and civil rights, including the law of contract."

The federal jurisdiction is primarily "in relation to crime and the Criminal Code and its extensions."

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND A. WILSON

Wilson — Wannamaker

Rev. Lloyd G. Morgan performed the wedding ceremony in Holloway Street United Church, recently, when Linda Gail Wannamaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton E. Wannamaker, Belleville was united in marriage to Raymond Albert Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, also of Belleville. S. Alec Gordon was organist and soloist was Michael Reed.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of white peau de soie enhanced with Swiss lace overlay encircled with seed pearls. The bodice featured a high neckline and bracelet length sleeves accented with matching lace inserts and the back of gown was highlighted with a chapel train of peau de soie accented with a self bow. Her semi-circle floral headpiece with Belgium tulle was enhanced with blue and white pearls and blue bows. She carried a crescent bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Lisdh Gibson, sister of the bride as matron of honor wore a full-length gown of green chiffon over taffeta enhanced with floral appliques. Her headdress consisted of pale yellow flowers with short veil. The bridesmaids Mrs. Lois Gordon, sister of the bride and Miss Gloria Healy were dressed identically to the matron of honor. Miss Angela Wannamaker, cousin of the bride as flower girl wore an A-line yellow taffeta with white overlace gown with the neck, sleeves and hemline trimmed with white frilled nylon. She carried a basket of green tinted flowers and wore matching flowers in her hair.

Harry Wilson attended his brother, while the ushers were Brian Wannamaker, brother of the bride and Richard Hunter, Ring-bearer was Kevin Wannamaker, cousin of the bride. All were white dinner jackets.

For the reception in the Legion Hall, Pinnacle Street, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing an American Beauty Shade dress in sheath style with beaded collar and long sleeves, silver accessories and a corsage of pink sage. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore lilac princess styled dress with U neckline and three-quarter sleeves, silver accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

On leaving for the honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, the bride wore a mint green shantung dress with matching coat, brown accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside at 146 Yeomans Street, Belleville.

BGH Director of Nursing Will Address B and P Club

Plans have now been completed in preparation for the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club week October 18-24.

As in other cities the Belleville club committee has arranged a number of activities including a special speaker for Monday evening's meeting Miss M. Ruth Gaw, Director of Nursing at the Belleville General Hospital. Miss Gaw, who came to Belleville in 1967 from Guelph was a member of the B and P Women's Club there. She will have an interesting message for all women in the business and professional field, and young business women in particular will be especially welcome to attend. Chairman of the committee Lois Brown may be contacted at 968-8133 for further information.

MISS M. RUTH GAW

Members of the local club will attend Christ Church for the service on Sunday morning followed by a luncheon.

A window display will be set up at Reid's Travel Centre, Front Street where the aims and purposes of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs will be depicted.

Total Music Program Outlined

A meeting of the Hastings Music Educators' Association was held at the Marmora Senior School on October 7. Among topics for discussion were ideals of a progressive music program and ways and means of reaching these ideals. Also, thoughts were exchanged on the feasibility of a total music program (vocal and instrumental music combined as one.)

The group shared information regarding the coming OMEA workshops in London, Ottawa and Kingston. A special report on the program of instrumental and vocal enrichment program section of the Quinte Arts Council was given by Miss Phyllis May. The first of these workshops is to be held on October 27 at Centennial Secondary School under the direction of Capt. Kenneth Moore and his Canadian Forces Training Command Band.

As Mr. Norman Baldwin has left Hastings County, it was deemed advisable to receive nominations for vice-president. Doug Asselstine was elected to this office.

The next meeting of the Hastings Music Educators' Association will be held on Wednesday, January 20 at Stirling.

UCW MEETINGS

HOLLOWAY STREET UCW

Various reports and several items of business were discussed at the first meeting of the Holloway Street UCW held in the church hall.

Vice - president Clara Trimble, in the absence of the president conducted the meeting with the main topic the planning of the annual fall bazaar with the full co - operation of all church members requested.

Miss Clara Adams conducted the devotional with Mrs. Murphy assisting on the theme "But One Thing is Needful". Miss Adams gave a thought provoking meditation on the visit of Jesus to the home of Mary and Martha — comparing present - day women to them. The service closed with a solo by Mrs. W. J. Lamb accompanied by Mary White at the piano.

Mrs. Retha Coulter introduced the guest speaker Mrs. Rosella Clancy, associated with Sunday School and youth work in St. Paul's Church, Stirling. She gave an interesting talk on UCW meetings and compared a general meeting to a potluck supper — every member is expected to contribute something and then partake of as much as is desired.

The speaker divided the members into groups of three and a question period was followed by an interesting held concerning the activities of UCW meetings. This was and informative discussion.

Appreciation for the talk was expressed by Mrs. Hazel Wilson.

Refreshments were served by the evening UCW group.

Cantonese Chicken Wings

By MARY MOORE

Would you have a recipe for "creamy crust"? I believe it was one of Pillsbury Bake-off winners a few years ago. It is a crust that is poured into the pan. — Beverley B.

ANSWER: No Beverley I do not. Readers: Please if you know of the Crazy Crust recipe that Beverley wants would you please copy it out carefully and mail it to me in care of this newspaper?

QUESTION: I lost your recipe for baked chicken wings using soya sauce. Thanks a million. — Mrs. McC.

ANSWER: As I write this answer chicken wings are having a big rush in the stores so I thought I would repeat it for you and for others in our audience.

CANTONESE CHICKEN WINGS

NOTE: Allow 3-4 chicken wings per person

3 lb. (or more) chicken wings (1 bag/3lb)
1 tbsp. cooking oil
1 tbsp. soy sauce
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. chili powder
½ to 1 tsp. celery seed

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Salmon and Rice Casserole; Buttered Savory Cabbage; Harvard Beets; Cucumber Salad with Sour Cream Dressing; Pears Poached in Mint Syrup; Tea.

½ cup vinegar

Pat chicken wings dry with tea towel and arrange in one layer in large shallow baking dish or broiler pan (without rack) on foil lined with old zeal soy sauce and brush over all exposed surfaces, using ½ of it.

Mix together sugar, salt, chili powder and celery seed and sprinkle evenly over top.

Place 5" below preheated broiler and brown to a deep gold — about 10 min. Do not turn them.

Remove from oven and turn heat to "bake" at 350 deg. Fahr. Mix together condensed soup and vinegar and pour evenly over all. Bake uncovered at 350 deg. Fahr. about 1 to 1¼ hrs. or until tender and sauce reduces to a rich mahogany.

Serve these on rice or noodles.

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA

A potluck supper was enjoyed by the members and 12 invited guests who were quickly acquainted by participating in a "Getting to Know Everyone" quiz. Mrs. Vaden a guest from Beta Chapter in Toronto explained the history of Alpha Delta Kappa.

Fay Bennett gave a resume of the past two years' specials and activities of the chapter and a past president's pin was presented to Phyllis Beatty by this year's president.

Mrs. Vaden gave a most enlightening talk aided by colorful slides of her recent trip to Russia. She was introduced by Clara Adams and thanks was expressed by Grace Anderson.

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

Twenty-one guests were present at the home of Mrs. T. Rowland last Tuesday when members of Gamma Mu held a model meeting for new pledges.

Mrs. Rowland introduced Mrs. A. Fulton who presented a program on fashion. Centered around the fascinating Madame Van Barentzen who is presenting a concert in Belleville on October 19, sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi. Everyone present was treated to a recording of Madame's rendition of Waltz in the Chopin and Debussy. Mrs. Fulton pointed out that Madame teaches music at the international Summer Academy in Nice and is able to converse with her students in four languages, and that her repertoire includes over 500 selections.

Mrs. Fulton was thanked for her presentation by Mrs. V. Zubacs.

During the business meeting which followed, members voted to move the next meeting from Oct. 20 to Oct. 19 and to have it take the form of a group attendance at Madame Van Barentzen's concert. It was announced by the social committee that the preferential tea will be held at the home of Mrs. P. Anderson on October 25 from 2:30 to 4:30. For the benefit of the pledges, each committee head and executive member gave a short explanatory talk regarding her duties within the chapter and Mrs. T. Rowland read "The Story of Beta Sigma Phi".

Following this, convention reports from Kitchener were presented by Mrs. A. Gray, Mrs. V. Zubacs and Mrs. L. Smith. A display table of sorority scrapbooks and yearly programs, was viewed by members and pledges during the social hour, and refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. T. Rowland and the co-hostess, Mrs. V. Zubacs.

Ann Landers

One Drawback In 'Happy' Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a good man, steady worker, no bad habits. I have a nice home, good furniture, healthy kids and to the outsider I look like a very lucky woman.

So why am I complaining about? I guess it's because I want a little romantic foolishness in my life. When we married, there didn't toy me a ring because "rings are a waste of money." When our first child was born he didn't buy me flowers because "flowers are a waste of money." He went out and bought expensive Havana cigars for all his friends, however. That wasn't a waste of money.

ANN LANDERS

On my birthday he always buys something like a vacuum sweeper, an electric coffee maker or a lawn mower. His love making is so cut and dried I feel like a cell girl. No tender kisses, no words of love — just sex. Before I know it, everything is over and he's snoring.

What's the answer, Ann? — SUFFERING IN SUFFOLK.

DEAR S.I.S.: The first part of your letter was, as we both know, window-dressing. Your real complaint shows up in the last few lines.

Every woman can make her right life more interesting if she is willing to take the time and trouble. Go to your public library and get some reading material for your husband and for yourself. Even the most matter-of-fact clod can be slowed up and turned on if his partner knows the combination.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for nearly three years. We would love to have a baby, but so far we have not been lucky.

My girl friend is pregnant — in her fifth month, and she is not married. In fact, I don't think she even knows who the baby's father is. She does not want the child and is going to put it up for adoption.

My husband would like to pay all her bills and take the baby. I have a feeling this might be a mistake. What happens if she should change her mind later and want her baby back? My husband says if she signs adoption papers she can't take the child from us. Is he right? — EMPTY ARMS IN N.Y.

DEAR N.Y.: If you want to adopt a baby, work through a legitimate agency. Don't repeat, don't take the baby of a friend. Even though the adoption is done according to due process of law the mother could return in a few years and swear she signed the papers while under emotional stress, and the judge might decide in her favor. (The blood mother usually gets the edge in court). Let your friend give her child to an agency, which is where you should go for yours.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This may sound trivial, Ann, but it's very important to my husband and me. Our son-in-law has been in the family for two years and he still starts every sentence with "Listen," or "Say." We don't mind that he doesn't call us Mom and Dad (which we would like) but we do wish he would call us something. Even Mr. and Mrs. would be an improvement. He's a very nice young man and we like him very much.

Last night I mentioned this habit of his to our daughter hoping she would offer to speak to him. She said it was not worth making an issue of and that she doesn't care what he calls us. Any advice? — MAYWOOD.

DEAR MAYWOOD: Since you care, tell him. "Listen," or "Say," is no way to address anyone. The young man needs to be told — in a nice way, of course — and I suggest you do so.

Successful Living

Moody Spells Part of Adolescence

By DORIS CLARK

Has it occurred to you that teen - agers are mostly creatures? Not just your teen-ager, but teen - agers in general? Violent swings of mood are a part of adolescence. Your boy slops around in tears, but the next time you see him he has hair brushed, his face and nails clean, even his pants pressed. It is all out of balance.

This is because of the glandular changes that happen in puberty and create a battle between instinctual drives and their controlling mechanisms. It is not easy to be good all the time.

And it is bewildering to be the parent who watches and wrestles with the unpredictable. But there are ways of bending with the wind or rolling with the punches, as it were. The controlling mechanisms flexible enough to make odd - hour snacks acceptable, late night TV and late week-end mornings something to indulge, isn't hippocritic. It is being able to realize that these moods are not sheer awkward cussedness.

For my money, our young people will appreciate some leeway and will still come up to bat when they are called on to share family responsibility.

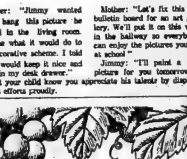
If there is love and mutual confidence, time spent, just like other people, will come through with what is expected of it.

* * *

Dear Doris: This young man I was engaged to came from a family of 14 children. He used to refer to his parents as having too many children, but I never thought he would marry a girl who step he took. While we were in conversation on family matters, I mentioned that I would like a family of four children when we got married, and he quickly retorted: "We won't have any at all — have looked after that. I had a sterilization operation done to the doctor's office a short while ago."

I nearly dropped, and told him our engagement was broken off then: that I would not marry any man who had been sterilized. I handed him back the ring. He tried to smooth it over by saying this was a bad age to raise children in and that we would be better without any. I still told him I was through, and that I considered it a woman's duty to have children.

The last time he phoned I told him not to call again. I still have love for him, even though I know I'm not your friend, but if you are having second thoughts about how much he cared - and how much you care, why not send him a "Missing You"? card and put on the bottom that you would like to have a chat sometime?



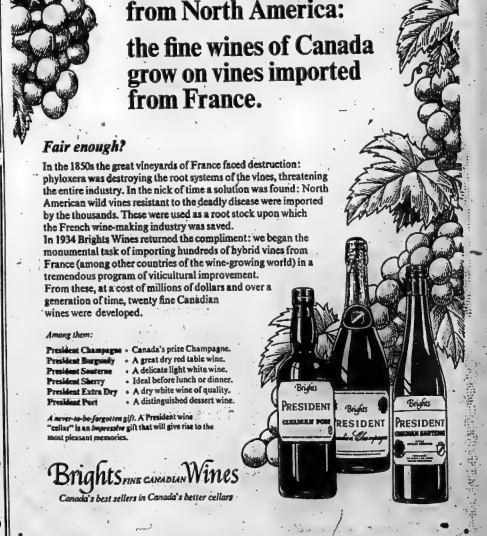
Confidential to Anxious Mother: Teen - age is the time when a firm foundation of discipline and consideration really pays off. Tell your boy - Hiding has that while he lives under your roof, he continues school, sticks to a curfew and keeps you informed of his whereabouts. He is not an adult yet, and you are responsible for him.

* * *

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope).

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Jimmy wanted me to hang this picture he painted in the living room. Imagine what it would do to my decorative scheme. I told him I would keep it nice and clean in my desk drawer."

Let your child know you appreciate his talent by displaying his efforts proudly.

Mother: "Let's fix this big bulletin board for an art gallery. We'll put it on this wall in the hallway so everybody can enjoy the pictures you do at school."

Fair enough?
In the 1850s the great vineyards of France faced destruction: phyloxera was destroying the root systems of the vines, threatening the entire industry. In the nick of time a solution was found: North American wild vines resistant to the deadly disease were imported by the thousands. These were used as a root stock upon which the French wine-making industry was saved.
In 1934 Brights Wines reintroduced the compliment: we began the monumental task of importing hundreds of hybrid vines from France (among other countries of the wine-growing world) in a tremendous program of viticultural improvement.
From these, at a cost of millions of dollars and over a generation of time, twenty fine Canadian wines were developed.
Among them:
President Champagne • Canada's prize Champagne.
President Burgundy • A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne • A delicate light white wine.
President Sherry • Ideal before lunch or dinner.
President Extra Dry • A dry white wine of quality.
President Port • A distinguished dessert wine.
A never-to-be-forgotten gift. A President wine "cellar" is an impressive gift that will give rist to the most pleasant memories.

Belleville Homes and Institutions Receive Trillium Awards

L. Johnson Awards 644 Bridge St. E.

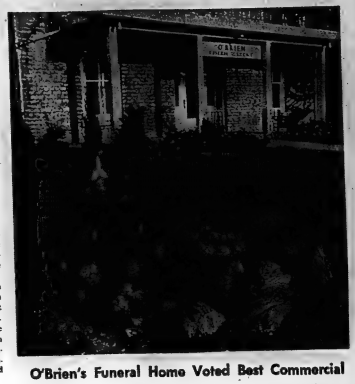
Lady Guards Award at 280 Haig Rd.

Brooke-Bond Executive Ken Lane Accepts Trillium

Trilliums are blooming all over the city as the Horticultural Society again this year presents the symbolic blooms to improved and well-kept properties.

Society club president Larry Johnson explained that many homes are nominated for the Trillium awards but strict judging by members reduces these numbers to 30 winners in the residential class.

Judged out of a possible 300 points, the homes receive scrutiny for balance of land scaping and layout, choice of color scheme, condition of plants and grass and over-all appearance. The six top, winners in this category are the homes of J. A. Dearman 255 College St. West and J. D. Houston, 644 Bridge St. East, tied with 279 points; Tim Moran, 280 Haig Road, 271 points; E. A. Schlievert, 11 Strachan Avenue, 270 points; and Fred Artushnat, 14 Holden St., and Mrs. Stan Johnson, 22 Holden St., tied with 268 points.



These winners received small Trilliums last Sunday. They are allowed to keep them permanently.

For the first time, certificates were awarded to those winning Trillium awards for the past two years. In this category are the homes of Robert J. Miles, 3 Bertram Blvd.; William G. Slack, 12 Sidney Street; Mrs. Ernest J. Rainbow, 84 Crestview Ave.; Mrs. George J. Tustin, 224 Ann Street; George McQuade, 325 Bridge Street East; Roy K. Jeffrey, 132 Dufferin Street; D. J. DeGeneva, 620 Sidney Street; and Cameron MacDonald, 147 Bridge Street West.

In the final class, commercial and institutional, Mr. Johnson said that over - all winner, O'Brien's Funeral Home, was "the most improved of the business lawns awarded, in my opinion." The funeral home received extensive nominations for the award.

These larger Trillium Awards are in the possession of the businesses until next year, when they are returned.

The other five winners were Brooke-Bond Foods Ltd., John R. Bush Funeral Home, Ontario Provincial Police, Ontario School for the Deaf, and Ontario Hydro.

O'Brien's Funeral Home Voted Best Commercial

Farmers on Fence Over Kraft Mill

AMELIASBURG (Special) — County farm organizations have yet to go on record with their views on the proposed location of a giant pulp processing enterprise in the township of Hillier with extensive shoreline on Lake Ontario.

Relative to the proposal, Alfred Cairns, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture in Prince Edward, explained yesterday the course the 75 OFA members were taking.

"The subject has been mentioned at several meetings but so far no resolution has been offered that would require a formal vote.

"I am for the industry moving into the county because I have faith in our system of government. If OWRC, lands and forests, health authorities and others concerned give the project the go-ahead signal I'd be satisfied the interest of all county residents was in good hands." Mr. Cairns pointed out he was only voicing his own opinion in the matter.

The possibility of a paper company building a plant in the county for processing chips from a mill proposed for Bancroft entails an investment of up to $100 million dollars according to figures quoted by government officials. An estimate of the number of workers involved at both places is between 1,500 and 1,700.

Opposition to the Prince Edward location for the plant claims the air and water pollution from the operation would not justify the boost to the local economy.

Foxboro Girl Dies in England

A 21 - year - old former Foxboro girl who went to England three years ago to train as a nurse has died accidentally in that country with her husband.

Mrs. Leigh Facey (nee Susan Eileen Hill) and her husband died Tuesday at their home in St. Albans, Hertfordshire, as result of coal-gas poisoning.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edwin Hill of Foxboro, Mrs. Facey attended Quinte and Moira Secondary Schools in Belleville and was active in the work of Christ Church, as a girl guide and as a Cub leader. She also acted as a swimming instructor at the YMCA.

Overseas she trained as a nurse for two years at the Giles Hospital and at the time of her death was employed with the British Government.

Her body will be returned home for burial with funeral service in Christ Church on a date to be announced later. Mr. Facey will be buried in England.

Besides her parents she is survived by a brother John Francis Hill, and an aunt, Mrs. Harold (Stella) Stewart, both of Foxboro.

Carriers of the Year

Intelligencer carriers of the year are Dean MacCormack, 13, of 171 Dundas St. West who is the Belleville award winner and Don Workman, 16, of 143 Bell Irving Drive, Trenton, who represents the carriers outside of Belleville. Dean, a grade nine student at Centennial, joined the paper in 1968, following the tradition of his six brothers. A grade 10 student at Trenton High School, Don has been with The Intelligencer since 1967. Born in Trenton, he has lived in St. Hubert, P.Q., and Bodenseelingen in West Germany. Both boys were selected for their promptness of delivery and payment of paper bill, careful keeping of up-to-date records and a pleasant attitude while serving their customers. Each boy will receive $50 towards purchase of Canada Savings Bonds as well as a Carrier Boy certificate.

Recreation Staff Has New Member

The Belleville recreation department has a new assistant activities programmer.

He is Robin Heggie of Galt who took up his new duties late in September as recreation program supervisor.

A graduate of the two-year recreation leadership course at the Conestoga Applied Arts and Technology College, Mr. Heggie will have the responsibility of looking after programming for the Ben Bleecker Auditorium, Quinte Skating and Tennis Club activities and supervision of outdoor rinks.

Outward Bound On Way Again

A group of Loyalist students will spend Thanksgiving weekend in the bush — forging their way by paddle through the Crow and Trenton River systems to Belleville.

They are members of Outward Bound, a club at the college organized by staff member Michael Barrett.

The 57 students, including 12 women, will leave the college this afternoon for Tangamong Lake in the Crow River system, where their canoe trip will begin tomorrow morning.

They will take a minimum supply of food and camping equipment with them, and have set a goal of three days for the expedition.

The route covers 120 miles, with many portages along the way. The trippers will camp along the rivers at night.

Bikes on Walks Topic at Council

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Should bicycle users ride their bikes on the town's roadways or on the sidewalks?

That is the question considered recently by members of town council who have expressed concern over the number of children riding on the sidewalks.

One councillor felt that because of irresponsible drivers it was safer for children to ride on the sidewalks. On the other hand an elderly woman was recently struck by a bicycle as she was walking on the sidewalk.

The matter was left in the hands of the town police department and the Department of Transport to make some recommendation for the control of bicycles and the operation of snowmobiles.

Hoop Basic Now $15,500

NEW YORK (AP) — A minimum season salary of $15,500, the highest ever in a pro sport, was agreed by the National Basketball Association players and owners Thursday. It becomes effective with the start of the new season Tuesday.

This compares to the current minimum of $12,000 for a rookie and $13,000 for a player with at least one year's experience in the National Football League.

The minimum salary in the major baseball leagues for 1970 was $12,000. This will be increased to $12,750 next season and $13,500 in 1972.

The NBA minimum will increase to $17,500 with the start of the 1972-73 season.

ANDY CAPP

Rindt Posthumous Prix Champion

PARIS (AP) — The late Jochen Rindt of Austria was officially declared world champion racing driver Thursday by the international sporting commission of the International Automobile Federation, the controlling body of the sport.

Rindt, who won five Grand Prix races this year—Monaco, Holland, France, Britain and Germany—had scored 45 points when he was killed in a crash while practising for the Italian Grand Prix at Monza, Sept. 5.

His closest rival was Belgian's Jackie Ickx, who now has 31 points. But with only the Mexican Grand Prix still to be run, Ickx cannot overtake Rindt's total.

Trade Vetoed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Junior A council of the Ontario Hockey Association has rejected a proposed trade between London Knights and Kitchener Rangers giving London rights to Reg Thomas, 17, of St. Thomas, who refused to play for Kitchener.

The youth was Kitchener's first selection in the midget draft June 10, but says he doesn't want to play for the Rangers because he prefers to stay near home.

London's offer of their first and fifth selections in next year's midget draft appeared acceptable to Kitchener, but OHA president Tubby Schmals of Walkerton, said a poll of owners indicated London's offer was unacceptable to them.

Sport Briefs

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The University of Windsor Thursday held a one-stroke lead over host University of Western Ontario and Queen's University after the first round of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association golf tournament at Highland Country Club course. The four-man Windsor team shot a 300 total with Western and Queen's at 301. Defending champion University of Waterloo was fourth with a 310 score, followed by McGill, 313, Guelph 315, Toronto 318, McMaster 318, Laval 320 and Carleton 328. Western's Bob McLeod, was the individual leader with one-over-par 72.

OTTAWA (CP) — Flanker Hugh Oldham and quarterback Gary Wood have been named by Ottawa Rough Rider players to represent the team in the Jeff Russell Trophy competition. The trophy is given to the most valuable and most sportsmanlike player in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League. Oldham and Wood are both newcomers to the Rough Riders this year.

TORONTO (CP) — The featured seventh race produced a rare dead heat for first place Thursday at Woodbine race track. Wershow and Green Tag shared the lead in a nine-horse field, a $3,800 allowance for three- and four-year-olds foaled in Canada. The co-winners finished the eleven furlongs in 1:36 1-5 with Put About third.

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Alan Eagleson charged Wednesday night that president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League has damaged the reputations of all NHL players by refusing to divulge the names of those he claims have drifted unknowingly into association with organized criminals. Eagleson, who represents the NHL Player's Association, was commenting in an interview on statements made Wednesday by Mr. Campbell when he said an NHL security chief — former FBI agent Frank Torpey. Mr. Campbell said fresh incidences of "questionable associations" have come to light since his revelation last August that two players had drifted unwittingly into business agreements with Mafia-controlled firms. "Campbell did not inform me who the original two were or which players are under surveillance or suspicion now," Mr. Eagleson said. "The NHL should act the way baseball handled Denny McLain and football Joe Namath when they were told they were associating with the wrong people and to stop it."

Vancouver Has Honor

Tonight Sees First of 546 NHL Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The longest regular-season schedule in National Hockey League history starts tonight in Vancouver and will end 546 games later in April in Pittsburgh.

With the inclusion of Vancouver Canucks and Buffalo Sabres in the league this year, the number of teams increased to 24 from 12 last year.

Accordingly, the number of scheduled games increased to 546 this year, 90 more than in 1969-70.

And, apparently, league officials believed it fitting that one of the expansion teams share the spotlight in the season's opener.

Although the schedule was drawn up before regular pre-season games ended, Vancouver probably couldn't have been a better choice to open the season.

With a 3-4-3 record in exhibition games, the Canucks have drawn a lot of attention for an NHL rookie club.

Los Angeles Kings, who joined the league in its 1967-68 expansion, and who meet the Canucks in this year's opener, had a 3-1-2 record in exhibition play.

The season moves into full swing this weekend. On Saturday, New York Rangers meet St. Louis Blues, Oakland Seals take on Detroit Red Wings, Buffalo visits Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Minnesota North Stars battle with Philadelphia Flyers.

Montreal Canadiens meet

JOHN FERGUSON
Sticks to Guns

Philadelphia Flyers Sunday. Toronto Maple Leafs play Vancouver, Detroit tangles with the Bruins in Boston and Oakland flies to Chicago to play the Hawks.

This year St. Louis Blues are not favorites to win the league's West Division title.

The Blues have won the division the last two seasons since the NHL expanded in 1967-68. All expansion teams, Philadelphia, Oakland, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Los Angeles and St. Louis were placed in the new division with the other teams making up the East Division.

But with Buffalo and Vancouver coming into the Eastern Division, Chicago was shifted to the West, making them favorites there. The Hawks finished first in the East last year.

"We're improving and we've worked hard," said the 37-year-old NHL veteran.

"I can't see any reason why our defence shouldn't continue to be solid," he said. "We've still got most of the guys who helped us into three straight playoffs . . . We're still a position hockey team."

Elsewhere in the NHL, left winger John Ferguson has reinstated after a meeting Thursday with Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, that he will stick by his retirement announced Wednesday.

Ferguson, a regular with the Canadiens since his arrival from Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League for the 1963-64 season, said Wednesday his decision to retire was prompted by the fact that he could no longer devote himself "100 per cent to hockey."

In Minneapolis, centre Dennis O'Shea and defenceman Larry Bolvin of Minnesota North Stars signed one-year contracts Thursday night.

Holdouts Plague Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks make their National Hockey League debut tonight but a few players who once figured in the expansion club's long-range plans won't be in uniform.

Forward Len Lunde came to terms late Thursday and is expected to be with Orland Kurtenbach and Wayne Maki tonight against Los Angeles Kings. Four other holdouts remained adamant.

Defenceman Howie Young, who said Thursday he was not even ruled to reaching salary terms, left later for his home in Chicago.

Defenceman Jim Hargreaves also was unsigned early today, but negotiations were continuing.

Despite the player problems and the fact that the Canucks are expected to finish no better than second-last in the NHL Eastern Division in their first season, the new team will perform before a capacity crowd of 15,553 in the Pacific Coliseum.

The game, scheduled to start at 9:15 p.m. PDT, will be televised by the CBC.

Petes Like Second Best

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Scoring all goals in the second period, Peterborough Petes defeated Ottawa 67s 5-1 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A section Thursday night.

Rookie Paul Raymer, picked up by the Petes in a trade with Toronto Marlboros two weeks ago, scored three goals for Peterborough while Ken Richardson and Danny Gloor got one each.

Ron Bobbett scored for Ottawa.

Loyola Gridders Handed First Loss

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Pierre Lefebvre combined with flanker Bob Bindon for a 79-yard pass-and-run play early in the fourth quarter Thursday to give Sir George Williams Georgians a 14-9 victory over Loyola College Warriors in a Canadian Canada Intercollegiate Football game.

The win was the second in three games for Sir George while the loss was the first for Loyola in three outings.

Sir George and Loyola are tied for first place in the CCIFC with Bishop's University of Lennoxville, Que., now holding a 2-0 record. Bishop's will get a chance to break the tie when they meet Macdonald College Saturday.

Sir George had lost 12 straight games since they entered the CCIFC three years ago before thumping Royal Military College of Kingston 29-1 last Saturday.

Canadians Buy 39 Yearlings

LEXINGTON, Ky. (CP) — Springfield, a two-year-old colt owned by Dr. George Boyce of London, Ont., won the $16,381 Meadow Land pacing mile, Thursday. Driven by Jack Moiseau, Springfield paced the first heat in 2:00 2-5, his fastest mile ever, and finished second behind the American-owned Race Boy in the second heat. Springfield's faster time and second-place finish earned him the major share of the prize money.

Canadian owners bought 39 yearlings for a total of $419,600 in a week-long session of sales here. Top price was $40,000, paid by John Hayes of Oshawa for a yearling colt by Bret Hanover.

Crescents One of Two 'Must' Teams

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Tonight would be as good a time as any for Belleville Mo-Hawks to see if Owen Sound is one of two teams they have to beat for one of the six OHA Senior A playoff spots.

Last season, the Mo-Hawks earned the sixth and final playoff berth ahead of the Crescents and the dismal Woodstock A's, but the Owen

The makeup of the Mo-Hawk roster itself was in some doubt right up until Thursday, when general manager Robert Temple signed four more players to bring the Mo-Hawk strength to 16.

Bob Moon, last year's backup to Steve Rezz, will start in goal tonight, with new comer Callum MacPhee in the wings.

Moon and forwards Doug Senior, Les Colligan and Dave Milne were added to the club Thursday.

Senior, who picked up 19 goals and 17 assists in only 27 games with Kingston Aces last winter, will centre Trenton wingers Al Ferguson and Rick O'Donnell in his official Mo-Hawk debut.

Coach Dave Jones also said he plans to start Ray Johnston at centre between Ralph Plane and Wayne McConnell, with George Gobeo taking newcomers Les Colligan and Dave Milne under his wing.

Jones was pleased to sign Colligan Thursday. The rugged Kingston winger picked up a pair of pretty goals in Tuesday's 7-1 exhibition win over the Aces, for whom Colligan played occasionally for the past couple of seasons.

Milne, a Campbellford basketball star with blinding blond hair, also scored in Tuesday's exhibition win, and will be wearing sweater #9 tonight.

Only new face on the Belleville blueline will be Mo-Hawk veteran Kelly Ring, who has not got together with club management. Ralph Stewart also offers to play in the Eastern Hockey League this winter.

Tonight's game is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

So was last year's home opener with the same Crescents, won 4-3 by the Mo-Hawks.

But it took the visitors six hours to make the 230-mile trip from Owen Sound through Thanksgiving weekend traffic and the game started half an hour late.

Crawford's Big Problem Where to Cut Fairways

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Coach Floyd Crawford of the Belleville Fairways has a problem — the kind that every junior hockey coach would like to duplicate.

Among the Junior B mentor's major "headaches" are choosing between a dozen aspiring defencemen, working four recruiting candidates into the practice schedule and finding positions for an overload of talented centre-ice men.

"It's the toughest part of coaching", admits Crawford. "You're always afraid that you'll cut some kid and then he'll come back to haunt you."

Barring injury, eye failure or a crew-cut casualties coach, Ron Jury appears to have a lock on the first string goaltending spot. The busby-haired netminder joined the team midway through the season and proved to be a major factor in their late season drive to a playoff spot.

Crawford has also been impressed with the pre-season showing of 15 - year - old Bob Moore, who split the goaltending chores with Norm Rasmen last year.

Second year man John Mulvihill is expected to lead the blueline corps, which should be much stronger than early indications. "John's not in top form yet, but we don't have any worries about him", says Crawford.

Kevin Dackrill, the only other returning rearguard has been hampered by a hand injury, incurred playing high school football, but took part in Thursday night's scrimmage and should be available for the team's exhibition contests.

Other rearguards who have shown well in training camp are OED student Roger Desseau, who should add some size to a small Belleville team and midget graduate Peter Ackerman, a smooth puckhandler.

Up front, centre Danny Lupenette tests netminding candidate Roger LaMorre while winger Dave Smith waits for a rebound at a practice session of the Belleville Fairways. The Eastern Ontario Junior B League team is looking to at least duplicate last season's success, when they made the final play-off spot in the six-team league. The Fairways open their exhibition schedule Sunday with a home game against the Trenton Golden Hawks.

DAVE SMITH
PROMISING WINGER

Lupenette's group showed indication of improving on his excellent rookie performance. The 18 - year - old winger has been miles ahead of everyone in the skating drills in addition to showing well in the scrimmages.

Lupenette has been working on a line with midget graduates Dave Smith and Phil Kirby, although Crawford stresses that no line combinations, or even positions are as yet fully determined.

Smith, a strong - skating right winger, counted 18 points in only eight games with last year's Richard Ellis entry in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League.

Another newcomer who has made a strong showing is centre Gary Larst, who signed at last night's practice. The skating centre saw hockey action last season in Germany, where his father was stationed with the Canadian Forces, but appears to have no trouble re-adjusting to Canadian play.

Crawford plans to split the team into two squads in order to give everyone a look in the Fairways' weekend exhibition matches. Belleville plays a home game Sunday, at 8 p.m. against the Trenton Golden Hawks, and then travels to Kingston to take on the defending league champion Frontenacs, Monday night.

Napanee, Collegians Split

BCI football teams suffered different fates in their Napanee doubleheader yesterday. In the senior game, Napanee came up with a 21-8 win, avenging a 34-1 pasting of their juniors.

Junior quarterback Steve Cowan paced the Collegians to their win as he passed to Ron Woods for three touchdowns and counted another on an end sweep. Halfback Andy Richards counted the other major score for the winners.

Flying Fairways

Danny Lupenette tests netminding candidate Roger LaMorre while winger Dave Smith waits for a rebound at a practice session of the Belleville Fairways. The Eastern Ontario Junior B League team is looking to at least duplicate last season's success, when they made the final play-off spot in the six-team league. The Fairways open their exhibition schedule Sunday with a home game against the Trenton Golden Hawks.

Weather Odds on Harness Meet

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club is hoping that the odds will be in their favor, as far as the weather man is concerned, after two consecutive washouts of their Saturday night harness racing card.

Certainly the odds in the Richard Ellis Memorial pace have to be heavily stacked in favor of Cam Wannamaker's R. Yankee Wave. The seven year old stallion will be aiming at Early Lakes John's record of 2:05.

The mark is definitely within-has a best-ever mark of 1:57.1, a record for a Canadian - bred pacer.

The Belleville appearance will mark the only small track competition for the Canadian record holder who has earned over $20,000 this season, after competing on the major tracks in Ontario and New York State. No pari-mutuel betting will be permitted on the bigis reach of R. Yankee, who circuit visitor.

Figuring in the battle for second spot should be another Wannamaker entry, "I. N. Wann", along with Jimmy Bing, who met with a great deal of early season success on the Belleville track.

Another feature of the Saturday's nine - race card will be the powder puff race, which has been postponed the last two weeks. No betting will be allowed on the female - reined event, with all drivers splitting the purse.

Turns Other Cheek

MONTREAL (CP) — Evangelism by-telephone has started here, and one of the innovators is Pat Phaneuf, 26-year-old defensive halfback of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

Phaneuf was once evaluated by ex-Als defensive coach Ralph Goldston as a player whose only flaw is that "he turns the other cheek." It was Goldston's way of pointing out that Phaneuf has everything as a defensive half apart from the quality needed to call aggressiveness.

Phaneuf was picked as the outstanding Canadian rookie in the East last year despite his lack of aggressiveness, and this year he hasn't changed his style.

"It's just the way I play," he says.

"I like to get up and talk," he says, "but I don't preach to anyone."

At the same time, Phaneuf sees himself as a missionary for the gospel.

"I want to see people become Christians in the true sense. A lot of people call themselves Christians without really knowing what the term implies.

Billy Casper Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner
LONG IRONS FROM HARD GROUND

Many golfers shy away from long irons when the turf is especially firm. They feel that they cannot get the ball airborne without some kind of special effort.

Not so. Keeping in mind that the long iron swing should never be forced, play the ball about an inch farther forward, toward the target. At address, be certain that your hands are even with the ball — not ahead — for that would take effective loft off the shot.

The forward positioning will result in your taking less of a divot. In fact, the clubhead will only scrape the ground after impact. It takes practice to learn this shot, but it's one you should know.

Direct reverse, polyurethane track

Snow Cruiser high performance models RK321 and RK361 are not recommended for the timid. Because both models are very fast. Power comes from a twin cylinder, dual carb 2000 cc high performance engine on the 32 horsepower model, and a more powerful 4.38 cc, twin cylinder, dual carb engine on the 38 horsepower model.

Both engines are smooth and vibration-free in all gear ranges. Yet for all that power, tuned exhaust keeps the noise down without interfering with performance.

Underneath, the RK's travel on a new 15½ inch molded polyurethane track that clings to snow and ice the way a running tire holds the road. Excellent for side-tracking slopes, and tackling hills straight on.

There's excellent flotation on any snow condition. Ski columns are heavy-duty forgings, and ski springs are extra stiff for greater stability. Caliper brakes are sure and quick. For convenience and safety, there's also a parking brake. The power is contained through a reinforced hull. Get down to Snow Cruiser's Variable Speed Drive that automatically varies your speed over when the going gets tough.

When it comes to styling, the RK's look just as performance oriented as they are. The lines are fast and clean-cut. Racing stripes, cut-down molded tinted windscreen, dual raised headlights and big styled deep foam seat.

The RK's are true performers in every sense of the word. They're quick, agile, manoeuvreable and highly stable. For the experienced driver who wants to move up to performance!

For complete information and action, see your Snow Cruiser dealer. Seven models in all including the fast, light 200's, the stable Wide-Track 2000's and the high performance RK twins.

Managers Having Second Thoughts About Sunday Starters

CINCINNATI (AP) — A controversial rule, "right under our noses," appears to have taken hold in both camps as Baltimore Orioles and Cincinnati Reds approach the final countdown for that position to be an explosive World Series confrontation.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles and Sparky Anderson of the Reds, each actively aware of the other's potent hitting power, had second thoughts about their long-range pitching plans for the best-of-seven series beginning Saturday at Riverfront Stadium.

But Weaver, who selected Palmer ahead of southpaw aces Mike Cuellar and Dave McNally in consider the Reds' 3-4-5 punch of right-hand swingers Tony Perez, Johnny Bench and Lee May, expressed some concern over the readiness of Cuellar as his starter in game No. 2.

McNally worked seven brisk innings as the American League champs breezed through an inter-squad game at home before preparing to depart for Cincinnati today. Weaver used Cuellar for the last two innings, then said he was convinced McNally was ready . . . but not so certain about the Cuban screwball artist.

"Two innings might get Mike up for Sunday," Weaver said. "I'd just have to wait and see." Cuellar and McNally each won 24 games and Palmer took 20 for the Orioles during the season. Cuellar, however, was the least effective and Palmer the sharpest, with a 12-strikeout spree, as the defending AL kings swept the pennant playoffs from Minnesota Twins.

Anderson, meanwhile, explained he was leaning toward Cloninger because of the recent slow troubles of 20-game winner Merritt.

"Merritt's elbow is still sore," the skipper said as the Reds worked out on their astroturf diamond. "And anyway, with the lineup Baltimore puts on the field, it's not much of an advantage going with a left-hand pitcher."

Big Rog Powell, who hits from the left side, is the Orioles' top run maker. But right-hand hitting Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson, Merv Rettenmund, Dave Johnson and Paul Blair all are formidable threats.

Cloninger, a 16-year National League veteran who once hit two grand-slam homers in a single game, failed to finish any of his 18 starts for the Reds. But he did a good job filling the gaps when injuries sidelined rookie star Wayne Simpson McGlothlin and Merritt. He finished with a 9-7 mark.

The managers' concern over their pitching rotation underlines the feeling among most onlookers that a free-swinging, high-scoring series is in the offing between two evenly-matched powerhouses.

Despite an offensive sag during their sweep of Pittsburgh for the NL crown in a playoff supposedly made for hitters, the Reds have proven the capacity to roll up high scores.

The Orioles displayed their power by crushing Minnesota 10-4, 11-3 and 6-1 behind a 26-hit binge.

Cincinnati batted .270, Baltimore .257 during regular season play. The Orioles outscored the Reds 780-775, but Cincinnati had the edge in homers, 191-178.

Soarky Champion Of Minor League Managers

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson believes he will be representing all minor league managers Saturday when he sends Cincinnati Reds against Baltimore Orioles in the World Series.

"I'd like to prove minor league managers just aren't jokes," he said. "I told my wife, that's why I took the job."

Anderson, at 36 the youngest major league pilot, guided the Reds to a club record 102 triumphs during the regular season and became the first rookie manager to win a National League flag in 24 seasons.

"I have a good feeling for the minors. When you spend that many years (16) in them, you have to have. I don't even have a major league pension yet."

"I've been where the buses stop at those all-night hamburger joints," he said. "I like George Scherger's comment. My coach joked one day and said, 'Skip, the stakes are too thick up here'."

Anderson played seven of his nine season's in the minors and managed another five years.

"The other pitching coaches that were here couldn't win," he said of Shepard.

"How many guys would take Wayne Simpson, 7-13 the year before, and use him? Or Don Gullett, a year out of high school? Or when the other coaches keep Gary Nolan on the mound for 250 innings?

"Shep, Alex Grammas or George Scherger could all manage a big league club," Anderson said. "Why aren't coaches heard of more?

Anyone for Seconds?

Baltimore fans are hoping that their Orioles will get a chance to continue their celebration after they meet Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" in the World Series. The opening game is slated for Saturday in Cincinnati. Shown celebrating their Eastern Division American League win are Frank Robinson, Dave McNally, Mike Cuellar and Brooks Robinson.

Weaver Works Eight Pitchers In Practice

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver of Baltimore Orioles, rewards a strong contender for Manager-of-the-Year honors, took a clear lead today for the Cornball Award of the Decade.

"Just before he and the Orioles boarded a plane for a flight to Cincinnati, where the World Series will open Saturday, Weaver said:

"As the manager said when his tail was caught in an electric fan: 'It won't be long now'."

Weaver pronounced the Orioles fit after a game-like workout Thursday in which eight pitchers threw their normal stuff. Dave McNally, who will pitch game No. 3 next Tuesday, went seven innings in a final tuneup and allowed his mates just five hits.

Mike Cuellar, the starter in Cincinnati for the second game Sunday, went only two innings and Weaver said he'd have to wait and see if that was the proper amount of work.

Weaver's decision to start Jim Palmer in the series opener, plus the four-day delay since both the Orioles and Reds swept their league playoffs in three games, has thrown Baltimore's pitching rotation off the norm.

Palmer pitched the third game of the playoffs, striking out 12 Minnesota batters in a 6-1 victory Monday. But because he is a right-hander, Palmer has been given the first game assignment against Cincinnati's predominantly right-handed hitting lineup.

Cuellar will have had seven days off between starts and McNally eight, hence the hard throwing Cuban.

Boog Powell, struck out twice by McNally, said of the workout: "It might be helping our pitchers, but it sure ain't helping us."

"We're as ready as we can be," Weaver said. "We're in as good physical condition as we've been all year."

Sports on All Fronts

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, the American who has won just about everything in golf, fired two eagles Thursday to destroy Gene Littler of San Diego, Calif., 5 and 4 and move into the semi-finals of the Piccadilly world match play championship. Thursday's matches were decided on a 36-hole basis over Wentworth's 6,987-yard, 36-37—73 layout, 30 miles outside of London.

MONTREAL (CP) — Dick Cox, director of scouting for the National Hockey League Pittsburgh Penguins in this area, said Friday doctors are satisfied with the condition of 25-year-old Michel Briere. A rookie centre with the Penguins last season, he has been in hospital since he suffered brain damage in an automobile accident last May near his home at Malartic, Que.

CALGARY (CP) — Quarterback Jerry Keeling of Calgary Stampeders has been placed in hospital "for a few days observation," the club announced Thursday. Keeling suffered a cracked rib and bruises Wednesday night in a Canadian Football League interlocking game against Montreal Alouettes.

Warriors Live Up to Title

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — University of Waterloo Warriors, defending Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association track and field champions, edged the University of Western Ontario Mustangs Thursday 104-95 in total points in an invitational meet here.

McMaster also participated in the meet and placed third by accumulating 27 points.

Waterloo and Western each won eight events with McMaster picking up victories in the other two.

Waterloo's Dennis McGann scored three victories: 100-yard dash, 10.8; 220-yard dash, 23.2; long jump, 22' 11¼" and he ran the lead-off leg in the 440-yard relay won by Waterloo in 42.8.

Western's Harvey Barkauskas dominated the shotput and discus events with victory tosses of 47' 3¼" and 136' 1½" respectively.

George Neeland of Waterloo, who represented Canada in the 1970 British Commonwealth Games, won the 120-yard high hurdles in 15.0. Glen Arbeen won the javelin event with a toss of 220' 1", bettering his O-QAA record of last year: 218' 10".

In the six-mile run, Waterloo's Paul Pearson was the winner and Ross Gray won the 440-yard run in 49.4.

For Western, Chris Boller won the mile in 4:18.4. Grant MacLaren, the three-mile event in 14:31.6 and Max Morden won the triple jump and Scott White the pole vault.

McMaster's prize were by Ray Tucker in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles and Peter Zowkowych in the high jump.

No Fish Story!

NEWBURYPORT, Mass. (AP) — A 968-pound tuna fish caught off Newburyport Thursday may be the record American catch.

The giant fish was reeled in by Burt Reed, 37, a charter boat operator after two hours.

Reed said he would make application for listing the catch as the American record.

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"The school nurse sent me home—my teacher needed the rest."

"Hey, mister! We out-of-work professional housepainters think that's mighty dangerous work for a homeowner to be doing."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Husband Angered By Wife's Concern

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Although my husband and I are very much in love, there is a lack of communication. We have been married 18 years. He is 46 with a history of hepatitis last year. More recently he has also suffered from pancreatitis.

For the past six months he has been consuming at least a half pint of bourbon every night. Whenever I question him about this he replies that he has enough problems and tells me to stop nagging him. When I tell him he needs help about his drinking he says, "I can stop any time I want to."

Recently when the subject was brought up he became very angry and started hitting the doors and throwing things around. Several nights later he added to his quota. He now takes three or four cans of of beer too, 12 ounces each. His speech becomes slurred and his co-ordination bad. Would you say my husband is an alcoholic or headed in that direction? What can I do to help? — Mrs. L.

COMMENT: I would call your husband an alcoholic. There are various degrees of chronic alcoholism. Some people won't think of anyone as an alcoholic—unless he has to be picked up out of the gutter. But, as you must know, many heavy drinkers indeed do a day of work. Some alcoholics drink only on weekends; others think they are "social drinkers" yet consume enough daily to deserve the title: alcoholic.

Alcoholism is a costly problem to business and industry. But in many industrial cases where executives are afflicted, the problems are hushed up. I say "afflicted" because it is now common knowledge that alcoholism is not so much a moral problem as one of social disease.

Ask for help from your family doctor, Mrs. L. But I must warn you that it is an accepted fact, that unless the alcoholic admits he is one, and unless he seeks help, it's unlikely that the problem can be solved. Therefore, do your best to help him give up his drinking frankly with his history of hepatitis and pancreatitis), even if he calls you a "nagger". But actual cure will have to come from deep inside himself.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In regard to exercise, I believe in only moderate exercise as you do. Mine consists of a short daily walk. I've done all right on this regime. I'm fit and feel well. But I'm not bragging or boasting. Who knows? Tomorrow I could be in the great beyond. — Mr. F.

COMMENT: I've just received a card from another 85-year-old who celebrated his birthday by swimming a mile in a lake outside his home in Massachusetts. He writes, "It takes all kinds to make a world." I agree. Some get to be 80 by the "rocking chair route," others, by throwing their arms and legs around.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a friend who is 68. She has trouble swallowing. She can't eat anything solid lately. Just milk, tea, soups and broths. The doctor wants her to go into the hospital. Can this be a serious condition? How will the doctors check it? — Mrs. C.

COMMENT: In younger persons difficulty in swallowing may sometimes be due to a nervous spasm of the esophagus (food pipe). In checking your friend, it is likely that the doctors will take special X-rays and examine the esophagus with a lighted tube. They'll want to make sure a growth isn't causing the trouble.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Profanity Not Essential

Remember when that used to be "swearing" in a story? Or, sometimes, swearing was this — later, the more daring authors would subtly convey their meaning by a discreet — or a.h.

I thought of these swiftly changing mores the other night when I settled down at home for a quiet evening of reading, with a new novel purporting to reflect the "now generation."

Every other word in the book, it seemed, was either profane or obscene. This obsession with coarse language, seemingly for its own sake, annoyed and irritated me — and also impeded the flow of the story.

My objections to such a super-abundance of obscenity are not moral: I am sure the author is an earnest and high-minded artist, who sincerely felt that he must faithfully reproduce the realistic speech of his characters. But I think he is wrong, and that the profanity is a defect rather than an asset in the book.

I have not noticed that any of the great literary figures of the past were at all handicapped in being unable to print the conversations of the depth of despair and depravity without the need for obscenity. Tolstoy's War and Peace, perhaps the greatest novel ever written, is not perceptibly flawed by the absence of dirty words.

Both Shakespeare and Chaucer, it is true, were extremely bawdy — but mostly in their comic moments, where there has a quality of wholesome coarseness. Rabelais and Balzac also are often called "dirty" writers — but they were primarily satirists of mankind and society.

The quality of a work of art is determined by how successfully it stirs the imagination of the reader, not by the way it reproduces the flat and dreary prose that has no meaning and no strength. Filth is always a sign of weakness — in the mouth of the user and in the mind of the writer.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 10

Your birthday today: Mental and psychic development are promised for the year ahead. You may find you have indeed some major mission in life, only to find another waiting. Your personal values change, so that things once of no concern are now important, and vice versa. Romantic interests likewise redevelop, are less frustrating. Today's stars are generally good workers with inventive, practical minds. Frequently there is a natural interest in metaphysics and religion.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A few questions that have bothered you for a long time can now be solved — you may not like all the answers. Hold onto your temper; you find better uses for it later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Trying too much too fast is tempting. Trying to do too little likewise won't get you out well. Use the middle course: be sure of what you want to do.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You now seem to talk faster than you think, to offer criticism not taken in the spirit you intend. Tact makes the difference with overly sensitive friends.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Money is the major concern today. Concentrate on spiritual values: lending isn't the best. Refreshed at end of day brings a strange idea.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Put your time to use to cooperate with the plans of influential people. Home life is better this evening. Wish you plans to make.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Distinguish between petty hindrance and a genuine question. With the right answers you can make great progress. Close associates are most critical, with best reason.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You prevail in theory, but not in material terms. Older people almost certainly will cause expensive incidents. Purchase of wait.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Public affairs and you haven't something definite to say. Family matters run into sudden squalls. Your true feelings must be shown if you are to proceed in peace.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You are tempted to volunteer for more than you can comfortably do. Listen to the various dissenting opinions or friends before making a firm promise. Time will tend to show you hadn't planned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Social activities pile up some costs. Budget so you can pay properly. Then rearrange your home schedule to pamper yourself a bit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your wishes run counter to the general trend of what is feasible today. Expect delays and confusion in any social or romantic ventures.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Secret agreements are not preferred now, but thinking in solitude may bring you to a special point of advantage. Older people pose some perplexity.

Tax Rebate Is Unfair Say Clerks

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — urban and rural clerks and treasurers from Middlesex County clashed Thursday in a brief exchange of opinions over the Ontario government announcement that it will implement a 25 per cent property tax rebate to farmers this year.

Urban clerks charged that the rebate is unfair and discriminatory against city, town and village homeowners and rural officials jumped to the defence of rural taxpayers who, led by two farmers organizations, have been withholding taxes.

The arguments arose when Derek Newton, county treasurer, said an urban taxpayer with a $30,000 home pays $584 general taxes and $493 education taxes, $4 and 48 per cent respectively.

When he asked what a farmer with 100 acres of land and property valued at $30,000 would pay, Robert Metcalfe, Westminster Township treasurer, said in his area the farmer would pay $6 in general taxes and $260 education taxes, 48 and 52 per cent respectively.

A rural official argued that farmers are carrying too high a percentage of the education tax. But Albert Alexander, London Township clerk-treasurer, argued it was justified because service to farm children, such as busing, costs more.

Shulman Declares U.S. Crooks Consider Ontario Great Place

TORONTO (CP) — A United States crackdown on organized crime is driving crooks to Ontario which they consider a great place because "our police are not bothering them," Dr. Morton Shulman told the Ontario legislature Thursday.

The attack by the NDP member for Toronto High Park came after the government barely managed to win second reading —approval in principle—for its controversial labor bill.

Dr. Shulman told a committee considering the attorney-general's department estimates that "the attorney-general for reasons that are incomprehensible . . . will not take the actions that are necessary to drive organized crime out of this province."

He told Attorney-General Arthur Wishart that the hoodlums love Ontario because "you don't have an InterAlgest InterAlgerore squad."

Dr. Shulman said he would name names during budget debate when the fourth session of the 28th legislature opens next year. He said he has been told "big shots in the Mafia" have held meetings in Toronto and the Lake Erie communities of Turkey Point and Port Rowan.

Dr. Shulman said there are some "very competent men" in the OPP but the force is unable to do proper surveillance.

He said one example was when the OPP learned from U.S. police that an organizational meeting of gangsters was to be held in a Toronto hotel but officers were able only to take licence numbers because they had not asked U.S. authorities for photographs.

He said OPP intelligence has been unable to cope with Mafia infiltration of a labor union and bungled a chance to crack a heroin-smuggling operation.

Today, the legislature was to receive a speaker's ruling on whether it could take up the case of Dr. Shulman who may be jailed for contempt for failing to reveal his sources of information to an inquiry into alleged associations of senior OPP officers with known criminals.

Earlier Thursday, Labor Minister Bales, defence of the Progressive Conservative government's labor bill but many of his colleagues failed to follow his lead.

Instead, several government cabinet ministers and backbenchers left the House and the government was in danger of being defeated by a combined Liberal and NDP opposition when the bill came up for second reading.

Division bells, which summon House members to cast their vote, rang for 1¼ hours before government whips could round up enough support to beat back the opposition 78 to 44.

During debate, Mr. Bales heard criticism of the bill which would permit employers' associations in the construction industry to bargain as a unit and increase the membership of a union required for certification from 35 to 45 per cent.

Mr. Bales defended the bill saying "when this legislation as viewed as a totality and as modifications and extensions of the Labor Relations Act, its whole purpose is to create a better means of encouraging free collective bargaining, protecting the individual within the system and, hopefully, reducing industrial conflict."

—Bert Lawrence, minister of financial and commercial affairs, announced no-chance bingos conducted through newspapers or radio and television by charitable groups will be permitted in Ontario.

—Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) said the government is misleading Toronto and Hamilton residents by "going through the motions" of reassuring air pollution in those cities.

—Vernon Singer, (L—Downsview) said off-track betting should be controlled by the government and run from betting shops in liquor stores.

—Health Minister Thomas Wells said 28 Quebec doctors have applied to practise i n Ontario a s a result of a medical dispute i n that province.

Gloves Come Off as Party Chiefs Open Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The white gloves come off in the Commons today as the four party leaders kick off a potential eight days of debate on Thursday's speech from the throne.

On the surface, the throne speech offers one obvious opening for prolonged opposition criticism—its scanty mention of the country's unemployment problem.

"Unemployment remains distressingly high in some parts of Canada although the rate has not increased significantly in recent months . . . ." read the speech. The government was "countering slowly but effectively the pressures of inflation and unemployment."

Two major issues were dealt with—the problems of urban affairs and pollution.

The government will set up separate departments to deal with both of them.

And although the perennial Canadian Development Corp. promise was not mentioned in the speech, it was on the government's list of proposed legislation, defusing some of the ire of the New Democratic Party.

Opposition reaction to the speech gave some indication of what issues might qualify for opposition condemnation.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said the speech "failed to address any of the questions begging Canadians today."

Specifically, it lacked measures designed to stimulate the economy and alleviate unemployment.

"Never before have we had so much motherhood and moralizing."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said he "never heard so much guff" in his life.

". . . There is cold comfort for the unemployed in that speech," he said.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the speech offered nothing new, and had avoided the main issue—the economy.

The government announced it would propose 50 pieces of legislation.

The mover of the speech, Jacques Trudel (L—Montreal Bourassa), and the seconder, A. B. Douglas (L—Assiniboia), took advantage of their assignments to extol the virtues and plead the problems of their ridings.

Mr. Trudel spoke against pollution and commended the government for proposing to set up a new department or urban affairs.

The proposed urban affairs department offers at least a vehicle in a major area the government has been wary of because of the problem of provincial jurisdiction.

Bob Mr. Stanfield, whose pacty is trying to pick up urban support, and liberal backbenchers have been critical of the government's hands-off policy in this area.

Iranian Plane Latest Hijack

TEHRAN (AP) — A hijacked Iranian Boeing 727 airliner landed safely at Abadan in southwest Iran today after being held with its 44 passengers and crew of eight for five hours by three air pirates at Baghdad airport, Iraq.

The plane is owned by Iran's national airlines, Iran Air. A spokesman said condition of all passengers is good.

Officials have not disclosed the reason for the hijacking—the second of an Iran Air jet in four months.

The three hijackers were held for questioning in Baghdad.

When the Boeing landed at Baghdad, the hijackers announced they would blow it up unless the authorities back in Iran agreed to release 11 political prisoners.

Foreign Minister Ardeshir Zhadi announced the plane later was released through negotiations.

Zhadi said only that the negotiations were carried out with Iraqi authorities and the plane landed at Abadan in southwest Iran, across the Shatt al Arab River from Iraq.

The hijackers were identified as Issa Tehrgui, Ali Reza and Mohammed Mahmoudi, all between 17 and 21.

It was later reported from Tehran that Iranian Foreign Minister Ardeshir Zahedi contradicted earlier reports from Iranian government sources that the airliner had been released and was continuing its journey.

He said that Iranian embassy officials in Baghdad were still negotiating the release of the plane, its passengers and crew.

The same sources had said the three hijackers were arrested by Baghdad security agents.

The government spokesman responsible for this report later apologized.

Meantime, at Mehrabad airport, from where the airliner took off, an Iraqi plane crew and passengers, after flew into Tehran after the hijacking were quoted as saying the hijackers are pressing for their demands and until their demands are met they will not release the plane nor passengers.

The hijacking was the fifth in the Middle East in a little more than a month.

Pensions To Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — People on fixed incomes can expect "some action" in this parliamentary session, Prime Minister Trudeau told reporters Friday.

Asked inside the Commons whether there might be something done before Christmas, the prime minister said:

"Yes indeed, in this session there will be some action. That is what is meant in references to the white paper on income security and legislation that will flow from it."

He said that he thinks pensioners can get through the winter. "It would be to bad if they had to, but. . . .

Mr. Trudeau said an increase will be granted pensioners "as soon as we can get the money and make it available."

It's Been A Long Time

For Owen Sound Crescents' coach Billy Taylor, last night's OHA Senior A season's opener in Belleville marked the end of a 20-year wait. Although his travel-weary Crescents lost a tough 2-1 overtime decision to Belleville's Mo-Hawks, Taylor was far from disappointed. (Story on first page, second section.)

Egyptian Moderates Rebuffed

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of Gamal Abdel Nasser's closest colleagues are reported to have been turned back by Egypt's acting president in a bid to make major changes in Egypt's political system, the New York Times says.

The newspaper says President Anwar Sadat, backed by a coalition of leftists, security officers and army leaders, recently rejected proposals by Abdel Latif Baghdadey, Zakariya Mohieddine and Kaman Eddine Hussein.

The Times says the three former leaders asked for an open political system with at least one opposition party and a free general election of a long-National Assembly through procedures supervised by an independent body; an independent judiciary system with guarantees that there be no arrests without formal charges; release of all political prisoners; and a collective authority of former army officers at the head of government rather than a single strongman.

The paper says the speed of Sadat's nomination for the presidency "was evidently intended to snuff out any rival bid for over-all control of the Egyptian regime by a more moderate, potentially pro-Western faction."

Killer Takes Guns

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Police are conducting an all-out search for a man wanted in the shooting deaths of two RCMP officers on a farm in the MacDowall district, 25 miles south of here.

RCMP S. Sgt. W. H. Preston said Stanley Wilfred Robertson, 40, a MacDowall area farmer has been charged with the capital murders of Sgt. R. J. Schrader, 41, and Constable D. B. Anson, 30. He said Robertson is still at large.

The officers were shot about 6 p.m. CST when they went to investigate reports of a family quarrel. One of the men was found dead on the steps of the farmhouse, the other in the yard behind the house.

Sgt. Schrader, a 22-year veteran of the force, was married with five children and was a native of Rimbey, Alta., Constable Anson, married only a month and a half, joined the force 11 years ago and was a native of Kingston, Ont.

S. Sgt. Preston said the officers were "lured upon without warning" and their radio-equipped cruiser and handguns are missing. Also missing is a high-powered rifle used in the killings.

Police throughout Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba have been alerted and every RCMP officer in the Prince Albert division is taking part in the search. Tracking dogs are being used and aircraft were to begin patrols at first light today.

The area being searched is bush country broken by prairie.

The farm is located 2½ miles southwest of MacDowall, a tiny community of 250 persons. Many of the villages' businesses, including a hotel beverage room, closed for at least part of the morning and residents were reported to be staying behind locked doors.

Increases Condemned

OTTAWA (CP) — The prices and incomes commission fiercely its independence muscle Friday, condemning the government for allowing salary increases of up to 7½ per cent annually to federal economists and other professional employees.

A commission news release said a Friday arbitration award to about 1,200 government employees—including economists, statisticians, sociologists and mathematicians—was "totally unjustified."

The commission was created by the federal government but is designated as an independent body.

The award of the public service arbitration tribunal covers a two-year period from July 1, 1970.

Complaints on File

No Snow Yet But Snowmobile Debate Is On

OTTAWA (CP) — Drunken snowmobilers who chased a pregnant woman and played "chicken" with a group of children are part of the reason powered snow vehicles have been banned on federal lands in the capital area, the National Capital Commission said Friday.

The NCC, responsible for administration of government property in and around Ottawa, announced the ban Sept. 30, citing pollution and damage to vegetation as reasons.

Since then, pro- and anti-snow vehicle factions have started to use the hottest debates in NCC history.

Focus of the issue is 80,000-acre Gatineau Park, just across the Ottawa River from Ottawa, which has attracted thousands of snowmobilers in recent winters.

In further explaining the ban, the NCC said Friday it received a letter from a woman who said that while pregnant she was chased along one of Gatineau Park's walking trails by drunken snowmobile operators until she was nearly exhausted.

Another complaint, one of several the NCC has on file, told of several "stoned" snowmobile drivers roaring down on a group of children, "turning aside at the last possible fraction of a second to avoid hitting them."

In other developments Friday, associations representing about 5,000 snowmobilers were reported to be mounting a campaign with petitions and letters to newspapers and the NCC to force a withdrawal of the ban.

So far the only concession the NCC has made is to promise to study a suggestion for opening a corridor in the park, using roads and trails, which would allow snowmobilers to pass from one side of the park to the other.

In return, say the clubs, their members would police themselves and other snowmobilers, help with a spring clean-up in the park and control muffler systems to minimize noise.

The NCC said it has received 332 letters supporting the ban and 24 disagreeing.

The Ottawa Field Naturalists' Club, with about 600 local members, the Ottawa Hull chapter of the National and Provincial Parks Association, with about 100 members, and about 500-trail skiers of the Ottawa Ski Club were reported preparing to circulate a letter expressing "unqualified support" for the NCC ban.

A spokesman for the parks association said that a public servants' outdoor club, a canoe club, the Ottawa chapter of the Alpine Club, Carleton University's Pollution Probe and the Society To Oppose Pollution are expected to join the signature campaign.

Execution Deadline 6 PM Today

MONTREAL (CP) — Terrorists who kidnapped James (Jasper) Cross say they will execute the British diplomat unless demands for the freedom of "political prisoners" are met by 6 p.m. EDT today.

The kidnappers Friday night made public two communiques and a note in Mr. Cross' handwriting to show their prisoner was still alive.

The communiques renewed a demand for the release of prisoners in jail on charges connected with terrorism in Quebec province and a demand that police investigation of the kidnapping be curtailed.

"This is the last communique, should authorities not release political prisoners between now and six o'clock Saturday night," the kidnappers said.

"Neither the authorities nor their fascist police will find diplomat J. Cross again, if they do not fulfill our demands. . . ."

They also warned that "if ever the repressive police forces find us and try to intervene before the release of British diplomat Cross, . . . we will defend our lives dearly and . . . J. Cross will be liquidated on the spot."

"And we have enough dynamite in our possession to feel secure."

The new deadline extended by 42 hours the previous "last" deadline of midnight Thursday night.

The deadline was set back, the kidnappers said, in response to the broadcast of a "political manifesto" of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec on French-language stations of the Crown-owned CBC Thursday night.

They also responded to an appeal by Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette Friday for a note in Mr. Cross' handwriting to show he was still "safe and sound." The diplomat was abducted at gunpoint Monday.

The note contained a sentence specified by the minister:

"It is now five days since I left and I want you to know, darling, that I miss you every minute."

But then Mr. Cross added:

"Please give my love to my wife and daughter."

The two communiques were labelled No. 6 and No. 7. The first was timed at 8 a.m. Friday and the second at 8 p.m. Both were delivered to radio station CKLM along with Mr. Cross' note by an unidentified woman who left them with a reception-ist.

Communique No. 7 said the earlier missive had been left Friday morning for authorities who had not made it public.

"We are now certain that the established authorities are only seeking to gain time since they are refusing to let the people know the content of communique No. 6 as well as a public letter from J. Cross."

Earlier Friday, police were reported to be looking for five "prime suspects" in the kidnapping, including a missing 25-year-old taxi driver.

But no statements were available early today. Mr. Choquette met with officials engaged in the case, but he had no comment on the new deadline.

So far there have been at least 64 FLQ supporters rounded up by police raids. At least four were picked up Friday.

Communique No. 6 laid out in detail the steps the government should take to assure Mr. Cross' safe release:

—Prisoners agreeing to be released and taken to Algeria or Cuba were to be given their freedom;

—Their wives and children were to be permitted, if they wished, to accompany them;

—All searches and arrests by police were to be suspended immediately.

Three observers were to be taken along to see that the operation went smoothly. They were to be Robert Lemieux, a lawyer who has defended several accused terrorists in court, and two Montreal broadcasters, Pierre Pascau and Louis Fournier.

Mr. Cross was to be released 24 hours after the observers returned to Montreal after escorting the prisoners into exile.

First demands of the kidnappers called for $500,000 in gold, freeing of 23 prisoners and their safe conduct out of the country as well as the halting of policy activity and publication of the FLQ manifesto.

The demand for gold was later abandoned.

Twelve prisoners whose release the FLQ has demanded have signed documents saying they would accept release and asylum in exile if offered it. Others have agreed to this condition verbally.

The FLQ has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping. It also claimed responsibility for repeated waves of terrorist bombings in Montreal during the 1960s.

War Games In Spotlight

BRUSSELS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization begins its biggest war games of the year today in the eastern Mediterranean while the Russians hold manoeuvres far to the north in East Germany.

The Soviet bloc has billed its exercise called Brotherhood in Arms as the biggest since the Second World War. There have been reports that as many as 300,000 troops from seven countries may be participating although the actual number may not be much more than 100,000.

Eight Western countries will be using about 100,000 men in exercise Deep Express.

Both exercises involve air sea and land forces and landing operations

Gen. Heinz Hoffman East Germany's defence minister has been named commander of the Eastern bloc's games. Soviet Marshal Ivan Yakubovsky commander-in-chief of all Warsaw pact forces also is an hand.

The scenario for the games has not been disclosed but it may be something like this: The Atlantic Alliance is supposed to have launched an attack from West Germany and attempted landings on East Germany's Baltic coast. The Russians and their allies counter-attack with air sea and ground forces.

The manoeuvres are believed to have started today and are to last through Oct. 20.

Children's Aid Groups Irked

Provincial children's aid spokesmen Friday criticized proposals for increased provincial control of adoption and foster care programs.

A report to John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, suggested government streamlining of adoption methods and regional government involvement.

But Bruce Kerr, director of the Hastings county family and children's services said he "can't get excited" about the proposed changeover.

"The committee making the recommendation concerning government take over of children's services is acting outside the scope of its terms of reference," he said. "It was set up only to recommend improved methods of adoption and foster care."

At no time did the committee consult with Hastings county family and children's service officials on the subject of administration change, the director said.

"A firm of management consultants engaged by the government to study children's services operations in the province strongly recommended last June that the present system be continued," added Mr. Kerr.

"I disagree wholeheartedly with this proposal," said H. H. Dymond, executive director of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies. "It would be a retrograde step."

Mr. Dymond, spokesman for 51 Ontario societies, said he defies anyone to find a better way of handling child welfare than the present method, involving private citizens through local children's aid societies.

The contribution that is made by these voluntary boards is something that could never be replaced by government," he said.

Mr. Dymond suggested a provincially - appointed board would have no p. wer and act as a "rubber stamp" for government.

Ruth Doebler, information officer for the Ontario association, said simply changing the structure of child welfare in the province "will not add an iota to the service".

Speaking for the association, Miss Hoehler said the suggested government control of child welfare services under a regional system would be a stunning loss to child welfare.

Spectacular Crash at Carrying Place

Two men were badly injured and electricity at the west end of the bayshore road was cut off for an hour yesterday after a car left the county road and sheared off a hydro pole near the junction of the old Carrying Place route about a mile east of the village. The occupants of the car, James Kingyens of Smithfield and Robert Girdwood of Frankford received treatment at the Trenton Memorial Hospital and then were transferred to the General Hospital at Kingston. Their vehicle which landed on its roof in a township resident's driveway was a write-off.

Nicholson College

Graduates Said 'Fine People'

In the light of publicity given to the "small minority who are sensational" parents are forgetting that "these sons and daughters of yours are fine young people".

The observation was made by Archbishop W. L. Wilhelm of Kingston in his remarks at the Nicholson Catholic College graduation last night in St. Michael's Auditorium.

His Grace stepped aside when his turn on the program came and invited Mayor J. Russell Scott to present the Ontario scholarships and honor graduation diplomas to the graduating class.

He conferred the honor on Belleville's mayor in recognition of Dr. Scott's support of the extension of government aid to Catholic education in Grades 11 to 13.

Last year, Dr. Scott introduced a resolution on the municipal level, calling for the educational grant extension.

Ontario scholar and multiple award winner Mary Sherl delivered the valedictory, urging her fellow graduates to "see people and situations as they really are and not as we would like them to be".

The guest speaker for the event was Lawrence MacDonnell, a teacher and graduate of the old St. Michael's High School.

He noted that a recent survey showed that the hardest working segment of the American population were its students. He urged them to retain the principles they had learned at school, and to strive for a special courage, spiced with zest and joy.

Ontario scholarships were presented to Miss Mary Sherl, Janet Boon, Sandra Volan, Maria DiGenova and Lawrence Donan.

John Marois received the student council award as the best all-round student, and Janice Ebner won the Belleville Kinsmen Bursary of $100.

Steven Schultz was the Northern Electric Company scholarship and Jeanette Lloyd won the Belleville Federation of Musicians prize.

Deborah Davis received the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club award and Louise Blais and Michelle Coats won the Sub Aluminite prize for proficiency in French.

The Catholic Doctors and Lawyers Scholarship of $200 went to Mary Sherl and the Catholic Women's League bursaries of $100 each went to Molly Doyle and Barbara Fraser. Donan and Mary Sherl won the Intelligencer Scholarship for grade 13 English.

The Rotary Club bursary went to Stanley Muldoon and the Argyll Chapter IODE award to Christopher Fleming.

The Order of Alhambra, Islam Caravan No. 109 was presented to Mary Catherine Tugnett and the Sister Mary Matthew memorial prize for science to Michael Langman.

Mrs. Michael Gleeson presented the Michael Gleeson Memorial scholarship, awarded to a student entering an engineering course at university, to Denis Walsh.

Newspaper Carriers Honored

Today is International Newspaperboy Day, an occasion set aside to honor all the carriers who bring you your daily newspaper.

An advertisement in today's Intelligencer honors the young businessmen who carry the news.

The following carriers' names were inadvertently omitted from the honor roll list in the advertisement: Jim Ash, Wayne Lynch, Ron Corbeil, Mark Sisson, Glen Button, Kevin Sills, Wayne Woodall and Joanne Cumming, all of Belleville. Bill Seeley of Stirling and Ethan Rivers of Tweed.

Postal Contract Ratified

Belleville postal department employees last night ratified the postal contract with the federal government.

A count of ballots showed that 92 per cent of the voting membership here was in favor of the new contract.

All contracts accepted by the national negotiating committee have to be ratified locally before they can go into effect.

Robarts, MacDonald Coming to OSD Party

Four provincial dignitaries will join with Ontario School for the Deaf students Oct. 28 to help celebrate the institution's 100th birthday.

He will be accompanied by Lieutenant Governor W. Ross MacDonald, Education Minister William Davis and Public Works Minister J. R. Simonett.

The four will participate in the official ceremonies after joining students for luncheon and touring the classes at the school.

The Belleville institution is the oldest of three special schools operated by the Ontario department of education for the deaf. The school has an enrolment of 430 and a staff of about 85 teachers.

IN MEMORIAM

BRANDON — In loving remembrance of a dear mother, Annie, who passed away Oct. 9, 1962.
We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours to give,
We'd give it, you and mother,
To see the face of mother dear,
And hear your voice again.
— Sadly missed by son Donald, granddaughters Norma, Dorothy, Anna Marie.

BURGESS — In loving memory of dear husband and father, Charles Burgess, who passed away Oct. 11th, 1966.
Time and a special day, does,
Not heal the pain,
The days I'm not think of you,
Are hard to find.
God takes those we love I miss you,
But in my heart you're always near.
My thoughts often turn to you dear,
To the spot where you are laid.
— Sadly missed by wife Ethel.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Bill, who passed away Oct. 11, 1965.
He dearly loved by one and all,
But God loved him best,
And He took him home to rest.

DEVER — In loving memory of my dear husband John Andrew (Andy) who passed away suddenly Oct. 11, 1969.
If I could walk with the road alone,
And talk with God each day,
Just to all there comes a moment,
When He will have His say.
You gave me years of happiness,
And I thank you dear, for them,
I only wish we could have had,
A few years more together.
— Sadly missed by wife Vera.

DEVER — In loving memory of my dear husband John Andrew (Andy) who passed away suddenly Oct. 11, 1969.

A few years more together.
— Sadly missed by wife Vera.

DEVITT — In ever loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Ann Devitt, who passed away Oct. 11th, 1966.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
Her life's work nobly done,
Her tired hands are folded,
Her race is run.
Dear Lord we waited in patience to be brave,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
— Always remembered by wife Mary, daughter Dorothy and son-in-law Lionel, son John and daughter-in-law Grace, grandchildren and friends.

DEVER — In loving memory of a dear father, John Andrew "Andy" who passed away suddenly Oct. 11, 1969.
What would we give if we could say,
Dear father, we wish you were here today,
To hear your voice and see your face,
Just sit and talk with you awhile,
We were not there to say goodbye,
You went so very far away,
We never could have said goodbye,
For we never thought you'd go.
It's memory for you in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed,
While others are asleep.

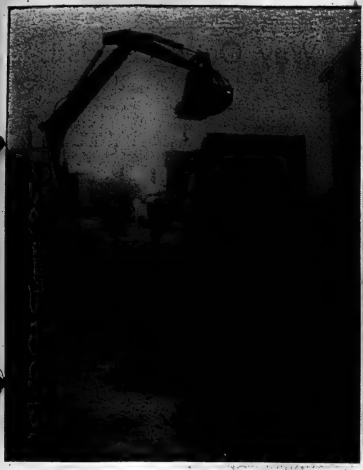
Indian Summer



Indian Summer is nature's most dramatic hour. She wears her radiant ribbons of awards for distinguished service . . . she has produced . . . she has yielded . . . she has merited her winter of rest.

So it is in our lives . . . our finest hour is the last of life for which the first was made.

Through death we return to our Maker and rewards. unfathomable . . . for a life well lived. It is to the loved ones left behind that death is a sorrow.

It is to the bereaved that our sympathetic understanding is sincerely expressed by directing a funeral priced within their means and complying with individual needs and personal requirements.

First Soup Crop Ready

WELLINGTON (Staff) — A work crew of approximately 35 women this week began the harvest of the first mushroom crop grown at the Wellington plant constructed by Campbell's Soup Company Ltd. Plant manager Donald Richards said today that the women started work last Tuesday following an orientation program. Mr. Richards observed that the workers are not kept "completely in the dark" while on the job. Each one is equipped with a miner's lamp and a limited amount of natural light is admitted through glass blocks in the rear of the building.

The first crop, according to Mr. Richards, should be harvested within six to seven weeks time. The freshly picked mushrooms are shipped in refrigerated trucks from the Wellington growing plant to Toronto. New crops are planted weekly as additional crops reach maturity and are harvested. This way, production at the plant is continuous and women employees work steadily picking fresh crops. Mr. Richards noted that mushroom growing operations normally shut down during the summer months but added that installation of air conditioning will permit year 'round operation at the Wellington plant. He explained that mushrooms cannot be exposed to temperatures above 60 degrees, a factor necessitating air conditioners in the plant.

Although "pickings are good" at the newly opened plant, full scale production is not anticipated before the early months of 1971. Mr. Richards said that a full staff of 75 men and women will be on the job, however, within the next 60 days.

Sewer Construction Ahead of Schedule

Like it's Toronto namesake, Bay Street in Trenton is cavernous. The town's public works department has created a deep pit up the middle of the street, as it prepares to instal a sanitary trunk sewer to connect with the one built down Dundas Street East last month. A giant pneumatic drill is being used to tear up the roadway, as steam shovels and back-hoes move in behind, in an operation that is three weeks ahead of schedule. The construction has caused considerable traffic disruptions in th town but these will end shortly. Paving of Dundas Street will begin Tuesday and all sewers will be fitted within the next 10 days.

Team Negotiates Pay Increases for Armed Forces

TRENTON (Staff) — Certain professional wage levels for the Canadian Armed forces were set this week and adjustments to the general service pay scale are in the final stages of preparation, a defence department spokesman said yesterday.

Thomas Morry, assistant deputy minister of defence, told The Intelligencer that, for a three - man panel in Ottawa, the pending adjustments are "the focus of undivided attention".

Mr. Morry sits on the board with the senior chief of military personnel and a high - ranking treasury board official together they are drawing proposals for the new Canadian Forces salary scales.

Our recommendations will be made in the treasury board, hopefully, by the end of the month," he said, adding that the treasury board makes final decisions on pay increases in the Canadian Armed Forces.

Furthermore, he added that any adherence to the suggested six per cent guideline of the prices and incomes board is also a treasury matter.

The essential factor in the suggested adjustments made by the three-man panel is a series of comparisons - civilian versus military - for the pay scales of various jobs, he explained.

"We compare with outside in setting the rates" he said, adding that where parallels do not exist, recommendations are made by gauging one function against another within the forces.

The new professional pay packages determined this week for medical, dental and legal officers are substantially in concert with the six per cent guideline.

A medical officer of captain rank received $1.075 a month in 1969. His salary will be $1.150 monthly by the new scale.

The salary of a major serving as a medical officer goes from $1.505 to $1.575 a month. For a dental officer with the rank of major the boost is from $1,317 to $1.385 and for a legal officer from $1,035 to $1.075.

Surveying present deliberations for general pay levels, Mr. Morry said that "one specific concern" is the difference in wage scales between commercial and military air crews.

Supplementary allowances are given for certain military functions, such as aircrew and submarine duty. These allowances are also up for review this year, he said.

Asked whether the Canadian Forces budget freeze was a limitation, Mr. Morry said "we have to live within the defence budget, but we have had significant personnel reductions" that soften the effect of the budget restriction.

Wage adjustments for the Canadian Forces have traditionally be made bi-annually. However, this has been revised and is now a yearly procedure.

The last salary increase for the forces came into effect Oct. 1, 1969. Adjustments will be made retroactive to Oct. 1, 1970.

Newspaperboy Day

Once again it is Newspaperboy Day across Canada and the message on this page from John Diefenbaker is a reminder that the former Conservative leader and many other political figures of our time sowed the seeds of their business and professional careers by delivering newspapers.

In a letter to Intelligencer circulation manager W. H. LeSurf, Mr. Diefenbaker points out that he was honored some years ago by being made a member of the Newspaperboy Hall of Fame.

Former newspaperboys now in the ranks of government include Premier Robarts of Ontario and the following provincial ministers: Allan Grossman, Minister of Correctional Services; Allan Lawrence, Mines and Northern Affairs; Charles MacNaughton, Economics and Provincial Treasurer; Stanley Randall, Trade and Development; Robert Welch, Citizenship and Provincial Secretary; Thomas Wells, Health, and John Wells, Revenue.

By delivering newspapers, youngsters learn both responsibility and business acumen. The newspaper itself makes them aware of the world around them, of affairs at home and abroad. Today's rapid communications make it all the more readily apparent that what occurs in other parts of the world affects our own interests vitally. There is less excuse than ever for not keeping ourselves informed of events international.

To this end our newspaper boys and girls perform an essential service. In rain and shine, they ensure that readers have their daily paper.

Traffic Problems

We are glad to see that a report on crosswalks is in preparation by Police Chief Crosbie. As noted in a recent report on this theme, there are problems involving cars and pedestrians as well as areas where accident risk is considerable.

In addition to the areas mentioned we would draw attention also to Bridge Street West at the new apartment block. Vehicles turning into the apartment parking area, particularly those obliged to wait for traffic to clear before making the turn, pose the risk of rear-end collisions. This is already a risk on Dundas Street West at rush-hour and now we have this additional hazard.

A police officer has been on rush-hour duty while work is proceeding at the overpass leading across the bay — and not too soon. Even without this work going on, rush-hour can mean serious delays for traffic trying to proceed west from the overpass.

Peace Plan Flops

Peace overtures by President Nixon are having as little effect on the Communist North Vietnamese and Viet Cong as those of his predecessor, Lyndon Johnson.

The Communists have always said they can afford a protracted conflict. Human life means nothing to them and time is on their side. About all the Americans can hope to do by way of getting out of this situation peacefully is to continue the Vietnamization program, turning over more and more of the fighting to the South Vietnamese, and leaving sufficient forces in the country to ensure the Communists do not win a military victory by default.

Beyond that, there seems little hope of a political settlement. Certainly as of now, the prospects are no better than they have ever been.

Bermuda Unrest

It was too much, we suppose, to expect that the prosperous and beautiful island of Bermuda would remain free of Black Power inspired unrest. There was trouble back in 1965, during a strike of the electric power utility, but that was less of a political nature than friction arising from a labor dispute.

Now the island, Britain's oldest colony, its parliament dating from 1620, is in the grip of riots and vandalism associated with local Black Power activities. And this despite the fact that integration is the rule there and relations between the races hitherto have been good.

Tourism, on which the island economy is so dependent, is down as a result of the disturbances and it will be a real tragedy if in this small island paradise events should take an even more serious turn. For Britain, it may mean flying in troops to quieten yet another unruly section of its sphere of influence.

Civil Servants Under Pressure to Conform

Queen's Portrait on Stamps on Way Out—Monarchists

By RICHARD JACKSON

. . . John Aimers of the Monarchist League of Canada held a Parliament Hill press conference charging that under what he called the pressure of insidious Government intimidation, some very basic rights of English - speaking federal civil servants, too timid to speak up for themselves, were being eroded . . .

. . . John Carson, chairman of the Federal Public Service Commission, went on television and disclosed, as he phrased it, that the pledge given in Parliament by former Prime Minister Pearson that the careers of English - speaking civil servants in no way would be prejudiced in bilingual regions now could not be honored.

Mr. Aimers is the founder and president of the Monarchist League, organized, with branches so far in six cities, to resist what it charges is federal Government determination to have done with the Queen and what is left of the British tradition in Canada, embracing, instead, a more "republican" concept.

For charges long have been levelled in Parliament that, symbol by symbol, the Government has been moving inexorably in this direction.

So open has been this discounting of the Crown — why, indeed, should it be concealed anyway — that State Secretary Gerad Pelletier publicly has declared he would be more than willing to vote for "abolition" of the Monarchy, as he chose to phrase it.

But what is new are the disclosures by John Aimers, so far ignored in High Places, that:

1. Orders have gone out to the commercial hambone companies here in the Capital which print stamps for the Post Office to remove the Queen's portrait from future issues.

2. Civil servants who object or question this new "nationalism," as it has been termed, are being "counselled," and "threatened" with loss of promotion, and in some cases, their very jobs if they join or publicly support the Monarchist League.

Those are John Aimers' charges paraphrased with the "quotes" around his key words.

He claims to have names and cases, but insists "for obvious reasons" he cannot reveal identities.

But he warns that this "region of terror" has got to the point where some officers in the Armed Forces have been "scared" with possible "reprisals" by their commissioners.

Wild? Incredible?

It is to be hoped so.

Except that the Monarchist League is neither of those things.

It is "tame" and believable enough and with brass files sufficient to attract the commemorative to 8x more than 5,000 - and - growing - rapidly membership.

They are Conservative MP's William Scott of Victoria-Haliburton, Robert Coates, Cumberland - Colchester North, Stanley Schumacher of Palliser, John Diefenbaker of Prince Albert, and Liberal MP Robert Kaplan of Don Valley.

Provincially, that gives a Monarchical League representation in the Commons to Ontario, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

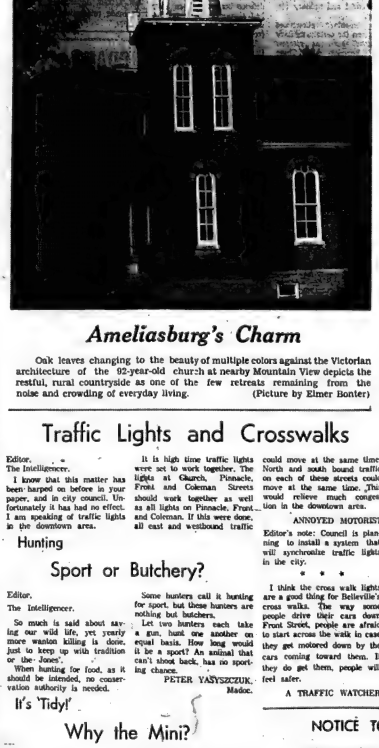
The League has chapters in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver and currently is organizing in the Atlantic Provinces.

Whether John Aimers' latest alarms are justified still has to be established, but what is beyond question is that they communicate an increasing feeling of unease among English - speaking civil servants here in the Capital.

In the House of Commons three years ago Prime Minister Pearson pledged the Government's word that in the drive for bilingualism no English-speaking civil servant would be hurt. The words of his promise were as simple and beyond misunderstanding as that, and were repeated, in and out of the Commons by members of his Cabinet including Justice Minister John Turner who currently is persuading that the pledge is being broken and people are being "hurt."

And now, while John Aimers was holding his press conference in MP William Scott's Parliament Hill office, Chairman Carson was in a TV studio taping an interview in which he said that the bilingual drive is impossible to honor in full.

Within four years, he declared quietly, 75 percent of all civil servants in executive and administrative ranks must be fluent in both languages.



With these top Government jobs being mostly in Ottawa, only the English - speaking Civil Service commonly - here is "hurting?"

For, in fact, it means that civil servants everywhere must be operationally bilingual if they hope to make it in the Government's "head office" here.

What really bothers John Aimers seems to be that what is happening inside the federal Civil Service can happen outside it eventually in all the spheres of Government influence.

So he and his League are resisting, in the name of the Queen, hoping to rally faint English hearts.

Administrator's Leave of Absence

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

At first glance, hospital and school boards may not seem to have much in common with each other. However, both seem to exhibit a distressing proclivity in the handing over of public money to unnecessary causes.

The school boards munificent bounty earlier this year of a casual $1,000 per annum raise in pay to our Director of Education might be considered by those on minimum wage scales as really not a priority matter.

The Belleville General Hospital Board's peculiar decision in the absence of Mr. Rickard's leave of absence appears to fall in a similar bracket.

According to a board member, this gentleman has been granted almost a year's leave of absence in order to attend a course at Queen's university. There is no requirement, as like part of the board for Mr. Rickard to take this course, nor, I am informed, do his present duties necessitate it.

While he is away, the generous board has voted to allow him $400 per month, this, I am told, is to offset the possibility of his services being required by the hospital as a consultant. Meantime, Mr. Kunetsky, the assistant administrator, has been temporarily appointed Administrator with an increase of $300 per month my board member friend advises me. Thus, Mr. Rickard's absence, on a totally unnecessary course, is costing the taxpayers $600 per month.

I am at a loss to understand why Mr. Rickard, who is a experienced administrator is not considered capable of holding down the job while Mr. Rickard is away. What happens when Mr. Rickard goes on holiday? Does he receive "consultants" fees while he is away?

What happens when Mr. Rickard returns with his subsidized learning? Have we any guarantee that he will stay in Belleville, or will he depart for greener pastures. As the taxpayer is paying rather heavily for this extracurricular activity, he is entitled to be told. There are far too many accommodating arrangements made these days whereby public money is used when it appears all too obvious that private funds should be utilized.

Newspaperboy Day

Mr. Diefenbaker's Message

The following letter has been received from the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker in connection with National Newspaperboy Day:

As a newsboy who both sold and delivered newspapers, I extend my warmest greetings to each and all of the carrier boys of The Intelligencer on National Newspaperboy Day. In the years ahead you will look back on your days as a newsboy with fond memories, you will have learned something of public relations in that you will be meeting people of different views and attitudes and you will have a wealth of knowledge in business relations which will be invaluable to you throughout life.

Of the many honors that have come to me, none gave me greater pleasure than to be elected as a member of the Newspaperboy Hall of Fame, which I shared with many outstanding leaders in Canada and the United States, including President Eisenhower.

Traffic Lights and Crosswalks

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I know that this matter has been harped on before in your paper, and in city council. Unfortunately it has had no effect. I am speaking of traffic lights in the downtown area.

It is high time traffic lights were set to work together. The lights at Church, Pinnacle, Front and Coleman Streets should work together as well as all lights on Pinnacle, Front and Coleman. If this were done, all east and westbound traffic could move at the same time. North and south bound traffic on each of these streets could move at the same time. This would relieve much congestion in the downtown area.

ANNOYED MOTORIST

Editor's note: Council is planning to install a system that will synchronize traffic lights in the city.

* * *

I think the cross walk lights are a good thing for Belleville's cross walks. The way some people drive their cars down Front Street, people are afraid to start across the walk in case they get motored down by the cars coming toward them. If they do get them, people will feel safer.

A TRAFFIC WATCHER

Hunting

Sport or Butchery?

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

So much is said about saving our wild life, yet yearly more wanton killing is done, just to keep up with tradition or the Jones'.

When hunting for food, as it should be intended, no conservation authority is needed.

Some hunters call it hunting for sport, but these hunters are nothing but butchers.

Let two hunters each take a gun, hunt one another on equal basis. How long would it be a sport? An animal that can't shoot back, has no sporting chance.

PETER YASYSZCZUK,
Madoc.

It's 'Tidy!'

Why the Mini?

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

It is my opinion that people should wear what looks, best on them.

I personally don't like the midi style because a lengthy dress or skirt looks careless. I think a dress cut three or four inches above the knee looks tidy.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

With vice-president Gordon "Bud" Trill in the chair, W. A. Watson addressed members of the Y's Men's Club at their meeting in the YMCA on the topic of An Architect.

With two days thrill - packed holiday ahead, 68 carrier boys and girls of the Ontario Intelligencer leave tomorrow for Niagara Falls as guests of the management. Circulation manager Dick Cowan and staff member Florence Walden, will leave with the carriers in two chartered buses returning Sunday.

George Bujea of Regina has been appointed to the staff of the YMCA as director of physical education and takes over his duties this week.

30 YEARS AGO

"Waste not, and the Red Cross Society will want not for fine contributions" may well be called a paraphrase of a well-known motto. Such was the case when the residents of Belleville responded generously to the appeal of the Girl Guides of the city for collections of materials that ordinarily find their way to the waste basket. Troop No. 2 under the guidance of Mary Roberts "covered" the city for the collections of such materials and their efforts were rewarded with the sum of $25 which has been turned over to the local branch of the Red Cross.

The boating season in Bay of Quinte waters is drawing rapidly to a close for another year, as is suggested by the fact that October 15 is the date for the closing of pleasure - boat owners have already harbored their ketches, yawls and motor - driven craft for the winter.

40 YEARS AGO

The 133 cheese factories situated in Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties did nearly $3,000,000 worth of business last year.

Belleville business men and merchants are fully convinced that the world's markets are opening up and the unemployment problem is rapidly being solved. Belleville has not really been hit hard by the depression, according to leading men of the community, and at the present time men are unable to find work. An industrial survey reveals that most of the industries, while not carrying top staffs, are moving steadily out of the slump.

50 YEARS AGO

The Belleville Rotary Club entertained a large number of Rotarians from Trenton at a banquet at Hotel Quinte last evening.

The first bowling game in YMCA five pin league was rolled when the Elliott Woodworkers won from Stapleton's GTR Yard team by a margin of five on the round. The following composed the team: GTR Yard team — Stapleton, Bone, Forbes, Savage, Mills. Elliott Woodworkers — W. A. Elliott, Childs, Rae, Goyer and G. W. Elliott.

The conference passed 72 resolutions as an outline to the proposed federal union and these later became the basis of negotiations at the 1866-67 London Conference, and eventually formed the core of the British North America Act.

Black Death Survivors Began Passion Play at Oberammergau

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany (CP) — Faithful to a vow made by their ancestors more than three centuries ago when the Black Death ravished their village, the people of Oberammergau have been performing the Passion of Christ this year for the 38th time.

The plague, which swept to the foot of the Bavarian Alps, 60 miles south of Munich, in 1633, decimated the population within a few weeks.

The survivors made a solemn promise that they would stage a passion play every 10 years from that date, if they were spared.

Shortly after that pledge was made, the plague abated.

In 1634 the inhabitants of Oberammergau kept their vow with the first performance of the Passion of Christ.

Forty years later it was decided to hold the play at the end of each decade, beginning in 1680.

The play re-lives the sufferings of Christ from the triumphant entry into Jerusalem until the Resurrection and Transfiguration.

For 180 days, between May 18 and Sept. 30, the play runs five days a week from 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a 2½-hour break for lunch.

Tuesdays and Sundays are days of rest.

The roles are exhausting, especially that of Christ, played this year by a 26-year-old lawyer who remains on stage for five hours.

The present script is based on a version prepared by Alois Dalsenberger, then local cure, between 1850 and 1860. It is the fourth version to be made since the play was first performed. The 1970 version has been slightly altered and shortened from the Dalsenberger script.

But the form of the presentation itself has not changed since 1634. The tableaux, inspired by the Old Testament, and the scenes, taken from the New Testament, continue unchanged.

Oberammergau is famous too for its religious statues, carved from wood and ivory. Tourists can shop in 30 or more boutiques for fine examples of beautiful sculptures, fashioned by the local people. The houses even have religious scenes painted on their walls.

"Once again, words of peace and goodwill will be heard as people from every corner of the world gather here in fraternal spirit," this year's organizing committee said.

"The message transmitted by these humble actors will enlighten and lift the spirit in the same manner that it moved the hearts of pilgrims from the beginning.

"The centuries unfurl. Man knows the heights and depths of experience, but, in the valley of the Ammer, as always, the Cross remains the symbol of warning and hope."

The play is staged in the open air, with the magnificent Alps as a backdrop.

Church Council Asks Ottawa To Admit Palestinians, Jews

TORONTO (CP) — A report from the Canadian Council of Churches calls for Ottawa to accept an increased number of Palestinians and Jews who want to make their home in Canada.

The report, prepared by men and women of seven Christian denominations who recently made a three-week tour of the Middle East, also urges that the Canadian government influence the United States and Russia to "exert a moderating effect on their 'client states' in the Middle East."

The report, presented to the council Wednesday, further recommends that Israel lure the initiative to achieve peace by forcing its hard-line policy.

"There can be no security for the Jews without justice for the Arabs and vice versa," the report says.

It says that both Jews and Arabs have an obligation to find a way to live in Palestine in peace, mutual respect and co-operation for the common good.

The group attended more than 60 briefings, interviews and lectures and visited Israel, the occupied territories, Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Rome and Geneva.

Talks were conducted with various Israeli officials as well as leaders of the guerrilla Al Fatah organization and Palestine Liberation Organization officials in Syria.

THE ART OF KEEPING

"Beauty is Nature's coin, must not be hoarded, but must be current . . . the good thereof consists in mutual . . . bliss." — Milton.

* * *

Are you a hoarder? If so — does it pay off?

Thus we enquire, upon looking at our neighbor's beautiful maple tree: a huge pom-pom aglow with crimson-gold. In a few days its color and leaves will vanish. How can Nature bear to be so wasteful! So extravagant! Is Sir Osbert Sitwell offering the answer by saying:

"Extravagance has done more for the world than has ever thrift", (says the mind of the thrifty is a sad, miserly and miserable mind) and states his love of extravagance for pictures, books, art and travel was the spur to ambition which turned him into a writer and "chained me to my desk. Had I learnt to pare and scrape it maybe I should never have known renown."

"I, for one, am one of the world's great hoarders," admits a close friend, "right down to every piece of string. But I will confess it is discouraging. Those beautiful spike-heeled silver shoes I've kept, just discarded yesterday, only to reed in this morning's paper an ad showing a beautiful pair just like them — back in style again.

"And look how the children bought new school bags for their books. "we can't find them anywhere" only to come across their old ones carefully packed away since last spring and forgotten.

"But then, just when I've decided to get rid of everything — something pays off."

Like a garment, she says, which was made from material of a family heirloom, and like all garments when the time came, went out of style.

"But I couldn't dream of discarding it, and Lo — now with the midi - length, it is right back in style — lovely as ever." And her conclusion seemed so logical, for she said:

"So, maybe some things are intended to lie fallow, be kept and hoarded until the proper time comes full circle — to be current again, and shared. Hoarding is a kind of art."

Her words bring to mind a motel where my husband and I stayed this summer. Hot coffee was on hand in the office night and day, for any and all guests, served from a table which stood beneath a framed poem printed in large black letters. The owner explained: "Yes, everyone reads it. I came across the poem in a magazine when I was a young fellow, liked it, cut out and put it away. Several years ago when I bought this place, I remembered it, copied it out, and framed it to hang there."

In sharing it with his guests, nothing could have been more currently hospitable and apropos, as one read:

"Guest, you are welcome here
Get up when you are ready,
go to bed when you please.
We're happy to share with you such as we've got.
The leak's in the roof and the soup in the pot.
You don't have to thank us
or laugh at our jokes,
Just sit deep and come often,
you're one of the folks."
— Author Unknown.

Luxury A La Heffner?

Hugh Heffner might have a plane full of bunny girls to attend to his every whim but this young man enjoys having his hair cut and styled by Mrs. June Clarke, the only woman who runs a barber salon in Belleville. Her assistant, Miss Sue Jenkinson, does a manicure.

Two Girls Run Men's Barber Salon

By SUSAN KOVAR
Women's Reporter

Women's Liberation members may be scandalized, but there are two women, here in Belleville who spend their days standing beside an antique barber chair, cutting and styling their male clients' hair and doing manicures, facials and shampoos too.

Mrs. June Clarke, who runs the Centennial Barber Salon on 90 Station St., and her assistant Miss Sue Jenkinson were the first to open a barber salon in Belleville, although as everyone knows there are any number of barber shops around. Decorated with gold and black wallpaper and photographs of men's hairstyles, The Centennial Salon caters to men only. Most of the customers are students and long - haired types according to Mrs. Clarke but some are businessmen and wear more conventional hairstyles.

Asked what made her go into this business Mrs. Clarke said that when her husband died and left her with five children to support she had to do something which would fetch her a man's wages. Also, she had an old barber chair given to her by her brother which had been in her family for years. Having worked in the New Central Barber Shop for a year, she started her own business on Cannifton Road before moving to the present location.

Her assistant Sue Jenkinson learnt the trade in Algonquin College, Ottawa and between the two of them, they give male heads the feeling of being pampered and looked after by feminine hands just as women enjoy being shampooed and coiffed by men in hairstyling salons all over the

Lawn Bowling Club Holds Fall Meeting

After a delightful potluck dinner, the retiring president Miss M. Fairbairn thanked all for their support and co - operation on a busy and successful year, and welcomed the new president, Mrs. G. Clapp. Vice - president Mrs. E. Humphrey's, Secretary, Mrs. M. Smith, Treasurer, Miss M. Sherman.

Mrs. L. Hyde reported at the conclusion of their Marathon Bridge. Luncheon was served and the following were the winners: Mrs./ F. Rainbird, Miss S. Ford, Mrs. B. Gill, Mrs. L. Hyde, winner of the seventh position, Mrs. B. Pringle, Mrs. L. Stafford: consolation, Mrs. E. Bateman, Mrs. E. Heath.

Mrs. Hyde was thanked for a well conducted effort.

Egyptian Motifs Popular Throughout 19th Century

At the end of the 18th century in 1798 Napoleon led a campaign in Egypt. The revival of interest in Greek and Roman ruins was in full swing. After the campaign, Egyptian motifs appeared along with Greek and Roman in interior decoration and furniture.

Egyptian motifs were never as predominant as Greek or Roman but they continued and were revived at times throughout the 19th century. When the Suez Canal was opened in 1869, Verdi was commissioned to write Aida to celebrate the event.

The opera was popular on both sides of the Atlantic and Egyptian motifs began to appear in profusion. The table illustrated is treated with sphinxes and incised decoration in a style considered Egyptian, applied to a table form which is a mixture of Victorian Renaissance and Victorian Louis XVI.

The resulting conglomeration of styles was deplored in its day by stylists and loved by the public. About 1875 sphinxes appeared on spoons, forks and other flatware in a pattern known as Assyrian, popular for a decade in many variations. Egyptian motifs were added to clocks. Obelisks appeared on mantels and in cemeteries.

In 1876 Egyptian styles were shown at the Philadelphia Centennial which had a marked effect on furniture manufacturers on both sides of the border. By this time Eastlake, the angular flat style that dominated the final quarter of the 19th century had made its way to North America. Incised decoration, ebonizing and gilding of the Egyptian, Greek and Roman revivals remained with the new Eastlake style.

The "Biologist's nightmare", designs that persisted throughout the Victorian revivals of classical styles, is no where more apparent than in the Egyptian sphinx applied to a single, vaguely animal leg. The combination is known as a sphinx monopodium and the table is described as a rosewood centre table with a variegated marble top supported by four sphinx monopodia with Egyptian ornamental borders and lotus, with incised decoration on a renaissance revival form.

As a rule of thumb, the value of an article rises in direct proportion to the length and obscurity of the words and the size of the catalogue description at an auction, and this table is no exception.

Prices for centre tables vary greatly. Rosewood commands a high price and the simplest rosewood centre table sells for over $100. Tables like the one illustrated are usually insured for about $1,000. If buying, anything less than a thousand is a bargain. If selling you will have a long wait for the person who wants Egyptian style, and you can expect only a portion of the thousand dollar value. If sold at auction in a small centre the table would probably go for less than the unadorned, more adaptable rosewood table.

Medical Secretaries Hold Executive Meeting

The Quinte Medical Secretaries Association began a new season with an executive meeting held in the office of the honorary president, Dr. R. F. Miranda. Program planning, membership, professional and educational courses available to medical secretaries through QMSA and Loyalist College, were discussed.

The regular meeting of QMSA was held recently in Education Hall, BGH. Members and guests from Belleville, Picton, Trenton and Frankford were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Doreen Ware. The secretaries were urged to visit a friend in hospital, or send a card or flowers; even just a hello helps to brighten the day for a patient. The nominating committee requested all those who would like to offer their time and talents, to get in touch with either Mae Cathcart or Lida Dowling. Members were reminded that the 1971 dues are now due and payable to Mrs. Diana Maxwell, treasurer of QMSA, Ste. 104, 308 Dundas St. E., Belleville.

Program for the evening consisted of two films from the Hoechst Pharmaceutical Company in Montreal: one entitled "A Prescription for Mary Ann," showed the extensive hours of research required to produce drugs and medicines for dispensing; and the other entitled "Glass," a short film with musical background showing the art and technique of blowing glass into various shapes and colors.

The next regular meeting will be held Oct. 14 at 8 p.m. in Education Hall, BGH.

Ann Landers

Responsibility Should Not Fall on Sister

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl, 26, who needs help before I blow my mind. The problem is a 22-year-old brother who is blind.

My mother has told me repeatedly that if anything happens to her and my father, they expect me to take care of my brother. Some of my relatives have also told me that is my life-long responsibility. Is he?

At times I think they are being very unfair to me. Then I get to feeling ashamed because perhaps it is my responsibility. Right now I'm confused. Please tell me what is right and what is wrong. Would a man want to marry a girl who has to take care of a blind brother for the rest of her life? Is this my moral responsibility? I need your advice. — INNER STRUGGLE.

DEAR I.S.: The responsibility for your blind brother should not fall on you. It is your parents' responsibility to see that he is educated and equipped to be responsible for himself.

You say your brother is 22, but you don't say if he is employed or what his education has been. There are thousands of sightless people who are burdens to no one. They are highly successful and leading happy, productive lives. Your brother should be among them. If he is not, I urge you to write to: The Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind, 1850 West Roosevelt Road, Chicago, Ill. 60608 for information regarding the office nearest your home.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so mad at myself I can't speak to anyone about this. Please help me. I have been saving out of my household money and putting a few dollars away whenever I could. This was my private boodle for "emergencies." I had over $333 in the boodle which I kept in a coffee tin with the canned goods. Yesterday I took the money out to count it and the roll of bills fell on the gas range and caught fire. I ran for a towel to smother the flames and managed to save some of the money but most of it is badly charred. I scooped it all up and put it in a bowl. Now what should I do? It took me nearly two years to save this money and I am heartsick. — FEELING LOW.

DEAR F.L.: Take the bowl of charred money to any bank. They will give you full value for any bill if more than half of it is intact. The charred money might be redeemable in full, also.

And let this be a lesson to you and to everyone else who reads this. Coffee tins are for coffee. Money belongs in banks.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, this is your captain speaking. In a few minutes we will be landing in Copenhagen. The temperature is 23 degrees (Centigrade), the time: 6.30 a.m."

Thus we set foot on Danish soil for the first time, on a sunny warm day. And a giant step it was! Into a land of free happy people, five million of them; of a monarchy which is modern through the deliberate action of its king.

The Danes are courteous and helpful, but with an integrity and self - respect which excites admiration. The Danes are tall. Our hotel beds were half a foot longer than those at home.

Mostly they speak English, explaining that a small country like theirs cannot expect all the rest to learn their language. They like folk from other countries to visit them, and they like to go travelling themselves. So they learn to communicate in English. This ma'am is a Canadian feel very welcome.

The famous Tivoli Gardens were just a block from our hotel. Tivoli is an amusement park, a colorful garden of gardens, a place of open air, band stands and stages; a concert hall seating 4,000; a playground complete with sand, slides, and sculpture for children to climb upon. You'll find snack bars in Tivoli, outdoor and indoor table service, and the most expensive restaurant in Copenhagen. Everywhere the food is choice, the smorgasbords fabulous.

I delighted in watching a dozen tiny children driving one seater electric cars, bumping one another, giggling, serious, thoroughly absorbed in the sport. They were not a day over three years of age. Daddy gladly paid another ticket's worth when Junior wanted to stay on for a second round.

They travelled in families, these fun - seeking Danes. Always the children were clean, rosy, usually quite blonde.

* * *

The Danish - designed pewter Jug we chose, with its pear - shape (the "curve of grace", my companion told me) was just one bit of perfection among the works of art which tempted us there. For a special collector friend, we found a Royal Copenhagen plate, Christmas 1969 edition.

We were delighted to come upon the famous Little Mermaid in person, as it were: a graceful female figure in bronze, seated upon a huge rock in the harbor, waiting for her lover to return.

There's plenty more to see: a Viking museum; an open air museum featuring old buildings and ancient machinery still performing; a Royal Museum of Fine Arts. And that's not all.

What is special about Denmark? I think the unspoiled character of the people. Their zip and enthusiasm for living; their gracious way of being themselves.

When you go there, be ready to find things excitingly different. If you can, arrange to spend a week on a Danish farm, which is getting to be a popular place for holidays. But that is another story. — Doris.

Cookies Made with Jelly Powder

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION (re-routed): My sister Doris' secretary telephoned my secretary to ask for "a wartime cookie calling for a jelly powder". Since I was in Kansas at the time and Betty could not find the recipe in our files she wrote to the manufacturer of jelly powders and one of our friends there, Lillian Gush, found what was wanted. We passed it on to Doris' secretary to send to their reader. This cookie aroused our curiosity so my secretary Betty made them and they were quite different and pretty.

They are called

PASTEL COOKIES (5 doz.)

2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup butter or margarine
1 pkge. (3-oz.) jelly powder (strawberry, black raspberry, lime or orange)
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. almond extract
½ cup milk

Sift flour with baking soda and salt. Cream butter or margarine until soft. Gradually add jelly powder and sugar, creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Stir in flavorings. Then add flour mixture alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Drop by teaspoonful on ungreased cookie sheets and flatten slightly. If desired, decorate with slivers of maraschino cherries. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 8 min., or until golden around edges. Store in loosely covered container. Makes about 5 doz. cookies.

For Variations in color use different-flavored jelly powders in your next batches. Also remember to put a little dab of contrasting colored icing on a batch for a party or decorate tops with a whole nut on each or sprinkling of "all-vers".

Mom...we're home!

And be prepared.

It pays, for instance, to have the full-time help of electricity on your side. A well-stocked, frost-free refrigerator-freezer. A modern electric range with time and temperature-saving self-cleaning oven. Small electrical helpers for quick mixing, beating, frying, percolating, opening of cans. And with a dishwasher, there goes another big chore.

As for the laundry . . . you can forget it. An automatic washer and electric clothes dryer will take loads off your hands, anytime.

It pays, too, to have lots and lots of hot water always at the ready. (You can count on a Cascade electric water heater for that one.)

In fact, electrical help need never end — as long as your home has ample wiring, outlets and switches. If it hasn't, speak to a qualified contractor about Electrical Modernization. (And the Hydro Finance Plan.) Make it soon. You'll be so much happier when you hear that shout, "Mom . . . we're home!"

Game Over at 2 AM!

Past Fergy's Bedtime When He Scores Winner

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

It was past Al Ferguson's bedtime.

Not only was he not sure how he won Friday night's senior hockey game for Belleville Mo-Hawks — he didn't really care.

"I don't know — I was too tired. The puck just went in," "Fergy" mumbled on his way home to Trenton — and bed.

Minutes before, at 2.26 today, is be precise, Ferguson was mobbed by his Mo-Hawk mates after banging in Greg Marchen's rebound to give the locals a 5-4 overtime win.

Twenty-year Wait Ends for Taylor

Billy Taylor had waited more than 20 years for last night's hockey game, so another couple of hours shouldn't have made much difference.

"Maybe they've defected," he quips, referring to outside the Memorial Arena side door for a busload of Owen Sound Crescents two hours overdue.

The Owen Sound coach's wait actually began 22 years ago when he and Don Gallinger were branded with an NHL life suspension from organized hockey for betting on games. That stigma was removed a month ago, and Taylor was back in hockey for the first time in two decades.

"Things have got to get better — they can't get worse," the quiet little gentleman chainsmokes. He had made the trip from his Oshawa home and, like 1,000 other people in Belleville's Memorial Arena, he was waiting for the Owen Sound Crescents to open the 1976-71 OHA Senior A season.

"We couldn't have a full team practice until Wednesday," he was saying. "Then they had to call it off because there was this much water on the ice," he holds a thumb and index finger half an inch apart.

Then we had the same thing Thursday night with half a team out. I had to-fit trophies one line to each other tonight!"

He has waited 22 years, but these last few hours are obviously nerve - wracking. A motorbike roars up Pinnacle Street. Taylor perks up, cranes his neck. "Thought that was the bus," he returns to his cigarette.

Finally Taylor's team arrives. He looks like he restrains an impulse to rush forward and shake hands with the first players off the bus.

While the players dress, their new coach writes "W. Taylor" beneath the Owen Sound lineup on the official Ontario Hockey Association game report.

It is the first time "W. Taylor" has appeared on a hockey scoresheet for more than 20 years.

For the next two and a half hours, Billy Taylor gets the feel of the player's box. He grips the boards, soon it is the swing of things, even emitting a not-too-severe yell at a missed offside call.

Taylor flies after his players into the dressing room silence, accepting another cigarette five minutes later with a bit more noise behind him than there was when he went in.

"That's disappointing . . . it should have been a tie," he says, then, quickly: "but I'm not disappointed with their effort. That's rough coming off that trip.

It took a split second before the bleak - eyed crowd of 400 realized what had happened. Then they roared, and also went home to bed.

There had been more than 1,000 of them on hand to watch the OHA Senior A season's opener at the scheduled 9 p.m. game time. But an word arrived that the Crescents were having the same Thanksgiving Day weekend traffic problems that delayed last season's Mo-Hawk opener Jbey gradually filtered out.

Last year, the Crescents were only about 45 minutes late, and lost 4-3. Last night it was to goalie Chuck Jewell's credit they still only lost by one goal after an eight hour bus trip from Owen Sound.

Jewell stopped 29 shots, 24 of them in the third period as the Mo-Hawks couldn't buy a regulation - time win.

Jewell's door - barsing and unpredictable Indigo Summer Ice combined to keep the Mo-Hawks off the scoreboard until Ferguson's overtime winner.

Little Mayo Paquette was credited with assists on the score midway through the third period. Paquette was the last Owen Sound player to touch the puck before it ricocheted off defenceman Lou Krzewski and past goalie Bob Moon's skate.

It was the only blow in an otherwise steady performance by Moon, who accords before had cut off the single goal by on Dale Watson's 20-foot drive on a two - on - one Owen Sound rush.

It was also one of the few times after the second period the Crescents got back in the Belleville zone. They were outshot 29-9 in the third period and 7-3 in seven minutes of overtime.

The visitors exerted most of their pressure in the second period, when referee Graham assessed the Mo-Hawks eight of 13 penalties called.

Moon had to be particularly alert after Graham issued a roughing minor, misconduct, and game misconduct to Dave Wilson and a Belleville bench penalty after the hardnosed defenceman was pushed Sound's aggravating Bob Foster in the face.

Defensive work by Lionel Boldy and Greg Marchen, and Doug Kelly's forechecking were the big factors that enabled the Mo-Hawks to escape the double penalty situation.

O'Donnell played on the left side of Doug Boland and Al Ferguson, while George Godson, who centred O'Donnell and Ferguson on last night's "bread-and-butter" line, moved between newcomers Les Colligan and Dave Milne. Ray Johnston centred Ralph Pitton and Wayne McConnell.

At one point in the third period, the Godson line gave the best example of the way Jewell frustrated Mo-Hawk scoring thrusts. Milne blasted a hard-to-handle waist - high drive from about 40 feet out and first Godson then Colligan swooped in to each take a bat at the rebound but the puck stayed out of the Owen Sound net.

Milne, a 22-year-old Campbellford bank employee, who has only played bush league hockey didn't look out of place in senior company, newcomers Rick O'Donnell and Les Colligan showed promise of being rugged competitors.

Blueline rookie Mike Renn wasn't dressed so pre - game signee Lorne O'Donnell could be inserted into the lineup.

The Mo-Hawks head to Oakville Sunday night and stay at home again next Friday to Galt Hornets, presumably at 9 p.m.

Trenton on Attack

This Belleville Mo-Hawk first period threat against Owen Sound defences was made by Trenton natives Rick O'Donnell and Al Ferguson. Goalie Chuck Jewell watches as defenceman Bob Foster (foreground) chases down the loose puck. Ferguson broke up the game by scoring the winning goal in overtime as the Mo-Hawks opened their 46-game schedule with a 2-1 win.

Moira 'Animals' Claw Picton

By ALAN TEEWORTH

"The defence played well, the offence played better" commented coach Dan Lietz after his Trojans had beaten PEXI 38-7.

The Picton squad also looked good, but only for one quarter, as the "Animals", the Moira defence, pulled together and the offence did the same.

In that first quarter, it looked like an upset was in the making as Picton built up a 7-0 lead. Paul Pellingale's punt went for a single, and Kevin Whadcock caught a 24 yard pass for the major. The convert was missed

However, Moira rennedlessly came to life and on the offensive series after the kickoff, rallied for a score.

Tony Goncalves was good on the first of the eight points of the day. On the kickoff Goncalves' boot went for a single when the ball went out of the end zone.

On the final play of the half Tony Goncalves booted a field goal from 35 yards out.

Moira's first-up attack continued into the third and fourth periods as they came up with three more TD's.

Cousins later carried the ball on a what looked to be a 31 yard romp, but fumbled on the 1 yard line.

However the "Animals" came in to check the Picton attack and Moira regained possession.

Pete Hart was the leading rusher, getting 76 yards on nine carries, while Jim Lennox was 72 on nine. Dave Smith played an outstanding game on defence for the Trojans.

The Junior Trojans completed the day's sweep with a 32-0 whitewash of Picton.

Aces Settle For Split

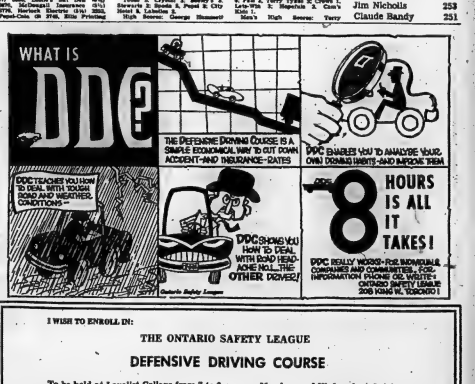
In other OHA Senior A opening action, defending league champion Orillia Terriers trimmed Woodstock A's 9-4, Galt Hornets tripped Barrie Flyers 4-1 and Oakville Oaks battled to a 4-4 tie with Kingston Aces.

The Terriers, Allan Cup finalists scored three times in each period to defeat Woodstock.

Mike Draper scored three goals in the opening period, Grant Moore also scored three while Tom McCarthy, Al Osborne and Clare Alexander got the other Orillia goals.

Wayne Goetz, Mark Peszik, Jean-McLaren and Al Blair replied for the A's.

Dave Cressman participated in all the scoring for Galt at Barrie with two goals and two assists. Howie Diefrich and defenceman John Hickerson completed the scoring for Galt while Gord Tucker scored for the Flyers.



At Kingston, a power - play goal by John Ford late in the third period gave the Aces the tie with Oakville. Rod Gresham, Pat Driscoll and Tom Smallman scored once each for Kingston.

Defenceman Mike Corbett scored once and assisted on the other Oakville goals by Jim Obie O'Brien, Ron Kurlicki and Chuck Kelly.

A scheduled game at Owen Sound tonight against Kingston has been postponed because of poor ice conditions. Orillia visits Galt tonight while Belleville visits Oakville and Barrie travels to Woodstock Sunday.

McLain Reinstated, Traded to Washington in Same Day

CINCINNATI (AP) — Denny McLain, controversial pitcher, gun-carrier, water-thrower of Detroit Tigers was back in baseball's good graces today—and in Ted Williams' iron grasp.

The two-time Cy Young Award winner climbed back into baseball's official fold when he was reinstated Friday by commissioner Bowie Kuhn after a satisfactory explanation of his gun-carrying episode and a psychiatric examination that determined he "is not ill."

He wound up in Williams' corral when a major eight-player American League trade between Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers, contingent on McLain's clean bill of baseball and mental health, placed the 26-year-old right-hander in the grip of the tough Senators' manager.

Williams, who now will have to deal with baseball's most prominent hick bad boy, was not at the press conference announcing the trade on the eve of the World Series opener. But Washington owner Bob Short left no doubt about his ability to keep McLain in line.

"Ted likes McLain and feels he can manage him," said Short. "There isn't anyone Ted can't handle—and that includes me."

The Tigers' price for McLain was the left side of Washington's infield, third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez and shortstop Ed Brinkman, plus pitchers Joe Coleman and Jim Hannan.

Several interesting revelations — the admission by McLain that he had carried a gun, that he had undertaken psychiatric examination and that he still will be on probation when he goes to work for Williams—came out in Friday's announcement.

"I enjoyed playing for Detroit. Now I'm going to play against them. I know Bob Short and, although I've only met Williams once, I've always admired him . . . . I'm looking forward to playing in Washington."

"McLain said he had just chased the gun for use by his wife at home, where he was going road trips," said Kuhn. "Denby said he had taken the gun on the road trip on the pretense of showing it to a team-mate.

"He admitted he carried it in his luggage and also admitted showing it in a restaurant...This is the kind of flamboyance that has characterized him in the past."

McLain's explanation for carrying the gun on a Detroit road trip Aug. 6-19 had been one of the missing parts in the puzzle that had existed since Sept. 8 when Kuhn suspended him for that indiscretion, and following a water-throwing incident in which he had doused two Detroit writers. McLain earlier had been suspended for associating with gamblers.

Kuhn also said that one of the conditions of McLain's reinstatement was that he undergo psychiatric tests, and that condition also had been fulfilled.

"For three days McLain underwent tests from three eminent psychiatrists," Kuhn said.

"Afterwards, one of the psychiatrists wrote to me that he did not see any reason that McLain should undertake psychiatric tests. He is not ill. There is no need for such treatment."

At the same time, the psychiatrists wrote that, "McLain was subject to emotional stress from his various involvements."

Kuhn said Short had undertaken talks with Detroit on a McLain deal at the beginning of the season and had concluded the deal during the American League playoffs at Baltimore.

To get McLain, Short gave up two slick fielders in Rodriguez and Brinkman. Rodriguez, a 22-year-old right-handed batter, is considered one of the most promising young infielders in the American League and hit .249 with 19 home runs this last season.

Brinkman, 29, hit .252. Coleman, 23, had an 8-12 record with a .358 earned-run-average and Hannan, 30, was 9-11 with a 4.61 ERA.

Wert, 32, batted .218, and Maddox, 21, hit .248 in his rookie year. McRae, 23, was 6-11 in 44 games at Toledo and was 0-0 with a 3.19 ERA in 19 relief appearances with Detroit.

McLain posted only three victories against four losses with a 4.65 ERA. He appeared in only 14 games between suspensions and his entire playing season actually consisted of only 58 paying and playing days. The latest suspension was estimated by Kuhn as costing McLain $11,000 in salary.

"I think that is adequate punishment," Kuhn said.

Getting the Once Over

Down Canucks 3-1

Los Angeles in Unfamiliar NHL Role

The Kings, who spent the National Hockey League's first game 1969-70 season by setting a record with 52 defeats, could do no better than play one of the league's two new entries to a scoreless tie in the first period of Friday night's league's opener.

That, plus a sufficient amount of roughhouse play, had Vancouver's 15,052 hopeful fans in an uproar.

But in the second period the Kings began to put their pasting and shooting game together—and midway in the frame Lonsberry put Los Angeles ahead with a power-play goal, slamming a rebound past Canuck goalie George Gardner. Barry made it 2-0 with only eight seconds to play in the period.

The Canucks struck early in the third period as Barry Wilkins took a pass from Leo Lunde and slammed in a 35-footer to wreck Los Angeles netminder Denis Dedordy's shutout bid.

But Barry connected again midway in the period to wrap up the scoring and give the Kings a taste of something they never even sniffed last season — first place in the West.

Canucks' coach Hal Laycoe said the Los Angeles goal eight seconds before the end of the second period was the clincher that ruined his team's hopes for a victory.

"There's no way they should have got a goal at that point," Laycoe said. "We got a face-off in the end. They got it out, and stuffed one in. . . . That was a big goal."

Laycoe said his team was nervous going into the game.

"It was logical that they would be but I don't think that was the difference. We just didn't have much fire."

Laycoe said two of his players suffered slight injuries—Paul Popiel was shaken up and Wayne Maki split his lip and damaged his front teeth when he fell into the boards after colliding late in the game with team-mate Orland Kurtenbach.

Larry Regan, general manager and coach of the Kings, said that both teams seemed a "little tight" but he came down hard to checking I thought we were much stronger." Both coaches praised the goaltending of Kings' Dennis Dedjordy and Canucks' George Gardner.

Four games are on tonight's slate with New York Rangers meeting West Division champion St. Louis Blues, Oakland Seals at Detroit against the Red Wings, Minnesota North Stars visiting Philadelphia Flyers and Buffalo Sabres, the NHL's other expansion baby, at Pittsburgh to battle the Penguins.

On Sunday the Canucks play host to Toronto Maple Leafs in afternoon action, Montreal Canadiens visit Philadelphia, Detroit meets the Stanley Cup champion Bruins at Boston and Chicago Black Hawks now a West Division team under the league's new alignment, is at Oakland.

Terms were not disclosed but Esposito, Rookie of the Year last season, said he is satisfied with the new pact

In 63 games last season, Esposito registered an NHL record 15 shutouts.

Forward Vic Hadfield signed Friday, following the lead of centre Jean Ratelle, who signed Wednesday.

Loss of Ferguson Leaves Canadiens Facing Trouble

MONTREAL (CP) — John Ferguson's sudden retirement from professional hockey is just one of many problems facing Montreal Canadiens said coach Claude Ruel on the eve of the team's initial game of the 1970-71 National Hockey League season.

When the Habs open the 78-game schedule in Philadelphia against the Flyers Sunday night it will be the first time in recent history that NHL fans will need a program to identify players on the red-white-and-blue jerseys.

Gone from last year's squad which finished a dismal fifth in the then six-team NHL east division are Larry Mickey, Ted Harris, Christian Bordeleau, Ferguson, Claude Provost, and Bobby Rousseau. Doubtful are defencemen Serge Savard and Jacques Laperriere.

Savard broke his right leg in five places in a game against New York Rangers last March 13 after sliding and colliding into his own net in an attempt to stop a Ranger rush. Savard sat out the rest of the season and spent most of the off-season in a huge leg cast.

He was a late starter in the Canadiens training camp in September. He has been skating regularly and may see action in late October or early December.

Laperriere, an all-star defenceman, missed the Habs' last five exhibition games with a twisted knee and although he practised with the team Friday, he has to see the team physician later today for the go ahead.

"Jacques was skating and really working—he looked great," Ruel said after the workout.

"I'll know more after he sees the doctor in the morning but I think he'll be able to play."

Sports On All Fronts

MANILA (Reuters) — The World Boxing Council announced Friday the indefinite suspension of Jerry Quarry from its heavyweight rankings. The council gave no reason for the suspension of the Los Angeles boxer who is scheduled to meet Cassius Clay in Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 26 in Clay's first comeback fight. The council also formally stripped Ismael Laguna of Panama of his world heavyweight title and declared it vacant. Laguna was beaten two weeks ago by Ken Buchanan of Britain, but the fight was not recognized as a world title clash either by the council or the British Boxing Board of Control. The World Boxing Association has recognized Buchanan as champion. The council withheld recognition from Laguna for his failure to defend the lightweight title against American Mando Ramos.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd. announced Friday that a preliminary prospectus covering the public offering of $2 million of convertible debentures and 300,000 common shares have been filed with the British Columbia Securities Commission. Northwest Sports operates Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League and Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Of the 360,000 common shares being offered, 200,000 are being sold by Northwest and 100,000 are being sold by Medical Investment Corp. of Minneapolis, owners of both clubs. Upon completion of the proposed offer, Medical Investment will continue to hold approximately 62 per cent of the outstanding common shares of Northwest, the company it acquired last December. Net proceeds from the sale will be used to retire certain outstanding debts, working capital and other projects within the company's anticipated expansion into other sports, entertainment and recreation.

MONTREAL (CP) — Marinus Wins captured the singles title of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association eastern section intercollegiate men's tennis championships Friday, giving his Carleton University team an almost insurmountable lead going into today's last round of play. Carleton, last year's champions, ended Friday competition against McGill, Laval and Queens university teams with an aggregate of 11 points, four more than second place McGill. Laval and Queens have five points apiece.

Palmer Guns For Second Series Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Palmer, confident despite the loss of his kicky orange-colored rabbit's foot, takes on Cincinnati Reds today in the opener of the 1970 World Series.

"I expect to give up some runs, even though I hope I don't," said the right-hander who won 20 games during the regular season for Baltimore Orioles. "But we'll score and I think we'll beat 'em."

Although he won't be 25 until next Thursday, Palmer will be making his third start in a World Series. In his first, he was sensational; in his second, disappointing.

In 1966, Palmer blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 6-0 to become at 20 the youngest pitcher ever to hurl a World Series shutout. Last year, he lost 5-0 to New York Mets while giving up a home run to the leadoff batter and a two-run double to opposing pitcher Gary Gentry.

Last Monday he beat Minnesota Twins 6-1 and struck out 10 as Baltimore won the American League pennant with a three-game playoff sweep.

Palmer said he thought Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium favors the hitters because the Astroturf surface "will allow a few more hits to get through."

"But the Reds have an explosive club—like Boston in our league—and they don't always hit singles. They have a lot of awesome club with guys who can hit the ball out of the park."

Palmer's opposite in today's game is the Reds' Gary Nolan who had an 18-7 record for the season.

Today's game, and all subsequent contests in the best-of-seven series start at 1 p.m. EDT with live television coverage on the CBC national network.

The second game is set for here Sunday with the next three at Baltimore Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Baltimore has the only Oriole to notice the effect of the symbolic hurt here.

"If the ball bounces here," Belanger said, indicating waist-high hops, "it stays here on the next bounce.

"I figure I'm due for a couple of good bounces. They hit eight ground balls to me in the two playoff games in Minnesota and four of them took bad hops."

"I played here in the all-star game and liked the turf," Johnson added. "I still like it."

Raimey Could Tame Lions In CFL Battle Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The British Columbia Lions defence could have its work cut out for it tonight if Toronto Argonauts halfback Dave Raimey performs according to the assessment of coach Leo Cahill.

The Argo coach, who this season has taken a cautious approach toward assessment of his players and his team's chances in Canadian Football League competition, now claims his explosive running back has returned to his old form.

"Raimey has never looked better than he has in practices this week," Cahill said "He's running like he used to a couple of years ago. He's quick, he moves back and forth like he used to."

That is an assessment Cahill would have liked to make at the start of the season, but Raimey, coming back from a knee operation late last year, has been hampered by several leg and ankle problems.

With Raimey now fully recovered, head man Argos can face the Lions in Toronto picked up 1,739 yards rushing field punch of Raimey and Bill Symons which last season picked up 1,737 yards rushing and 19 touchdowns.

Tonight's contest, with kickoff time at 8 p.m. EDT, will be televised on the CTV national network.

EFC Thanksgiving weekend action continues Monday when Ottawa Rough Riders visit the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton. Game time there is 2 p.m. EDT with live television coverage also on the CTV network.

Cahill said Friday he will start quarterback Tom Wilkinson against the Lions. Wilkinson directed the Argos to a 14-9 lead against Hamilton last Sunday before a bruised knee forced him to give up the signal-calling chores to Don Jones.

The Argos will be without defensive end Dave Knechtel, placed on the 30-day injury reserve list this week with a damaged knee. Import Hugh Jessop takes over the defensive end spot but Cahill has yet to announce acquisition of a Canadian who will fill Knechtel's position in the roster.

Inskeep and Ed Harrington on the ends, and Walt Balasisic and Mike Wadsworth at tackle, will also have their work cut out trying to contain the running of Lions fullback Jim Evenson and halfbacks A. D. Whitfield and Jim Young.

The B.C. backs have gained a total of 1,051 yards rushing this season against 1,779 by Raimey and Symons.

Hamilton coach Joe Restic may have to start quarterback Wally Gabler against Ottawa Monday. Gabler joined the Tiger-cats from Winnipeg Blue Bombers just a week before the game against Argos and was forced to go most of the way after John Eckman went out with an ankle injury.

Eckman started jogging Tuesday but Restic will likely wait until game time before deciding whether the quarterback is ready to play. Also available for backup quarterback duties is John Manci. Regular Joe Zuger is on the 30-day injured list with a broken arm.

Both Toronto and Hamilton could moved into a tie in the Eastern Conference with first-place Montreal Alouettes with victories this weekend.

The Lions need a win to get back into a tie with third-place Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Conference.

The Eskimos however, could stay ahead with a victory over the second-place Calgary Stampeders Monday. One other WFC game has the leading Saskatchewan Rough Riders playing host to Winnipeg Sunday.

Brown Returns Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paul Brown comes home to Cleveland Sunday with his expansion Cincinnati Bengals to face the team he used to run in one of the most intriguing pairings of the fourth big weekend of action in the National Football League.

The Bengals knocked off the Browns in a pre-season game but this time it will be for keeps with another huge crowd of 80,000-plus in the stands.

The Cincinnati-Cleveland contest is one of 11 on the Sunday program with another game scheduled for Monday night on television, Green Bay at San Diego. New York Jets and Miami Dolphins play tonight.

The Sunday schedule also calls for San Francisco at Los Angeles, Denver at Oakland, Detroit at Washington, Minnesota at Chicago, Baltimore at Houston, Buffalo at Pittsburgh, Atlanta at Dallas, New Orleans at St. Louis, Boston at Kansas City, and Philadelphia at New York Giants.

Only three teams remain unbeaten after the first three weeks of competition—Los Angeles and Detroit in the National Conference and Denver in the American Conference.

Joe Kapp, the controversial quarterback traded to Boston, is expected to see some action Sunday when the Patriots meet the Chiefs in Kansas City.

Kapp, who broke into the NFL with Minnesota after eight seasons in the Canadian Football League, romped through a light workout Friday near Boston.

Rangers Grab Easy Junior Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Rangers did it the easy way and Niagara Falls Flyers the hard way but both clubs registered their first wins of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season Friday night.

In Kitchener, the hard-checking Rangers hardly gave the London Knights a shot on their net as they rolled to a 6-1 triumph before 2,343 fans.

And in Niagara Falls, the Flyers got the winning goal with three minutes remaining as they defeated Ottawa 67s 7-5 in a contest that saw eight goals scored on power plays.

The wins lifted Niagara Falls and Kitchener Jrs within two points of league-leading Peterborough Petes and Hamilton Red Wings.

Seperich had an easy night as his team-mates outshot the opposition 40-7, building up period leads of 3-0 and 4-1.

Queens Golfers Tie Western for Top Spot

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The University of Waterloo and Queen's University tied for first place in the two-day Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association team golf championship which concluded Friday at Highland Country Club.

Winners will share the Rutten Cup, won last year by Waterloo and three years ago by Queen's, Montreal, the 1968-69 winner, did not have a full team on hand.

Waterloo and Queen's finished with total scores of 608, with the four best scores each day from five-man teams counting toward the total. Waterloo was 319-289 and Queen's 301-307.

The University of Windsor, which led the 10-team competition after the first round, placed third with 306-313—613 total. The host University of Western Ontario team was fourth at 301-322 —623.

Western's Kerry Short of Vineland won the individual honors and the McCall Trophy in a one-hole playoff with Waterloo's Dave Hollinger. Both finished with two-day, 149 totals over the par 71 Highland course.

Nick Wright of Queen's, Dan Ardley of Windsor and Bob Lancaster of McMaster were tied for third place in the individual scores with 150 totals. Andre Jette, the defending individual champion and the lone University of Montreal competitor, finished with a 76-81—156 total.

Sport Briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Canada's Endless Summer, taking a 14-minute lead at the start when a gear failure struck the United States' Columbia, scored a 10-minute victory Friday in the first race of the California Cup series matching 12-metre yachts. The yachts compete in the second 24.3 nautical-mile race today off Marina del Rey. If Endless Summer wins, the Cup will go to George O'Brien of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and Sunday's third race will be sailed for a separate trophy.

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus defeated Tony Jacklin of England 5 and 4 and Lee Trevino eliminated Dave Stockton 7 and 6 Friday in the semi-final round of the Piccadilly world match play golf championships. Nicklaus, who holds every major world golf title except this one, will meet Trevino today in the 36-hole final over the 6,997-yard Wentworth golf course.

Blues Blank Waterloo Warriors 27-0

WATERLOO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues whipped University of Waterloo Warriors 27-0 Friday night to gain sole possession of first place in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association Football League, two points ahead of second place McGill University Redmen.

Winnipeg Wants West Win

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, in the Western Football Conference cellar trailing first-place Saskatchewan Roughriders by 16 points, intend to make defeating them Sunday the first step to a playoff berth.

Bombers are healthy, enthusiastic and confident after their 25-0 win last week in Ottawa, says coach Jim Spavital, who begins remarks with "when we beat Regina."

Winnipeg, with four points on two wins in 11 games, trails fourth-place British Columbia Lions by six points and third-place Edmonton Eskimos by eight points. Bombers could move into third place by winning all five remaining season games if both Lions and Eskimos lose theirs.

The Winnipeg defensive unit has not given up a touchdown in the last two Blue Bomber games, including a close 5-2 loss to the same Saskatchewan squad Sept. 27. Bombers have since added halfback Charlie Bryant to their roster in hopes of increasing offensive output.

Keys "wouldn't let up and neither would I if I were in his shoes," said Spavital.

Bryant saw action in Winnipeg's game against Ottawa, but the muddy field slowed him. He is expected to get more work if the field in Regina is dry Sunday.

Keys has not decided whether he will start veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster, nursing a sore arm, or backup Gary Lane. Injuries may slow tub other Saskatchewan regulars, but are not expected to keep them off the field. Defensive halfback Henry Dorsch has a sore wrist and tight end Dave Demey has a pulled hamstring muscle, but both are expected to play in the game which starts at 2 p.m. CST and will be carried on the CTV national network.

A win in that game for Edmonton would give the team a tie for second place. Eskimos, with 12 points, trail Stampeders by two points.

Calgary also has problems with their first-string quarterback, Jerry Keeling. Coach Jim Duncan says Stampeders will approach the game "as if he (Keeling) wasn't going to play."

Keeling suffered a cracked rib and bruised kidney in Calgary's 11-4 win over Montreal Wednesday. Friday he remained in hospital.

But Duncan says backup quarterback Larry Lawrence is ready. "He runs the club every week in practise," Duncan said.

"He runs the same plays as everyone else. It's just a matter of him settling down and seeing what he can do."

"Keeling and Lawrence do things pretty well the same way," he said.

Jauch said Eskimos will go with the same lineup that dumped British Columbia Lions 22-20 last weekend in Vancouver.

Other doubtful starters for Stampeders are halfback-punter Ron Stewart, who has a groin injury, and defensive tackle John Alamian, who has a sore leg.

The Calgary-Edmonton game starts at 2 p.m. MST and also will be televised on CTV.

Benson to Give Country 'Bad News'

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Finance Minister E. J. Benson is planning to deliver a budget-type speech early next week that will underline the difficult economic problems facing the country for at least the next eight to nine months.

It will probably come on Tuesday, newspaper says in an Ottawa story.

"There is also a possibility spending allocations to ease the problems of Canadians who are being hardest hit by unemployment or inflation," the story says. "But Mr. Benson's office would not confirm or deny this Friday."

It says that in an unprecedented step "the cabinet has decided to tell the public much more than is traditionally the case about the economic outlook and to publish some of the data prepared by advisers that is usually marked confidential."

"Although there will be some encouraging news next week—the next set of consumer price index figures shows a continuation of the downward trend in price performance this year—most will be bad, with expectations of high unemployment this winter, a serious slowdown in business investment and the virtual if not complete disappearance of the 1970-1971 federal budgetary surplus."

RC Bishops Oppose Easier Abortion Law

OTTAWA (CP) — The Roman Catholic bishops in Canada said Friday they hope the country "may be spared" legislation widening the grounds for abortion.

The statement was released at a news conference following the four-day general assembly of the Canadian Catholic Conference, the association of Roman Catholic bishops in Canada. It comes in the wake of Thursday's throne speech which promised Parliament a special debate on abortion during this session.

At present in Canada abortion involves questions of civil law, the bishops said. "We oppose a civil law that favors abortion and sincerely hope that Canada may be spared a law widening the grounds of abortion."

Circumstances sometimes explained why people resorted to abortion, but they never eliminated the basic evil of it. Foremost among such circumstances were living conditions unhospitable to new human life.

"When such conditions develop, abortion is often contemplated. However, abortion never puts an end to social distress. It simply adds to personal tragedy."

The bishops at their plenary meeting unanimously moved a resolution supporting the candidacy of Most Rev. Helder Combara, archbishop of Recife in Brazil, for the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize. This was in recognition of his struggle for human dignity and reform of social structures by non-violent means.

Marriage Regulation Is Eased

OTTAWA (CP) — Under certain circumstances Roman Catholics in Canada now may marry in a non-Catholic church, Most Rev. Joseph Aurele Plourde, archbishop of Ottawa, told a news conference Friday.

Archbishop Plourde said this is one of the main new points in a set of regulations governing mixed marriages which was released at the end of the four-day meeting of the Canadian Catholic Conference, the association of Roman Catholic bishops in Canada.

The regulations are provisional and will be used in Canada only until a new ecumenical directory on marriage is published by the Vatican, possibly next spring.

The statement of new rules for Canadian Catholics stresses that a Catholic should normally contract marriage in and before the Catholic Church.

But a bishop can make a dispensation from the required form of Catholic marriage when the reasons concern, in an important way, the good of the two people, "especially their spiritual well-being and the tranquility and peace of their personal and family relationships."

Belleville Downtown Association

The Belleville Downtown Association is an organization of various interests who are concerned with the promotion of the downtown area as an outstanding commercial centre. Not only does this involve a great variety of services but it includes a constant effort to improve conditions for a pleasant atmosphere throughout the district.

Each summer, the Association conducts a Sidewalk Sale that has become an event of widespread interest. It sponsors the purchase and installation of Christmas street lighting and makes a substantial donation to help Belleville's Santa Claus Parade Committee with this important community project.

Its source of revenue is from membership fees and amongst its supporters are many civic minded persons who, in addition to their regular business interests, devote a great amount of their time to various matters related to the life of the Belleville community at large.

INTELLIGENCER CARRIERS OPERATE A SUCCESSFUL INDEPENDENT BUSINESS OF THEIR OWN

There is a young boy — He may live next door to you, who knows where he is going. This boy has a newspaper route.

He provides you with one of the friendliest and most dependable services you enjoy today. He delivers your copy of The Intelligencer to you, when you want it in all kinds of weather every single day of publication. But he does much more than simply deliver.

You see, your newspaperboy is actually a junior independent merchant and a successful one at that. He buys his papers from this newspaper at wholesale rates and retails them at a profit to customers like you. He sells, he keeps records, he collects and he makes a profit. All the time learning the basics of business management.

He also manages (perhaps because of his newspaper route experience) to do a better than average job with his studies and to have more fun than most boys.

In every way he is an outstanding performer. Remember this is his day, a special day set aside by newspaper publishers throughout the world, yes, today is International Newspaperboy day. Shake hand with your newspaperboy today.

Stanfield Says Just Society Not Reflected in Throne Speech

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government's legislative program for the new session of Parliament, outlined Thursday in the speech from the throne, was torn to shreds Friday by opposition leaders in the Commons.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas moved motions of non-confidence based on the throne speech. Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, prevented by rules from moving a third such motion, said he will do so next week when the motion would be in order.

The motions will be voted on toward the end of the eight-day debate. Because of the huge Liberal majority, there is no chance that the votes will defeat the government.

There are 152 Liberals, 72 Conservatives, 23 NDPers, 13 Creditistes, one Independent and three vacancies in the 264-seat Commons.

Mr. Stanfield accused the government of indecision and said its failure to act had pushed into the distant future, the goal of a just society.

He also regretted the government's "cold-blooded acceptance" of an unemployment rate approaching seven per cent of the work force.

"To fight inflation by deliberately encouraging unemployment is inhuman and unacceptable," Mr. Stanfield said.

Mr. Douglas also rapped the Trudeau administration over the unemployment problem: it was doing nothing about the threat to Canadian independence posed by foreign ownership of Canadian industry.

The NDP leader also expressed disapproval over the absence of proposed legislation to bring in a guaranteed income "below which no Canadian family would fall."

Mr. Caouette's theme was the financial system that, in his view, prevents a more equitable distribution of wealth.

"What we have to change first of all is the present government," said Mr. Caouette.

Mr. Trudeau, defending the government plans, said his administration will accelerate its war on pollution and city-life problems.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis will be assigned the pollution fight. Robert Andras, now minister without portfolio in charge of housing, will be assigned urban affairs.

The prime minister also got in a few licks of his own, saying Mr. Stanfield's speech was a disappointment to him. Mr. Stanfield had followed the standard practice of criticizing the government without saying what should be done.

Mr. Stanfield said the government had neglected such major issues as unemployment, agriculture and constitutional reform.

It had tried to hide this neglect with bombastic, fatuous language in the throne speech.

The Conservative leader said it was irresponsible for the government to suggest as it had in the throne speech that western agricultural problems are nearly solved.

Because the throne speech made no mention of constitutional problems, Mr. Stanfield said he had the idea the government was trying to sweep it under the rug.

He summed up the speech as "the most stupidly complacent speech from the throne that a government has ever imposed on the people of Canada."

To Mr. Douglas, the speech was "filled with perfumed rhetoric that speaks glowingly of desirable goals without delineating any plan for achieving them or any commitment for their realization."

He said economic theories propounded by Liberals for decades should mean that conditions now prevailing in Canada should mean prosperity, economic growth and full employment.

Instead there was unemployment, inflation, almost zero growth and a period of economic recession.

By exporting more and more raw materials, Canada was exporting jobs and paying more for the finished products it imported.

Mr. Caouette called for a complete change in the financial system. He noted that in federal-provincial conferences, the provinces all asked for more money.

Profits of banks and finance companies are on the rise while take-home pay of Canadians were decreasing, Mr. Caouette said.

During the question period, Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien said Ottawa is continuing talks with 11 companies to open a vast iron-ore deposit on Baffin Island in the Northwest Territories.

It might be a year before the talks were finished, he said.

Mr. Douglas noted that seven of the 11 firms are foreign-owned. Parliament should be told how much money the federal government was prepared to give the companies to open the mine before arrangements are concluded, he said.

The Commons resumes at 11 a.m. Tuesday to continue the throne speech debate. The Senate is adjourned until Tuesday, Oct. 26.

Nixon Seeking House Majority

WASHINGTON (CP) — Campaigning for the Nov. 2 congressional elections like full tilt this weekend with Richard Nixon's Republican party hoping against considerable odds to wrest control of both Houses from the Democrats.

Although the Republican ranks are superbly organized and well financed, the betting at this early date is that the Democrats will retain a working majority in the Senate and House of Representatives.

This, is despite the fact the Democrats came out of the 1968 elections with a debt said to be $8 million and are still virtually leaderless and disorganized. Additionally, their traditional trade union support seems to be wavering.

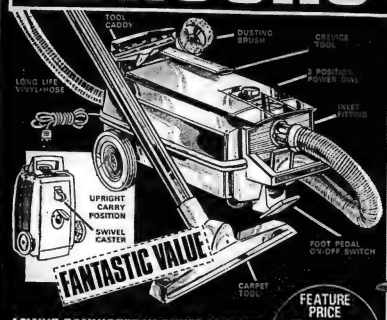
Working against the Republicans, however, is the historic inclination of American voters to turn somewhat against the party controlling the White House in a non-presidential, "off year" election. The next presidential race comes in 1972.

Up for grabs are 35 of the 100 Senate seats and all 435 House seats. Senators are elected for six-year terms, representatives for two years.

Thirty-five of the 50 state governorships go on the line in November, of which 34 now are held by Republicans and 11 by Democrats. Of the 15 governorships not at stake this year, the Republicans hold eight and the Democrats seven.

In the Senate elections, it would take a net gain of seven Republican seats to put the party in charge there for the first time in 16 years. The standings now is 57 Democrats, 43 Republicans.

In the House, the Republicans have small hope of gaining control.



Present standing is 243 Democrats, 187 Republicans, five vacant and only 69 seats are considered marginal—that is, won by five per cent of the total vote in the last election.

What Nixon and Agnew apparently are counting on is an acceleration of the drift to the right among American voters, a trend that strategists from both parties contend is present.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"Here's your chance to find out if that new balspray REALLY holds your hair in place."

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 11

Your birthday today: A year of diligent readjustments begins. You must add more activities and somehow fit them into an already full schedule. Much depends on the intensity of personal relationships, how you fill your obligations. Sentimental experiences include many memorable episodes. Today's natives generally show a very hospitable, friendly nature. Their friends and well-wishers are too numerous to count.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Consider what you can do for your world and promise to do whatever is possible. This is not primarily a matter of money, but of doing and being.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Put on your finest apparel, enjoy being alive and sociable today. Share in the week-end customs of your community. The evening is for meeting new people.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Progress is so relatively easy today that you may neglect to make full use of it. Seek out and negotiate with important people. Pressure is at hand, needing no special search.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Mentally relate to those near you. Look with deliberately naive eyes to see and accept really. Doing business or buying for future advantage spoils matters.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Gather friends, find some common ground for improvement of your local situation. Financial prospects are looking up, the main object is spiritual togetherness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Spend most of the day in as much company as the situation reasonably affords. Trade opinions, get some actively started.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Social activities abound, but think about long-range care of your health. Extra work and responsibility comes to you in the later hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Share in the customs of your community. Gather friends and young people for congenial pastimes. The evening winds up with something unplanned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This Sunday is a good opportunity to entertain, entertaining, particularly if you are in the neighborhood of visiting people from distant places for a fresh perspective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Be somewhat less serious, somewhat more sociable. Get out early, make the most of being out what is going on all about you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You can't avoid ideas today, even in solitude. Be alert and sociable, a visit to others should be available for questions and answers.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): A favor is coming your way, one you hadn't thought likely. Your finances are headed for more activity. Plan to set aside a little extra for your savings.

Fly October 12

Your birthday today: Discovery, associated with this date in history, is in the forward for your coming year. Latent talents are disclosed by chance encounters, casual experiments. Psychic sensitivity manifests itself in subtle expressions in your creative field. It is a year of reasonable prosperity, flawed only by possible unfair tactics by competitors. Emotional developments are quite happy. Today's natives almost always pick up some personal specialty, such as navigation: exert considerable energy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Discretion, tempered with grace, face is essential. Annoyance expressed would upset your projects throughout the day. Diplomacy is the prime virtue in preparations.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Expect some people to exhibit tiresome bulk up power one end, having nothing to do with you. Try to minimize the temporary moods and traits.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Settle home chores early, get everything finished away, then go resolutely into your appointed business efforts; use tradition and the resources of older people freely.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Some matters go very well today, others go awry for no apparent reason. Just drift with the tide for the time being, but neglect no chore or duty.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Take a conservative approach, expect to be cut, a bid on some venture. Vigilance, however, your resources will pay off well. Do something nice for your loved ones this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Wait for changes to proceed a bit further before making monetary promises. Special caution around tools, machinery, vehicles is advised.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You encounter resistance. Be glad that it is visible so you can take it into account. Avoid anything to your savings account. Revise your plans this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Impersonal friendships are under pressure, lack of encouragement. Deep emotional ties, however, thrive on the flow of sympathetic energy. Aside from this, your work produces good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Prepare for conflicting claims on your time. Work and social contacts are not compatible just now. Let people know where your allegiance lies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Expect interruption and excitement. Deal with family tension as fully as you can; misunderstandings are not safely neglected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Don't let a wave of optimism open the door for any speculative or dangerous thing today. Stay busy and cheerful. Evening brings information, stimulating change.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It may seem that everybody gets his own way until it's your turn and then you don't. A deeper understanding of what is going on brings better results later. Wait it out.

For October 13

Your birthday today: Excitement, challenge characterize this year. You turn out to have more determination, patience in the neighborhood of what anybody had realized. Material problems are not nearly so important as they appear to be. Some relationships are diminished, others strengthened; new ones are solid, meaningful. Today's natives are subject to ups and downs in their fortunes, usually because of their own impulsive whims. They are intense personalities, who often make a sort of religion of their professional careers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The unexpected is normal for this eventful day. Those opposed to your plans lack rational explanation. Avoid rash reactions, use intuition and psychology.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Discussions get out of hand all too easily and lead to misunderstanding. Think first of your own welfare. Check facts and figures carefully.

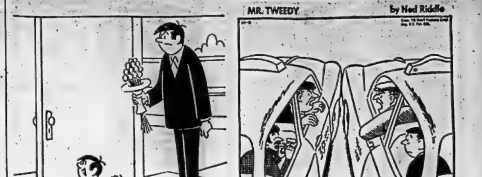
GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Persuading friends into a party, particular program seems improbable, likely to bring complications. Let people follow their whims unhindered.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Unexpected incidents cause family interests to conflict with your other interests. Exceptional care on the road and in public places is essential. There is little time to explain decisions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Many distractions interfere with concentration. Stay on the surface, avoid deep involvement in the ventures of others. Home life improves markedly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Equipment is to be used with caution today. Be prepared suddenly, sometimes with little advance notice. Decisions about money matters need further study.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Think before speaking in today's activities. Be aware of your plans. Take it in stride; help bring things to a balance. Get essential chores done first.



SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your casual persuasion toward change. Your main temptation is toward hasty action, drastic revisions of direction. Avoid fatigue, take a break wherever possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friendships are susceptible to your sudden impulsive moves. Surprises turn out to be very helpful later if you are the extreme in your reactions now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Business affairs take up time you planned to give then go ahead with the new routine you must follow. Be little alone or ungoided.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your theories are tested and whatever flaws exist are made visible. Resulting confusion should be used as an opportunity to learn. Evening offers solace in sharing experiences with old friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Stay away from discussions of money. Past folly shows up today — better write off a losing speculation than to shore it up with added investments.

County Boards Paying Off: Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis told the Ontario legislature Friday, the province's new system of county and district boards is starting to show economies that were promised when it started two years ago.

"It would appear as though the percentage increase in cost in 1969 over 1968 is somewhat less than 1967 and it would appear as though this were the trend as well in 1970 over 1969," he said in opening debate on his departmental estimates.

He said that although final figures are not available for 1969 and 1970, computer projections show a lower percentage in cost increases than in the years when small, numerous boards existed.

However, he pointed out that it is difficult to make comparisons between the new boards and the ones they replaced. For instance, new boards have more responsibility in supervision and curriculum development and have assumed a more autonomous role in education generally.

Mr. Davis also said that total costs of secondary school construction here declined for the fourth consecutive year.

In other business Friday:

—NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said the national energy board "paid no heed" to Ontario requests that the effects of prices on the province be considered before energy deals are made.

—Stanly Randall, minister of trade and development, said he sees no jurisdictional conflict between his department which is responsible for Ontario housing policies and the newly-established federal urban affairs department.

Jingle Said Insipid

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Opposition Leader Robert Nixon charged today in the Ontario legislature that the province is paying for a radio jingle that boosts Ontario as having the most rigid anti-pollution program in North America.

Mr. Nixon described the jingle as insipid and misleading, and said it was being played in Metropolitan Toronto to attract United States visitors to the city.

This was being done despite the fact that Metro radio stations "don't have the range" to reach U.S. populated areas.

To laughter from opposition benches, Stanley Randall, trade and development minister responsible for the jingle, said the song "has a ripple affect", meaning that people talk about it and eventually the sense of it reaches potential U.S. visitors.

Mr. Randall said his department will spend $450,000 on domestic advertising by the end of fiscal 1971, but was unable to say how much the jingle itself cost.

He said his department had made a detailed study of pollution legislation in both Canada and the United States before going ahead with the claim made in the jingle.

"What we say in the jingle is absolutely correct."

Liquor Rulings Raised in House

TORONTO (CP) — A fashionable downtown restaurant has been criticized by seven drinks only to customers who are seated, Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) told the Ontario legislature Friday.

Dr. Shulman said the ruling was made three weeks ago by the Ontario Liquor Control Board, apparently because of Ecouge to enter the upstairs bar of Julie's "where men and women should drinks and meet or moved about talking to each other while consuming the drinks."

Dr. Shulman also referred to a board order forbidding an office to serve a tavern restaurant, Ed's Folly, to sell hot dogs.

The board ruled that music and drinks do not mix with hot dogs, Dr. Shulman said, calling it "too cheap, too low class, too demeaning."

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said he would investigate Dr. Shulman's criticisms.

Ottawa on Alert

Combat Troops Move in to Guard Politicians and Diplomats

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of combat troops, armed with FN automatic rifles or sub-machine guns, supplemented RCMP forces today in guarding politicians, diplomats and other prominent persons against terrorist threats of murder or kidnapping.

Squads of six troops wearing combat gear, including camouflaged helmets, and looking alert, were posted at the residence of target figures during the night.

Security forces were seen escorting at least some cabinet ministers to Parliament Hill in the morning. A government spokesman said only that this was probably a part of a general tightening up of security precautions.

At the house where Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey lives, anxious faces peered from the window as troops filed into the living room.

Concentration of troops was heaviest in Rockcliffe Park, the expensive suburb where most cabinet ministers and diplomats live. Among the homes under guard there was that of former prime minister Lester Pearson.

Informed sources said the RCMP decided at noon Monday they needed help. By 5 p.m. EDT, an advance party from Camp Petawawa, 115 miles west of Ottawa, began to arrive by helicopters at Uplands air force base.

Uplands was sealed off to reporters but they counted more than 130 jeeps, three-quarter ton trucks and three-ton trucks arriving in a three-hour period.

Officials refused to say how many troops there were but an incomplete count indicated the number was more than 400.

They are members of the 2nd Combat Group and are under the command of Col. D. S. Nichalson, deputy commander of the group. It is a crack fighting force, trained in everything from desert to guerrilla warfare, sources said.

The trucks rolling into Uplands carried barbed wire, explosives, communications equipment and other gear.

A convoy of seven three-quarter ton trucks carrying about 100 men went to Rockcliffe air force base, in the northeast of the city, late in the evening.

After British Trade Commissioner James Cross was abducted from his Montreal home a week ago, the FLQ said in communiques that it has a list of persons to be kidnapped or assassinated. The list included a number of federal and Quebec politicians.

FLQ Says MDs Next

QUEBEC (CP) — The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec apparently set its sight on a new target Tuesday night through a kidnap threat issued against striking medical specialists.

Police found a communique in a telephone booth on Laval University campus which said that if the specialists do not return to work by 8 p.m. Wednesday "one of those pigs will share our company for an indefinite period of time."

The threat was signed by the FLQ branch calling itself the Nelson (patriot doctor 1837-38) cell.

The Nelson cell is the third FLQ group to make an appearance on the Quebec scene following the kidnap more than one week ago of British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross by the Liberation cell and last Saturday's abduction of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte by the Chenier cell.

The third FLQ cell criticizes in its communique the "criminal" attitude of the striking specialists and the "laziness" of the government in their dispute on medical care insurance legislation.

Dragnet Costs $84,000. Daily

MONTREAL (CP) — City officials say local taxpayers will be billed about $84,000 for each day police continue their unprecedented dragnet for the kidnappers of British diplomat James Richard (Jasper) Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

That is the cost alone of overtime pay for the city's 3,000 constables and 800 officers who moved to the Mafia Monday.

Operating costs and Quebec provincial police expenditures already have added many more thousands to the bill, officials said.

Give In To FLQ: Levesque

MONTREAL (CP)—Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, says the Quebec government should post demands made by terrorist kidnappers.

Writing today in his daily column in Journal de Montreal, he says "the lives are worth much more than the interests of the state, important as they may be."

"Quebec's collective honor seems to us to be asking for an agreement (with the terrorists' demands), because Quebec's honor would not soon recover if two men were to die in a motel cell which in no way justifies such extremes.

"Frankly . . . we are terribly wary of the social and political deterioration which would result, with very little doubt, from a tragic finish."

Mr. Levesque writes that delays in the government's reaction to the kidnapping of James (Jasper) Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal, and Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, "invite quick explanation than the difficulties of coming to an agreement between Quebec and Ottawa."

Kidnapping Eyewitness

Michael Rathier, 10, tells how he saw two men with "big guns" leap from a car and seize Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte in Montreal Saturday. (CP Wirephoto)

Troops Withdrawn

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons today that armed troops had "by error" been posted in the Parliament Buildings and that he has ordered them withdrawn.

Mr. Macdonald made the statement in the Commons after Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) said the presence of armed troops on Parliament Hill "revolts me."

Soldiers armed with submachine-guns stand guard outside the cabinet room in the central block of the Parliament Buildings only minutes before the Commons met.

Mr. Macdonald said "it was not by design" that the troops were in the building.

Lawyers to Discuss Freeing Hostages

China, Ottawa Agree

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp today announced that Canada and mainland China have reached agreement on mutual diplomatic recognition.

In a Commons statement, Mr. Sharp said the Canadian government recognizes the mainland government as the sole legal government of China.

The Ottawa and Peking governments will exchange ambassadors within six months.

Dealing with the most contentious issue that arose at the Stockholm negotiations, the statement said the Chinese government reaffirms that Taiwan is "an inalienable part of the territory of the People's Republic of China."

The Peking regime thus appeared to have capitulated on its long-standing demand that Canada recognize its territorial claim to the Nationalist-held island off China's south coast.

Referring to the non-resolved impasse, Mr. Sharp said Ottawa does not consider it "appropriate" either to endorse or challenge the Chinese government's position on Taiwan.

"I forgot to post the ransom note!"

Hotel Talks Go On

MONTREAL (CP) — Meetings of the Quebec cabinet were held today in the wake of the first break in Montreal's kidnap deadlock—a get-together Monday night between representatives of the government and the revolutionary Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Activity was concentrated in the 29th floor suite of a heavily-guarded downtown hotel where Premier Robert Bourassa was holding meetings with cabinet ministers and police officials.

The premier, responding to communiques issued Monday from the terrorist captors of a British diplomat and a Quebec cabinet minister, has named lawyer Robert Demers as the government's contact man.

The two FLQ cells responsible for the kidnapping of James (Jasper) Cross, British trade commissioner and Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, earlier designated lawyer Robert Lemieux as their spokesman.

Their initial and preliminary contact was in a police cell where Mr. Lemieux was being held on a charge of obstructing justice.

Further negotiations were expected following Mr. Lemieux's release today after his arraignment in court.

In appointing the 31-year-old Mr. Demers, Premier Bourassa emphasized that the "initial question" was establishment of a "mechanism" to guarantee the safety of the two hostages.

The FLQ, which seeks establishment of an independent Quebec even by violence, has set its chief demand the release of 23 "political prisoners" in return for the life of the two captives. The prisoners are now in jail or facing trial for terrorist crimes.

Since Mr. Cross was kidnapped a week ago Monday, the FLQ has plugged its ransom demands with a blizzard of bulletins directed to two French-language radio stations.

Federal and provincial officials have responded, mainly in the negative, with public statements and broadcasts.

Monday night was the first face-to-face get-together between the two cabinet and Mr. Demers had to go to the police station for the talks because the 29-year-old Mr. Lemieux was held there on a charge of obstructing justice.

The long-haired FLQ lawyer is an avowed advocate of Quebec's separation from Canada and frequently has defended terrorists in court.

Mr. Demers, connected with a prominent Montreal law firm, is known to be a friend of the premier and has strong ties with the Quebec Liberal party.

First sign of a possible break came early Monday when two communiques turned up—delivered in the usual FLQ cloak-and-dagger style—left in phone booths of two radio cases before anonymous tips were made to the radio stations.

News Briefs

NORTH BAY (CP) — An explosion in the nytroglycerine storage building of the Du Pont of Canada Ltd. Nipissing plant here late Monday night caused damage of about $100,000, but no body was injured.

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Actress Sophia Loren remained secluded today in her apartment where she was robbed of about $100,000 in jewels Sunday. She plans to return to Rome tonight. Miss Loren stayed inside her posh apartment while she answered questions from New York police and FBI agents, spokesman Joseph Friedman said.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia categorically denied today it is building a military base in Cuba. A statement issued by the Soviet news agency Tass said: "The Soviet Union has not built, and is not building, a military base on Cuba and is not doing anything that would contradict the understanding reached between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. in 1962.

Compromise Evident

Midi Sales Flop in U.S. Department Stores

An important Dallas retailer says: "The midi is failing to dominate the market . . . We're not happy with the way sales have gone.

"The most spectacular failure has been the midi coat. The trend has just not materialized."

But while the midi seems to have flopped, there has been a trend toward longer hemlines, a sort of compromise between the mini and the midicalf.

Women's resistance to the midicalf skirt hit some retailers this summer. Their test numbers of midis never sold well enough to warrant large reorders. Stores in Miami, Atlanta and Portland are stocked with only about 10 per cent midicalf lengths for fall. Some have sold as little as 5% well enough to warrant large reorders. Stores in Miami, Atlanta and Portland are stocked with only about 10 per cent midicalf lengths for fall. Some have sold as little as 5% per cent of these.

The J. C. Penney Co., a large mass market retailer, stayed away from the midcalf lengths for fall, except in token numbers. Even these haven't sold well.

At New York's Women's Hairdressers, a made-to-order boutique with prices starting at $155, a grim-looking hemline thermometer registers 79.4 per cent of sales for short skirts, two inches above the knee. The rest is split between at-the-knee and just below.

Even at the couture level, customers in many cities are having their doubts.

Some designers are retracting their stand. Ceil Chapman showed midi lengths for fall, but she's moving up to two inches below the knee for her resort-spring collection. At David Crystal, hemlines remain at midknee for resort, spring—one half inch longer than for fall.

"The midi is finished," says a spokesman. "We don't feel any midi will be any part of the market."

Pucci Says Midi Is Ugly

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Emilio Pucci believes he has a solution to the hem length problem: fringe tacked on to hemlines.

In the first day of Florence's spring and summer fashion shows Monday, the Florentine fashion designer showed skirts that varied from just above the knee to low calf. Then he tacked deep borders of silk fringe to the hemlines so that the leg was veiled but not covered as the fringe swayed.

"Like this, the length question doesn't exist," Pucci said. Pucci showed women have the illusion of length without actually wrapping up the legs."

Pucci said he thinks the midi is ugly and he likes long skirts only when boots are worn. But he added that "for me, boots are dead."

A handkerchief-point skirts that both showed the knee and then dipped to cover it were another Pucci idea for having it both ways on the length question. But the high spot of the Pucci fashion show was, as always, his collection of beach outfits.

Skimpy little bikinis had V-topped bras, while the briefs sported a cunning little flap that was demurely frilled.

Fallen Comrades Honored

More Than 250 Attend Hasty Pees Reunion

PICTON (Staff) — The story of the "Hasty Pees" proudly recounted by Farley Mowat's novel, The Regiment, unfolded last weekend in Picton with the 38th annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association.

Memories of battles won and comrades lost were recalled among more than 250 veterans and wives who gathered at the County Centre for this two-day event.

Registrations for the reunion were completed Saturday and followed by a "meet your buddies" dance that evening. A brief business meeting opened Sunday morning's programme which was highlighted by a veterans' parade to the cenotaph. Memorial wreaths were placed there in tribute to the officers and men of the First Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who died during World War II. Major James Bird, Picton, gave the scripture reading for the memorial service conducted by Rev. Robert Jones, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

In his address, Rev. Jones referred to God as "the chieftestes force that holding men and nations together. He warned that countries which forgot God also are forgetting that without Him we perish. He suggested that the Tower of Babel represented an early day attempt by man in dethrone God and take over the world.

"When nations are not under God they have to have substitutes like the Babel tower. We've seen this in the Bible when man united in the Tower of Babel in temporary unity together. Man has even fought wars to bind countries together, but, unfortunately, without God.

The minister mentioned "an uneasiness in mankind" as it reads the biblical passage "the wind passes over it and it is gone and the place knows it no more." He stated that the dangers of pessimism blighted man with the construction of the Tower of Babel. It seemed important to build "the highest, the best" structure. Rev. Jones commented that when God viewed the tower it was to viewed the tower it was to Him "a Lilliputian conclusion" and an attempt to dethrone Him. The Rev. Jones was offered by Rev. Jones as a comparison to the ill fated Tower of Babel. It seemed man punishes us, He gives us rope to hand ourselves. He lets us to hang ourselves. He lets us vent our furies to see where He is going and that without Him we have no chance," said Rev. Jones.

The minister expressed his thought that man today is fashioning "a Frankenstein out of his technological world and he can no longer control it. He added that every nation must have success to trust and without God is prey to opportunism. "A near-beliver is a man to fear," stressed the minister. Rev. Jones recalled that Hitler was such a man, "completely unpredictable and the personification of 'no guarantee'."

The message closed with reference to Joseph, sold into slavery by his brothers and one day given the opportunity for revenge. Rev. Jones emphasized that Joseph reminded of his frightened brothers, "Don't be afraid, for am I in the place of God? Am I God. Himself to take revenge on you?" He suggested that trust between nations can dispel conflict and the need for revenge in today's world. Nations bound to God can radiate confidence to brother nations instead of stirring fears of revenge.

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at I Association celebrated Saturday giving weekend with a reunion dinner held in the County Centre's ballroom at 6:30 p.m. Head table guests included the Hon. George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, county warden Gordon Lloyd, Rev. Robert Black, Legion Padre and Col. Jean Allan, Belleville, colonel of the regiment.

Speechless guest of honor was "The Little Chief" the indian figure carried overseas as a mascot by the Hasty Pee's. The "wooden Indian" accompanied the Picton unit. Factory of A-#9, Miller, serving as a silent procurator of "The Little Chief" thread.

Conscripted by a mischievous group of soldiers, The Little Chief marched with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment when it left the country on Dec. 17, 1939. Although Sunday's "guest" was only a replica of the original mascot, he spoke eloquently of the fighting spirit of the Hasty Pee's.

Brief words of welcome were extended to the visiting veterans by Picton mayor H. J. McFarland, Mr. Hees, Mr. Lloyd and Colonel Allan among others. Featured speaker following the banquet was Rev. Robert Black, who addressed the veterans of the continuing war of "just plain living." He emphasized that man's success or failure in this war today will inevitably be reflected in future generations. "A good is needed and ammunition and tactics," he stressed.

The Legion padre urged that the goal must be more than material objects or money. He implored not to find in man's strength in daily living, in times of peace as well in times of war.

Rev. Black observed, "Evil is stronger today than ever before and the time has come when those who believe in God should stand and be counted. It is man's powerful stire to laugh at God if he can — wars were fought to give freedom of worship. But if we spurn all the preaching and all changes and organizations what is there in life for any man," he demanded. He further emphasized that man must decide whether to turn his back to God or to follow Him. "Your choose the source of your strength," he concluded.

Brief remarks were made by Col. Angus Duff, Belleville, who commented, "the country owes us nothing." He pointed out that what the Hasty Pee's did in the First II was done freely and must be remembered as such an act. "Today we are all too prone to think our country owes us something. Freedom is not free, we must always guard it and keep a positive attitude. When we are confronted by things we don't like we must stand up and then tell about them. Let us resolve to serve our country not by means of arms but by means of daily living."

Speakers were thanked by Walter Insley, president of Branch 79, Royal Canadian Legion. Donations in memory of the late Sid Lockyer and the late Sgt. James Jenkins both of Picton were gratefully acknowledged by the regimental association.

ROZENDUN — In loving memory of our dear mother, Dorothy Rozendun (Dottie) Sweet who passed away Oct. 13, 1966.

We do not need a special day,
To remember you dear mother,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were mine to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To have you here beside us,
Just smiling through the years
—Always remembered by son Donald and David.

ROZENDUN — In loving memory of our dear mother, Dorothy Rozendun (Dottie) Sweet who passed away Oct. 13, 1966.

Sweet memories, sadness only,
As time goes by.
Dear thoughts remembered by how and hopes.

—Ruth and Ken.

BARLOW — In loving memory of a beloved husband, father and grandfather, Ernest Barlow who passed away Oct. 13, 1966.

To the world he is gone forever,
But not to the hearts that yet
To us who loved him and lost him,
Memories are treasures.

—Wife Ethel and children and grandchildren.

ROZENDUN — In loving memory of our dear mother, Dorothy Rozendun (Dottie) Sweet who passed away Oct. 13, 1966.

Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
There's a memory that remains,
And though the years be many
Dear mother,
They are filled with memories of you.

—Always remembered by husband Eugene.

Trenton Police Officers Get Raise and Fringes

TRENTON (Staff) — Members of the town police force have been granted a 13 per cent wage increase by the arbitration board established to settle their dispute with the Trenton Police Commission.

Decision of the three-man arbitration panel, presided over by Judge J. A. Carter of Barrie, increased the salary of a first class constable from $7,600 to $8,500 annually.

The raise is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1970.

The settlement was reached last Friday — only weeks before negotiations begin on the 1971 contract between the local police association and the town's police commission.

Through the year, a nine per cent salary boost had been offered by the commission. This would have increased a first class constable's salary by $684, rather than the $968 granted in arbitration.

Redress was given by the arbitrators to many of the grievances voiced by police association spokesmen when the three-man panel met in Belleville on Sept. 23.

Trenton police received no compensation for overtime an related arbitrators for double-time pay for hours worked in excess of the regular 40-hour week.

Friday's decision grants the local constabulary time-and-a-half for overtime, one-half hour past the regular shift.

The arbitrators also require that the town increase life insurance for its police from $5,000 to $10,000 and that the municipality pay two-thirds rather than the present 50 per cent of its costs.

Furthermore, the town must pay 100 per cent of hospitalization costs for the men of the force. Sixty - six per cent is already paid by the municipality.

Vacation arrangements were also revised by the arbitration board. Instead of receiving four weeks holidays after 20 years of service, a policeman now will get a month's vacation after 15 years.

To overcome the police complaint that some constables were not allowed to have holidays in the summer, arbitrators require that vacations must be given in June, July, August or September, unless the constable requests otherwise.

If this is not done, they say, policemen must be compensated at the rate of $50 a week for the inconvenience of not having holidays when they want them.

Due to this policy, some junior men were forced to have winter vacations against their will. James Cook, municipal for the police association told the arbitration board Sept. 23 "that one man has not had his holidays in the summer for 12 years."

The local constabulary had not received meal periods on the job. Arbitrators have awarded them a 45-minute break for each eight - hour shift.

Drama Festival Non-Competitive

The Dominion Drama Festival, now in its 23th year of existence, has changed its format, beginning with its festival to be held May 22, 1971, in Ottawa.

In a statement, John Hill, festival vice - president explained that the competitive aspect of the festival would be dropped and that it would no longer be exclusively amateur.

"Up to now it has been competitive and for amateurs," Mr. Hill said. "This year, competitions will be discontinued and the week - long festival of drama in the National Arts Centre, Ottawa, will be a showcase for the best there is in Canadian Theatre."

"Professional as well as amateur groups will be welcomed, and the participants will be chosen by a central committee on the basis of their application to enter."

Previously, amateur theatre groups judged the best in their respective regions by adjudication were invited to the dominion festival.

"The whole business of competition seems foreign to modern ideas of creativity and involvement," Mr. Hill explained. "And how does an adjudicator differentiate between an experimental play done in an experimental and bold fashion and a classical play done with polish and poise?"

Instead of by regional invitation, the national festival will be open to all comers, professional, amateur, educational, youth, classical, experimental, avant - garde or indigenous theatre, whether it be French, English or whatever.

"The festival is planned to be truly representative of theatre in Canada," Mr. Hill said.

Despite the change, plans in Belleville by the Belleville Theatre Guild, go on in preparation for the Eastern Ontario Drama League Festival to be held in Belleville early in 1971.

Competition will continue at this regional level when several pre - adjudicated theatre groups get together March 8 with their three-act plays at Centennial Secondary School.

The theatre groups from all over Eastern Ontario, will compete for prizes and a number of dramatic awards.

Collector's Corner

Allen Montgomery sits with his daughter Kim on the hearth of his stone fireplace, constructed of 360 rocks and mineral specimens from around the world. The rockhound built the fireplace after deciding that his collection should be used for the enjoyment of his family, instead of merely occupying shelves in his "rock room".

Rockhound's Fireplace Makes Hobby Practical

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

There comes a time in every rockhound's life when just looking at a neatly labelled collection palls.

If he can't afford either time or space for a lapidary workshop to make jewelry for his wife, he's in a fix.

Unless he makes her a unique rock specimen fireplace instead, as Allen Montgomery did.

Convinced that the rocks he had collected should be used, he designed and built the basement fireplace at his Plaza Square house. It features about 360 rock samples, some from as far away as King William in the Arctic and some from as close to home as the Moira River.

The arctic specimens are marked with bright red lichen, one of this planet's easiest forms of plant life. The lichen cannot be removed from the rock and adds a colorful note to the predominately grey, brown, rose and black stone work.

The rocks are imbedded in concrete and highlighted with a sprinkling of tiny iron pyrites that glitter in the light.

The fireplace opening is banded with a molding of drill cores and the hearth is made from a slab of Portneuf brown granite selected from the stock of the Ontario Marble Company in Toronto.

Majority of the material in the fireplace consists of flints, marbles, serpentines, Actinolite, Fluorite, quartz and many pieces of black granite from Leeds county.

Crowning the mantle is a specimen of purple fluorite, made up to 1¼ inch cubes and crystals and weighing about 34 pounds.

Although it took Mr. Montgomery only about three weeks to build his fireplace, it is the result of over five years of rock collecting with the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club.

He is a regular visitor at rock shows and swapping sessions, and has collected many specimens himself in Eastern Ontario.

Hastings county, Mr. Montgomery says, offers in the neighborhood of 1,000 different specimens to the serious collector. It has gained the label "rockhounds' paradise" from devotees of the hobby.

But the pride of the Montgomery collection, housed in the "rock room" off the recreation room with its collector's fireplace, comes from Orocourt in northern Ontario.

It is a fragment of a meteorite discovered in the area and later moved to Capreol as a centennial project. The meteorite from which Mr. Montgomery's irreplaceable fragment came weighed 30 tons.

The Library Corner

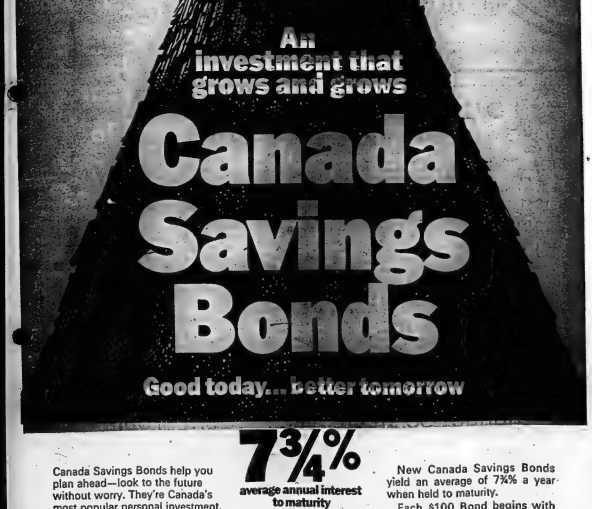
By C B.

Are you a student, clubwoman, teacher, businessman or factory worker? Do you know how, extensive a source of information your library can be for you? Perhaps you are a house wife, clergyman, lawyer, or city official. For you too, your library can provide information when you need it.

How well or how frequently do you make use of your library's resources? When you are in search of an elusive fact, do you turn to the reference department of your public library for help?

For those social occasions which present problems, there are books such as Joyce's Book of Etiquette: Toasts to the Bride and How to Propose Them: Handy Introductions and Replies and Other Helps for Speakers.

Perhaps your problem is how to address a civic or religious dignitary in person or by mail. Have too, with books such as styles of address, your reference staff may come to your rescue.



Your group wants to mark in some way an event of some importance to another country — maybe their national anthem. On the shelves in the reference department you'll find national anthems of the world. (In case you have forgotten the words to all four verses of O Canada, they too are included.)

You've heard a quotation somewhere and can't for the life of you remember it exactly, or who said it. Books of quotations, or the index to poetry, may end that frustrating search. Perhaps, though the opposite is your problem. You want a quotation or a poem to suit the theme of your program, your speech, or your essay. This sort of help, too, can be found in the reference library.

Special subject encyclopedias — philosophy, art, science and technology as well as dictionaries of various languages and subjects, mathematics, music and medicine for example, ensure that most areas of interest are covered.

Phone for trade or telephone directory information. Look for government reports, provincial or federal statutes.

Your library's reference department maintains book, magazine, pamphlet and clipping files to better assist you in finding the answer to your queries. Photo-copying service is also available so that you can take it with you.

Quebec Militants

The kidnapping by the FLQ of British trade commissioner James Cross and Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte may be taken as the opening round of increased militancy by Quebec separatists.

As long ago as 1967 there were warnings that once Expo was over there would be a resumption of terrorist activity. One wonders why any guerrilla force worthy of the name did not use Expo as a background for creating real chaos in Quebec; but be that as it may, here now is the prospect of trouble.

Similar warnings have come from the Maoists, and particularly Robert Cruise, 27, a former University, of British Columbia student who from a previous image of conservative non-radicalism, suddenly — almost traumatically — turned Communist.

Cruise, who was last reported on hunger strike while in prison in Hamilton on charges of threatening and pointing a firearm, has been talking for some time of guerrilla warfare in Quebec, and specifically assassination of leading political figures.

So the government and the RCMP, who are responsible for countering subversive activity in Canada, cannot say they were not warned.

As of now, even allowing for the fact that the police cannot be everywhere, and that terrorist tactics are difficult to combat, the lack of security and the degree of unpreparedness of the police in these kidnappings are matters for deep concern.

The FLQ have served notice that they mean business and the government and security forces can do no less than respond in kind. This will mean much tighter security and arrest of all suspects.

Meanwhile, the fate of Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte remains uncertain; for the families of the two men it is a harrowing time; for Canada these events constitute a grave warning. If Canadians have been apathetic in the past, there can be no excuse for such an attitude now.

Defence Spending

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald is embarking on his new job, that of rationalizing Canada's uncertain defence role not only to the men in the services, but to a public sick of such extravagances as the ill-fated aircraft carrier Bonaventure and now the recent report on Canadair of the CF-5 aircraft without having defined any specific task for them.

Mr. Macdonald has said little himself beyond noting that the forces will take delivery of the planes, but a defence department spokesman was quoted in this newspaper last week as saying that some of the planes are "in storage."

He added: "When you buy an aircraft you always plan to put some in storage for purposes of attrition." No admission of course of any possibility of obsolescence.

There have been vague hints that the CF-5 is destined for use as Canada's new tactical close ground support aircraft with NATO, and for photo reconnaissance work, and that it is being sent to Germany and Norway for trials.

One wonders why the planes cannot be tested right here in Canada before being based in Europe, if indeed that is the final intent. As for "storage" of planes not destined for immediate use, until the Canadair plant in Mountain View base has quite a collection of aircraft in storage — but obsolescent.

If the CF-5 is to suffer a similar fate, with the taxpayer being taken for yet another ride?

This is a question the government should ponder, as it should the whole subject of weaponry. In air warfare in particular these can prove nothing more than expensive toys that may never even see action, and very shortly be superseded by still more advanced aircraft. Thus the whole problem of tax dollar attrition perpetuates itself. And the question is, how much of this sort of thing can the country afford, let alone tolerate?

Royal Get-Together

After all these years it must have been an emotional meeting indeed between Prince Charles and his great uncle, the Duke of Windsor. The visit is said to have been arranged at the last minute at the prince's request.

The Duke sacrificed much as a result of his abdication from the Throne and marriage to the American divorcee Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson — principally in the loosening of ties with his family and by self exile abroad.

The years have brought some healing of this breach; the Duke returned to London for the funeral of his mother, Queen Mary, and in more recent times he and the Duchess were received by his niece Queen Elizabeth. Now there has been this occasion in which he and the heir to the Throne met for the first time. For the Duke in particular, in his declining years, it must have been a happy day.

PM and Stanfield Tell It Like It Is

Nationalization—Look What Happened to Cuba

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Nice common sense characterized the closing pace to hear Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield on the "new" Canadian industrial nationalism.

It is really only as new as that old Liberal-radical, former and crusading disastrous Finance Minister Walter Gordon and the New Democrats have made it.

Walter Gordon, when you'll remember as the mis-manager of former Prime Minister Lester Pearson's deficit budgets, is still on his kick to "buy back Canada," as he puts it — with the taxpayers' money, of course — from the wickedly greedy Americans.

The Walter Gordons would re-purchase American industry in Canada for the Canadian financial and investment community and preserve a large measure of its private enterprise context.

The New Democrats would nationalize it in the name of the state, like the Canadian National Railways and Air Canada.

Italy controversial proposition, either way.

How quietly both Stanfield and Trudeau cool it.

The "new" Canadian nationalism, the way Robert Stanfield sizes it up, would involve little more than the playing of a game of musical chairs by the directors in the board rooms of Bay Street.

It might be big stuff in "Big T. O." as the super-Canadians of Toronto call their Metro, the Conservative Leader concedes, but it would not mean much to Hometown Ontario, the Atlantic Provinces, the Prairies or the West Coast.

"Who in Quebec's pulp and paper towns, in the branch industrial plants in Western or Eastern Ontario, on the farms of the Peace River country or in the lumber mills or on the fruit farms of B. C. really cares if a corporation's directors are from New York or Detroit or even Toronto," he asks.

"We cannot deny or stop or wipe out with the wave of a magic legislative wand the ownership by Americans of some Canadian industries any more than we can deny or stop or remove the control of other industrial enterprises by Toronto's Bay Street."

He sees this "new" nationalism as a hangup of Walter Gordon and the Toronto wheeler-dealers.

Robert Stanfield set this out as his position during a liberal press conference.

Pierre Trudeau said his place, almost at the same time, in Montreal, is an audience of high school students.

They were bugging him about "buying back Canada for us."

And he agreed that perhaps it might be financially possible for them and other Canadians to re-purchase the industrial assets sold to the Americans.

But he warned, there would be a heavy price to pay, not only in increased taxation to pay the bill but in other things can not be confiscated as if Ottawa were some new Peking or dominated Communist state in Equatorial Africa — but in a sharply cut standard of living.

Anyway, asked the Prime Minister with a dig at the students, what was it they had against the Americans when they slavishly followed south of the border long-hair styling, blue jeans fashions, and rocked and rolled to a Yankee beat?

If they really wanted to do their own Canadian thing, he told them like it is they could start by cutting out their canton copy lifestyle making them look and act and sound like counterfeit Americans.

There was really no trick to kicking out the American owners and grabbing the investments they have made in Canada, he went on.

Fidel Castro hyd done it in three weeks, and look what happened to Cuba and Cubans — how would you like their luxury standard of living."

But the kids were not satisfied. Maybe things were tough in Cuba with too much work and too little pay and not much in the shops to buy even if they did have the money, "but they are free, are they not?"

No, really, explained the PM, but he was not on the campus again a professor and they the undergrads.

You had to have capital to operate a country. And if you did not have it yourself, then you had to find someone who had, and persuade, or at least not prevent him investing.

Castro found that out, Pierre Trudeau told the students. Sure he got rid of Americans, and then what happened? Cuba went broke. And if they were not going to starve to death, he had to find money somewhere.

"So he replaced American capital with Russian and Chinese capital, plus subsidies up with foreign investment overship after all."

The students were not able to answer that one.

Unhappy With Own Medicine

The Globe and Mail

It is wrong to disturb people. It seems, and especially wrong the people you disturb are the politicians and bureaucrats at City Hall. That seems to be the gist of Alderman June Marks' outburst at Metro's Social Services and Housing Committee the other day. What really brings Alderman Marks' ire to a boil is the fact that chairman are facilitating and even encouraging the disturbers.

Ministers taking advantage of their collar and "other activists" should be exposed as "phonies" by Metro politicians, she says. The time has come to call a spade a spade and we must not allow the provincial and federal governments to give funds to groups that are going to disturb people."

Isn't it remarkable what happens to memory in the corridors of power? Is this the June Marks of Bloor street who first came to public attention by stirring up such a terrible dust in the old Ward 2 Ratepayers Association? Wasn't Mrs. Marks' political career born of the fact that she disturbed people?

The times have changed, Mrs. Marks finds herself receiving end. A case in point involves the Metropolitan Centre, which under the direction of Rev. John Metson attempted to move the church into the streets when the people stopped coming into the town. One of its more successful ventures was the Neighborhood Service Organization, a number of nine social service agencies to serve the people displaced by the Spadina Expressway development. The Christian Resources Centre has also been peripherally associated with the Bloor Street Housing Committee, which is seeking federal funds to oppose more high-rise development in the Don area.

Located in the Riverdale Project, an organization spawned by four East End churches to bring the combined influence of the various community associations in the area to bear on the decision makers. Such churchmen who are interested in the welfare of their fellow citizens' activities to the sermon on Sunday morning?

TODAY IN HISTORY

Turkish correspondents signed the treaty of Kars 49 years ago today—in 1921—with Soviet Armenia, recognizing independence. With history going back to the kingdom of Armat in the 9th century BC, Armenia was ruled by Ottoman Turks since 1520. Taken up as a political pawn in the 19th century, it became the scene of murder and massacre after 1895. Armenia was occupied by Russians in 1916, became independent in 1918, and was taken over by the Communists in 1921.

Wait Until They Reach 30 Or 40

The Times Change—So Too Will Modern Youth

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

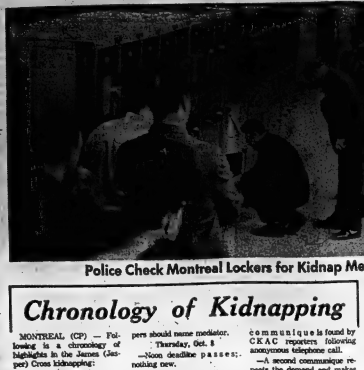
I should like to make a few comments concerning the letter from Paul Neras published in the Oct. 8 Intelligencer.

First of all, I do agree that religious fanaticism turns most of us off. We do not understand this type of personality any more than they understand the so-called "new" generation. This is really a theological gap shared by young and old alike.

I must disagree, however, that "most believe simply because they have been conditioned to do so from infancy". This is a perfect example of shallow thinking and one-sided research. Mr. Naras obviously would prefer to believe that most of us go to church because we need a crutch or because someone "conditioned" us to do so. It is much simpler to accept this theory since it eliminates churchgoers from any level of intelligent consideration when we can be categorized as a pack of neurotic robots.

Mr. Neras states that youth is challenging the premises on which their elders have based their lives. This they should do because many of our "values", i.e. our preoccupation with things material, the sanctimonious ballyhoo we spout so often must stop if we are ever to create a better world. But let's not run away with the idea that all things created by our forebears must therefore be useless.

The key word today is "create". The youth accuse the parents of creating a world full of garbage, ruin and hypocrisy. We agree, to a point and yet we wonder how they intend to change this by polluting their bodies and minds with speed and other mind-altering drugs. We wonder how life will be richer and fuller because they "bust up" a university campus. We wonder who, ends up happier and more fulfilled by the relationships young people establish so casually which may or may not end by mutual consent. We wonder about the astounding rise in the incidence of venereal disease. We try to ascertain if these things will add enrichment to their adult lives.



Our past has a habit of rising up to haunt us in the most peculiar ways. We must either die or grow old and sooner or later the fat forties and flabby fifties are upon us and I'm sure Mr. Naras will find when he reaches that stage in life he will also be perplexed by the youth of that day. They will be rocking the boat then.

I do wish the youth could solidify their philosophy as we in the older generation do so they could understand the kind of world the young people want and how they propose to achieve these goals when they assume their fair share of the burdens in this most complex of worlds.

The world must change or perish of that I am sure, but let's not change one order of chaos for something equally chaotic and fool ourselves into thinking because it's different it's bound to be better. Society has been that route too many times. We of the "over - the - hill mob" were once young, scornful and impatient. We promised never to act like our parents and were beneath our consideration. The world, to our eyes, was just as phony and hollow as the world our world but I truly did not set out to create this particular world and I'm sure you contemptuous, at times, as you Mr. Naras.

I cannot but think that if those two generations, yours and mine, could begin to tell each other how we really think in our innermost mind we might find a new purpose in the future we're not as far apart as we thought.

MARLENE ALEXANDER

Police Check Montreal Lockers for Kidnap Messages.

Chronology of Kidnapping

Monday, Oct. 5

—Two armed men gain entrance to Cross residence at 8:15 a.m. on pretext of delivering birthday gift to diplomat. Cross is handcuffed and hustled into car which heads toward downtown Montreal.

—Ottawa officials notified by British high commission. External Affairs Minister Sharp tells Commons additional protection will be provided for diplomats in Canada; he says kidnapping will be strong blow against separatism in Quebec.

—Witness to kidnapping tells police one of the abductors said: "We're the FLQ"—tors said: "We're the FLQ"—Front de Libération de Quebec, underground terrorist group.

—Police say at 3 p.m. they received four ransom notes asking for release of political prisoners, $500,000 in gold bullion and safe passage to Cuba or Algeria.

—Justice Minister Jerome Choquette says at 4 p.m. the matter will be brought before the Quebec cabinet. Says kidnappers have given 48-hour deadline and pleads with the FLQ to show "human decency" and provide Cross with pills for blood pressure.

Tuesday, Oct. 6

—Police say at 10 a.m. that all known members of separatist-terrorist groups are under close surveillance. Newspapers in Montreal and Toronto say prominent Canadian politicians are named in manifesto received from kidnappers under plan of "selective assassination."

—Secret close to Prime Minister Trudeau say any-decision to meet the demands will be shared by Ottawa and Quebec City.

—Federal cabinet ends 2½-hour meeting at noon and Mr. Trudeau says it would be "too dangerous" to say anything "at this point."

—John Diefenbaker says the government should offer $50,000 reward for information leading to Cross' recovery.

—In Montreal, lawyer Robert Lemieux says six jailed terrorists have signed a document accepting asylum in Cuba or Algeria if ransom demands met.

—Mr. Sharp tells Commons the "wholly unreasonable" demands by the kidnappers won't be met. But he says the government wants to speak with the abductors.

—Montreal radio station announces it has received FLQ note saying they "will do away" Cross if demands not met by "8:30 a.m. EDT Wednesday," in Quebec City. Premier Bourassa approves Ottawa's tough stand.

Wednesday, Oct. 7

—8:30 a.m. deadline passes without word from kidnappers.

—Montreal police pick up 30 suspects in raids.

—Prime Minister Trudeau says ministry cannot be allowed to impose its views on majority by violence.

—A noon deadline passes; nothing new. Mr. Diefenbaker mentions that Toronto businessmen planned to put up $50,000 reward.

—Another note found in Montreal, placing more emphasis on "human" demands —release of prisoners—while not mentioning money.

—Radio station gets note at 2:45 p.m. extending deadline again to noon Thursday. Accompanying note signed "L. Cross" asks authorities to agree to demands.

—Sharp says in late-night news conference the kidnappers should name mediator.

Thursday, Oct. 8

—Noon deadline passes; nothing new.

—Police deny they called off their investigation at. say time. Another FLQ note found in telephone booth extends deadline to midnight.

—The latest midnight deadline, which FLQ says is the last one, passes without developments.

Friday, Oct. 9

—Radio station CKLM receives anonymous telephone call shortly after midnight saying authorities have 24 hours to free "political prisoners" in return for release of Cross. Police later say the call was a prank.

—Published reports said police were looking for five "prime suspects" in the kidnapping.

—Justice Minister Choquette asks for a letter in Cross' handwriting with a reference to fives days having passed since the abduction, in order to prove the diplomat is still "safe and sound."

—Kidnappers issue a "last" communique setting a 6 p.m. Saturday deadline for the government to meet their demands or never see Cross again. The communique is accompanied by a letter from Cross containing the reference to elapsed time requested earlier in the day by Mr. Choquette. It is also accompanied by a communique issued earlier in the day but not found, which renews demands for release of prisoners and cessation of police activity.

Saturday, Oct. 10

—Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, appeals in his newspaper column to kidnappers to abandon the use of violence.

—Premier Robert Bourassa returns to Montreal from New York, following a United Nations visit to promote investment in Quebec province.

—Lawyer Lemieux says he would be willing to act as an observer in the event of a transfer of prisoners to Algeria or Cuba, a suggestion made by the FLQ in a communique Friday.

—Justice Minister Choquette tells a news conference the kidnappers will be given safe conduct out of Canada if the release Cross, but that the prisoners will not be met. If the kidnappers wish to remain in Canada, their humanitarianism in releasing Cross will be taken into consideration in their treatment before the courts.

—The 6 p.m. deadline passes less than 30 minutes after Mr. Choquette's message with no word from the kidnappers.

—About 20 minutes after the deadline Labor Minister Pierre Laporte is kidnapped from in front of his home by two masked men with machine guns who force him into a car with two or three other men.

Sunday, Oct. 11

—Radio station CKAC is directed by anonymous telephone caller to a trash can where a note from Mr. Laporte is found. Addressed to his wife, it says he is well and had a good night.

—Quebec cabinet meets with top city council officials in a downtown hotel; later moves to another location.

—CKAC receives communique setting 10 p.m. Sunday deadline for meeting all seven original FLQ demands or Mr. Laporte will be executed. The communique is found by CKAC reporters following anonymous telephone call.

—A second communique repeats the demand and makes the only reference to Mr. Cross received Sunday. It says the Laporte abductors have not heard from the Cross kidnappers, but if Mr. Cross is still alive, his captors should issue another communique.

—The second communique is accompanied by a letter from Mr. Laporte, pleading emotionally for Premier Bourassa to save his life and referring to his position as the last adult male in his family, having responsibilities for his wife and his late brother's children as well as his own.

—Premier Bourassa reads a statement in French minutes before the 10 p.m. Laporte deadline, saying provisions for the safe release of the ministe ter and Mr. Cross cannot be discussed until mechanisms are established to ensure the safe release of the two captives.

—The justice department says lawyer Lemieux has been charged with obstructing justice.

—A statement issued in Ottawa says the federal government concurs with Premier Bourassa's statement that the main interest is the safe return of the two kidnap victims. The statement says the federal and Quebec governments are in constant liaison concerning the kidnappings.

Monday, Oct. 12

—Radio station CKLM receives a communique saying Mr. Cross is alive and well and will be released if the government meets two demands of his kidnappers, the cessation of police activity and release of "political prisoners." The communique is accompanied by a letter from Mr. Cross, thanking Premier Bourassa for saving his and Mr. Laporte's life. It is the first communication from Mr. Cross and his kidnappers since Friday.

—Radio station CKAC receives a communique from the Laporte abductors, confirming the minister is well but demanding that the government meet all seven original FLQ conditions for his release. The communique is accompanied by a handwritten letter from Mr. Laporte asking the government to make it possible for the "political prisoners" to leave Quebec Monday or today.

—Both communiques suggest lawyer Lemieux serve as mediator in the negotiations for the release of Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte.

—External Affairs Minister Sharp and other federal cabinet ministers meet in Ottawa to discuss the possibility of opening discussions with the kidnappers.

—A new communique from the Laporte kidnappers is found. It lists three alternatives for the government: Reject all demands, in which case both Mr. Laporte and Mr. Cross will be killed; accede to the two demands listed in the most recent communique from the Cross kidnappers, in which case Mr. Laporte will continue to be held; accede to all demands originally listed, in which case both men will be freed safely.

—Premier Bourassa names Montreal lawyer Robert Demers as government contact man in negotiations for the release of the FLQ captives.

—Negotiations get under way at police headquarters between Mr. Demers and Mr. Lemieux, the latter still in police custody on a charge of obstructing justice.

Unusual Questions Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — Some unusual peripheral questions have been raised by terrorist kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, two concerning relations between the authorities and the news media.

The Front de Libération du Quebec, claiming responsibility for the kidnappings, has made most of its communications public through Montreal radio stations.

Authorities here make no secret of the fact they are miffed by the way some of these documents have been handled.

FLQ communiques have been received by stations CKAC and CKLM in Montreal and in some cases, authorities say, they have been put on the air before their contents have been made known to police or any other authorities.

The actual documents have been handled by so many persons by the time police get them that the chance of turning up a helpful fingerprint or other clue has been reduced to zero, the critics say.

Another point that has been raised in some circles is the broadcasting of the FLQ manifesto. The CBC French-language network carried a reading of the document last week.

The CBC made its facilities available at the request of the government, which saw this as one acceptable demand made by the terrorists and a method of showing them that the authorities were open to some negotiation.

The FLQ also demanded that the manifesto be published in the front pages of all major Quebec newspapers.

Sources here said no government pressure was exerted on newspapers to meet this demand. Most large papers carried a text of the manifesto, usually on inside pages.

Text Of Last Letter

MONTREAL (CP) — Following is translation of the text of a communique from the Chenier finance cell of the FLQ received Monday afternoon:

Following the publication of the eighth communique of the Liberation cell and of the last communique from the Chenier finance cell, the situation is clearly established

1. The safe and sound release of Mr. Cross depends on acceptance of the following two stipulations: the liberation of the political prisoners, the halt of police repression.

2. The release of Pierre Laporte depends on the integral respect of all six original conditions of the FLQ.

From this position, then, there are only three possible developments:

1. The government refuses all the demands, or hesitates to meet them, or takes too much time to answer. Faced with a situation the two hostages will be executed.

2. The government decides to accept two conditions liberation of the political prisoners, and the police repression. In this case, James Cross will be freed during the 24 hours following the return of the three observers and the execution of Pierre Laporte will be killed, unless the police forces find the whereabouts of Pierre Laporte, but the minister of immigration and assimilation of Quebecers will not be freed.

3. The government decides to meet the six original demands of the FLQ. In this case Pierre Laporte and James Cross will be let 20 safe and sound within the 24 hours following the complete realization of the liberation operation.

This communique is the last from the Cyrenic cell before the execution or liberation of Pierre Laporte. The scope of the situation is clear. All obstinacy, all delay will be considered a tacit refusal.

We will overcome.

Front de Libération du Quebec.

FLQ.

We will consider as an inadmissable delay listlessness on the government in giving a definite response to our demands. We repeat that any hesitation will be considered as a refusal, any request for contact (by communique or otherwise) will be considered as a refusal.

You have in your hands the complete text in which the seven initial demands of the FLQ are summarized.

The insert read:

"Unless the police forces find the whereabouts of Pierre Laporte."

MR. AND MRS. DONALD OUTRED

Outred – Patrick

On Oct. 3 at 3 p.m., Sharil Lee Patrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Reynolds became the bride of Donald Robert Outred, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Outred of Belleville at the Frankford United Church. Rev. John Wense conducted the ceremony and Mrs. Sybes provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her step father, the bride wore a floor length, empire style gown of imported crystal crepe with a wedding band collar, blouson sleeves and a chapel train. Her headpiece was composed of a large rose and miniature trumpet flowers and she had a chapel length veil. She carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies and mauve 'mums.

The bride was attended by Mona Reynolds who wore a floor - length lace gown with tiny mauve flowers in her hair. She carried mauve and white 'mums.

The best man was Duane Russel of Picton and the ushers were Ken Burkholder and Garry Reynolds.

For the reception held at the Frankford Legion Hall, the bride's mother wore a two piece forest ensemble with a matching headpiece, black accessories and a white rose corsage. The bridegroom's mother's two - piece suit was of deep beige forest. An orange hat, brown accessories and a corsage of orange roses completed her costume.

IODE St. Julien Chapter Meet October 5

St. Julien Chapter, IODE met at the Kiwanis Centre, October 5 with Mrs. C. Whitemore, Regent, presiding and welcoming guests. Correspondence included an invitation from Campbellford Chapter to an afternoon tea and a bridge and euchre at Stirling, October 29.

Members are invited to attend the 60th anniversary of Argyll Chapter on October 17, when Mrs. B. Bruce Crake, provincial president, will be guest speaker.

Mrs. R. Ellis, educational secretary, reported the presentation of the A. E. McCall Bursary of $100 to Miss Lorraine Burtt, a graduate of Moira Secondary School. The Grade 13 Bursary is to be presented to Jim Carter, Centennial Secondary School, on October 17.

Mrs. M. Kerr, secretary of Services at Home and Abroad, states the shipment for Fox Nursing Home is in the process of being packed. A committee was accepted to sponsor a variety tea early in December.

This concluded the meeting, at which time Mrs. Whitemore introduced Mr. Phil Flagler, of CJBQ Radio. He presented a film of 50 years of radio service, 1919-1969, which showed familiar faces and sounds, from Lindberg's flight to Armstrong's famous step on the moon and from the great Al Jolson to the hard rock Beatles.

In Mr. Flagler's summary and questionaire, he stated the most music began when Elvis Presley was most popular and possibly this type of music would be heard for another 15 years.

Mrs. Ellis thanked the speaker for his presentation and information.

Women's Institutes

CARMEL W. I.

The September meeting of Carmel W.I. was opened by the president Mrs. George Graham who welcomed 15 members and one visitor.

Business was conducted in the usual manner. Mrs. Harold Elliott, assistant director reported on a district tea which was held on Sept. 29. Mrs. J. Jessop 4-H leader reported a large class of girls working with wool.

Mrs. J. Lucas introduced Mrs. Fred Sharpe, district president and guest speaker who spoke on public relations. She pointed out several ideas on how all might work together to better ourselves and the community.

Mrs. Willman said personal freedom and responsibility go hand in hand. Much depends on the effort put into it. The speaker was presented a gift in appreciation by Mrs. Whitmore.

First Woman Prisoner Caused Stir in 1835

OTTAWA (CP) — Susan T —of Hamilton, a tall woman of 32 with brown hair and light grey eyes, threw the authorities of the newly opened Kingston penitentiary into great confusion when she unexpectedly arrived there in August, 1835.

She was the first woman sentenced to a Canadian penitentiary.

Susan, who would serve one year for theft, was soon joined by two other female prisoners and the harried warden hired a matron who saw that they mended bedding and clothing.

The presence of these women caused penitentiary inspectors to comment, shyly in their report that November: "It is to be observed that the sentencing of females to the penitentiary causes some inconvenience."

Prof. J. Alex Edmison of the University of Ottawa's criminology department, who told this story, said that to call the penitentiary was opened there probably has never been a greater understatement.

In 1849, a commission headed by George Brown of the old Toronto Globe made a damning report on the penitentiary, uncovering many cases of "revolting inhumanity" and declaring the practice of flogging women "utterly indefensible."

The "women" in this case included 14-year-old girl who was flogged five times in three months and a 12-year-old girl, lashed on six occasions.

Beginning in 1910, when there were 34, women at Kingston were incarcerated in a separate ward which now is the north wing of the men's prison.

It was used until Jan. 24, 1934, when the women were transferred to the present women's prison, which can accommodate about 150 prisoners although today there are only 70.

Meanwhile, for almost a decade Angnes Macphail, who in 1921 had become Canada's first woman member of Parliament, had been fighting for penal reform.

She urged the introduction of a productive work program for penitentiaries, received patronage in the hiring of prison officials and tried to drum home the need for a more constructive approach to the whole prison problem.

Despite unbelievable difficulties, her verbal pounding did much to pave the way for the appointment of a royal commission to investigate the penal system of Canada. Announced in 1936, it was under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice Joseph Archambault of the Quebec Superior Court.

Two years later, only four years after the women's prison had been occupied, the Archambault commission recommended that the practice of bringing women there from all parts of Canada be discontinued and that women offenders be confined in their home provinces.

A similar recommendation was made in 1969 by the Canadian committee on corrections headed by Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet, also of the Quebec Superior Court.

It asked that arrangements for purchase of prison services for women be made between the federal government and the provinces so that a unified service could be provided in each area.

Because of the disparity in provincial penal services, the Ouimet committee said that the federal government should buy services from larger provinces and provide regional services that could be bought by smaller provinces.

It also suggested that the federal government appoint a woman officer "to the position of senior responsibility and leadership in relation to correctional treatment of the woman offender in Canada."

Although many persons concerned with problems facing women offenders endorse this approach, today, as in the past, women with sentences of two years or more are under the jurisdiction of the federal government and most are still sent to the Kingston Prison for Women.

However, since 1966, a number of women drug addicts have been sent to an institution at Matsqui, B.C.

Also, the federal government has an arrangement with Newfoundland dating back to 1949 when the province joined Confederation that permits use of provincial facilities for women convicted of crimes under the federal Jurisdiction.

Tomorrow: Conflict among prison authorities.

SISTER MARY MAGDALENE

Ex-Belleville Girl Retires After 50 Years of Nursing

After a lifetime of devoted service to the sick and the suffering Sister Mary Magdalene, a native Bellevillian recently retired from Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Catharines. Prior to her retirement she was honored at a dinner party in St. Catharines.

Born in Escanaba, Michigan in 1896, she came to Belleville in 1912. She worked in Woolworth's and took a course at the Ontario Business College, Belleville before she entered the sisterhood in 1918. It was the rule of her order that everyone train to be a nurse, so she took her nurse's training at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. Since then she has worked in hospitals in Wisconsin, Montana, Kingston and St. Catharines.

She has done all kinds of hospital work ranging from the operating room to obstetrics. Every day she used to visit all the patients in the hospital and she took a deep personal interest in each. This has not been easy in recent years because badly crippled by arthritis, she has had to do her work in a wheelchair.

Sister Mary Magdalene is now living in St. Joseph's Provincial House, Amherstview.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Larry J. Reid (nee Irene-Evelyn Scott) was honored at a linen shower held by Mrs. Dorothy Nolan with hostesses Miss Glenys Marks and Miss Pat Hart; at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Margaret Whaley and Mrs. Chris Humphreys and at a community miscellaneous shower in Point Anne.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY JAMES REID

Reid – Scott

Eastminster United Church was the setting for the recent marriage of Irene Evelyn Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Scott, Foslin RR 1 to Larry James Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Reid, Sault Ste Marie, Ontario. Rev. A. McDowell officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Russ McGugan who also accompanied the soloist Bob Burke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of moss crepe with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and a fitted bodice slightly gathered at the sides: French lace trimmed the neckline, skirt and the cathedral train of tulle extending from a wedding ring headdress accented with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow miniature carnations and peach sweetheart roses. Mrs. Fern Juby as matron of honor attended her sister wearing a sleeveless gown of coral with the high waist accented with matching velvet ribbon. She wore a petal headdress and carried a semi-cascade of white pom 'mums with peach mallive.

The bridesmaids Miss Susan Wannamaker, cousin of the bride, Miss Pat Reid, sister of the bridegroom Miss Pat Hart and Mrs. Penny Hart were attired identically to the matron of honor, Miss Cathy Juby, niece of the bride as flower girl wore a gown of green and coral embossed full sleeves and carried a white basket of white pom mums, and peach mallive.

Jim Kaiser of Peterborough was groomsman and the ushers were Thomas Whiley and Scott Reid, both cousins of the bridegroom, Wayne Hayes and Jack Scott, brother of the bride, Ring-bearer was Chris Humphreys, cousin of the bridegroom.

For the reception at the AN and AP Hall the bride's dress and coat ensemble with gold accessories and a corsage of Woburn Abbey roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a shocking pink sleeveless coat over matching full sleeve dress with navy accessories and a corsage of white miniature carnations.

The couple will reside at 215 Meadow Park Crescent Apt. 1, Sault Ste Marie, Ontario.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH A.C.W.

A regular business meeting of Christ Church A.C.W., Thanksgiving branch, was held October 5.

Eighteen members and one visitor were present. A letter from Mrs. Gwen Brain was read. She is forming a new group called the Friendly Visitors, who will visit and help Senior Citizens who are shut-in. Mrs. H. Rose said that she had already volunteered and that they were looking for three women from each church to do this much - needed service.

Mrs. Stephens, president, reported that she had received offers fro mthree women to donate the sandwiches required for the Hastings Manor bazaar. Donations to the bake table would also be appreciated.

The next meeting will be October 19, at Mrs. Jean Kilburn's apartment on Bridge St. West. Mrs. D. Logan of the Cancer Society reported several needs, so these were prepared.

A social half - hour was enjoyed by the members.

Ann Landers

Lack of Experience Not Always the Fault

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you know what happens when two virgins marry? Well, I can tell you from experience. Nothing.

I was brought up in a very strict, highly religious atmosphere. I was sure my parents had adopted me because sex between them didn't seem possible. I was taught to suppress all sexual urges because they were "the devil's work." When I had normal feelings of desire I became so ashamed of myself I would get physically ill.

Naturally I married a young man whose family was friendly with my family — a perfect gentleman, impeccable morals, every mother's dream. Of course he had as much sex experience as I — that is to say, none. Our honeymoon was a nightmare of frustration, disappointment and tears. There should be a law against two dumbbells like us getting married.

Now, eight years and one child later, I feel absolutely nothing. My husband is impotent half the time and when he isn't, I'm frigid. So much for our story. I hope from now on you won't put such a high priority on virginity. If at least one of us had had some experience, we wouldn't be so messed up today. — PULSE ZERO.

DEAR ZERO: Sexual experience before marriage would not have helped you or your husband. It's not what you two did not know about sex that loused you up, but how you felt about it.

Your description of parental influence, the feelings of guilt and shame — everything adds up to conflicts that would make a healthy sexual relationship impossible. When children are brought up to believe that sex is sinful and dirty, a few words by a clergyman will not magically transform the same act into something beautiful.

You and your husband should have sought counseling before your marriage. You both knew what you didn't know and it would have made a great deal of sense to learn together. I assume from your letter that you and your husband are in your early 30's. This is certainly not too late to discover joy and fulfillment of physical love in marriage.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm furious with that nitwit who wrote, "I have two children under two years of age and am expecting a third any minute. It's people like her who are making this earth uninhabitable for people like you and me. She goes on to complain because her husband doesn't help her with the housework and she can't afford to pay anyone to come in. The kid thickens as she drops this little gem: "I used to hold a part-time job but my pregnancies have made it impossible for me to work these past three years." And then her final whimper, "We can't make it on one paycheque." If they can't make it — what are they doing with three kids in three years?

We hear a lot of talk about pollution these days. Everyone is screaming at General Motors and Commonwealth Edison. But the principal polluters are people. We must keep the size of families down or we are all doomed. How some you didn't think of this when you answered her? It was such a beautiful opportunity to strike a blow for Z.P.G. (Zero Population Growth). Shame on you for this monumental goof. — ABERDEEN, S.D.

DEAR AB: I can afford to goof occasionally because sharp-eyed readers like you are doing things I don't see, and they let me know. Thank you very much.

Successful Living

You Can Make Wishes Come True

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Claude Bristol said, and I have always worked on this assumption, "What you picture in your mind, if you picture it clearly and confidently and persistently enough, will eventually come to pass in your life."

This I think is synonymous with casting one's bread upon the waters. If you cast out cake, that's what you get back. If you cast out poisoned bread, heaven help you! — Shirley May.

Dear Shirley: I don't quite see them as being synonymous, but there is a connection. And they are both wonderful ideas.

Remember my paragraph about "Wishes are Horses"? General idea is that if you really believe in your wish ("picture it in your mind") and work toward it, you can make it. Whether everybody always manages whatever it was they dreamed of is in considerable question but it is a way to work and a way to live.

Casting one's bread (not poisoned type!) on the waters is also a tremendous thought, but I see it as being an offering of one's best, usually toward another person or a cause outside oneself. How about that?

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter works in a city a long way from home. She had a baby out of wedlock over a year ago and I helped her through it all.

I found that the father of her baby was a married man who said he didn't love his wife but that he liked her and apparently had no intention of divorcing her and marrying my daughter.

Anyway she made me promise not to tell her Dad or her sister. She gave the baby up and said she wanted no part of it.

What worries me is whether I should have told my husband. He laughs at other girls who get into trouble like that and it nearly kills me.

Do you think I should tell him? Do you think I should talk to her about it all? She is not as happy a girl as she used to be and I am wondering if I were to talk to her would it make her worse or do her some good? — Can't Get Over It.

Dear Can't: You kept mum over the worst part of it! Why unload to your husband now?

If your daughter can bury the past, let her do it. The time may come when she wants to unload to you. Time is a great healer, and if you show confidence in her she may discover that her life is not ruined after all.

* * *

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Tess: "Why did you take my good sweater? How do you know I wouldn't mind?"

Jan: "I always let you wear my clothes whenever you want to. Why do you have to be so selfish?"

Children must learn it's not right to help themselves to the possessions of others. Even though a child knows permission will be granted, she should be required to ask for that permission.

Mother: "I know you don't mind if Tess helps herself to your clothes, but most people like to be asked before someone takes their things. You must not take her clothes without permission."

Non - Recruits

CHICAGO (AP) — The Women's Liberation movement will find few prospects for recruits among the wives of successful business executives and professional men. A survey conducted by a management consulting firm and the Centre for Urban Affairs, Northwestern University, shows the wife of a successful executive or professional person is typically happy in her marriage and is less interested in his getting raises than she is about his possible overwork or overstress. She does not feel that, as a woman, she has been handicapped in life.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Make Your Own Cucumber Relish

By MARY MOORE

Before the frost is on the cucumbers this relish will be real cheap to make. After the frost you can make this too — in fact any time during the winter — but if you map into it now you can make ten 8-oz. jars of relish for a fraction of their store cost.

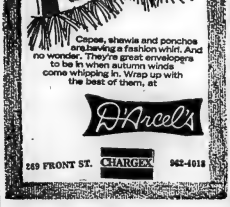
Bernice is my neighbor's sister's neighbor. I tampered slightly with her relish recipe.

BERNICE'S DELICIOUS RELISH

Good for hot dogs and hamburgers. Ideal for ham and in ham sandwiches.

8 large (9") cucumbers (9½ cups when pared and ground)
8 med. onions (3 cups when peeled and ground)
2 large or 2 small sweet red peppers (or one 4-oz. can pimientoes when red peppers are out of season)
¼ cup salt
2½ cups vinegar
¾ cup water
1 tsp. celery seed
½ cup plus 2 tbsps. flour
2½ cups sugar
1 tsp. turmeric
3 tbsps. dry mustard
1 tbsp. dry ginger

NOTE: If you do not want cucumber seeds in your relish cut out seed portion but increase number of cucumbers.



Wash, pare and quarter lengthwise the cucumbers and put through coarse knife of food grinder (9½ cups). Wash, peel and quarter onions and put through grinder (3 cups). In enamel or porcelain container mix ground vegetables, sprinkle with salt and stir in, let stand overnight. In morning drain through large sieve or colander lined with J Cloths or cheesecloth until well drained.

Put together gently vinegar, water and celery seeds. Mix together dry the flour, sugar, turmeric, mustard and ginger and when thoroughly mixed, stir in smoothly 1 cup of the hot vinegar mixture. Stir this into the remaining hot vinegar mixture until thick. Add drained vegetables and cook stirring all the time for 5 min. after boiling starts. Pour into sterilized jars, cover with clean, hot paraffin, put on sterilized lids, wash, cool and label. I had ten 8-oz. jars.

The annual Quinte Gem and Mineral Club Rock and Mineral Show is now over, but n4 before rockhounds from as far south as North Carolina were able to demonstrate their wares at the Quinte Carling Club Saturday.

It was the fourth year for the show which joined Quinte area rockhounds with their opposite numbers from North Carolina, New York State, Toronto, Ottawa and North Bay.

On hand for the event were dealers and the actual hounds themselves, allowing visitors to the exhibition an opportunity to buy or sell mineral specimens, polished jewellery and equipment for polishing and cutting stones.

It was the fourth show, sponsored by the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club which boasts a 45 - family membership.

First Camp-out Called Success

The first official camp out for the newly - formed area chapter of the National Campers and Hikers Association this weekend was described by association officials as a complete success.

The campout, held at Bleirton Park on Crowe Lake near Marmora, consisted of several events designed to allow the campers to informally get acquainted.

A penny carnival, a get - acquainted evening and square dancing were a few of the events in the campout.

Following a church service Sunday, the campers held their inaugural meeting, electing officers.

Other weekend events included a trip to Marmoraton Mines and several get - togethers over meals.

Your Workmen's Compensation Board. Protection is our job.

We help in many ways

Accident prevention The Accident Prevention Associations of Ontario work with management and labour to reduce the hazards of the work environment, and to establish safe work habits through safety education.

Medical expenses However long he may require it, a worker is entitled to all the necessary medical care relating to his injury.

Compensation If a man is off work because of a job accident, we send him a tax-free compensation cheque every two weeks.

Vocational rehabilitation If a worker requires rehabilitation services, including job retraining, before he can return to work, we will provide them. There is no limit to the amount of time and money we are able to spend to help a man get back on the job.

Help us to help you

We give every claim the same fast, fair and thorough attention. But to give everyone all the help they are entitled to in time of trouble, we need the co-operation of many people.

We need a prompt report of every accident We can act on a report from the injured man, from his employer, or from his doctor. From the day we hear of the accident, we can put the first compensation cheque in the applicant's hands in five days.

The disabled worker needs your goodwill Whether you're an employer or a fellow worker, give him a chance to show what he can do. It's a man's abilities that count, not his disabilities.

Prevention is better than compensation Most important of all, we need everybody to join us in our effort to reduce on-the-job accidents. Accident hazards will always exist; the way to avoid them is to work defensively.

Our job

Our job is to see that you get all the benefits of the Workmen's Compensation Act. This Act is financed by assessments on employers, and offers protection in the case of on-the-job accidents to more than two million men and women working in Ontario.

Scorer Could 'Trigger' Fairways After Weekend Split

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Anyone packing a low-slung Sampler 6 with a penchant for shooting on enemy goaltenders can apply for immediate employment with the Belleville Fairways of the Eastern Junior B League.

The Fairways need a trigger man. In fact of a top goalscorer or two are all they do need to convert a good hockey team into a very good one.

In their first two exhibition games this weekend the Belleville team downed Trenton 6-4 Sunday and lost a close 4-3 decision to the defending league champion Kingston Frontenacs the next night.

"I'm pretty pleased", confided coach Floyd Crawford after Monday's loss. "I think we've got the makings of a good club.

From the blueline back the Fairways are a solid hockey team. If someone can take the scoring best off Danny Lupenette, the club's only holdover up front, Belleville will have a good shot at finishing near the top.

A total of 28 players saw action in the weekend encounters as Crawford attempted to sort out his starting lineup.

If Sunday's exhibition opener were a boxing match, (and in the world of junior hockey such an analogy isn't that far-fetched), it could be considered a classic battle between the slugging Trenton Golden Hawks and the quicker, counter-punching Belleville Fairways.

While a combination of hard-hitting by the Golden Hawks and a lack of conditioning combined to slow down the Belleville club in the third period, the Fairways had piled up enough points to hold onto a 6-4 decision.

Trenton, which drew 17 of the game's 32 penalties were in trouble right at the start, picking up a pair of minors in the first minute of play. The Fairways responded by firing power play goals by John Mulvihill and newcomer Rod Palmer.

The Golden Hawks picked up considerably in the later stages of the period, however, outshooting their rivals 12-6, but were unable to put the puck past Ron Jury.

Much of the credit for the Belleville win must go to their defence which, until play degenerated to a series of individual skirmishes in the final frame, came up with a solid effort clearing rebounds and keeping most Trenton shots at long range.

John Mulvihill and midget graduate Peter Ackerman were the most effective two-some, playing a smooth, well balanced game on the Fairways blueline. Kevin Dockrill, playing with a broken hand, and Ed. Christopher were solid behind their own blueline, handing out some stiff checks, while newcomers Wally Dalnard and Tim Yohn also gave highly creditable performances.

Near the 12-minute mark, Howard had another excellent chance, but Jury was able to flash a right pad in front of the shot, after the winger was left completely uncovered in front of the Belleville net. The breaks evened out for Howard, on the next rush, when his wrist shot from an almost impossible angle hit Jury's stick and bounced into the net to tie the game at 2-2.

From that point on the Fairways completely dominated play in the middle frame, pumping 21 shots on a beleaguered Steve McDonald.

Mulvihill gave his team the lead at 13.20 finishing off a pretty passing play with Danny Lupenette and Dave Smith for his second goal of the game, with Trenton two men short.

Lupenette collected what proved to be the winning goal, low minutes later, whizzing around the Hawks defence to beat McDonald on his stick side. The little centre gave a brilliant display of playmaking, supposedly his weak point, assisting on two goals and setting up his teammates for several missed scoring chances during the course of the game.

John Mulvihill had an excellent scoring night, as well as playing sound defence in which he proved more aggressive than last year, collecting two goals and two assists.

For Trenton, Peter Ulman played a strong, hard-nosed game that blended well with the Golden Hawk's physical style of play, Howard was the major scoring threat and along with linemates Chris Long and Mark Woodward seemed to be the only three-some capable of maintaining any steady offensive pressure for the losers.

Behind the blueline newcomer Rick Wright, a Stirling product, showed some rough edges but at the same time gave a blue chip checking job, particularly in the middle frame when he levelled the Fairways' Dave Smith and Ed. Christopher.

Gerry Jowett, Steve McDonald and Peter Pettingill split the Trenton netminding chores, with Pettingill looking particularly sharp. The trio handled 36 shots, one less than Belleville.

Bob Moore took over from Jury in the third period, and after failing to out down the angle on Barker's goal to his far side, stopped no less than three Trenton breakaways.

KINGSTON — You wouldn't expect a hockey team that had only one week of practice to perform wonders in their second game in as many nights, particularly on a king-sized Kingston ice surface.

The Fairways lived up to all expectations in their 4-3 Monday loss to the Frontenacs — they didn't perform wonders. In fact the only really bright spot in a rather lacklustre game was the outstanding performances by Ron Jury and Arnie Isread in the Belleville goal.

Still, Crawford was far from displeased with the one-goal loss. "It's not bad for this early in the season and playing down here (Kingston)", he admitted.

Jury was easily the individual star of the game turning aside 22 of the 34 shots he faced in the first two periods many of them from point-blank range as the big, tough league champions had a wide margin of play.

Kingston squared matters in the second period on a screened drive by Barry Sands, but were unable to jam any more of the 17 shots past Jury.

The Belleville netminder could be credited with a big "assist" on the third Fairway score in the last minute of the middle frame.

Frontenac forward Don Higgins banged what appeared to be his team's third goal on it", said Jury after the game. Centre Danny Lupenette picked up the, rebound and scooted through a stunned Kingston team before passing to John Mulvihill for the insurance goal.

Some first rate, albeit unorthodox netminding by Arnie Isread wasn't enough to hold Kingston in the third period as Don Higgins and Tom Neemish counted to give their team the win. Isread often appeared to spend more time on the ice than he did on his skates, but still managed to turn aside 12 of the 20 shots he faced in the first two periods many of them from point-blank range as the big, tough league champions had a wide margin of play.

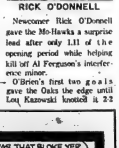
Out of Reach

Belleville Fairways defenceman John Mulvihill wards off Chris Long of the Trenton Golden Hawks in the opening exhibition game for both Eastern Ontario Junior B clubs Sunday. Keeping a watchful eye on the proceedings are Peter Ackerman and Ron Jury. Mulvihill figured heavily in Belleville's 6-4 win counting two goals and adding a pair of assists.

Obie's Penalty-shot Goal Leads to Mo-Hawk Deflation



OAKVILLE (Special) — For 69 minutes here Sunday night, it looked like Belleville's Mo-Hawks might have found the key to getting a point or two out of Oakville Oaks.

But a penalty shot goal by defending OHA Senior A scoring champion Jim "Obie" O'Brien at 9.01 of the third period broke up a 2-2 deadlock and sent the Oaks on their way to a 4-3 win.

"We still need someone to put the puck in the net," fumed Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones. "We had four or five two-on-ones when the score was tied in the second period and Greg Marchen hit the post on a one-on breakaway."

O'Brien's goal, his third of the game, came courtesy referee Bill Brethauer after Mo-Hawk defencemen Greg Marchen dragged the lefty centre down from behind.

To that point, the Mo-Hawks had been on an even footing with the Oaks, whom they could not so much as tie in four meetings last season.

RICK O'DONNELL

Newcomer Rick O'Donnell gave the Mo-Hawks a surprise lead after only 1.11 of the opening period while helping kill off Al Ferguson's interference minor.

O'Brien's first two goals gave the Oaks the edge until Lou Kazowski knotted it 2-2 on another short-handed goal, this time with Bob Wilson sitting out a two-minute minor at 7.11 of the second period.

O'Brien's penalty - shot goal midway through the third deflated the Mo-Hawks and Galt recruit Mike Corbett pumped the fourth Oakville goal past Bob Mogo 44 seconds later with Ralph Plane in the penalty box.

Dick Smith added salt to the Belleville wounds with a short-handed goal at 13.47 and Charlie Cipolla made it 6-2 in the game's final minute.

The Oaks only held a 31-28 shooting edge until the final 20 minutes, when they blasted 21 shots at Bob Moon while the Mo-Hawks were only credited with two at Ludger Doucet.

Jones went with the same Mo-Hawk lineup that beat Owen Sound 2-1 in Friday night's wee - wee - hours win, although he did some line-shuffling.

"Nobody played well for us the third," said Jones. "Some of the fellows are still trying to get into shape. Don't forget, we've only been on the ice about nine days."

Jones' remedy for that is simple — more ice time.

The club had a two-hour workout Monday night at the Memorial Arena. They did the same Saturday night between Friday's win over Owen Sound and Sunday's loss in Oakville.

Billy Armour, a 27-point performer in 29 games last season, signed with the Mo-Hawks after Monday night's workout.

"We're going to be stronger this year," Jones sized up. "At times last year, we were afraid to dress a third line out."

Preparations for a weekend home - and - home Friday-Saturday series with Galt Hornets will take the form of two - hour workouts tonight and Wednesday at the Memorial Arena.

Introducing a revolutionary new small car.

The 1971 Super Beetle.

What makes it revolutionary is the way it looks inside, not so much the way it looks outside.

It'll carry twice as much as last year's Beetle because it has a trunk virtually twice as big.

It has a peppy 1600 c.c. engine. A whole new suspension system designed by Porsche racing engineers. A new flow through ventilation system.

The brakes are bigger. The front track is wider. We have an electric rear window defogger. A shorter turning radius than a larger gas tank.

And the inside, quite frankly, has not a clue.

It's fully carpeted. The dashboard is more dashing. There are 7 fresh air outlets.

All in all, the Super Beetle is 89 ways different than the Beetle of old. And over 60,000 ways different from the first Beetle we made.

But in one very important and unique way, it remains the same.

For in 1971, a year in which everybody is feverishly slapping together "revolutionary" new small cars, the noise on the back of this one reads "Volkswagen".

Blues After Encore As Western Champions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It may be early in the season but St. Louis Blues are giving every indication that they again plan to be the West Division representatives in Stanley Cup play next spring.

The Blues have represented the West in Stanley Cup competition since the National Hockey League expanded to 12 teams for the 1967-68 season.

Victories in their first two starts this season, 4-1 over Vancouver Canucks Monday and 3-1 over New York Rangers Saturday, have given the Blues four points—best in the West and in the East.

But the season's young, and St. Louis, runaway winners of the West Division for the last two seasons, will face stiff competition this year from Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks, who last season edged Boston Bruins for the East Division championship, moved into the West Division this season to make room for Vancouver and Buffalo Sabres the NHL's two rookie clubs.

The Hawks have played only one game so far, dumping Oakland Seals 5-1 Sunday.

In St. Louis Monday, Gary Sabourin scored the first two of the three third-period St. Louis goals that sank Vancouver.

The Blues took a 1-0 first-period lead but the Canucks tied it in the first minute of the final period on Orland Kurtenbach's second goal of the season.

Kurtenbach scored Sunday when the Canucks upset Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 in Vancouver.

In action Sunday, Montreal Canadiens edged Philadelphia Flyers 2-1 and Boston Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions, defeated Detroit Red Wings 7-3.

Detroit downed Oakland 5-3 Saturday, Buffalo beat Pittsburgh Penguins 2-1 and Philadelphia edged Minnesota North Stars 3-1.

Montreal's win Sunday was without the services of winger John Ferguson, who announced his retirement last week, and centre Ralph Backstrom, who said he has quit the sport.

Backstrom failed to show for Saturday's flight to Philadelphia and telephoned team captain Jean Beliveau later that afternoon to advise him of his decision.

Backstrom said he originally thought he would play five or six games but then thought "why even bother starting."

"I have a few things I'm interested in," said Backstrom, "and a couple of interesting offers in the brokerage business."

Frank Mahovlich, Detroit Red Wings' veteran left winger, will miss tonight's game against the Canadiens in Montreal.

Mahovlich suffered a bruised knee at Boston Sunday when he collided with Bruins' all-star defenseman Bobby Orr.

However, Orr and Boston forward Stephen Kraftcheck, who suffered charley horses Sunday, were given medical OKs to accompany Bruins on a road trip to the West Coast for three games this week.

Toronto Maple Leaf supporters could see a lot of this during the coming National Hockey League season. This goal was scored by Montreal Canadiens' Peter Mahovlich on Jacques Plante in a pre-season exhibition game. Teeple Sets Hot Pace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was little doubt of the outcome in a pair of Central Junior Hockey League games Sunday.

Hull Volants beat Smiths Falls Bears 7-3 while Brockville Braves clipped Pembroke Lumber Kings 6-4 in Pembroke.

Jerry Teeple set a hot pace for Brockville with three goals with singles by Kent Budges, Al Shepherd and Al Duncan. Terry Conron, Dave Godin, Dwight Mick and Glen Furgoch scored for Pembroke.

It was a wild affair in Hull where the Volants celebrated their entry into the league. There were 22 penalties, including a match misconduct to John Colburn of Hull.

The Hull scoring was handled by Daniel Marmet, with two goals, and Claude St. Cyr, Richard Hare, Serge Proulx-Bernier, Michael Cahier and Michael Sally. Shawn Howard scored twice for Smiths Falls and Bob Greer once.

Petes Jump to Head of Junior 'A' Class

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes opened up a three-point lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Monday, whipping London Knights 8-2 in a penalty-filled game at Peterborough before 1,853 fans.

Danny Gloor, with two goals, Jim Mahon, John Rutherford and Tom Thompson completed the Peterborough assault.

Referee Bob Kolari called 37 penalties, including 19 minor infractions, four majors and one misconduct to the Knights. London coach Bep Guidolin was ejected from the game early in the third period.

At Oshawa, the Generals earned their first point of the season in three starts, after two losses, as goalkeeper Ted McComb played a strong game.

The Marlboros outshot the Generals 43-19 and McComb rallied from an injury. He was speared in the stomach by Toronto defenceman Steve Durbano.

LONDON (Reuter) — The Canadian-bred colt Nijinsky, who suffered his first defeat in the Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe at Paris earlier this month, is entered in the Champion Stakes at Newmarket, England, Saturday.

Following his Paris defeat, there had been speculation that the Irish-owned colt would be retired to stud.

David McCall, racing manager for Nijinsky's American owner, Charles Engelhard, announced the decision to run the horse in the 10-furlong Newmarket event.

MONTREAL (CP) — Ontario soccer teams swept all seven categories against Quebec in the Canadian Minor Soccer Association's eastern Canadian championships Saturday.

In the under-eight category, Scarborough Sports downed Two Mountains 1-0. Thorold Thunderbirds of Brampton won by the same score over Verdun in the under-16 division.

Chinguacousy of Niagara Falls, Ont. tied Pierrefonds, Que., 1-1 but was awarded the championship in the under-12 category after two extra periods, six corner kicks to two. Toronto teams won the other divisions.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa softball teams completed a four-team sweep over Sault Ste. Marie teams Sunday as Oshawa Bunny's beat Sault Ste. Marie Black Knights 3-2 to win the Ontario Amateur Softball Association intermediate Double A championship. Earlier, Oshawa won the Senior A, Senior B and intermediate Double A titles, all from Sault Ste. Marie teams.

TORONTO (CP) — Reg Hillman of Toronto drove his tunnel-hulled boat to the Canadian sportsman boat championship in the choppy waters of Lake Ontario Saturday. Hillman hit speeds of up to 80 m.p.h. as he edged Ray Fernandes of Mississauga, Ont., and Perre Lavigne of Montreal. A field of 23 competed in three half-hour heats for divisional national championships.

Datsun announces the 1971 economy drive

Nobody wants to give up power, performance and flair to save money on mileage and maintenance. And nobody has to. Datsun 1200 2-door Fastback and Datsun 1200 2-door Sedan are fast, functional, easy to handle and easy to afford. So if you're planning an economy drive — drive one of ours. See them at one of 250 Datsun dealers across Canada.

Datsun 1200 Sedan from $1975*

More space inside than anything in its class. More no-cost extras, too: bucket seats, padded dash, white-walls, locking gas cap and steering lock, front disc brakes, independent strut-type front suspension, telescopic shock-absorbing steering column and unit-body construction. And you get up to 40 miles from a gallon of gas, which is what an economy drive is all about.

Datsun 1200 Fastback from $2170*

Just because you're economizing, you don't have to let everybody know. And if you're driving the Datsun 1200 Fastback, they'll never guess. Look at what you get: 69 hp 5-main-bearing-engine and all the no-cost extras the Sedan carries, plus reclining buckets, carpets and a fold-down back-seat. Datsun 1200: It's not very much money, but it's a whole lot of car.

Reds Need to Battle Back from Lost Weekend

BALTIMORE (AP) — That made-to-order World Series match between Cincinnati Reds' big bats and Baltimore Orioles' big three was two games overdue today as the Reds tried to battle back from a lost weekend.

The Reds, backed against the ropes after 4-3 and 6-5 losses to the streaking Orioles at Cincinnati, sent right-hander Tony Cloninger to the dike in the third game of the best-of-seven series. But the Orioles, riding a 15-game winning streak which has carried over from the regular season, were 5-to-1 favorites to capture the series prize decided then last October by New York Mets.

And the oddmakers made them a 2-to-1 pick to win today behind left-hander Dave McNally, whose 24 victories tops Baltimore's trio of 20-game winners.

No team ever has won the series after losing the first two games at home.

Jim Palmer, who won 20 during the season and another in the Orioles' American League playoff sweep over Minnesota, checked the Reds on five hits in the series opener last Saturday and beat them with last-out relief help from Pete Richert.

And the vaunted power of the Reds failed to ignite in either game after building early leads of 3-0 and 4-0.

Instead, the first two contests showcased the Orioles' unheralded bullpen corps and their matchless third baseman, Brooks Robinson.

Richert saved Palmer's victory with one pitch, stranding the tying run on first base. Then Tom Phoebus, Moe Drabowsky, Marcelino Lopez and Dick Hall combined Sunday to still the Cincinnati thunder for the final 6 2-3 innings.

"Whoever said their relief pitching wasn't very good was reading the wrong scouting report," said the Reds' Pete Rose.

Orioles manager Earl Weaver's relief crew had been singled out as the one possible weak link on a marvelously balanced club which swept to 108 victories in regular-season play, the last 11 of them in succession. On paper, the Baltimore firemen appeared overmatched by their counterparts on the Reds. The Orioles recorded 31 saves during the season, 13 of them by Richert.

Cincinnati's Wayne Granger had 35 himself; team-mate Clay Carroll added 16 and youngsters Don Gullett and Milt Wilcox were compared favorably with the Orioles' veterans despite their inexperience.

But Wilcox was hit hard during a decisive five-run Baltimore burst in the fifth inning of Sunday's game. And Granger hadn't thrown a pitch going into today's game.

"Our bullpen is underestimated," said Orioles slugger Frank Robinson. "They only had 31 saves, but our starters had 80 complete games."

Reds manager Sparky Anderson had another theory about his club's failure to mount a sustained attack thus far. "It's because of Robinson," he said. "Brooks has beaten us in two ball games by himself.

"If you follows voting for that car they give the series hero went my advice, you might as well give him the keys. Right now, he's in the driver's seat."

Brooks Robinson made a sensational play deep behind the bag in the opener and then hit the tie-breaking home run. In the second game, he came up with three more defensive gems.

Cloninger Awarded Start, Scoffs at Series' Pressure

"What pressure can there be after you face the prospect of going blind?" asked Cloninger Monday before joining a Cincinnati Reds' workout for today's third game of the 1970 World Series.

Cloninger recalled the day in 1967 when an eye specialist in Philadelphia told him: "I don't want to scare you but you may lose sight in your left eye."

Cloninger said he went to his hospital room, placed a patch over his left eye and tried to see if he could pitch with one eye.

The 30-year-old Cloninger, a 10-year major league veteran, has been selected by Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson to pitch the third game of the series against Baltimore Orioles who lead the series 2-0.

"I've always been able to meet a challenge," said Cloninger.

"I've faced a life time of challenges," said the right-hander who won 24 games for Atlanta Braves from 1964 through 1966. "I've been trying to come back for four years."

Cloninger told now, with the help of medication, he gradually improved the sight in his left eye. The eye disease flared twice, but now it has been checked.

Conigliaro Hurt By Trade to Angels

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Outfielder Tony Conigliaro said Monday he was surprised and hurt at Boston Red Sox' decision to trade him to California Angels.

"It was a good shock," the sometimes temperamental player said of Sunday's American League baseball trade. "I never thought it would be me."

Conigliaro said he didn't understand Red Sox Manager Dick O'Connell's statement that Tony and his younger brother, Billy, "are better off separated" and together were a liability.

"My brother and I are very close," the 25-year-old Conigliaro said, visibly irritated. "I really and honestly don't know what he means by a liability. Honest to God, I don't know what he's talking about.

Conigliaro goes to the Angels as part of a deal that sent relief specialist Ken Tatum, Doug Griffin, a young second-base prospect, and outfielder Jarvis Tatum to Boston. Besides Conigliaro, the Angels got catcher Gerry Moses and pitcher Ray Jarvis.

Packers Rely on Old Pros to Run Up Third Straight Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Green Bay's Packers still must go with the old pros in their bid for resurgence into National Football League prominence.

As they won their third straight at the expense of a plucky but winless San Diego Charger club Monday night, 22-20, the Packers could thank 33-year-old Willie Wood and 34-year-old Bart Starr.

"The way I feel now, I could play another 10 years," Wood said after intercepting a pass from Marty Domres at the Chargers' 24 and running it back to the 13.

That defensive gem set up a 14-yard field goal by Dale Livingston, his third three-pointer of the night, and the one that provided the victory.

After a 6-6 first half that saw four field goals, the Packers surged back in the third quarter, scoring on Starr passes of 8 and 7 yards to Jack Clancy and two yards to John Hilton.

Tight end Willie Frazier raced for the touchdown on a reverse, virtually the same play that had set up an earlier field goal.

About that time Bengston was asking Starr if he could throw.

"When he said he could, I put him back in," explained the coach.

Livingston's other field goals were from 16 and 27 yards as the first half that ended 6-6 as Mike Mercer was accurate from 16 and 23.

What provided the Chargers' their short-lived one-point advantage was a Livingston point-after-touchdown try blocked by Tom Williams.

San Francisco 49ers shut the Golden Gates on Los Angeles and shattered the unbeaten Rams 20-6 Sunday while Sonny Jurgensen's arm suddenly came alive with three touchdown pitches that gave Washington Redskins a 31-10 stunner over the favored Detroit Lions in the National Football League.

The two upsets, plus Oakland Raiders 32-25 victory over Denver Broncos, handed the last of the unbeaten their first losses of the year.

Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Giants won their first games. Pittsburgh buffaloed Buffalo Bills 23-10 for the Steelers' first victory in 16 games and New York spanked Philadelphia Eagles 30-23 in a battle of NFL cellar clubs.

Elsewhere, Kansas City Chiefs ambushed Boston Patriots 23-17; Cleveland Browns turned back Cincinnati Bengals 30-27; St. Louis Cardinals whipped New Orleans Saints 24-17; Dallas clubbed Atlanta Falcons 13-6; Minnesota Vikings blasted Chicago Bears 24-0 and Baltimore Colts spilled Houston Oilers 24-20.

San Francisco's bullish defenders gave Los Angeles quarterback Roman Gabriel a troublesome afternoon, dumping him three times.

"I didn't have much time to throw," said Gabriel, a usually accurate passer. "But let's face it . . . Brodie (John) was complaining a lot passes and I was."

Jurgensen complained about the pain in his arm after his fine afternoon of 14 completed passes in 20 attempts for 225 yards.

Quarterback Bill Nelsen returned to the lineup following an injury and Cleveland to a fourth-quarter touchdown over the fired-up Bengals, a big underdog.

Alan Page, a 265-pound defensive tiger, set up the Vikings with a recovered fumble for one score and Gary Cuozzo turned Chicago with a 17-for-31 passing day in the Viking victory, which proved costly for Chicago. The Bears' running ace, Gale Sayers, suffered leg injuries and may be lost for the season.

Baltimore Colts lost a 10-point lead then came back on a 31-yard touchdown pass by veteran Johnny Unitas with 46 seconds left in the victory over Houston Oilers.

Daryle Lamonica threw four touchdown passes—three to Warren Wells as Oakland punctured Denver's early-season glory dreams. The Broncos, an NFL doormat for years, were off to their best start with a 3-0 record before Sunday's setback.

The Raiders won their first game of the 1970 season with a rapid-fire offence that piled up 32 points in the second half.

Gene Mingo rifled a 49-yard field goal, threw a third-quarter tie and Preston Pearson scored from the two in the Decision Imminent

Tokyo Reports Canada to Recognize Peping

Newspapers in Japan and government officials in Formosa said today Canadian recognition of Communist China is imminent but there was no authoritative word from Ottawa or Peking.

In Stockholm, where Canadian and Chinese officials have been negotiating on mutual diplomatic recognition for months, there was no confirmation of the reports that an announcement was expected in 24 hours.

Both Canadian Ambassador Margaret Meagher and a spokesman for the Chinese embassy told reporters "at this stage we have nothing to say."

They also refused comment on the date of the last meeting. The talks, which began in May last year and have alternated between the two embassies, have been held in total secrecy.

Six months ago, Stockholm newspapers reported "feverish" Soviet activity in diplomatic circles to discover the state of negotiations. The newspaper said that while the Canadians were keeping the United States in touch with developments, the Chinese were evidently not prepared to let Moscow know what was happening.

Japanese newspapers quoting government sources said Canada would announce the establishment of diplomatic relations with China within 24 hours.

All daily newspapers reported that Japanese government sources obtained information Monday night that Canada and China had reached agreement meeting Oct. 10 in Stockholm on the establishment of diplomatic relations.

The Nationalist Chinese government is fully aware of Canada's "imminent" recognition of Communist China, said Haich Chao Jen, member of the foreign relations committee.

"The government here is fully aware that Canada's recognition of Peking is imminent and it is prepared to take all necessary drastic measures," Hsieh said in Taipei. He would not elaborate further.

He did not say what these measures would be, but observers in Taipei said they would obviously include closing the Nationalist Chinese embassy in Ottawa and recalling the ambassador.

Maoists Organizing Toronto's Chinatown

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Louis Tchang, a Chinese-born Roman Catholic priest, says Chinese communists are increasing their efforts to turn Toronto's Chinatown into a Maoist stronghold.

In a weekend interview, the Toronto priest said narcotics and jade are being smuggled into Toronto and Montreal to finance the Maoist cause.

He said police surveillance of Maoists was not enough to keep Chinese immigrants from becoming prey to Communist agents.

"Chinese restaurant workers are among the most exploited in Toronto," he said. Some immigrants were working 16 hours a day for below minimum wage rates.

"There are the first people to fall for the Maoist propaganda that the capitalistic system has done nothing for the workers," he said.

Albert Wong, 30, a member of the Chinese National League and an insurance salesman, said Maoists were using Mafia-style tactics in getting a hold on Chinese businessmen within the community.

Big Four Mideast Talks Appear to Be Foundering

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The chief UN delegates of the Big Four powers gather today for their 45th session on the Middle East with informed sources pessimistic about the possibilities of future meetings.

The sources said the future of the talks is uncertain as a result of a hardening by Washington in its attitude toward alleged Soviet-Egyptian ceasefire violations.

Today's meeting originally was scheduled for Monday but was postponed. Informed sources said the latest session attended by the ambassadors of Britain, France, the U.S. and Russia could be the last for a long time.

Until now, the four nations have met at intervals of about two weeks, except for longer recesses for special reasons.

The United States last week withdrew from talks at deputy representative level and proposed that no further meetings of that group should take place until Egypt rectifies the alleged movement of Russian missiles into the canal standstill zone.

The move was seen as a demonstration of a new get-tough policy against Russia, which supplied Egypt with the SAM-2 and SAM-3 missiles alleged to have been moved close to the waterway since Aug. 7, when the ceasefire was ordered.

Russia, France and Britain all want the talks to continue at least at the pace that has been set in recent months, and, if possible, much more rapidly.

This means the breakdown or indefinite suspension of the talks to hammer out a settlement would be the result of American action alone.

First Military Guards Fly on U.S. Airplanes

FORT DIX, N.J. (Reuter) — The first 27 military security guards assigned to U.S. commercial aircraft, armed with pistols, took to the skies Monday to thwart hijackers.

The marshals completed five days of special training here under the state and treasury departments, the army and the Federal Aviation Administration.

The training, which goes from marksmanship to the psychology of a hijacker, will continue seven days a week until 880 men complete the program. They will augment about 500 civilian government guards.

The marshals, deputized to arrest suspicious persons, were described as qualified marksmen with experience in military law enforcement.

Helicopter, Hoses Said Anti - Pollution Aid

TORONTO (CP) — A professional engineer and former university professor has come up with what he believes is the solution to the city's air pollution problem.

Peter Wodzianski, 74, a lecturer in geometry and engineering design at the University of Toronto for 14 years until his retirement last year, says the solution lies in the use of helicopters, giant fans and fire hoses.

"Create artificial wind and rain for 15 minutes twice a day and stop all motor traffic for the same period," Mr. Wodzianski advises.

The helicopters could bore holes in inverted layers of warm air that keep polluted air hanging around. Giant fans on tall buildings could whip up winds to blow away the dirty air. Fire hoses could pour water into the air to create "rain" and launder out the filth.

If it is, you can be sure your pharmacist is interested in helping you obtain prescriptions at reasonable cost. Concern about both quality and cost of drugs, and interest in the patient who pays the bill, is the whole theme of the PARCOST program.
A copy of the PARCOST Comparative Drug Index that your Ontario Department of Health has sent to your doctor, is in constant use in pharmacy dispensaries. This authoritative Index of quality drugs enables your doctor and your pharmacist to see at a glance the differences in cost of various manufacturers' drugs of the same formula and strength . . . and to be aware of cost when prescribing or dispensing your prescription.
As the PARCOST program gains more and more support from physicians and pharmacists, the end result will be to lower the average cost of prescriptions in Ontario.
You can help hasten this day by always getting your prescriptions filled at a pharmacy where the PARCOST symbol is displayed.

Nova Scotia Votes Today

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotians voted in a general election today following a campaign that lacked much of the traditional fire of previous political battles in the province.

About 450,000 persons were eligible to vote as polls open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. ADT.

The leaders of both major parties were confident of forming the government after election day.

Premier G. I. Smith, the 61-year-old premier seeking his first personal mandate as government leader, said it was not a case of if he forms the government but when he'll form it.

Jeremy Akerman, leading the New Democratic Party into his first election, said the party had a long uphill fight and two or three seats would be a major victory.

Both the Liberals and Conservatives fielded full slates of 46 candidates each, while the NDP is offering 23.

Mr. Smith ended his campaign with a rally in Bridgewater Saturday night and spent Monday shaking hands with voters in his Colchester riding.

Mr. Regan criss-crossed mainland Nova Scotia by helicopter Saturday before making a short speech in his riding of Halifax Needham. He also spent the day visiting voters in his constituency.

Mr. Akerman, 38, concentrated his campaign in the Cape Breton East riding where he felt he had a better than 50-50 chance of personal election over a veteran PC member.

A victory for the Conservatives would give them an unprecedented fifth straight term and the first personal mandate for Mr. Smith, who succeeded Robert Stanfield as premier after the 1967 election.

The Conservatives broke 23 years of Liberal government in 1956 when Mr. Stanfield led the party to power. The PCs were re-elected in 1960, 1963 and 1967 elections, while the Liberals suffered defeats.

Flyer Flurry Nips Woodstock

Bernie Flyers used a late flurry to pin a win on Ontario Hockey Association Senior A victory Sunday.

The Flyers scored three times in the final five minutes to overtake Woodstock A's and win 4-3 at Woodstock.

In another weekend game, defending league champion Orillia Terriers tripped the Hornets 5-3 Saturday at Galt.

The league leaders scored three times in the second period during a five - minute slashing major penalty to Hornets defenceman Steve Hunt.

Parsons Collect Cups

Last season Parsons Soccer Club was pretty proud of the fact that they were able to walk off with two of the four cups offered for competition in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association.

The 1970 Parson's entry went three and one better however, capturing three of the four trophies contested. The latest addition to the Parson's collection was the Belleville Charity Cup with a history dating back to 1931 when it was won by Badger Tyres".

The win also terminated the game with their defenders continually beating the team, performed Quinte Transport forward line to the punch.

The league will conclude activities with a dance this Friday night at the Canadian Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street. Everyone is welcome.

Shepherd Win Sparks Runners At Ontario Meet

John Shepherd has only one problem with his cross country career — he has no place to go but down. The Belleville runner came up with a winning victory in the bantam age division at the Ontario Cross Country Championships Saturday night in the first race he had ever competed in.

Shepherd startled well back in the field of 50 runners but with half a mile left in the race he caught the leader and opened up a 20 - yard lead to capture the championship.

In Junior Dave Grant came up with a fine showing finish in the 8,000 metres. Paul Cory walked off with a seventh place finish in the juvenile event, while Gerard Farrell and Dennis Tuck finished in the top 30 runners.

Ron Bell, Ron Brown, Dave Thompson and Grant Marlyn all finished in the top 40 of the field of 150 competitors in the nudget division.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

Your birthday today: Revision, intuition lead you through a complex year of unusual opportunity and occasional moments of difficulty. You can meet the challenge by improving your attitudes. Obstacles force you to re-evaluate your ventures and intentions. Spiritual growth is implied in this changes. Today's natives possess great personal charm, the knack of being clutched and entertaining at the same time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today brings more of yester-day's crosscurrents. Continue with patience, let others shout and complain, expect little cooperation. Think through your situation lonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Chronic maladjustments, old problems peak out suddenly, the result of neglect and careless handling. Give time and attention without accepting blame for anything.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Bring your work to a good stopping point. Let well - enough alone where things have reached a reasonable control. Fresh starts should wait until there is more preparation.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Stick to already-started actions. Much can be brought to final perfection with consistent effort. Be alert for the proper time to step on any creative work.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Take the most optimistic course; speak of it as having been achieved although not yet fully noticed. Your working conditions and morale improve as the day winds its complex way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The day should pass in relative calm after the past upheavals. Pick up the pieces, and proceed conservatively. Many concerns will recede with a little thrift now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): At the start you may have to suspend your own plans and go with the group. You can revert to your own schemes later with little resistance, get a good bit achieved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): The less attention you invite to your work the better. Proceed with things you know quite well and get as much done as possible. Check your facts and figures.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Avoid controversy except where you really have a deep, emotional investment. Take new factors into account at once, find a more direct way for getting things done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Concern over personal matters continues to distract you. Patient effort helps bring the situation into balance. Change pace, have fun this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Concede yesterday's errors, even where you are not sure of the nature for it is problems. Avoid starting anything very different from regular routine. Clear the decks by evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): In the early hours do the things that are best done alone. The afternoon favors conferences, reviews. Your powers of concentration come to a peak later in the day.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was down sharply in moderate mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials fell 1.24 to 167.80, golds 0.11 to 172.39, base metals .77 to 98.46 and western oils 1.04 to 138.84.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 760,000 shares compared with 865,000 at the same time Friday.

Weakest sectors were banks, industrial miners, merchandisers, oil refiners and brewers.

Thirteen of the exchange's 17 sub-indexes were down.

Among losing issues, Inco dropped 1¼ to $44¼, Aquitaine, ¾ to $24¼, Royal Trust ¾ to $26¾ and Home A ¾ to $20.

Jefferson Lake dropped ¾ at $10¼, OSP Industries ½ to $7¼, International Utilities ¼ to or $32 and Northgate ¼ to $11¼.

National Pete rose 10 cents to $5.25 and Northern Gil sits cents to 95 cents. Trading in National Pete was halted at the opening for about 30 minutes.

National Pete and Northland say they are participating in drilling a gas well in Utah.

Among other rising issues Kaiser Resources gained ½ to $11¼, Zellers ¾ to $11¼, Sherritt ¼ to $18¾ and Campbs 12 cents to $2.25.

Bermuda Under Strain

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — A member of the opposition party in Bermuda was charged Monday with obstructing justice as the British colony's 300-man police force kept watch to stem violence and fires that have continued for five nights.

Frederick Wade, the public relations officer of the Progressive Labor Party, was one of 15 persons arrested early Sunday when police in Hamilton used tear gas to break up a 75-hour window-smashing spree by some 800 persons.

Wade was held without bail. His trial is expected to start Wednesday.

Leaves for the island colony's police were cancelled in the wake of the disturbances, which have caused an estimated $500,000 in damage.

Early Monday, a Chinese restaurant burst into flames. Police said the fire was of suspicious origin, but declined to say for certain if it had been firebombed. Three firemen were trapped for a time under a collapsed wall, but all escaped serious injury.

Officials have denounced the disturbances, but have expressed puzzlement about their cause.

One theory is that they are the result of attempts to embarrass the government on the eve of the arrival of Prince Charles, who is slated to be in Bermuda Oct. 20 to help celebrate the 350th anniversary of the colony's Parliament.

Bogside Riots Continue

BELFAST (AP) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland said Monday "things are improving in Londonderry" despite weekend riots there between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

He also dismissed as "purely rumors" reports that he would resign soon. Chichester-Clark told reporters he intends to carry on as prime minister until order is restored throughout the province after more than a year of violent clashes between the rival religious communities.

But shortly after he spoke, trouble again flared in the Roman Catholic Bogside district in Londonderry.

Youths hurled gasoline bombs and rocks at a police station and peppered it has with stones. Two persons were arrested.

In the Creggan Housing Estate, another Catholic district, troops fired tear gas at a crowd of about 50 youths who hurled missiles at police and overturned two automobiles. One of the cars was set ablaze.

GM Windows Smashed

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit officials were trying to decide Monday if they can extradite two Windsor men in connection with an early Sunday morning rampage in Detroit in which police estimated about $30,000 worth of windows were smashed.

Windsor police said they have questioned a Detroit Canada worker in connection with the incident and are looking for another.

Detroit police said the two men went on a spree following a night of drinking and smashed more than 100 windows.

General GMotors has offered a $2,500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons responsible for about $11,000 worth of damage to GM alone.

Detroit police said they will request warrants for malicious destruction of property over $100, but there is some doubt if this offence is included in the Canada-United States extradition treaties.

Congress OKs Anti-crime Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent to the White House a tough anti-crime bill designed to curtail campus bombings and shield businesses and unions from an underworld takeover.

The bill gives the FBI authority to investigate bombings at institutions receiving federal aid —including most colleges—and provides the death penalty for fatal bombings.

A person convicted of using money from organized crime to acquire or establish a business engaged in interstate commerce could be fined up to $25,000 and imprisoned up to 20 years.

The bill authorizes an extra 25-year sentence for a person found to be a habitual or professional criminal.

Designated as federal crimes for the first time are large-scale illicit gambling and bribery of local officials in connection with gambling activities.

The measure swept through the Senate after less than 30 minutes' debate. Basically the same bill, without the anti-bombing provisions, passed the Senate last January.

The House of Representatives, reacting to a series of combings in several cities, added the provisions and passed the bill last week.

While no votes against the bill were heard in the Senate, Senator John Sherman Cooper (Rep., Ky.) commented, "After a very brief look, I am sure that some of these provisions will be held unconstitutional."

Cooper referred to provisions dealing with prosecution immunity for witnesses, electronic surveillance and the extra 25-year sentence for those deemed professional criminals.

Area Government -Italian Style

REGGIO CALABRIA (AP) — After three months of riots protesting designation of a smaller city as capital of the new Calabrian region, the angry citizens of Reggio Calabria relaxed a bit today to review the decision.

The government announced the concession Monday night, providing the first break in the tension that has gripped the south Italian city since the government named Catanzaro the regional capital in mid-July.

"It was our first major victory," said a local shopowner.

Two persons have been killed and hundreds injured in this city of 179,000 on the toe of the Italian boot. Barricades block off all roads and railways in the city, and a general strike has cut off ferry traffic across the Strait of Messina to neighboring Sicily.

Catanzaro, 75 miles to the northeast, has only 74,000 people, less than half of the size of Reggio, but the government chose it for its greater historical importance and industrial wealth. Reggio has the lowest per-capita income of any Italian city, and its people want the extra money that the regional government will bring in as well as the prestige.

Despite the government's concession, Reggio could be reached only by air today, and the road from the airport into town was strewn with barricades made of overturned cars, stones, bricks and other construction material.

Reggio has been called a dead city, but it looks very much alive. Thousands of persons crowd its streets in the daytime, talking of the demonstrations and the clashes with police.

The downtown area buzzes with noise, but there is almost no motor traffic. There is a roadblock every hundred yards.

Debris, glass, the charred skeletons of automobiles, furniture and wooden poles clutter the streets, but only the barricades along the city's edges are guarded closely.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reid are attending the United Co-Operative Chairman's Convention in Toronto this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Petley arrived here on Tuesday from a motor trip to Victoria, BC, down the west coast to California, San Francisco and back through the central states. Mr. Petley has left for Churchill Falls, Labrador, for a few weeks, to finish up his work there.

REAL ESTATE

IT'S EASY TO BUY WITH ALL CASH

The trouble arises when you don't have it — and who has these days?

We have the "right money" economy that can mean a tough problem — or investment an insurmountable problem — for both buyer and seller.

There are many sources of mortgage money — banks, trust companies, various lending institutions and private individuals. At one time or another, some of them are interested in placing mortgage money while others are out of funds. Their attitudes are constantly changing along with the mortgage market that their decisions affect.

An experienced Realtor is, of necessity, an expert in his local mortgage money market. Real estate finance is the life blood that purges through the real estate market enabling Realtors to transact property transfers to real lives persons with relatively little cash, who otherwise would be unable to effect a sale or purchase.

In addition to finding the right source for a particular property Realtors are sometimes faced with the need to propose changes in terms or other arrangements that will make a property more attractive to mortgage lenders.

A professional Realtor who knows his market is the best qualified of any specialist you could select to safeguard your interests and facilitate your purchase, or sale, of a property.

Lemieux Declines To Hold Any Talks

FLQ Stays Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — The Front de Liberation du Quebec said today it gives "carte blanche"—complete freedom—to Raymond Lemieux, its negotiator in two kidnapping cases.

In its ninth communique, delivered to radio station CKLM, the FLQ "renews the mandate" of Mr. Lefebvre to obtain ransom demands for the release of the two abducted officials, James (Jasper) Cross and Pierre Laporte.

But barrister Robert Lemieux, said today he was not resuming face - to - face talks until he learned whether the government was altering its position.

The two contact men were to have met today at 10 a.m.

Shortly before that time, Mr. Lemieux said any change in the stand-off reached in talks Tuesday would depend on the government representative's new instructions from the FLQ.

This was a repetition of what he told a boisterous news conference Tuesday night.

"I declare that, in view of the government's refusal to negotiate with me under the terms of my mandate, I cannot continue these negotiations without receiving a new mandate."

He made it clear that the question whether he meets again today with lawyer Robert Demers, government representative, depends on further instructions from the violently separatist FLQ.

Unlike his FLQ counterpart, Mr. Demers had no news conference but the Montreal office of Premier Robert Bourassa issued a statement saying its point of view had not changed since the premier made a broadcast statement Sunday night.

In that statement the premier set forth what amounted to Mr. Demers' terms of reference in the talks—solution of the "initial question" of setting up some "mechanism" for guaranteeing the safety of the two hostages.

"The Quebec government remains firm in its position, which has already been made known, even before Mr. Lemieux was chosen as representative (of the

THE WEATHER
Synopsis: Just before dawn this morning rain drizzle and fog were reported across much of Ontario. The wet unsettled weather picture is beginning to clarify. A trough of low pressure extends from James Bay south across the Mississippi Valley. Along it precipitation in various forms is occurring including a few thunderstorms. As the whole structure moves east colder and drier air will gradually penetrate the district from the west on Thursday.

Efforts of completing 130-mile canoe trial is momentarily shown by Chuck Ireland, 21 — with Rick Embury, 22, (left) and Lance Barter, 22, among first arrivals in Loyalist College expedition back in Belleville yesterday. More than 40 young voyageurs from the community college travelled three days — much of it in drenching rain — to complete adventure that started in Highlands of Hastings. Angela Davis Arrested

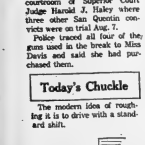
NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Davis, the black militant philosophy instructor, has been arrested by the FBI at a motel after being sought for nearly two months on murder and kidnapping charges in a California courthouse shooting.

Miss Davis, 26, a former faculty member of the University of California at Los Angeles, is accused of purchasing the guns used in the courtroom shooting-escape that took the lives of the judge and three others in San Raphael, Calif., Aug. 7.

Miss Davis, whose public avowal of communism created an academic freedom controversy at UCLA, was placed on the FBI's 10 most-wanted list after being charged in connection with the California shooting.



During the summer she became involved in the cause of the so-called Soledad Brothers —three black convicts awaiting trial on charges of murdering a Soledad Prison guard Jan. 16.

One of the three, George Jackson, 28, is the brother of Jonathan Jackson, who brought the weapons into the San Rafael courtroom of Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley where three other San Quentin convicts were on trial Aug. 7.

Police traced all four of the guns used in the break to Miss Davis and said she had purchased them.

News Briefs

SEOUL (Reuters) — Fifty-two teen-age boys and a driver were killed today when a bus with 58 students aboard collided with a passenger train about 50 miles south of Seoul, the South Korean capital. The 24 surviving students were rescued but were seriously injured, police said.

* * *

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — RCMP continued a six-day-old manhunt today as the bodies of two of their murdered men were taken to Regina for burial. The search is for Stanley Wilfred Robertson, 40, of the MacDowall, Sask., area, charged with two counts of capital murder in the shooting deaths last Friday of Sgt. R. J. Schrader, 41, and Constable D. B. Anson, 30.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — About 250 members of construction unions had gathered on the lawn at Queen's Park by 9 a.m. today to protest proposed amendments to the Labor Relations Act. The workers, wearing hard hats, were in a cheerful mood, whistling at secretaries coming to work at the legislature and buying snacks from a mobile canteen set up near the front steps.

* * *

LONGLAC, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police are investigating the death of three children aged one, two and three, whose bodies were found at their home in nearby Caramat. No arrests have been made. Longlac is about 200 miles north of Thunder Bay.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says two Soviet naval vessels, a submarine tender and a salvage tug, have left Cienfuegos Harbor in Cuba, and their departure lessens the likelihood of construction of a Soviet sub base. But Daniel Henkin, a defence department spokesman, would not say whether this lays to rest U.S. claims that the Russians were building a strategic submarine base.

German Investors Enthused

FRANKFURT (CP) — West German investors are pouring huge sums into Canadian real estate and the rush to pick up Canadian apartment blocks, shopping centres, farms and office buildings shows no decline, Ontario Trade Minister Stanley Randall said today.

Opening a campaign to intensify expansion of West German investment and branch plant production in Ontario, Randall estimated that during the last 18 years about $1,000 million worth of Canadian real estate has come under German control.

"Both of us know that investment in Canadian real estate is particularly profitable for you because of the 1926 tax treaty eliminating double taxation by our two countries," he said in a prepared speech at a luncheon for some 250 German manufacturers and bankers.

But though West Germany and Ontario are prospering, Randall believes they can work even closer in the future to help trigger "another economic miracle." By taking a stake in the province's economy, West German could extend their affluent markets.

Liberals Win Nova Scotia; Regan Outlines Blueprint

HALIFAX (CP) — Major gains by the Liberals, a serious setback for the Progressive Conservative government and a breakthrough by the New Democrats in Tuesday's general election left Nova Scotia's immediate political future unclear today.

The NDP, a virtual non-factor in recent Nova Scotia elections, emerged with two seats—and the balance of power.

Final Standings:

	1970	1967
PCs	21	40
Liberals	23	6
NDP	2	—
TOTAL	46	46

Liberal Leader Gerald Regan, 41-year-old former sportscaster, labor lawyer and Liberal member of Parliament for Halifax, was delighted with the outcome.

elections, crushing the Liberals Victories Tuesday by NDP Leader Jeremy Akerman, a 28-year-old British-born broadcaster, and another NDP candidate marked the first third-party wins in a Nova Scotia election since 1960 when former CCF party leader Michael McDonald was elected for the last time.

* * *

HALIFAX (CP) — Liberal leader Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia, still uncertain whether he will form a government despite his party's narrow victory on Tuesday's provincial election, has pledged to call the legislature into session this fall to begin dealing with the priorities in his platform.

Heading the list is a new direction to the economic development of the province under a single department of economic growth, greater assistance for housing and an updating of labor laws.

He said the provision of adequate housing would be part of the industrial development program. His party platform promised the refunding of the seven-per-cent provincial sales tax on building materials purchased for home construction, assistance towards down payments for low- and middle-income families and promotion of the preparation of serviced lots.

The party also promised a separate department of tourism, tied in with the development policies of the proposed economic growth department.

During the campaign Mr. Regan abandoned his constant criticism of the Progressive Conservative government to enunciate a platform which he said was a blueprint for Nova Scotia's "most critical decade of development."

Sharp Slaps Big 4

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada opened the 25th anniversary celebrations of the United Nations today with a suggestion that if the world organization is to meet the aspirations of its founders, member countries must put their own houses in order.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp made the statement in a speech that at one point slapped at the big powers and made indirect reference to the fact that Communist China is not represented here.

"Other critics have found it incredible that this organization can claim any standing in today's world, when it has excluded for decades the representatives of nations forming very substantial segments of the world's population."

Boon for Students

Board Considers Five O'clock Special Bus

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Secondary school students in Hastings county may get a break on transportation at a cost to the board of about $40,000.

That is the preliminary estimated cost of running 13 buses from county secondary schools at 5 p.m. to permit students to remain after school for extra-curricular activities.

The late buses would run from the beginning of the school year in September until the beginning of the winter holiday in March. For the 129 days involved the cost would be about $310 a day, estimated John R. Bancroft, manager of transportation.

The late buses would serve only main routes, making it necessary for some parents to meet their children and provide transportation home over feeder roads. The service would not include students at North Hastings school in Bancroft who come from Haliburton district and BCI students who come from Ameliasburg. They are transported by buses operated by their own county and district.

The board last night asked Mr. Bancroft to make a study of how many students would use the service and the exact cost.

Trustees were favorable to the scheme and reserved judgment on whether it should be implemented this year if sufficient money remains in the transportation budget to cover the cost.

Mr. Bancroft's transportation report was dictated by information brought to a previous meeting that neighboring Northumberland - Durham county, with the same number of students, spends less than much smaller Hastings on transportation.

The Hastings board's transportation budget this year is close to $1 million.

But administrators last night told the board that only one-half of Hastings county's students take buses to school. Three-quarters of Northumberland Durham's students require transportation.

The late bus scheme is also a move toward equality for country students who now have to forego sports, drama, music and library service because their buses leave promptly at the close of school in the afternoon.

"We should decide if sports, band, drama and other clubs are important," said Donald Williams of Stirling. "If they are, we should meet parents half way regarding transportation. They are willing to pick up their kids if we drop them off on main highways. At the moment, there is no way that all students can participate in school activities. To put the thing in perspective, we are talking about the equivalent of the cost of four teachers' salaries."

Garbage Disposal Debated by Council

The prospect of local industries and commercial enterprises having to pay extra for refuse deliveries under the city's proposed garbage disposal agreement with Commercial Refuse Services is again before city council.

Under the proposed revised agreement, trucks will be charged $1 per load at the new disposal site in Sidney township, while cars will have access to the site at no charge.

Mayor J. R. Scott pointed out however, that regular garbage collection contracts seldom included pickup of industrial wastes.

But Alderman Paul Russell said the reference was to additional garbage from merchants' premises in the downtown area, not industrial waste as such.

He said many of the merchants delivered their own garbage to the dump as a goodwill gesture in helping to keep the city clean.

He felt they should be permitted to dump such refuse at no additional cost.

Alderman Joyce said also he was talking of "cardboard cartons and packing cases and not industrial wastes."

Alderman Jack Ireland felt that a permit system allowing merchants to make dump deliveries was needed.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said the matter of permits had been discussed because of certain problems the idea had been followed up.

He said the dump cannot be made money on the operation and if cars from outside municipalities were allowed free access the dump operation costs would go up and the owner would be looking for more money when the city's contract was renewed.

On the recommendation of Alderman Don Soether, council directed that the city manager again confer with the garbage dump owners with the request that commercial garbage from the city be dumped free instead of all cars being given free access.

Land-split Application Approved After Debate

Applications to the committee of adjustment for division of large single family residential properties in the east hill district to allow construction of apartments were under discussion yesterday at city council.

The application prompting the discussion was for a land split on Albert Street which would divide the present holding into three parcels.

Alderman R. A. Orr said he realized the need for housing but was discouraged by small apartment buildings taking up every available space.

He said the crowding reduced the aesthetic value of other properties and "doesn't look right".

Alderman Robin Jeffrey took the same view and suggested that the matter of apartment construction in the primarily single family residential older east hill district be referred to the planning board.

City planner Bert Kenny said however, that the matter was already under consideration by the planning board and resulting recommendation would be part of the draft for the city's official plan expected late this year.

Apartment construction in older single family residential areas also prompted a question whether sewer services were adequate.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell replied that isolated apartment construction would not result in sufficient additional sewage to cause overloading. However, this was a question that was always considered, he said.

In answer to Ald. Orr's objection, Mayor J. R. Scott said many of the older houses in the east hill district were falling apart and the only way land owners could get their money out of their properties was by such land splits to allow apartment construction.

Aldermen Gerald Joyce and Alderman Paul Russell felt apartment construction on large single family residential properties was a good thing.

Alderman Joyce said it provided needed housing accommodation and increased density for existing services.

An Alderman Russell noted that such construction provided housing on property which otherwise was being wasted.

In the end council indicated it had no objection to the requested land split on Albert Street or for a requested subdivision of another property on Bleecker Ave.

Police Pay Hearing Tomorrow

The arbitration board hearing on salary requests of city police department members is slated to commence tomorrow (Thursday) at the county council chambers.

Thursday and Friday have been set aside for the hearing. The board of arbitration will consist of Judge A. R. Willmott of Cobourg, chairman; Sel. Ronald Bevan, St. Catharines Police Department and T. R. Wilcox, QC of Kingston.

The brief for the Belleville Police Association will be presented by James L. Cooke, member of the Hamilton Police Force and executive member of the Ontario Police Association. City Solicitor John C. Miller will present the brief on behalf of the City of Belleville.

Buoyant Spirits

It's fun in the water as Roisin Mulligan, 3, receives a steady hand from program secretary Maureen Kelly as the little girl learns how to stay afloat. One of the first jobs Miss Kelly and Dave Hahn undertake is to help rid the youngsters of any fears of water. While Mr. Hahn helps Scott Anchell, 3, into the water, Stephen Mulligan, 3, and Sue Keller, 3, eagerly wait their turn on the pool edge.

Report Presented By Co-ordinator

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Russell Williams, special services co - ordinator for Prince Edward County schools has named speech therapy as the most important special need among pupils here.

He considers a music program and assistance for teachers in the primary area instructing phonics as two other significant requirements.

Mr. Williams' observations were listed in a report to members of the Prince Edward County board of education at their regular meeting last night. In his brief Mr. Williams noted that he has created school-to-school liaison through a program of teacher interchange. By visiting in one another's classrooms, teachers can return to their schools with new ideas.

The special services co - ordinator also reported that he has worked directly with county inedents and provided direct help for those with special needs. He expects to meet soon with Kingston psychiatrist Dr. R. M. Billings to discuss use of an out-patient clinic here for students with problems requiring professional help.

School trustee Dorothea Carson questioned Mr. Williams concerning "teacher diagnostians" in county schools. He replied that he is now unable to personally test all students and works directly only with those most in need of assistance by the school principals. One or two teachers can be recruited as resource persons" making tests and offering prescriptive programming. Follow - ups on their efforts will be done by the special services co - ordinator.

Teachers involved in diagnostic work will combine it with their regular teaching duties making staff increases unnecessary.

School Board Bids On Instruments

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward County public trustees have decided to keep in tune with the times by making a $100 bid on a quantity of musical instruments offered for sale by the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

Although some board members felt the purchase could be "putting the tuba before treble clef", it was generally agreed that most of the instruments could be used in a school music program. Board member James Plomer mentioned, "We should teach them music, then form a band." He also observed that none of the board members has inspected the instruments put up for sale by tender.

Mr. Plomer's remarks were counteract by Picton resident Jack Evans, who told trustees he had "a deep personal interest" in a music program for the schools. He termed the instruments "a red hot bargain" and suggested that most of them could be used if the lot is purchased.

Hutton Martin, former chairman of the board voiced agreement with Mr. Evans' opinion and the list of instruments offered for sale was read. Trustees agreed to place a $100 bid on the brass and reed instruments but rejected a piano. "It's too heavy to carry," asserted Mr. Plomer. Several board members felt that a piano might be obtained locally at a lower cost citing the shipping charges involved in the purchase of the one presented for bidding.

This Skating Is Year-round Fun

With two on the floor, overhead drive, dual suspension, and independent steering controls, these speedsters are really moving along. Roller skating has long been both a sport and a game for youngsters and every Friday night, Saturday afternoon, Sunday afternoon and evening, dozens of skaters enjoy the free facilities of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium provided for them by the Recreation and Arena Committee. To the amplified music of today, speeding skaters circle the cement track singly, in pairs, or sometimes, in long chains.

To Study Moira Cleanup

Council Happy with Committees

Belleville city council is satisfied with the present city manager and committee form of municipal government.

This was indicated yesterday when council voted 10-1 against a motion to appoint itself as a committee to discuss and recommend whether the present system should be continued.

The notice of motion was brought in two weeks ago by Alderman Donald Soutter, chairman of the council recreation and arena committee, after what he considered had been criticism of committee action.

Yesterday the alderman said in his opinion the city manager and committees were doing their jobs adequately. However, he had been disturbed by criticism levelled at his committee.

If his motion was lost, it would be an indication that council was satisfied, he said.

Alderman Lloyd Dawd said he had intended no criticism of the recreation committee when he made his remark a month ago.

"There was no criticism of committee as related to council. "In fact it was a committee system is working well." The system is working well."

Council approved of a second motion, this one from Alderman Keegan who called for council to seriously investigate every avenue possible to clean up the Moira River trash of the Lower Bridge.

He suggested that an engineering study be made either by the city or the Moira River Conservation Authority to determine whether a low dam or a 50-foot channel would improve conditions.

In any event he urged that money be placed in the budget each year to hire a bulldozer for an annual river cleanup.

$975 for City Hall, $6,402 for Signals

It's going to cost the city another $975 to point up the brickwork on the exterior of the city hall and to apply a silicone spray as a protection against the weather.

Tenders for the brickwork pointing and silicone spray were called, by council when it noted the work was needed to protect the brickwork after the sandblasting operation completed early this summer. Aqua-Guard, Trenton, will do the work.

A second tender approved yesterday by council was that of Stacey Electric for the installation of traffic control signal equipment for the new Dundas Street Bridge. The tender price for the installation was $6,402.

Tapes Are Loot

The tape cartridges were valued at $8 to $21 each. Thieves gained entry by breaking the glass in a small window in the service station.

Future of Fairgrounds Studied

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Members of the Belleville Exhibition Park Planning Committee favor the formation of a single body for the over-all management of the fairgrounds and organizations with vested interests are being invited to submit proposals for the composition of such a board.

The six organizations with interest in the grounds are the fair board; parks board, recreation and arena committees, the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, the curling club and the lawn bowling club. These organizations are being asked also to submit recommendations for the future use of the fairground.

The action of the exhibition park planning committee in recommending one body for the over-all management of the grounds was taken last week following an investigative report done last summer by Bretha F. M. Crone, Centre of Resources Development, University of Guelph.

Miss Crone was retained to do the fairgrounds investigative report as the first stage in the study of further park developments and to pinpoint current problem areas with respect to the park, its organization and management.

Operation of the fairgrounds is complicated by the fact that the parks board (city) owns the grounds while the agricultural buildings are owned mainly by the agricultural society.

The fair board has a 99 year lease on the grounds dating from 1964; the lawn bowling club has a perpetual lease, while the curling club has a 50 year lease on the land on which its building stands.

The recreation committee schedules events in the park and handles the administration of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club has built the parimutuel betting booth, tote board and photo finish booth and, in accordance with a five-year agreement with the parks board, has assisted in maintaining the race track.

Now, however, further developments of facilities and expansion of the grandstand and racetrack is considered necessary.

A further factor complicating the already complex scene of ownership and management within the park is said to be that of divided purpose.

Some of the organizations within the park are service oriented while others are basically revenue producers.

"With such a conflict in purpose there is bound to be a conflict in performance and in the measurement of that performance," the report states.

In her conclusions Miss Crone notes that the purpose for the existence of the exhibition park and for the existence of the agency users in the park has never been clearly defined and recommends that this be done immediately to allow a sense of direction as future programmed developments.

Also there have been no in-depth user-studies carried out as related to existing or required areas, facilities and programs to discover if they are adequately satisfying the needs of the citizens of Belleville and district.

Accordingly, such a park and recreation study be initiated to furnish reliable standards as guidelines to present and future park and recreation development.

It is also recommended that a study be undertaken to determine how the exhibition park relates to other city, county and provincial parks in the Belleville region. Such a study could establish what new roles the fairgrounds can or might play in future park development and prevent needless duplication of certain facilities.

Also, in her conclusions, Miss Crone pointed to the changing role of agriculture in society, and because of the change in rural-urban population balance and the new emphasis on the value of work and leisure, suggests that the future role of fall fairs is very much open to question.

"Will fall fairs and fairgrounds per se have a role to play in society 20 years hence?" she asks, "and if so, what role?"

She asks what is happening to other fairs and fairgrounds in Ontario and suggests that the answers to such questions would be worthy of serious pursuit.

The answers to these questions would partially establish the requirements for future management and control in the exhibition park and must be seriously considered by all the participating agencies concerned with the fairgrounds operation.

While her terms of reference called for an investigative study on the fairgrounds, Miss Crone suggested that consideration should be given in the current administration operation of both the parks and recreation departments which operate as separate entities.

"Definite trends in North America and especially in Canada, show that these two agencies should be united as a single administrative unit for maximum efficiency and service to the public."

Miss Crone suggests possible other attractions which might be attempted at the fairgrounds ranging all the way from jumping trials to winter carnivals, trade fairs and farm implement shows.

Redesigning or landscaping the grassed area south of the Ben Bleecker building would provide a park and enhance the entrance from Yeoman Street.

Provision of other parking arrangements and removal of baseball from the centre-track area would allow this section of the park to be landscaped according to possible compatible future uses. One example might be landscaping with hedges and water jumps so that as well as adding atmosphere and aesthetic appeal, the area might serve as a course for heavy and light (horse) jumpers.

If the space for parking cars during races and at fair time cannot be solved in any other way than through the use of the inner track area, Miss Crone says the space should be redesigned with adequate entrances and exits which would not interfere at any time with programmed events or with audience vision.

But in the final analysis, Miss Crone suggests that before any far-sighted plans can be made, the question of whether the grounds should be service or revenue oriented, must be answered — also for whom and how?

China Recognized

The agreement between Canada and Communist China to exchange ambassadors, after a good deal of domestic opposition and ridicule, not to mention difficulties placed in its way by Peking, is an international development of prime significance.

It means that while the United States continues to withhold recognition, Washington and other western capitals ultimately may follow Ottawa's lead in establishing formal contacts with the most populous nation on earth.

It means that through Canada, North American people may ultimately be seen by the Chinese in a better, less belligerent light, and that this will lead to improved relations between the two areas generally. At present China is largely a closed society which is taught to hate western "imperialism" led by the United States. The propaganda begins early, with small children in China being given the full anti-imperialist treatment, including arms drill with bayonet practices against targets representing "imperialist aggressors."

The Canadian initiative to establish relations with Communist China, notwithstanding the fact it has alienated the Nationalist Chinese in Taiwan, is a positive step which should benefit both countries in a number of ways, as well as leading, as we have pointed out, to better relations between the North American and Asian continents.

Trade of course will benefit. As to the possibility of the new link giving China an "in" to North American affairs, making it possible for its representatives to combine routine diplomacy with espionage, this is a risk Ottawa must be prepared to accept — and control if necessary. Ottawa, at this troubled time in our history, will surely have this in mind. But overall, we believe the establishment of links with Peking should serve the cause of world peace.

Sales and Ad Group

Sales and Advertising Clubs are organizations of value and integrity in the business and professional life of Canada. Hence, the establishment of a women's branch in Belleville is certain to boost not only the fellowship enjoyed by members, and the exchange of ideas, but serve also the cause of high standards in their particular field, and in business life generally.

The organization also provides an important speakers' forum and we have than 60 charter members of the Belleville women's group recently heard Keith Garrett, president of the Federation of Canadian Sales and Advertising Clubs.

Mr. Garrett's warning on the government's assumption of further arbitrary powers, specifically the threat of curbs on advertising by the ministry of consumer and corporate affairs, was timely. Just what does the minister concerned, Ron Basford, mean for example when he talks of possible curbs on "excessive advertising," or "high pressure advertising," or "pollution and overkill," in print, radio and television."

The government should make itself clear in this regard lest it finds itself moving further into a degree of authoritarianism alien to our system of democracy. As Mr. Garrett points out, the terms used by the minister are undefinable. We could draw attention to areas where there is indeed a degree of "overkill" in advertising, where advertisements on say television are repeated ad nauseam, to the detriment of the product and the boredom of the public. But this is the advertiser's problem, not Mr. Garrett suggests, excessive and high pressure advertising are matters governed by personal taste and preference. At the same time the advertiser has a responsibility to ensure that his presentations to the public are distinguished for their veracity and good taste; failure to meet such requirements could then be a legitimate excuse for government interference.

The Belleville women's group meanwhile is off to a good start. There is a strong founding membership and they should prove an excellent new force in the business life of the community.

Even the Girls!

Some boys and girls you cannot tell apart these days, but it does come as a surprise to witness girls affecting some of the mannerisms of our young male hotrods. Awaiting our car being serviced in a gas station there was this screaming of tires and it was as brash and loud as we had heard in a long time. Startled, we turned in time to see a car making a tight turn onto the street. A girl was at the wheel and she accelerated away at a fast clip. The young man working over a car at the station smiled knowingly . . . ah yes, there is no new thing under the sun. Cars, they are an extension of the personality are they not? Male and female.

Exhausting and Costly Too!

Happiness for Dad Is Often the Hockey Season

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

October has come at last and for lucky fathers of male tykes, novices, peewees etc., arrives that merry sir and a half months period of pure chaos when there is ice in the arena and genuine excuses are readily available to bosses, friends, debtors and worried relatives for looking like the total wreck you probably are anyway.

For such fathers whose male progeny now appear on the innumerable hockey team lists of Ontario (and insurance forms etc.), for the first time, perhaps a few words of preparatory outline may be of help in gradually easing into things.

A careful statistical survey has been made of thousands of still partly extant fathers, still at large, has produced the following accurate-ticular facts (perhaps this should be published in June by which time the wounds have healed).

In the next 25 to 29 weeks (depending on whether or not you are unlucky enough to have sired another future Bobby Orr, you will, (falling heart attack etc.) have:

(1) Worn off five pounds walking around 4½ sports equipment stores one and a half times each, discussing the merits of curved and flat sticks, plastic versus leather cerebral protectors, three varieties of shoulder, elbow, knee, shin, face, teeth and toenail pads and guards and various unmentionables in female company, designed to help junior more fully enjoy the sopranos in the bass section of the school choir.

(2) Purchased brand new hockey equipment, (you won't have any luck convincing him there must be 5,000 pairs of unused skates in the city).

(3) After two weeks and three days of family argument tradi-ed in the old bugger for the absolutely necessary station wagon (hockey players and kits for the use of).

(4) Arranged a further $1,-500 on your loan with your understanding bank manager whose sons have graduated from hockey to junior college sports e.g. flag burning, woodstacking, embassy door step sleeping and the slurp of free love.

(5) Got up some 47½ mornings at 6 a.m. in average temperatures of two above zero, made the kid eat something, found all his parts and took him to the rink (mercifully the ice will not start on an average of 3.86 mornings and you can call a cab, and once you will still be too long over in drive and Mother will do it and lastly, on .007 timing a neighbor will call for your kid!)

(6) Attended — in whole or in part three million hockey games (the statistics are purely subjective) — where you have been:

(a) Beaten up by two fathers, five brothers and 16 irate mothers of opposing players plus three unknown referees.

(b) Admonished by the kid's coach 22 times to keep out of his hair during the game and never to come into the dressing room again with sure-fire suggestions.

(c) Warned five times and partially arrested once for alleged breaches of the Liquor Control Act.

(d) Threatened with attempted arson charges by two firemen and close arrest by One Ontario Fire Marshal.

(e) Lost $36 betting against your son's team.

(f) Eaten 236 hot dogs and paid for 1,000 more for Johnny's pals.

(g) Suffered 236 attacks of indigestion, heartburn (especially constipation (there is an average of one facility to 236 players and one father per hour in all rinks checked and bring your own necessities), plus a traumatic choleric splenetic syndrome when your kid's only goal of the year was disallowed just because you jumped over the railing when he got beyond centre for the third time in the season. Also ballistosis.

The statistics on pneumonia, bronchial troubles and arthritis, to say nothing of paralysis of the posterior are omitted in the interest of brevity.

(7) Driven 2,500 miles to and from ice arenas distant and/or adjacent and well known villages, towns and cities where everybody knows you because you get to enjoying hating back, screaming at home town referees and fleeing your kid's cycle chain or brass knuckles between bleeding hassle on your guaranteed mind Queen Mary fog horn.

(8) Spent $75 in long distance phone calls explaining to parents of the ten boys marooned in a snow bank with you at adjacent hockey mad towns, who believe you, and to your wife who doesn't.

(9) Devoted 13 hours to so-ing the kid's essays when he was just too pooped to hit the books. (Hockey-players parents make an average of 33 per cent on the kid's essays.)

(10) Mopped off one pint of sweat, and two quarts of tears and delivered 5½ hours of moral platitudes about how it ain't who loses or wins, it's how much you get paid etc. that counts and remember your aged father when you finally make the NHL.

(11) Built a home-made rink for the use of 25 hungry thirsty neighbors' kids and your own kid to practice his shooting on, and shovelled and iced same, (usually at midnight) 15 times until a blessed thaw arrives early March or you arrange to freeze up the outside water faucet or borrow a blowtorch.

(12) Finally crashed up and died with your team in the playoffs and in a moment of aberration took the whole team and the coach (who may then permit you to say a few words) to dinner at the best restaurant in town where 20 scrawny but happy kids ate $35 worth of food — average 1½ sirloin steaks per kid plus three desserts and 2½ sick in the alley.

(7) Had the best damned happy and exciting winter of your life!

Midi Already Dead Says U.S. Survey

Wall Street Journal

Silence on the set, please.

We've had months of buildups and lots of heated controversy, but now it's opening night. The notorious midi skirt, mockscorned but also much discussed, is finally making its debut in thousands of boutiques and department stores across the country. Places, everyone. Curtain . . . up!

Ker-plunk.

That's right, fashion fans, that's the sound of the star herself, entering the market place, tripping on her own hemline and falling flat on her face.

That, according to despairing retailers interviewed by Wall Street Journal reporters across the country, is exactly how it's happening. With crisp weather bearing down and the traditional fall buying season already a couple of weeks old, women from coast to coast are trooping into the nation's retail clothing stores — and trooping right back out, sans midis.

With faces as long as a midi itself, retailers say the midi is here to stay all right — right on the rack. A few of them still insist the midi will make it. They are the ones who refuse to be subject when you ask about sales figures. But many more say it is dead already, killed by overwhelming shopper rejection in the first few weeks of the selling season.

As for shoppers themselves, they can hardly be questioned about the midi without bursting with a vehemence rarely encountered in any market place.

Problems the midi has, in abundance. Quite simply, most American women think it's the ugliest thing they have seen since the Depression. A Gallup poll last month found that any incredible zero per cent of American women aged 18 to 29 prefer the midi to members at the knee or above and only 18 per cent prefer those between 30 and 49 favor it.

In New York a Madison Avenue boutique called Women's Haberdashers posts a daily "Hem Index" in the window — showing how the various hemlengths it offers have fared since Aug. 29. As of the day before yesterday the score was midis 13 per cent, knee - length 30 per cent and minis 78.6 per cent. Life magazine says nationwide reader response to a cover story on the midi was heralding the coming of the midi is running 40 to 1 in favor of the mini and that which was supposed to be passe by now.

Although there seems no doubt the midi is sorely wounded if not dead, a good many retailers say they themselves will escape from the debacle unscathed. Most of them have not, contrary to widespread reports, put all or even most of their chips on the midi. "That's a myth," says one East Coast retailer. "Only the high fashion outlets will sink or swim with the long hem."

Trifles Loom Large

The Globe and Mail

It requires no profound knowledge of psychology to realize that some of the most bitter quarrels can be formed the most trivial issues. In many situations of domestic strife, for example, the subject is really a little consequence; the full fury of the battle reaches back to some earlier source of friction — declared or undeclared — and nothing will ever be resolved until it is settled.

Kingston Prepares for 1973

Kingston Whig-Standard

In 1973 there will be an exciting birthday celebration in Kingston. This city, which has served as a military, naval, educational and penal centre and has been the home of many prominent Canadians, including this country's first prime minister, will be 300 years old.

Kingston's 300th birthday should be a time of education, fun and fellowship, a focal point for community betterment. It presents an opportunity for projects and activities in which every resident can feel a part. In this regard it is essential that individuals, groups, clubs and associations contribute their suggestions and their support.

Kingston, the fourth oldest city in Canada, has had a colorful and productive past. During the next three years the residents of Kingston will be reminded of this past. We will also be forced to look ahead. Intensive involvement by the community in preparations for 1973 could produce the revival of a spirit of civic pride, so necessary if Kingston is to meet the challenges of the future. That would be a priceless anniversary present.

Laughter the Best Medicine

Christian Science Monitor

In these days when everyone is out marching for a cause (students, blacks, Indonesians, and women) and confrontation seems the order of the day; when unreasoned bitterness and antagonism are the sour fodder of riot-ridden activism: when love placards loot the implication that some kind of ominous incubus is to be substituted for warfare, reaction tends to become more violent than action — and we look at each other and wonder what is lacking.

Maybe it's laughter.

We are living in times of tear gas and tension, but why underline the point with solemn stoicism or pill-headed retribution?

Somewhere amid our ecologic doldrums and the frightened footprints fleeing the cloudy front of social change, a sense of humor has been lost. If we are to survive we will have to find it again under the glass of the broken windows and discarded grapefruit rinds.

The ability to laugh has in the quality which overcomes.

Only last week we got to arguing whether there would be less riot damage if one day the police suddenly appeared in their underwear. Then we began wondering if the president of an oil company could become so filled with social consciousness that he would insist on his own private oil slick in his swimming pool.

Someone laughed. It may be the beginning of hope.

Highways Minister's Letter on Bay Bridge 'Appals' Council

Ontario Highways Minister George E. Gomme feels that the bay bridge connecting Belleville and Rossmill's is good for another 10 to 15 years, but city council is not going to let its request for a new bridge be brushed aside.

A month ago council passed a resolution requesting a new high level bridge to replace the present antiquated structure and the highway minister's reply was read at yesterday's meeting.

Mr. Gomme said the department was planning to repair the existing structure deck in the near future following which the bridge would be a structurally adequate for a good many years.

"At the same time, our extensive highway planning investigations in the area lead us to believe that Highway 14 south of Belleville, including the structure, will have adequate capacity for another 10 to 15 years," Mr. Gomme's letter said.

"After that time, but, barring unforeseen developments not before, we would possibly have to consider the question of additional capacity."

Mayor J. R. Scott said he was "appalled" at the lack of information on the part of the highways minister when he claimed could have little knowledge of the summer traffic he has.

"To say the bridge is good for another 10 to 15 years shows a lack of understanding as to the growth of this area.

Alderman Paul Russell said he was also appalled about the highway minister's letter, while Alderman Ben Corke recommended that council again approach Mr. Gomme.

"It is utterly ridiculous and unacceptable," stated Alderman Arthur Keegan.

He said the highways minister has no idea of the traffic congestion on the bay bridge or of the marine traffic which is increasing each year.

He said there should be a new bridge route from Ross more concentrating up with Sidney Street and creating a new Highway 14 route, bypassing the city to the north.

Alderman Enos David was of the same mind, noting that the Skyway bridge at Desoronto didn't carry one tenth of the traffic which passed over the bay bridge at Belleville.

As council approved Alderman Corke's motion, Mayor Scott suggested area provincial members Dr. R. T. Potter and Norris Whitney, as well as local municipalities be asked to support the city's request.

Alderman Ireland suggested that federal authorities should also have an interest because of the bay being a navigable waterway.

"Let's get such a meeting started," urged Alderman Gerald Joyce, "It might be more difficult for Mr. Gomme to refuse all municipalities."

Additional Buses Not Routine Task

Director of education Eric Rennerus noted that Mr. Williams' point was "well taken"

"By consolidating secondary schools, you have saved on teachers' salaries," he said "Perhaps the public should have a return on that".

Milford Waller of Thurlow added that the late buses would eliminate the hazard of students hitch - hiking on highways at dusk.

"Now, they make the effort to participate in after-hours activities by hitch - hiking home later," he said. "It is worth the extra money to keep the kids off the highways at night — a hazard to life we should avoid".

The board also approved the expenditure of an extra $5,000 a year to put a second bus on the route in the 3rd, 4th and 5th concessions of Thurlow.

Under the former system, half the students on the route were arriving at Harmony School at 8.30 a.m. and remaining an extra half hour in the afternoon.

The bus now serving the route makes two trips to get the 130 children in the district to school.

In his report, Mr. Bancroft outlined some of the difficulties his department faces in transporting 11,000 students to schools by the shortest routes in the quickest time.

"With the establishment of new housing units throughout the townships, a problem of time has evolved," he said. "It is not unusual for new homes to be built that require an additional five to eight minutes to service. Three new homes on a route can quite easily require a 15 to 20 minute carrier start."

In north Hastings, the board was told, some students are picked up at 7 a.m. and dropped off again at home at 5.30 p.m.

"Geography dictates long routes in this area, particularly for secondary students," said Mr. Bancroft.

The north Hastings problem, he added, cannot be solved.

In the centre Hastings area the earliest pick up of students is at 7.30 a.m. and the latest drop off at 5 p.m.

By doubling the number of buses, so that elementary and secondary students would travel on separate vehicles, the transportation time could be shortened. But the cost would be doubled too, to $250,000 from the present cost of $125,000 for transportation in centre Hastings. The extra cost would shorten the transportation time of elementary school students by about a half hour, but would not alter the time element for secondary students.

Quebec Firm

kidnappers)," the statement said.

"There can be no question then of the government accepting or discussing the demands before dealing with the initial question."

Meanwhile, hundreds of policemen continued the search for the hideouts where the two hostages are held under sentence of death unless the FLQ demands are met.

The price the FLQ has set on their lives:

Freeing of 23 FLQ conspirists convicted or accused of terrorist crimes, their safe transport to Cuba or Algeria with their families for those who want to go, payment of $500,000 in gold, cessation of the current police search, exposure of an FLQ police informer, and re-employment of more than 400 Montreal drivers who lost their jobs in a shift of a Montreal postal contract this year.

Mr. Lemieux said he was authorized only to ensure the ransom demands were fulfilled—not bargain over them—and the government wanted only to discuss "preliminary questions."

It was an eventful 24 hours.

Monday night Mr. Demers met Mr. Lemieux in a police lockup where the FLQ lawyer was held on a charge of obstructing justice.

Tuesday morning Mr. Lemieux was arraigned and his case was set over to Friday.

Then the two lawyers brought their main questions to a conference room in the province-owned Quebec-Hydro building.

Then Mr. Lemieux appeared before about 200 people in a conference room of the Nelson Hotel in the old section of Montreal. His audience included a flanked of reporters and an assemblage of ultra-nationalists.

Flanked by avowed separatists such as Charles Gagnon and Pierre Valliéres and the controversial Michel Chartrand, president of the Montreal) central council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the 29-year-old lawyer told of the first negotiating session.

To the cheers of the nationalists, he said the FLQ is not interested in bargaining for release of the hostages. He described the talks as "very polite."

Since the hostages had already said they expected to be released unharmed if FLQ demands were met, he could not understand why the government was not ready to co-operate.

He was apparently referring to letters purportedly written by Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte saying they are ready to accept the FLQ word they will be released upon fulfillment of terrorist ransom demands.

Mr. Lemieux suggested a new formula at the afternoon talks although the subsequent turn of events made it almost academic.

He suggested the 23 FLQ compatriots, whom he described as "political prisoners," be flown to either Cuba or Algeria and there held under restraint until the two hostages were released. The $500,000 in gold would also be held in trust for the 23.

He contended this plan would provide the guarantees sought by Premier Bourassa.

The lawyer said Mr. Demers proposed that Mr. Lemieux add he told Mr. Demers the proposals was "unacceptable."

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT LYLE TWIDDY

Twiddy – McKnight

Rev. Peter Tett officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Thomas Anglican Church recently, when Donna Louise McKnight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. McKnight, Belleville became the bride of Robert Lyle Twiddy, son of Mr. Lyle Twiddy and Mrs. Edna Twiddy, Donald Davenport rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Bob Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of Italian crystal peau de soie in empire style featuring a wedding band collar and long sleeves. Alencon lace enhanced the panel front as well as the neckline yoke, and sleeves. A chapel train was also trimmed with matching lace with double daisies on the corners. She carried a bouquet of white mums and red roses.

Mrs. Jack Banville as matron of honor wore floor length orange shade gown in empire style with round collar and short puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of orange tinted mums. Bridesmaids Miss Janet Frechette and Miss Charlotte Kerr were dressed identically to the matron of honor. Each carried a bouquet of orange tinted mums. Miss Patricia Nick as flower girl wore a white dress in empire style and carried a basket of baby white mums and red roses.

Paul Twiddy of Kingston attended the bridegroom and Robert Carry of Dorval, Quebec and Donald Armstrong of Stirling were ushers.

At the reception in Club Canara, the bride's mother wore a coat and dress ensemble in aqua silk and worsted with matching accessories and a corsage of pink mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a coat and dress ensemble in shocking pink with beige accessories and a corsage of green tinted mums.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, United States, and later to Quebec City, the bride donned a turquoise and gold brocade coat and dress ensemble. On return they will reside at 253 George Street, Apt. 502, Belleville.

Minerva Chapter 138

OES Chapter Installs Officers

Mrs. Marguerite (Rita) Henning and Mr. William (Cale) Calvert, were installed as Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron of Minerva Chapter No. 138, Order of the Eastern Star on Friday evening, October 9th, 1970 at the Masonic Temple.

Many members of the Order and visitors from the surrounding districts were present and were welcomed by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Kathleen Pontz and Worthy Patron, Mr. Arthur Clare.

Greetings were extended to distinguished guests including, Mr. Earl McKeever, Past Worthy Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Mrs. Edna Dobbs, Associate Grand Conductress of the Grand Chapter of Ontario and member of Minerva Chapter, Mrs. Verna Young, Grand Electa of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, also to Mrs. Mary Bedford, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12 and Mrs. Haleen Silvers, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 11, to Mrs. Marguerite Burgess, Past District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12, Grand Representative of the State of Vermont, in Ontario, who has been appointed as a Grand Page to the General Grand Chapter to be held in Milwaukee later this month. Many Past District Deputy Grand Matrons from the Districts in Ontario, also Presiding Matrons and Patrons were welcomed by the Presiding Matron and Patron.

After the Chapter business was concluded, the retiring Matron and Patron discharged their Officers, thanking them for their co-operation and support during the past year.

The hall was decorated for the Installation Ceremony in red and white, the Worthy Matron's colors for the year. A "Radiant Emblem" theme of the Worthy Grand Matron of Ontario was hung in the background in the East and a painting depicting the Worthy Matron's motto "The Love of Christ Constraineth Us" was placed in front of the podium.

After a short recess the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Frances Marner, Past Matron, for installation of the Radiant Year Officers. Mrs Marner was assisted in the East by her husband, Mr. Wallace Marner, Past Patron and the members of her Installing Board.

Officers installed were as follows: Worthy Matron: Mrs. Marguerite Henning. Worthy Patron: Mr. William C. Calvert, Associate Matron: Mrs. Dorothy Steadman, Associate Patron: Mr. Jack Steadman, Secretary: Mrs. Winnifred Gunsolus, P.M., Treasurer: Mrs. Arlene Ashbury, P.M., Conductress: Mrs. Lillian Watters, Associate Conductress: Mrs. Margaret McQueen, Chaplain: Mrs. Elsie Humphries. Marshall: Mrs. Beatrice Rees. Organist: Mrs. Rhoda Gray. Adah: Mrs. Ellen Calvert. Ruth: Mrs. Viola Rowe. Esther: Mrs. Shirley Bonzard. Martha: Mrs. Helen Ray. Electa: Mrs. Cecelia Belrey. Warder: Mrs. Maxwell Sills. Sentinel: Mr. Harold Burley. The Worthy Matron was presented with an engraved Gavel, a gift from Frances and Wallace Marner, PM and PP, who wished for her a very successful and happy year in the East.

In her acceptance speech, Mrs. Henning expressed her appreciation to the Chapter for the honor conferred upon her and her thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the evening. Mr. Calvert also thanked all those who had assisted him in any way and promised to do his best to be worthy of the high honor which had been bestowed upon him. The Worthy Matron's emblem for the year is "The Cup", her watchwords "Charity, Truth and Loving Kindness" and her flower "The Red Rose." Distinguished guests spoke briefly bringing greetings from Grand Chapter and wishing the Worthy Matron, Worthy Patron and their Officers every success in the coming year.

Immediate Past Matron, Kathleen Pontz was presented with her Past Matron Jewel by her husband, Mr. Ted Pontz and the Immediate Past Patron, Mr. Arthur Clare was presented by his wife, Mrs. Pauline Clare. P.M., with the jewel of the late Percy Boulton, P.P., of Minerva Chapter, a gift from Mr. Boulton's daughter, Mrs. Eva Thrasher.

Following the closing of Chapter, the newly installed Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron introduced members of their families and special guests, to those present.

A social hour and lunch, prepared by the Special Refreshment Committee, under the convenership of Mrs. Viola Greatrix and Mrs. Rhoda Gray and served by the new Officers was enjoyed by all.

Ann Landers

Wearing of Glasses Not an Entertainment

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please answer in the newspaper. Everyone who wears glasses, particularly if they need a strong correction, will be pleased to see what you have to say.

My eyes have been weak for a long time. I've had to wear glasses ever since I can remember. Occasionally I remove my glasses to wipe the lenses, or sometimes just to massage the place on my nose where they sit for hours at a time.

Recently when I did this my friend took my glasses out of my hand and said, "Oh — let me see how strong they are!" Then she put them on and shrieked, "My God, are you blind?" She made a terrible face, crossed her eyes and handed my glasses to another friend who also put them on and screamed, "Don't these make you dizzy? How do you stand them?" Before I knew it my glasses were being passed around and everyone was trying them on as if it were a parlor game.

What's the matter with these fools? Don't they realize I have poor eyesight not by choice but because that's the way I was put together? I didn't say a word, but I felt like telling them all off and walking out. Please, Ann, print my letter. There are an awful lot of so-called intelligent people in the world who need educating. — OAKLAND.

DEAR OAK: Right you are. Here's your letter and let's hope the fools who read it (without glasses, of course) will learn something.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In regard to the woman who is so uptight about the "affair" her family doctor is having with one of his patients: Please tell her to cut it out and mind her own business. Just because a woman goes to the doctor's office three or four times a week is no sign something funny is going on.

I am having a dental problem and have been going to my dentist's office three times a week for the past two months. If anyone wanted to make up a story about me they could certainly do it. The woman I work with has a dirty mind and has already hinted at something. This afternoon when I got back from my dental appointment, she nudged me in the ribs, gave me a wink and asked, "Well, what went on today?" I felt like pulling her blond hair out by its black roots.

I hope you print this letter and tell me what to say if she makes any more snide remarks. — NOTHING COOKING.

DEAR N.C.: Say nothing. He who excuses himself accuses himself. You don't owe Big Mouth an explanation — so why dignify her dirty digs by giving her one?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was married for six years to an alcoholic. I did everything under the sun to get him to help. It was no use. When I saw it was hopeless, I went for counseling. My minister advised me to leave him before he killed me.

Our divorce was final in June. I didn't ask for alimony or even a settlement. I am in good health and can support myself. (We had no children.) Last night my former mother-in-law telephoned to say they had had a family conference to decide whether or not I had the right to keep the paintings and jewelry they had given me for engagement and wedding gifts. (Family heirlooms.) I was asked to return everything "like a lady." I was shocked and said I'd think about it.

The paintings and jewelry are worth about $15,000. I feel I am entitled to them. This is not a matter of sentiment, but practicality. They might be a good source of income some day. What do you say, Ann? — ELLA.

DEAR ELLA: The gifts are yours and you are under no obligation to return them. Inform your mother-in-law that if you should decide to sell them, the family will have an opportunity to buy the paintings and jewelry before they are offered elsewhere.

Serve Stuffed Squash As an Entree for Six

By MARY MOORE

They were selling squashes by the bushel basket on our local market but meandering Mary bought only one medium large one to make this Stuffed Squash which served six people.

This is another entree using a vegetable that is baked and calling for ground chuck. This means you can add it to your "hamburg" file of recipes.

STUFFED SQUASH (serves 6)
1 pepper squash (7" x 5" diameter)

STUFFING:
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
¼ cup chopped celery
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. savory
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ cup chopped or canned tomatoes or tomato juice

MEAT MIXTURE:
1 lb. ground chuck beef
2 tbsps. chopped onion
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ cup fresh or canned tomatoes or tomato juice
⅛ tsp. oregano

Wash pepper squash and with strong arm and knife cut in half vertically. Scrape out seed portion. Parboil cut side down, in large shallow pan, covered, for 10 min. Drain. Sprinkle hollows with salt.

To make Stuffing in large frying pan gently melt butter, add onion, celery and bread crumbs and saute until crumbs soak up butter. Meanwhile add salt, savory, pepper and tomatoes. Remove from heat. (Note: This is an excellent stuffing to use for other purposes.) Divide into two portions.

Combine all meat mixture ingredients in large bowl. Divide into four portions. Put one portion in hollow of each salted squash half. Cover with half of the stuffing. Cover each with remaining meat mixture, mounding it up, but pressing hard to edges to seal in stuffing. You need all of both. Place on large shallow baking dish, add about ¼" or 1" hot water, cover snugly with foil and bake 2 hrs. at 350 deg. Fahr.

To serve cut thick slices straight through meat filling and squash.

Man The Killer

MONTREAL (CP) — Gerald Iles, managing director of the Montreal Zoological Society, has organized a display at a downtown YMCA to remind the public of the alarming rate at which man is killing off wild animals. It features mock gravestones commemorating species of animals made extinct by man — the quagga in 1872, the great auk in 1844 and the dodo in 1681. Passenger pigeons have disappeared, says Iles, and there are only 1,000 Bengal tigers, 650 blue whales and 200 Siberian tigers left. Two million ducks are shot annually in Canada.

Don't Put Off Writing to the Folks Back Home

By DORIS CLARK

College students away from home — are you keeping in touch? No one putting off writing that letter until you can tell every last thing. Better to be brief but frequent with your news.

One mother I know equips her boy with a dozen post cards all addressed to her and stamped. It's his job to get one off — at least one — every week that he is away at school.

But you shouldn't have to be pushed like that. Why not get your own supply of envelopes or cards and address them, some sunny day when you are full of good resolutions? Then they are ready for your happy thoughts when you have a few minutes to jot them down. The mailman will never be more welcome than when he brings along one of those notes of yours to the folks at home.

Nobody can teach you what to say to your own special folks. Here's a letter written in the 13th century (in Latin, of course) which shows that times haven't changed very much:

"Honored Father:

The other students at the University of Paris have better clothes than I have, so I have bought a new gown and some real leather boots. And now I have no money with which to buy food. Please send me more money. I hope you and my revered Mother are well. I am, though hungry, Your loving Son and Heir, Jacques Williams."

(From Mind Your Manners by Allen and Briggs).

Dear Doris: I met a handsome play-boy type. 27 years old. We liked each other so much that soon we were going to bed together and he taught me how to love sex.. We have been going out every night since.

The problem is, he seems to be withdrawing from me and other people. Sex no longer satisfies me, as he seems to take it so matter-of-factly.

Also, I heard from his sister - in - law that before he met me, he drank heavily and had delirium tremens and that he felt bugs crawling over his body. The other night he shook convulsively. Has he a drinking problem?

He will not come out and say he loves me, and I certainly won't say anything. But he includes me in everything, and he has asked me to apply for jobs out where he has moved to. Should I go? — In Love and Confused.

Dear In Love: That's the trouble with premarital sex — or one of them. It can get so matter - of - fact: No mutual interests, no home, children, hobbies to back it up. Why should he mention love or anything permanent like marriage, when he has all he obviously wants, without it?

To say he has a drinking problem is putting it mildly. I'd say stay home.

Dear Doris: Is it right for a girl to call her boy friend she misses him during the week when he is away working?

I have been going with him for a little more than a month. Do you think he likes me? He calls me ever so often, once a week when he is away. — Excited.

Dear Excited: Expensive long distance calls would suggest that he has you on his mind. Sure, tell him you miss him. Just don't fall all over him to the point where you scare him off.

Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Terry and John, stop that scuffling. Now look what you've done! Can't you just sit and watch TV without wrestling and breaking things? Why do you boys have to act like wild men?"

Scuffling seems to be a way of life with boys of 10 to 13 years, and it's almost impossible to prevent it. However, for the sake of the house, you may have to insist it be confined to "boy-proof" areas.

Mother: "You and your friends may play quiet games or watch TV in the family room, but that's not the place for rough play. If you want to race around or wrestle, do it in the basement playroom or out of doors."

Prison Intrigue Kept in Public Eye as Costs and Politics Battle

OTTAWA (CP) — In recent years the fate of the Kingston Prison for Women, where most women with sentences of two years or more are sent, has become somewhat of a political football—and one major conflict between prison authorities has come to light.

In 1955, plans for a new women's prison at Collins Bay, Ont., west of Kingston, were announced. It was to accommodate a gradually increasing number of prisoners. Tenders were called and it was expected that construction would begin the next year.

But in May, 1956, it was reported that the government was delaying construction until it had received recommendations of a federal-provincial conference that was to study the April report by a committee on penal reform headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Again, in 1964, then Liberal Justice minister Lionel Chevrier, member of Parliament for Montreal Laurier, announced in his native Cornwall, Ont., that a new prison for women would be built there the next year. The minister had served the area as a member for Stormont from 1935 to 1954.

Although charges of political patronage were bandied about, government sources said the main reason for switching the penitentiary location was because it was to be a bilingual institution.

Nothing came of this decision, however, and in 1968 the then solicitor-general, Larry Pennell, under whose department the penitentiary then came, said a new cottage-style women's penitentiary was on the drawing boards.

Two years later Mr. Pennell, by then an Ontario Supreme Court justice, was quoted as saying he expected definite plans for a new women's prison to be disclosed soon. There was no doubt that a new prison was needed "and the sooner the better."

The cost and the dwindling, rather than the rising, number of women being imprisoned in the present penitentiary have probably provided some basis for the changes in ministerial lines.

In the seven years that acting superintendent Ethel Boyce has been at the present women's prison, the peak number of prisoners was about 135, and this now has shrunk to a little more than half that number.

One informant said recently he thinks the idea of a new women's prison has been for the number of women it would serve. Another said a new women's prison is low in priority because of the more urgent need for men's prison facilities.

However in March Allen J. MacLeod, then commissioner of penitentiaries, told members of Parliament who had visited several correctional institutions including St. Vincent de Paul that "the women's prison is the worst now."

During the 1960s, events at the prison itself caused political reverberations and a controversy affecting in varying degrees prison staff, aftercare workers and prisoners.

They came to a head with the resignation, in March, 1969, of Isabel Macneill, the prison's superintendent for the previous six years.

Donald Clark took over as acting superintendent and after his arrival the prison psychologist and social worker, both women, also resigned, saying that restrictive measures prompted their move.

Miss Macneill had tried a more liberal approach in running the women's prison, and in January, 1967, she told a special Senate-Commons committee on penitentiaries that the advent of a new regional system imposed a number of restrictive measures on the women's prison and caused her to resign.

She said that in giving women prisoners more freedom, she had forced them to make choices and decisions. This had upset them, but paid off in fewer repeat offenders.

Mr. Clark gave the committee another view, saying there was "total chaos" in the federal institution when he took over. He had found "a complete lack of discipline among the prisoners and a complete lack of respect and regard for the staff."

He also called allegations of interference by regional headquarters "sinister, hallucinated absolutely without foundation."

A study done by one of the prison staff members during Miss Macneill's time showed a significant lessening in the rate of repeat offenders between the period before and after she took over.

However, further analysis showed it affected only one group—drug addicts—who were given a great deal of attention and support.

And while there had been no dramatic changes at that time in treatment approaches at the Mercer Reformatory for Women in Toronto, a provincial institution, and at relevant provincial institutions for men, the same drop in the rate of repeat offenders occurred there.

After Miss Macneill resigned, authorities spent about five months searching unsuccessfully for a woman to fill the $10,000-a-year job, so Mr. Clark took over permanently.

Treatment at the Kingston prison for women offenders bobbed up again this year in a debate in the Senate, opened by Senator Muriel Ferguson (L—New Brunswick).

She labelled the penitentiary "a maximum security fortress which according to modern penal philosophy is unnecessary for women prisoners."

Now once more there is the question of who will run the place. Mr. Clark recently left the new men's prison at Millhaven, Ont., and Ethel Boyce is acting superintendent. Salary for the superintendent's job now runs from $13,400 to $15,300.

Home Again: Loyalist Voyageurs Reach Victoria Park Finish Line

For the Record: Group Photo Marks End of Adventure

Outward Bound Group Returns On Schedule, Wet and Happy

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Nearly 40 canoeists stroked blithely into Belleville late yesterday, proving — among other things — that water is a sound mix for high spirits.

They were drenched and bedraggled. But these were the only apparent signs that the canoeists — all Loyalist College students — had successfully concluded a gruelling three - day journey by water from the Highlands of Hastings.

As they energetically rounded the Moira River mouth inward a waiting, applauding crowd in Victoria Park, the young voyageurs showed no loss of enthusiasm for the venture that had taken them 130 miles down rivers, lakes and portages — most of it in drenching rain.

And, proving that adventure is no male prerogative, the Fleisher's included five of seven girl students who volunteered for the trip. Two girls were the only canoeists who failed to finish the course.

The trip was the latest milestone of Outward Bound — the Loyalist student group organized for adventure by college teacher Michael Barrett.

It was launched Saturday from Lake Tangamong, in Hastings County, about 15 miles north of Marmora.

From there, the voyageurs paddled and portaged through a succession of lakes and streams to the Crowe River down to the Trent systems — camping onshore enroute.

Poor weather marked much of their trip — it rained much of the time. However, it didn't impede progress.

The young voyageurs touched home ground in Victoria Park at 3.15 p.m. — little more than an hour behind the announced time of arrival.

Singling out Mr. Barrett from among the welcomers the canoeists marked their safe arrival by picking him up bodily and throwing him in the Moira.

Y Begins Swim Classes For Preschool Children

Graceful is a word often attributed to swimmers who glide through the water with smooth, liquid movements.

They're just learning what water is all about. It's a new experience.

The truth will out . . . water everywhere; squealing, giggling, and more water. Just for the fun of it.

A new swim instructional period for three - to - five - year - olds will be offered Wednesday mornings starting Oct. 21. In this class there will be one instructor for every two swimmers.

There are 60 six - and seven - year - olds enrolled in the small fry instructional swim program. Each child is allowed to progress on his own level of swimming.

Physical fitness programs, majorettes, judo, and a variety of other community activities are now available as the new YMCA season unfolds.

Other new programs initiated by the Y this week are a special fitness class for overweight women, a Ladies Afternoon Out program on Wednesdays offering a variety of home craft and recipe courses.

Each of the programs is open for public participation on a fee per class basis.

Trenton Ward System

Reluctant Council Forwards Petition

TRENTON (Staff) — Presentation of a lengthy petition compelled town council last night to request that the Ontario Municipal Board consider instituting a ward system form of elections here.

A similar resolution was rejected unanimously at the last council session Oct. 5 because no petition had been received in its favor, although Mayor Duncan McDonald told council that petitions were circulating two weeks before.

The pro-ward petition bearing 352 names was received by municipal clerk O. W. Larry, last Friday and yesterday's session was called at the eleventh hour for the sole purpose of dealing with the issue again.

Mr. Larry told councillors, in effect, that they had very little choice. Reading from a sub-section of the Department of Municipal Affairs Act, he told them that, when a petition with more than 150 names is received in a town of Trenton's size, the matter must be referred to the OMB.

He added that, if council "neglects" to forward the petition, parties promoting the revised electoral procedure could ask the Municipal Board to act unilaterally.

"Time is an important factor," Mayor McDonald said. Petitioners requested that the election system be revamped before the town goes to the polls on Dec. 7.

However, councillor Stan Ketchison questioned the acceptability of the pro-ward petition — those signing the document had not given their addresses — adding that the names should be checked against the voters' lists.

Councillor Tripp also stressed that the petition be checked out. He mentioned that one had been received in the past from Edward Street on which "people were not properly solicited or were dead".

There was considerable concern on the part of council as to the number of Trentonians who were against the ward system. Councillor Bob Patrick raised what was to him, the unwelcome prospect that the OMB would not hear the anti-ward point of view.

In its final form, the resolution passed last night, requesting that the municipal board consider the ward system, also requested that the board conduct a hearing in the town before a decision may be reached.

Lyle Carr, spokesman for the petitioners, said that of nearly 400 people contacted to sign the document only three had shown reluctance.

Mr. Carr told the Intelligencer that there are other petitions circulating — one with 200 names — and that people sign them readily. As for as validity of the names listed on the 222-strong entry, he said, "there is no question in my mind about their qualifications".

Councillor Tripp said that a "host" of Trentonians had contacted him on the ward system issue — some even stating that they wanted to mount counter petitions against those circulating. He told council that he asked them "to wait and see" how the situation developed.

An opponent of the ward system proposal, councillor Ted Parker said that his name would be registered on any such petition mounted against introduction of the revamped electoral method.

Councillor Parker contended that such a revision would be a "detriment" to the community leading to "Tammy Hall politics" and intensifying the east-west divisions of the town "real and imagined".

He added that a return to the historical wards (those once used) would be unacceptable because of population shifts.

Such shifts in demography, however, were given by Mayor McDonald as a reason for instituting the ward system. He mentioned new areas such as Elmwood Acres that, he contends, could more easily present a candidate under the ward system.

"All areas have the same franchise," councillor Parker said. The mayor, however, believes that some sound candidates would be more willing to serve in a ward system and that it would bring representation closer to the people.

"The bulk of our thinking is for the whole town," councillor Parker said, adding that the ward system may lead to a situation in which community interests suffer.

Lyle Carr told the Intelligencer that he had been compelled to bring the ward system issue to council for a return engagement last night because he did not like "the distribution of council" and "wanted to broaden it".

The "movement" (as one councillor called it) is spurred by the fact that all councillors live in the same part of the town, west of the Trent River and west of Dufferin Street, particularly in what Mr. Carr referred to as the "Fourth Ave. — Upper King St. area".

Petitioners have not determined what kind of ward system they have in mind, particularly how many wards there might be. Winnipeg has three, Montreal 21 but most towns have abolished them, although there has been some resurgence of the ward system in some small centres with the advent of regional governments.

With municipal elections only weeks away and the prospect of an OMB hearing on the ward system, chances are slim that it would be instituted in time for this year's campaign, as the 222 petitioners request. As Mayor McDonald put it, "time is an important factor," and little remains.

Walkathon Is Planned For Mentally Retarded

PICTON (Staff) — Plans are afoot for a fund raising program sponsored by the Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded. The teen-aged members of PEYMR will hold their annual fall walkathon this Saturday to raise money for an adult workshop for the retarded.

A 20-mile course has been mapped out for participating teachers and students of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. Hikers will stride down Paul Street to Main, then proceed to Lake Street where they hit the road, walking to the Outlet. A return route over the West Lake road using the Bloomfield cutoff is planned.

Although many of the walkers will be students, pledge sheets are available to all interested county residents at the PECI Counselling Centre. A trophy will be awarded to the walker collecting the most pledge money while a plaque will be presented to the first hiker crossing the finish line.

A PEYMR walkathon organized last year earned more than $2,300 for donation to the workshop fund, if provincial government plans for the hospital site at the former Camp Picton provide facilities making a workshop unnecessary, all money collected will be turned toward other projects for the mentally retarded. This year's walkathon route has been purposely mapped out completely within Prince Edward in stress the local nature of PEYMR's goal. Last year's 20-mile course extended from Belleville to Picton and was finished in record time by Picton athletes Larry Ferguson and Paul Cory who jogged the entire course.

Hearing All of Nature

David Cook, of 95 Victoria Avenue, stands in deep thought before a painting at the Corby Public Library. David, a grade six student at Queen Victoria Public School, wrote an essay on this painting saying that it appears to be hearing all of nature's surroundings. "I think it could hear a pin drop for miles," he said.

Russia, France Seen Closer Following Pompidou's Visit

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The joint protocol and declaration of agreement issued by the Russian and French chiefs of state in Moscow constitute a cautious climax to President Pompidou's eight-day stay as the Soviet Union.

Until the end of the state visit, nothing was told little of what was being discussed by the Gaullist Pompidou with his Soviet hosts.

But, it was evident that the Russians were going all out to put their guest in a sympathetic frame of mind.

Enthusiastic receptions, special dinners, ornate installations, lavish smiles and warm words all added up to what one French correspondent called "an offensive of seduction" by the Soviets.

This did not lure Pompidou into any spectacular concessions to the Soviet point of view, although his final statement of opinion on the projected European security conference may have represented a modest change in Paris policy.

The statement is incorporated in the declaration of agreement made by Pompidou and Soviet President Podgorny which expressed support for such a conference provided it is "duly prepared" and would help promote international co-operation, "outside the framework of bloc policy."

This latter phrase contains echoes of former president de Gaulle's desire for a spirit of "détente" which, from the Urals to the Atlantic, would allow European countries to transcend the highly-constrictive pattern of action dictated by the continent's cold-war division into Communist and anti-Communist camps.

Yet, prior to Pompidou's departure for Moscow, Paris appeared anything but enthusiastic for the security conference idea, long a pet project of the Soviet-dominated Warsaw pact.

Even now, the French chief of state remains opposed to a conference without prior signs that it holds some hope of concrete achievement.

One such sign would be the promise of progress in big-power discussions on the thorny issue of Berlin.

Pompidou went farther than de Gaulle usually did in asserting French loyalty to the West despite the pride the current president takes in affirming his country's freedom from any kind of satellite relationship with the United States.

The voice of a proudly independent country was heard in the way the visitor from Paris joined with Podgorny in deploring "foreign" intervention in Indochina.

It also was manifest in suggestions that France was pressing Russia for a bigger share in consultations among the major powers about the Middle East situation.

This desire on the part of protocol calling for regular meetings between the Soviet and French premiers.

But Pompidou resisted apparently strong Russian pressure for conclusion of a formal non-aggression treaty between his country and the Soviet Union, a pact which would have made France seem on a par with West Germany as far as friendly gestures to the East are concerned.

The fact that the French president decided against such a spectacular move indicates he is far less inclined than was de Gaulle to indulge in dramatic actions designed primarily to give France the look of a super power.

Council to Restrict Grants to Non-Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council said Tuesday that it plans to be less open-handed in future with study and research grants for non-Canadians.

Henceforth, the federal agency says in its annual report, non-Canadians must have spent some time in Canada before they may qualify for subsidies to finance doctoral studies.

The council also announced plans for a new program designed "to promote public awareness of the Canadian heritage" by encouraging publication of scholarly information in a form that can be understood by general readers.

At the same time, the council defended its practice of providing funds for study and research by non-Canadian scholars. It warned against "any outbreak of xenophobia"—hatred of foreigners—in Canadian universities.

Council accounts for the financial year ended last March 31 showed it granted about $17.3 million under various programs in the social sciences and humanities, $9.4 million for the arts, $200,000 for the Canadian commission of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) —and about $1.5 million for administration of those regular programs.

The total spent on regular programs thus amounted to about $28.5 million—up from $26 million the previous year—and almost $1.5 million was held in reserve.

In addition, the council spent $272,000 under a cultural exchange program financed by the external affairs department and allotted funds under various privately-financed programs.

Under the regular, publicly-financed programs for studies in the social sciences and humanities, council figures indicate that non-Canadians received about $4 million out of about $16 million granted for doctoral fellowships, research or sabbatical leaves.

In the main category of such grants—more than $10 million to enable post-graduate students to study for doctorates of philosophy—the council said more than 76 per cent of the awards went to Canadians and the rest to non-Canadians. In all, 2,311 students hold council doctoral fellowships this academic year.

A new program, planned for introduction next year under the title Canadian Horizons, would provide grants for popular works on local and regional history, Canadian biography and memoirs and their publication as books, "serious periodicals" and inexpensive texts.

The program would also be designed to provide for Canadian reference material for teachers and for experiments with new methods of communicasting information about Canada to Canadians.

North Plan Revealed

THUNDER BAY, Ont. — A development design aimed at reversing the exodus of people from Northwestern Ontario by improving industrial and social opportunities was revealed at Lakehead University Tuesday night by a group of federal and provincial ministers.

The "moderate growth" proposal calls for a population increase of up to 100,000—47 per cent—over the next 20 years.

Called Design for Development, and jointly sponsored by the federal and provincial governments, the proposal covers almost the entire area from Sault Ste. Marie west to the Manitoba border; 58.9 per cent of Ontario's land area.

It calls for a major diversified-industry urban centre at Thunder Bay, which now has a population of 108,000, and for secondary urban centres at Kenora-Keewatin, Dryden and Fort Frances, all near the Manitoba border, and at Geraldton, 140 miles northeast of Thunder Bay.

The secondary centres now have populations ranging from 3,000 at Geraldton to 12,000 at Kenora-Keewatin.

Atikokan, Rainy River, Red Lake-Balmertown, Sioux Lookout, Nipigon Red Rock, Terrace Bay, Marathon and Manitouwadge would form a set of smaller "strategic centres" with limited accessibility and services, and industry dependent on one resource such as mining or forestry.

The proposal also calls for development, in conjunction with the provincial government, of a larger recreation-based tourist industry. It proposes the possibility of several new recreational areas.

In presenting the report, Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said implementation of the design will depend on co-operation by municipal, provincial and federal governments.

The development design includes proposals for upgrading the standard of life and the economic viability of the area.

Among them are new and improved access roads between the strategic centres, improvements in air travel facilities, government financial assistance to resource industries, establishment of a central radio and television centre at Thunder Bay, improvements in the educational system and special training programs for unskilled workers.

The design plan is aimed at creating at least 18,000 new jobs by 1971, and leaves open the possibility that up to 54,000 jobs could be created during the redevelopment period.

Nationalist Ambassador Leaves

Canada's China Recognition Approved by All But Creditistes

OTTAWA (CP) — After 20 months of negotiation, Canada and Communist China have announced that they will exchange diplomats.

Canada will also vote for Peking's entry into the United Nations later this fall.

The announcement by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of recognition was made in the Commons as the Chinese Nationalist ambassador, Yu-chi Hsieh, was boarding an aircraft to leave Canada after serving here for 3½ years. Canada and Taiwan mutually severed diplomatic ties after agreement was reached with Peking.

Mr. Hsieh said Canada's decision to recognize the Peking regime as the government of China was deplorable and it would affect the international situation throughout Asia.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Mr. Sharp had said from the beginning of the negotiations that only one Chinese government would be recognized, and if agreement was reached with Peking it would mean an end to it's ties with the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

All personnel from the Nationalist Chinese embassy—which has been maintained in Ottawa since 1946—are expected to leave Canada by the end of this week. The embassy officially closed Tuesday.

Throughout the protracted negotiations in Stockholm, during which 18 meetings were held between Canadian and Communist Chinese officials, the most difficult issue to resolve involved Taiwan. The Peking government had asked Canada to recognize officially its jurisdictional claim to the island.

The matter was eventually settled with Peking reaffirming its claim to the island and Canada taking note of it. But Canada did not officially endorse the claim, or challenge it.

In the agreement, Canada and the Peking government agreed to exchange ambassadors within six months. Canadian officials are expected to go to Peking soon to begin "administrative preparations."

Mr. Sharp said that the government has not selected an ambassador for the new post, but that the job wouldn't necessarily go to a career diplomat.

Asked whether he was concerned about subversive activities resulting from a Communist Chinese embassy here, Mr. Sharp said he expected the Peking regime to observe the rules of international conduct. Otherwise, he said, they would be treated as any other offenders.

While Mr. Hsueh termed the recognition "a cruel blow to the 700 million Chinese people who aspire to freedom," the move was welcomed by both Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Stanfield said it was a positive step to bring the effective government of mainland China into the community of nations.

Mr. Douglas said that if the Nationalists should relinquish their claim to all of China, Canada should re-establish relations with them as the government of Formosa.

He referred to the fact that Canada was recognizing a revolutionary government at a time when governments in Canada are defending freedoms against revolutionaries in the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

'No Surprise'

U.S. Reaction Is Cool and Calm

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States reacted cooly and calmly Tuesday to announcement of Canada-Communist China agreement on diplomatic relations, with spokesmen emphasizing that the announcement came as no surprise here.

While avoiding any criticism of Canada for a move the U.S. is known to disapprove of, a state department spokesman said "our concern" is for the "possible implications on the position" of Nationalist China.

He described Taiwan as a responsible and co-operative member of the world community with which we have diplomatic relations."

U.S. concern, he said, probably also would be "shared by other members of the Pacific community."

At the state department, press officer Robert J. McCloskey, said at the department's daily briefing that Canada had "informed the U.S. of the outcome of the talks in advance of public announcement."

Asked if the U.S. feared others among the 60 countries recognizing Nationalist China might follow Canada's lead, McCloskey said he wouldn't "want to say that explicitly."

Other U.S. sources are reported to have speculated that Italy and Belgium probably will follow Canada—particularly some of the so-called Pacific community members.

Asked whether the U.S. exerted any pressure on Canada not to recognize China, he said: "In situations like this, the diplomacy is that you state your point of view. Whatever your position is becomes rather evident to the other government."

Beyond that, "sovereign states make their own decisions, as we do."

Unions Protest In Rally

TORONTO (CP) — Construction projects throughout the province could be shut today as union members gather at the Ontario legislature to protest proposed amendments to the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

The Ontario Building Trades Council is calling on construction workers to leave their jobs for a day and meet at Queen's Park for a rally and presentations to legislature members.

The Ontario Federation of Labor has also urged members of its 90 local councils to join the demonstration, but has not endorsed a one-day walkout.

Hank Kobryn of Windsor, executive secretary of the provincial Building Trades Council, said in an interview Tuesday he hopes construction will be forced to a halt.

The provincial council co-ordinates the activities of 15 local councils in the province. The local councils have union affiliates representing 90,000 skilled and unskilled construction workers, among them sheet metal workers, cement workers, welders and iron workers.

Three committees are to speak to caucuses of the three parties in the legislature after the rally.

Mr. Kobryn said the committees, not yet named, will elaborate on labor's objections to amending the labor act.

Labor spokesmen insist the amendments, introduced earlier this year by Labor Minister Dalton Bales, are an attack on unions in general and the building trade unions i particular.

They object to regulations which would set up employers' associations in the construction industry, increase the certification percentage in organizing to 65 per cent from 55 and give the labor minister power to set up a commission into industrial disputes.

A spokesman in Kitchener said up to 2,500 workers would take the day off there. In Sarnia, William Robb, president of the Sarnia Building and Construction Trades Council, estimated that 300 to 400 would travel to Toronto by train for the rally.

Labor officials in Peterborough said 50 to 60 representatives of all the building trades in the area would be taking unpaid time off to attend the protest.

Ontario's Gas Use A Problem For Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — Because of an Ontario Hydro decision to use Alberta natural gas in thermal generating plants, the provincial government will "seriously" consider placing restrictions on future export sales, it was announced Tuesday.

A. R. Patrick, Alberta mines and minerals minister, said the government should have had the opportunity of appraising the Ontario use of Alberta gas.

For one thing, he said, the government has discovered the use of gas in Alberta plants and the Ontario decision puts the government in "an awkward position.

He said it ties up several trillion cubic feet of Alberta natural gas reserves, limits exports, and puts 2,200 people out of work.

There are two implications for the petroleum industry as a whole, he said in an interview. It cuts down "good competition" and it is not "good public relations" for the future of investment.

The Grain Pours Down

Golden grain pours from a combine into a truck on a wheat farm near Regina. Although millions of bushels are harvested each year, some farmers have switched to oats, barley flax or rapeseed, because of worries over international wheat markets. (CP Photo)

October Is Grain Payoff On Prairies

REGINA (CP) — "This is the payoff," said William Kerr, one of the thousands of prairie grain farmers who work long hours each fall behind the wheel of a combine.

He races hard in Autumn to finish harvesting wheat on his 800-acre spread near Indian Head, 40 miles east of Regina, before rain and snow force him to a halt.

"It's too wet right now," said Mr. Kerr, who anticipated a good yield of top quality wheat if the weather co-operated. "I imagine it's 30 bushels to the acre."

For James Good of Perdue, in the heart of southern Saskatchewan's prime wheat lands, moments long hours and some anxious scanning of skies.

"You can't start in the morning until the dew is off," he said. "Generally, we start about 10 and quit at nine at night. But lots of people go to 10 or 11."

"We just grow Durum wheat," said Mr. Good, who expected a fine yield. "It's about 30 or 35 bushels per acre."

Harold Sauer of Bethune, northwest of Regina, took off 60 or 70 bushels of oats per acre this fall — "There was a bit of rust to it, but the yield was pretty good", — then waited for a chance to harvest his wheat. His troubles, however, aren't finished when the last of the grain is in the bins. With 70 head of cattle and 80 pigs to look after, "we can't take off for where it's warm."

"I've got quite a bit of grain on hand," said Mr. Sauer, who diversified into livestock many years ago, for protection during the lean times of grain-growing.

Recently, wheat growers have had added worries over international markets, and a backlog has built up, with some farmers jamming all their buildings with grain. Some have switched to oats, barley, flax or rapeseed, while others have stuck with trying to turn out the finest grade of wheat good land can produce.

Trudeau Visit to Russia Called Beginning of New Era

Harold Morrison, London Chief of Bureau for The Canadian Press, has been visiting Moscow in advance of Prime Minister Trudeau's proposed tour due to start Oct. 19.

By HAROLD MORRISON

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet authorities plan to give Pierre Trudeau the grand treatment when the Canadian prime minister makes his 10-day swing through this capital and outlying cities.

Editors estimate that more than a dozen Soviet reporters will join the Canadian entourage. Stories about Canada and its leader will likely blossom in Soviet publication before, during and after this first official entry by a Canadian government chief.

"It will be a milestone," said Lev Voloshin, a deputy editor of Izvestia, the government newspaper. "It is a new era, a new beginning."

This enthusiasm, echoed in interviews with other Soviet press leaders, seems to be founded on the emerging Moscow view that Canada and the Soviet Union must work together because they are Arctic neighbors with similar problems that might be easier to solve through joint effort.

Yet, as Voloshin and Vitali-mir Makhotin, deputy editor-in-chief of Novosti press agency, noted, it has not been lost on Moscow leaders that Canada is showing growing independence in world affairs.

Canada has taken independent action to negotiate diplomatic recognition of China—which the Russians describe as nothing more than recognizing the real state of affairs—and has reduced her NATO forces in Europe. In addition, differences between Canada and the United States have increased over Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic.

The fact that this latter point was raised by the Soviet editors—and it can be taken that they accurately reflect the views of those in power—suggests that Premier Alexei Kosygin will likely express a great deal of sympathy and support for Canada's Arctic policy.

In essence, Soviet policy may be one of encouraging a further weaning of Canada from the American bosom, though, as Makhotin indicated, there also is a growing Soviet curiosity over Trudeau himself which may account for the interest and importance the editors place on the Oct. 19-29 visit.

"Some girls here know all about Trudeau," Makhotin said. "He will find a good response."

How this response will be isolated was not made clear, though Soviet officials indicated that parts of the visit will be screened on Soviet television and the Canadian leader may also be invited to speak on the network if he so desires.

In terms of diplomatic treatment Trudeau will not get the same accolades as French President Georges Pompidou, who as head of state, was lodged in the Kremlin, the walled government centre in the heart of Moscow. Trudeau will be housed in a guest house in the Lenin Hills, near the towering Moscow University.

But Soviet officials feel that Trudeau's talks with Kosygin will be productive. There is much hope that a new agreement on technology co-operation will help expand Canadian-Soviet trade and more exchanges will take place in the cultural domain, such as singers, dancers, musicians and other performers.

One Soviet criticism, related by a Canadian official, is that some of Canada's best-known artists must be booked through a New York agency which controls where and when the artist will appear. There is support, among some officials in the Canadian embassy here, for the view that control of Canadian performing rights should rest primarily in Canada and that some Canadian agency should do the bookings, rather than Americans.

Probably more important to the bulk of Canadians is the question of Soviet sincerity in promoting world peace and the future of the Soviet market for Canadian exports. The Soviet Union has become a major market for Canadian wheat and the growing Soviet hunger for more consumer goods may widen the appetite of Canadian manufacturers.

"Everyone knows we buy wheat from Canada," said Makhotin. "It has enabled us not to be short of food at any time. But the welfare of Canada should not depend on continuing shortages in the U.S.S.R. Trade should be mutually beneficial. . . . "We have machinery to sell, as well as tractors, planes, trucks, vodka and champagne. We have many products to sell. Trade should always be in balance."

Canadians tell a different story. There are problems in obtaining Soviet goods. Not only Canada but other countries as well find difficulty in discovering attractive Soviet products in sufficient quantity for commercial trade or straight barter.

One story heard in Canadian quarters is the readiness by Canadians to buy a sturdy short-range Soviet plane with features which make it useful for specific bushland jobs.

Arrangements were completed to display the plane in Canada but within a week of the scheduled arrival the Russians announced they were sorry but they could not send the plane since they had no English-speaking navigators.

Canadian officials are still wondering why the Russians had a change of mind. They feel they have not been given a true explanation.

Prime Minister Plans 10-Day Trip

Prime Minister Trudeau flies non-stop from Montreal to Moscow Oct. 19 for a 10-day visit to the Soviet Union. He will stay in Moscow for meetings with Russian officials until Oct. 23 and then start a trip which will take him to Kiev, Tashkent, Samarkand, Noril'sk, Murmansk and Leningrad. (CP Newsmap)

Milk Producers Assured

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — Ontario milk producers were assured Tuesday that Quebec milk producers will probably join a proposed "supply management program" for industrial milk.

The Canadian Dairy Commission program is designed to ensure an equal sharing among producers of the higher-priced domestic market.

Producers attending an Ontario Milk Marketing Board conference of executives from county and district milk committees were worried that Quebec would not join the program—scheduled for implementation in Ontario Dec. 1.

Ontario and Quebec produce about 80 per cent of the Canadian supply of industrial milk. It must be said on either the domestic market or the lower-priced export market.

George R. McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario board, said Quebec industrial milk producers have already accepted an equalization system and expect to implement it later this year.

Teachers Say Plan 'Unjust'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Teachers' Federation has condemned the government's white paper on unemployment insurance as a stop-gap, piecemeal measure which may impede progress towards the goal of a guaranteed annual income.

A federation brief presented Tuesday to the Commons labor committee said there is a need for new legislation to alleviate poverty and hardship in Canada.

The brief took special exception to the white paper proposal to require all employees in the work force to pay insurance premiums. The federation represents 200,000 teachers across Canada.

Most teachers, the brief argued, have through negotiations acquired protection against most instances of interrupted income whether through layoff or sickness.

To require teachers, it added, to contribute to the cost of a scheme that offers no significant extra benefit is "patently unjust."

Meanwhile, spokesmen for the Canadian Welfare Council said they fear that reform o funemployment insurance mafy serve only to defuse public pressure for more basic and necessary social measures.

Council representatives told the committee they approved of most of the proposals contained in the government white paper.

But, the council brief said the reformed unemployment insurance program must be accompanied with "effective action on a guaranteed income in some form which takes account of family circumstances."

Pet Must Go

Robert G. Dompierre, 23, of nearby Point-Gatineau, Que., returns his three-foot iguana to an Ottawa pet store after receiving an ultimatum from his wife — one of them had to go. The pet store would only refund half the original cost so now Dompierre is advertising the iguana in local papers. The vegetarian eats spinich, lettuce and fruit cocktail, but is too hard on furniture. (CP Wirehoto)

Marriage and Athletics Questioned

LONDON (CP) — It started even before the time of Samson and Delilah and comes right down to the modern muscleman.

Does an athlete get rid of too much energy in bed?

The ancient question of sex-before-competition for athletes has been revived by British newspapers after a soccer manager blamed his team's poor start this season on some players being too engaged with wives.

Harry Catterick claimed the recent marriages of three players as the reason why Everton, last year's Football League champions, lost six out of their opening seven games.

"We always keep stop-watches on the players during training and the ones who married during the summer have been more sluggish than the others," he said.

Maureen Harvey, 21-year-old wife of one of the recently-wed Everton players, got into the argument by saying: "Colin takes his football very seriously and would not let anything interfere with it."

On the subject, Dr. William Masters, the American sex researcher and author of Human Sexual Response, commented "that provided the athlete has a reasonable period of one to five minutes after a sexual experience, he should be able to perform at peak physiological efficiency."

But Dr. J. L. Bloniste, president of the medical commission of the International Amateur Boxing Association, declared: "Sexual abstinence is almost essential for sporting success. Even out of training, athletes should not have intercourse more than three times a week."

Most athletes today are believed to practise abstinence of some sort before a competitive.

It is standard procedure for Italian soccer clubs to take their players into "clinics" from Thursday to Monday because they believe that sex would harm their performance in weekend matches.

Jean Lee, who has been married to English forward Francis Lee for eight years, said she can't imagine anyone dedicated to the game doing anything "silly" the night before a match.

British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper feels he has to go away for six weeks to a training camp prior to a big fight.

"It's not just sex. If you want to win a fight, you've got to go into the ring mean, and for that you've got to go without home comforts."

Stirling Moss, retired motor racing driver, said he never made love 48 hours prior to an event—"It was a matter of discipline."

"I didn't drink and I didn't smoke much, so if a race got really tough and I knew I hadn't had sex for a couple days either, I'd think, 'If anyone deserves to win, it's me.'"

But English soccer goalkeper Peter Bonetti reacted to the non-sex idea by declaring "It's a load of rubbish."

"I certainly wouldn't abstain before a game," he said. "It's a personal matter, but I wouldn't think sex the night before affect anyone's game. It has certainly never troubled me."

Dr. John Williams, a British authority on sports medicine, said: "There is absolutely no evidence to indicate the sexual exercise has any deleterious effect on sporting performance.

"Obviously an athlete can't roll out of bed onto the starting blocks and hope to set a world record, but there's no physiological reason why he should not make love the night before or even the morning before an afternoon event."

Asked why abstinence had become a fetish, he replied:

"You have to make a crucial distinction between the mind and the body. A top-class international sportsman may feel strongly that he wants no distraction of any sort before a big competition and that he can excel only if he concentrates on the big event and nothing else.

"Now if he feels like this, then sexual intercourse can be a disaster—but for psychological, not physiological reasons."

The last word on the subject goes to American baseball personality Casey Stengel, who once said: "It ain't the girls that bother the players. It's the booze they drink and the time they waste chasing them."

French Children Dig 'Me Jane' Hero

PARIS (CP) — Tarzan the ape-man, lord of the jungle, has long delighted Canadian and American children.

Now he has gained a place in the hearts of French children.

A French editor recently decided to publish the complete series by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Four volumes of the series of 26 have already appeared and the French children are literally grabbing them up—in one month 200,000 copies have been sold.

A monthly comic book has also appeared, depicting the diverse adventures of the ape-man hero Burroughs created at the age of 40, following a varied career as a special salesman, cowboy and detective.

Roman mythology relates the tale of Remus and Romulus, founders of Rome, who as children were suckled by a she-wolf.

Rudyard Kipling's famous Mowgli stories relate the adventures of a boy abandoned by his parents in India and raised by a family of wolves. Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the scout movement, borrowed from this theme to name the wolf cubs, a cadet branch of the movement.

Francois Truffault's L'Enfant Sauvage brought to the cinema the experience of a young French doctor whose attempt during the 19th century to tame a young man found naked in the Aveyron forest met with little success.

A French television station recently did a complete production on Tarzan and his c r e a t o r, featuring Johnny Weissmuller in the first Tarzan talkie film.

The presentation was followed by a debate on the question of children being brought up by animals in the jungle. The specialists and scholars debating the question were of the opinion that a child left alone among animals would not survive.

They said those older children who were abandoned by their parents and succeeded in surviving in the forest—the "child savages" such as the youngster found in Aveyron—were invariably sickly.

Tarzan, on the other hand, is a muscular athlete, a strong, handsome man. That's why he's so popular.

Reviews of the movie were more enthusiastic.

"Tarzan was bound to succeed, particularly when played on the screen by a wonderful athlete such as Johnny Weissmuller," one newspaper said.

"The reason? Because the hero draws sympathy: because he is at one time Don Quixote, El Cid and a copy of Gary Cooper: because he is the defender of orphans and the helpless."

Jean de France concurred: "It is the timeless dream of humanity for a superman, valiant and pure . . . All the children adore Tarzan."

The king of the jungle has extended his kingdom's boundaries.

Choice of Car Make, Model Question of Personal Tastes

By RAY STAPLEY
A reader writes:

"After looking around for a new car, I am quite impressed with the Toyota Crown. It seems to have everything I like, but there are so many things I don't know about this model.

"As this may be the last car I will buy, I want to be reasonably sure that I am not making a mistake.

"An opinion from a man of your experience would be appreciated." — Mr. H. W. F., Iroquois Falls, Ont.

The Toyota Crown is an exceptionally well built machine. But regardless of quality, make, design and price, keep in mind that one make of car that is suitable to some may not meet the requirements of others.

Since you know little about this import, you had better study all the specifica'ons. What is offered as standard equipment? What would be the additional cost of any optional equipment you may desire? How long is the vehicle covered under factory warranty, and what are the terms and conditions of the warranty? How does the price compare (including desired optional equipment) with other similar competitive makes?

Give the car a thorough road test in the city (and on the highway) to be sure that the performance and handling characteristics are to your liking. Establish what mileage can be expected from a gallon of fuel.

After weighing all the pros and cons, if this particular model offers everything that meets your individual needs, by all means buy it. If driven with discretion and maintained according to the instructions outlined in the owners' manual, it is likely you will enjoy years of trouble-free service.

Each year at this time when the new models make their appearance, I am besieged with requests as to which make of car is preferable. Without knowing all the facts, I could only begin to come up with a satisfactory answer. With the vast assortment of new cars available, there are many things that one must decide for himself.

The first and most important step is to examine the budget to establish what you really can afford. Next, work out how much downpayment and luggage space you require. Will it be a two or four-door, hard top or convertible? A five speed model? Would the modest power of a four or six-cylinder engine provide ample acceleration? Or do you prefer the additional surge of power provided by a V-8 power plant?

Will you buy a machine produced in North America, or do you prefer imports? Can you afford a top-of-the-line luxury liner loaded with options, or do your budget such that you must settle for lowest-priced standard models? The big question: can you really afford a new car, or would the venture lead to continuous worry and sleepless nights?

Unless you have definitely decided on the exact model and make, don't place too much emphasis on any particular make of car. Whether we select an American make, or imported compact or luxury liner depends on our budget and individual preference.

Since economy is quite keen among the car-makers, we can more or less hope for the same quality and performance regardless of the maker. Whatever the choice, the car will be made of much the same materials and constructed in about the same way as any competitive model in its price range.

The car-makers are not immune to error and the occasional new car develops more defects in the first six months than would normally occur in several years, but this may happen regardless of who produces the vehicle. However, the chances of being stuck with an out-and-out lemon today are quite remote.

For various reasons, most of us are attracted to a certain make and model, and the main thought is to be sure that is entirely suitable to you. Give it a lot of thought, but once you have made a decision, stick with it.

Womanly Women In Spring Styles

NEW YORK (AP) — The long, lean fashion mood may give way to more fullness this spring.

At Christian Dior-New York Inc., the spring collection has the look of the 1850 dream girl — the one in the big hat and full skirt, sitting on a hill smiling and waving. Dior's 1970 synthesis of that image may make the longer skirt easier to accept.

At least the Dior clothes are less jolting than the skinny mid-calf, or longer styles at the Pierre Cardin America spring collection.

At Dior, even slit tunics over pants have fullness from pleats. While hemlines remain two inches below the knee for day, and mid-calf and longer for evening, the clothes look the straight, sombre feeling.

"I hate extremely masculine clothes," says Frank Deleo, the 25-year-old designer who created the entire high-priced collection.

"When the wind comes along, those hats will sail like kites," murmured a guest.

But any woman with enough money for a hat and dress from this collection would presumably travel by limousine.

No Contempt Charges

Counsel's Summary Ends Duke-OPP Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Counsel J. J. Robinette said Tuesday there is no evidence of any links between provincial police and men of known criminal activity, either directly or indirectly through George Clinton Duke.

But Mr. Robinette, speaking on the final day of a provincial police inquiry, criticized the OPP for carelessness and lacked out at the conduct of several officers.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court, who conducted the inquiry, refused to issue contempt citations against two reluctant witnesses, including Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park.

But Mr. Robinette said he will inform the Crown attorney of Metrocolitan Toronto there may be grounds for laying charges against Dr. Shulman. The section is Section 103 of the Criminal Code, which deals with fraud or breach of trust by officials.

It was Dr. Shulman's allegations in a speech to a legislature committee June 4 that sparked the inquiry into the relationship of Mr. Duke, Oakville, Ont., businessman, with senior OPP officers and with persons of known criminal activity.

Dr. Shulman testified he received confidential information from a person he declined to identify who has access to police security files.

"A police force with confidential information in its secret files cannot operate efficiently if the contents of those files are going to be systematically leaked to a member of the house or anyone else," Mr. Robinette said.

"His (Dr. Shulman's) actions in this case have been utterly destructive. They have been destructive of the security of the OPP and the RCMP. I think he has overlooked the damage he has done."

Mr. Justice Grant said if Dr. Shulman is liable to criminal prosecution "it would be very unfair on my part to force him to disclose evidence that might later be used against him."

Mr. Justice Grant also turned down an application by John Bowlby, counsel for the Burlington police force. He wanted to ask the Ontario Court of Appeal to rule on an earlier decision not to commit Gerry McAuliffe, a reporter for the Hamilton Spectator, who also refused to name sources of evidence he gave at the inquiry.

Mr. Robinette said the inquiry heard no evidence reflecting on the integrity of the Duke Lawn Equipment Co. It was essential to be fair to Mr. Duke, who had established a prosperous business after being deported from the United States in 1942 after serving a 12-year sentence for first-degree robbery.

Mr. Robinette said the appearance of favoritism, shown by senior officers to Mr. Duke had severely damaged the morale of OPP personnel.

"If, and I only say if, there has been some interference or attempted interference on his behalf, it illustrates very dramatically the danger of a senior officer ever appearing to show favoritism to someone known in the district as being his friend."

Mr. Robinette suggested Supt. Albert Wilson had outlived his usefulness as commanding officer of Burlington OPP district headquarters.

He accused Assistant Commissioner J. L. Whitty of trying to undermine the authority of OPP Commissioner Eric Silk by interfering with Mr. Silk's order that OPP personnel should sever social connections with Mr. Duke.

He also accused Inspector Charles Wilkinson of having lied in the witness box when he testified that he had no knowledge that Christmas gifts sent to him on four successive years came from Mr. Duke's lawn equipment firm.

He had no strong censure of Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger, who was Supt. Wilson's immediate predecessor as commanding officer at Burlington and who has been suspended from the force, along with Supt. Wilson. Both men face charges under the Police Act of disobeying Mr. Silk's order.

But he asked Mr. Justice Grant to analyse carefully evidence given by another officer that Staff Supt. Rodger ordered the withdrawal of a charge of careless driving against Mr. Duke. Supt. Rodger has denied issuing the order.

Mr. Robinette said no evidence had been presented to show Mr. Duke was, or was ever intended to be, a link between the Mafia and the OPP.

"If the Mafia is as smart as it's reported to be," said Mr. Robinette, "Duke with his criminal record and propensity for nonsense would be the worst possible security risk the Mafia ever had."

He said an analysis of the financial operations of Duke Lawn Equipment Ltd. showed nothing to suggest the injection of so-called Mafia money.

He also said no police force had any association as a criminal association between Mr. Duke and three men alleged by Dr. Shulman to have links with organized crime—Daniel Gasbarrini, Johnny Papalia and Donald (Rod) LaRocque.

He had one sentence for Mr. Duke: "This man, though a good businessman, does not seem too bright in matters other than business."

Dr. Shulman's NDP colleague, James Renwick, member for Toronto Riverdale, appeared as his counsel in the discussion on a possible contempt ruling and argued it would be a violation of the privileges of an MPP to take action against him for a speech delivered in the legislature.

Mr. Renwick noted that Dr. Shulman had claimed the production of the Canada and Ontario Evidence Acts before giving his testimony and that he was protected further by a provincial law prohibiting imprisonment of an MPP for a period extending from 20 days before until 20 days after a session of the legislature.

John Weir, counsel for the OPP, said the alleged contempt was not based on Dr. Shulman's speech to the legislature committee.

He had volunteered the information before the inquiry that he was prepared to provide a list of 29 of his informants and was withholding the names of three others. He had then refused to answer questions about one of the three.

In his summation, Mr. Robinette was critical of the OPP's system of buying lawn equipment from Mr. Duke's firm after receiving estimates from him and his competitors.

He said Leonard Neil, the retired assistant commissioner who instituted the system, was a "very careful man", who purchased good mowers at reasonable prices.

"But in the hands of any person other than Mr. Neil, the estimate system could be dangerous. It may be preferable for the force to call for tenders so that there can be no misunderstanding or suspicion."

Mr. Robinette said Mr. Duke had "done several foolish things" for a successful businessman attempting to conceal an old criminal record.

His wife had charitably described his behavior as "bohemian" when he had been drinking. The evidence had shown that he could become violent and threatening, and that he had a history of driving fast and coming into conflict with traffic officers.

He owned a large gun collection, cladgun automatic weapons, which needlessly drew attention to him.

Mr. Robinette said Mr. Duke had rented a Hamilton apartment in a building owned by Gasbarrini in which Papalia was also a tenant early this year.

The choice was "unfortunate" although it was fair to say that he took the apartment to be close to another woman rather than to be close to Papalia.

Mr. Robinette began his summation by dealing with Elizabeth Citron's complaint against Mr. Duke of threatening her with a revolver, for which he was convicted in family court at Milton, Ont., last December, bound over to keep the peace and deprived of his permit to carry a restricted weapon.

He said there was no evidence that the Burlington police or law enforcement officials had neglected their duty in handling the case.

The case had been transferred to family court in good faith and in the belief that Mrs. Citron welcomed a private hearing. But it illustrated the wisdom of hearing criminal cases in open court to avoid unfounded rumors, misunderstanding and frustration by the people involved.

Dr. Shulman asked the commissioner to avoid a finding that could result in the loss of their livelihood for Supts. Wilson and Rodger. They should not bear the entire responsibility for errors by their superiors, Harvey Dailey, Mr. Duke's counsel, asked Mr. Justice Grant to try to make reparations in his findings for the damage his client's reputation had suffered during the inquiry.

Mr. Duke represented a "gigantic example" of how far the rehabilitation process can go.

INDUSTRIAL GHOST

LONDON (AP) — Workers in a box factory said the ghost of Alfred Barnes, who died 97 years ago, kept appearing as a floating brown blob to haunt the night shift assembly line. The management called in a spirit medium, but employees said the blob kept returning until they hung up a sign reading: "God bless you, Alfie."

Explosion Rocks Harvard Library

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — An explosion ripped through a library of the Centre for International Affairs at Harvard University early today, shortly after a female telephone caller warned campus police.

Archibald Cox, former U.S. solicitor-general and now a university law professor, told reporters: "It's a terrible mess up there."

Windows were blown out and a ceiling was rendered shreds of concrete and bent steel rods, Cox said.

After the call, two policemen checked the building, waited outside for a few minutes, then went inside to look for a bomb.

As they entered the front door the explosion rocked the building. Neither policeman was hurt nor were there other reports of injuries. Police said they found no one in the building.

The centre at Harvard has been criticized by some in the university community for its connection with the U.S. government and government-funded work.

Unknowns To Oppose Drapeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Drapeau, mayor of Canada's biggest and most bustling city for 15 years, will be opposed in the Oct. 25 municipal elections by six political unknowns.

At the close of nominations Tuesday noon, the seven mayoralty candidates and a total of 121 aspirants to the 52-seat city council for the next four years had filed their papers.

Mayor Drapeau's Civic Party formed in 1960 and virtually unopposed in council ever since, presented a full slate of 52 candidates. Six Civic Party members were proclaimed elected.

The electoral list for Oct. 25 contains about 695,000 names, some 200,000 fewer than the city had expected. In the 1966 election, only 31 per cent of the 980,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

SOME ALLERGIC

TOKYO (AP) — A government research institute studying chemically processed clothing said a number of Japanese girls are allergic to chemicals used to make their underwear light, tough and quick-drying.

When Is Swiss Cheese Not Swiss Cheese?

BRUSSELS (AP) — Swiss cheese remains Swiss cheese even if you take out the holes, but none adroit businessmen in East Germany found another way to transform it. They may also have pointed the way toward more trade between Eastern Europe and the West.

Recently the European Common Market ruled that the cheese isn't Swiss any more if it is shipped to East Germany, cut into portions and revamped for export.

Neither Switzerland nor East Germany belongs to the Common Market. Under an arrangement designed a dozen years ago to promote German reunification, the Common Market allows an East German product to enter West Germany free of duty or other trade restrictions. Since West Germany belongs to the Common Market, there is then no bar to its shipment to the other members as well: France, Italy, Belgium, Holland or Luxembourg.

What the Swiss can do, the East European countries might be allowed to do, if the other Common Market countries were willing. So far nothing has been said, and in private officials of the other Common Market countries say they would much rather close the East German loophole than open it wider.

At the insistence of West Germany, trade between two parts of Germany is considered a domestic matter, not subject to Common Market regulation.

If West Germany ever formally recognizes East Germany as a separate state, East Germany's access to West German markets might come to an end. So might West Germany's privileged position in trading with East Germany.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko is reported to have said that Europe could use some bridge-building between the Common Market and Comecon, its East European counterpart.

Conservative West Europeans have reacted coolly to the idea, saying any deal with Comecon would serve to strengthen Soviet ties with the smaller countries of Eastern Europe.

Not long after Gromyko's reported statement, the Soviet Union and its allies aside from Romania attacked the Common Market before the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development.

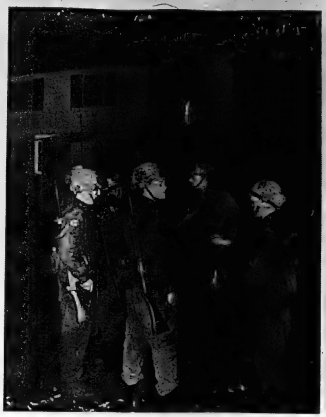
They complained that the Common Market unduly restricts trade in farm products by the heavy duties it collects on them and by its special trade agreements, especially with Mediterranean countries.

The implication behind the attack was that there should be more trade between East and West European countries.

The East Germans benefit every year by at least $100 million because of their special relationship. They can sell their surplus farm products at high Common Market prices, rather than low world prices.

Many East German farm products are eligible for Common Market export subsidies once they have entered West Germany—if they are shipped out of the Common Market area.

Crashed Seaplane Causes Fatality To Sightseer



MILTON, Ont. (CP) — One person was killed in a traffic accident and about 20 injured after the crash of a light aircraft Tuesday night beside Highway 401 just west of here.

Police said the highway accident occurred after the crash of the float-equipped aircraft, which apparently became tangled in Hydro wires. Stephen William Wood, pilot of the aircraft and the only occupant, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries.

Police withheld the name of the dead person.

Police said numerous rear-end collisions occurred after the aircraft crashed beside the eastbound land of the freeway.

Milton is 20 miles north of Hamilton.

Ida Lupino On Camera

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Long the most glamorous member of the Directors Guild of America, Ida Lupino returns to the other side of the camera in Family Affair this week.

"I like it," she admitted. "I like being able to come on a set and worry only about my own lines, instead of concerning myself with 3,000 other details."

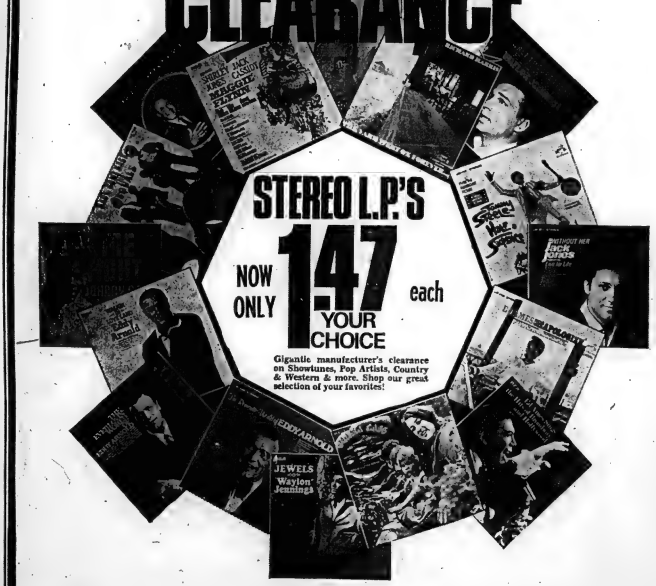
She plays a cockney barmaid turned aristocrat, an old flame of Sebastian Cabot, major domo of the Family Affair realm. Another reason she enjoyed the engagement: She and Cabot were childhood chums in London. How long ago?

"I don't know if Sebastian tells his age, but I've never tried to hide mine: I was born in 1918," said Ida. "I've always said I'd rather have people say, 'How good she looks for her age!' instead of 'She must be lying about how old she is'."

At 52 Ida Lupino has entered a new phase of an amazingly-varied career. Born to a distinguished theatrical family, she grew up in the British theatre, came to Hollywood in 1932 to play ingenues, graduated to distinction as a dramatic star. Higher Sierra, Devotion, Road House.

"I never meant to be a director," she recalled. "I had no driving ambition; it all happened quite by accident. I was making Not Wanted for our own company when the director got sick and couldn't continue. So I moved in and finished the picture. Then the backers said they wouldn't finance our next one, Never Fear, unless I directed it. So I was stuck."

Ida's acting career began to fade as she took more and more directorial assignments, first in features and then in television series. Oddly, she became typed as an action director.



"Richard Boone saw something he liked in a picture I directed called The Hitchhiker, and he wanted me to do Have Gun Will Travel," she said.

"At first I thought it was ridiculous. What would I be doing with all those horses and guns and things? I'm gun-shy myself. But Howard (her husband) encouraged me to give it a try. I loved it.

Almost All Crime Originates Within

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A large number of readers wrote in objecting to my column early this summer, where I spoke about "outside agitators" and how the community uses this scapegoat to explain away unrest among its own citizens.

Yet, at the same time I was receiving these letters, the Chicago police were arresting scores of youths in Grant Park who had rioted because of the failure of a famous rock group to show up for the performance.

The first official reaction, expectedly enough, was the "outside agitator" syndrome. It was, of course, dissident kids from other parts of the country who had come to Chicago to provoke a disturbance.

But this explanation fell apart the next morning, when it turned out that of the 60 or 60 youths booked for disorderly conduct, every one hailed from Chicago or its suburbs.

Also, at the same time, the July issue of Road and Track magazine printed a revealing paragraph along the same lines:

"In Awsworth, England, the parish council became impatient with road accidents said to be caused by drivers passing through, and asked police to make a special check on speeders. In the first week, police caught 39 residents."

In country town, or rural areas, it is always some "tramp" or a passing bum, who has committed a theft or battered one of the citizens. But if anyone is ever brought in book for these offences, it is most often some village or rustic character no one ever dreamed could be guilty of such conduct.

Every clan, or tribe, or community ascribes hostile or anti-social conduct to "outsiders" and denies that its own numbers can harbor such unlovely creatures. But the fact remains that almost all crime is endogenous; it originates within in a closed system, not from without.

Our fear of murder, for instance, is just a sophisticated version of our primitive fear of the stranger; yet all homicide statistics everywhere, even in the most populated cities, show that more than 80 per cent of murders are committed by relatives friends or acquaintances, and hardly ever by strangers. But we don't like to believe this cold truth.

We prefer to blame most of our societal woes on the outside, for this relieves us of any responsibility in reforming our own community. We blame the Russians for what is wrong in the world today; the Russians blame us. Should we become allies, we will jointly blame the Chinese — for the greatest obstacle to human unity is our unfailing need to blame the other, and by blaming him, to deny that he is in fact our brother.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I really don't know whether or not I have diabetes. Is there such a thing as "borderline diabetes"? One doctor says I have such a case. Another doctor says I haven't got diabetes at all.

As I'm a very anxious person by nature this is making me more nervous. Although no one has told me to take Insulin, don't you think it's silly for me to forego sweets when the diagnosis isn't definite? Where does one go to find out? — Mrs. K.

COMMENT: To use the word in a very broad sense, I've been especially allergic to any "borderline" diagnosis. For example, "borderline anginia," "borderline anemia," etc. Either there's enough substance present to make the diagnosis of diabetes, angina, anemia (or any other condition) or there isn't. I can't make the diagnosis on not knowing your family history, your age, your recent medical history, or the actual results of your blood sugar examinations. Ask your present doctor to refer you to an internist especially interested in the diagnosis and treatment of diabetes.

Knowing how concerned you are, I am sure your doctor will be glad to get another opinion. It's like taking a verdict to a higher court. The doctor will no doubt order a blood sugar tolerance test. If the "curve" is still doubtful and your family history is free of diabetes, chances are he will say you do not have this condition.

However, even with a negative diagnosis, and a sugar curve that isn't typical, he will suggest that you return for biyearly or yearly checkups if there is a family history of diabetes. Just to doublecheck and make certain.

Meanwhile, here's a tip: If the new doctor says you are free from diabetes, better accept his diagnosis. Forget about having a "borderline case." Otherwise you'll get dizzy ridding the medical merry go-round, seeing doctor after doctor.

For Mr. D.: How many hours is a normal night's sleep? It varies. Don't consider yourself abnormal because you get along on only six hours.

Last night I talked to a very active man of 75 who swore that he never slept more than five hours a night during his entire adult life. This morning, a successful 65-year-old businessman said, "If I didn't get my eight hours every night I'd be dead all the next day." Be thankful, Mr. D., that you need less sleep than most. It gives you a "longer lifetime".

For Mrs. E.: It is not inviolable that you will be sinsick because you are a poor sailor, and even get nauseated while riding in an automobile. Air sickness is less common than it used to be.

Planes fly high where air is less turbulent, they are well-ventilated, and comfortable. Before taking your first plane trip, eat lightly and forego excessive alcohol. Don't take a window seat. Read to divert your attention.

Ask your doctor about taking an anti-motion-sickness pill before boarding. These days it is the exception rather than the rule to see passengers become nauseated and actually sirsick.

For Mrs. E.: Check with your allergist. It's true that some skin troubles in the face may be due to reactions to chemical ingredients in shoes.

Over-Zealous Troops Trail MPs Into House

OTTAWA (CP) — Armed troops who slipped into Ottawa during the night to protect politicians and others against the possibility of kidnap or harm drew everything from howls of outrage to giggles Tuesday.

But there was nothing funny about it, or in the reason for their being here.

In groups of six, the soldiers were deployed around the homes of cabinet ministers, civic leaders, former prime minister Lester Pearson, Conservative Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and the members of the senior courts of the land.

The RCMP had requested their aid as a supplemental force in preserving the security of the capital area following a week of stepped-up activity after the kidnappings last week in Montreal of James Cross and Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Cross, British trade representative in Montreal, was taken from his home Oct. 5 and Mr. Laporte, provincial labor minister, from outside his home Saturday evening.

Since then threats have been received from the Front de Libération du Quebec against federal cabinet ministers as well as against Quebec medical specialists, themselves threatening to strike against implementation of a medical care insurance program in the province Nov. 1.

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) stormed through the House of Commons when it was learned over-zealous soldiers were following their charges into parliamentary offices, complete with FN rifles or Sten sub-machine-guns.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald had to apologize to the House and assure Mr. Aiken it was all a mistake and that the soldiers would be ordered out of the Parliament Buildings forthwith.

Even then it took some time to accomplish because the guards had scattered through the Centre Block and their superiors had no idea where to reach them—and the soldiers weren't giving up their missions without direct orders.

One took a minute to avail himself of the men's room down the hall from the office of the minister he was guarding and got locked out of the office.

Secretaries in another office tried to spirit their soldier out from under the inquiring cameras of a Canadian Press photographer, only to deliver the bewildered trooper out a side door right into the camera's lens.

A third almost made it on to the floor of the Commons behind Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford.

By lunch time though the problem was solved, the soldiers back outside the sacred buildings and the RCMP and Commons security guards securely back in control of the situation.

But on the streets, in driveways, behind bushes and in unlikely spots throughout the city, the helmeted guardians had become objects of curiosity—especially to the youngsters.

It became easy to spot where the mighty of the land live—they had rifle barrels sprouting out of bushes from which the natural camouflage was fast disappearing with the coming of winter.

A paper boy making his rounds with his hands in his paper bag in exclusive Rockcliffe Park, where many of the guarded live, stepped around a bush as he cut across a lawn to find himself staring down a rifle barrel in the hands of a startled trooper.

The girls—daughters and friends of those being protected—giggled at the idea of being looked after by the army.

"I think it's neat," said one boy.

Trudeau Defends Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday that "only weak - kneed bleeding hearts" would be afraid to go the limit to stop people trying to run the country by kidnapping and blackmail.

The interview was sort of a challenge from CBC reporter Tim Ralfe to Mr. Trudeau, asking the prime minister to defend the use of troops.

Mr. Ralfe asked whether the prime minister would go to the extent of wiretapping, or reducing other civil liberties to protect citizens.

"Yes, I think that society must take every means at its disposal to defend itself against the emergence of a parallel power which defies the elected power in the country, and I think that goes to any distance," Mr. Trudeau replied.

"So long as there is power here which is challenging the elected representatives of the people, then I think that power must be stopped, and I think it's only . . . weak-kneed bleeding hearts who are afraid to take these measures."

Term Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Following is the text of the Commons exchange Tuesday between Prime Minister Trudeau and Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield on the terrorist kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Stanfield: Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the prime minister whether there is any further information he can give at this time with regard to the kidnapping cases. I ask this question in full knowledge of the possible delicacies of the position and responsibilities of the prime minister.

Mr. Trudeau: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the way in which the question was asked and I shall attempt to answer it as best I can.

I think the smallest to say is there is complete agreement between the government of Quebec and the government of Canada on the position taken by Premier Bourassa yesterday afternoon when he made it quite clear that the only thing that had to be done now was to ensure through negotiations that there be a mechanism established for the release of Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte. This is the thing that has to be established at the outset.

I might add that on the general topic I can only express an opinion. I do sometimes wish that the media, the radio, television and press, would exercise a bit more restraint in talking about these problems. It is a mistake I think to give them the publicity which is the thing they hope for most. I also think it is a mistake to encourage the use of the term "political prisoners" for men who are bandits.

Ten Persons Thought to Be In FLQ Cells

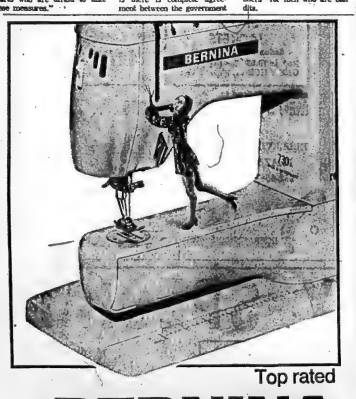
MONTREAL (CP) — No one knows the exact size of the Front de Liberation du Quebec organization responsible for the kidnappings of James (Jasper) Cross and Pierre Laporte.

The known essential fact in the kidnap case is that authorities face this problem: How to obtain the safe return of the kidnapped men without leaving the door open to further terrorist blackmail acts.

Although the kidnappings of Mr. Cross Oct. 5, and Mr. Laporte, Oct. 10, put into motion the most elaborate security apparatus since Second World War times, the FLQ terrorists at work may number less than a dozen.

Police are reported to be looking for 10 "prime suspects."

Since terrorism by sporadic dynamite bombings started in Quebec in 1963, investigators are believed to have infiltrated to some degree the circles of different generations of FLQ activitists. The 10 suspects have not been seen lately in their usual haunts.



The extent of police surveillance was shown this spring when police nipped in the bud plots to kidnap Israeli and United States consuls at Montreal.

But the furtive FLQ carried off successfully last week the kidnapping of Mr. Cross, senior British trade commissioner in Montreal, and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

The FLQ is thought to have broken up its active groups into small, independently-operating cells after 1963 bombings were put to a halt by 21 arrests.

There would be little surprise if police rounded up the kidnappers at any time even though such action might require great skill to protect the victims.

But it would not be surprising either if the FLQ kidnap hideouts escape detection for some time because of the size of Montreal.

Unemployment Improving But Benson Predicts 'Hard Winter'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson says he expects a steady improvement in Canada's unemployment picture and has announced plans to pump an additional $60 million into the economy to create employment.

Speaking during debate on the throne speech Tuesday, Mr. Benson said, however, that although unemployment is improving it will be a difficult winter.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said later at a news conference the government had accepted high unemployment and this was inexcusable.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) said in the Commons Mr. Benson's speech was a "recitation of the failures of government policy."

The majority Liberal government survived an NDP non-confidence motion 146 to 26 at the conclusion of the day's sitting.

Only the Creditistes voted with the NDP. The Conservatives supported the government. Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 155, Conservatives 72, NDP 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 1.

The motion said that the government has failed to deal effectively with the "threat to Canadian independence created by the growing foreign ownership of our economy." The government had also failed to reduce unemployment and to introduce a guaranteed income "below which no Canadian family will be allowed to fall."

The Conservatives also have moved a non-confidence motion but it will be voted on later in the eight-day throne debate, which continues today.

Mr. Benson acknowledged that though employment is improving the winter will be hard. "We shall need a substantial annual rate of real growth before any marked improvement in the unemployment rate will be forthcoming."

He said the rate of growth will probably reduce unemployment significantly over the next year.

The government plans to introduce a supplementary spending estimate in the Commons to cover the additional $60 million to ease unemployment, he said.

The manpower department would get one third of the amount for manpower training programs, about $12 million would go to capital projects regions where unemployment is high and $25 million would be given to various federal departments for operations and maintenance tasks earlier postponed.

The finance minister said budgetary revenues were down $30 million and expenditures up $350 million, leading to a projected deficit of $120 million this year instead of the original estimate of a $250 million surplus.

Extra measures taken by the government since June had added $200 million to budgetary expenditures. This increase in spending was stimulating the economy.

Mr. Benson said that the government has been "rewarded in our struggle against inflation." The consumers price index, excluding food, increased at an annual rate of 2.3 per cent this year, down from almost five per cent through most of 1969.

Canadian exports were showing strength with a growth of nine per cent in the first half of 1970 compared with seven per cent in the last half of 1969.

The finance minister said that he could not see any evidence of a sk'ing down in the rate of increase in wages.

"I believe that the pressures in the economy emanating from this fact are the most important single obstacle to the resumption of the faster rates of growth with high employment and steady price which we all want."

Mr. Stanfield said outside the House immediate steps such as a wi'nter works program should be taken to ease unemployment. The government should also act restraining high wage and price increases through conciliating talks with business and labor leaders.

Mr. Burton said the government was not concerned about the working men. The finance minister had commented on wage but not on "sharp increases in profits."

Philip Givens (L—York West) said he was happy with the throne speech and "for the first time in two years here I can honestly say I feel at home in this House."

He said he was pleased with the government's decision to set up a department of housing and urban affairs. A move he had advocated.

But any stop by the federal government to deal with urban affairs without participation of the provinces and municipalities would fail.

Rosh LaSalle (PC—Joliette) said loans should be provided to allow persons with incomes of less than $10,000 to get mortgages at five or six per cent.

Guy Leblanc (L—Rimouski) said opposition criticism of the throne speech was negative. He said the national farm marketing bill had died in the last session because of destructive opposition.

New Postal Contract Rejected in Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The new postal contract endorsed by national negotiators was rejected by Windsor postal workers in weekend voting, it was announced by union officials Tuesday.

Final acceptance or rejection of the new pact, however, rests with the total national vote of the workers.

Joseph Fram, president of the Windsor Letter Carriers Union which represents about 150 workers, said about 60 per cent of the local voted and 75 per cent of them said no to the new contract.

Claude Oulmet, a trustee for the Windsor local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers which represents about 180 inside workers, said about 71 per cent of his local voted and about 74 per cent of them said no.

Both Mr. Fram and Mr. Oulmet said they expected the contract to be approved when the national totals are counted.

Regan's Win Assures His Political Fate

HALIFAX (CP) — "Now we're number one, now we're number one," chanted jubilant party workers and party stalwarts as Nova Scotia Liberal Leader Gerald Regan arrived at a victory celebration late Tuesday after his party had snatched a narrow Nova Scotia election victory from the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Regan, accompanied by his wife and campaign advisers, emerged from a black limousine outside a downtown hotel to a chorus of chants and hand-shaking from the faithful.

Inside, pandemonium reigned as the party leader was escorted through the lobby into a jammed reception hall where a bar was doing a land-office business.

"Is somebody getting married?" asked a bewildered hotel guest as she was swept up in the revelry.

For Mr. Regan, his position still uncertain after a stunning comeback which saw his party elect 23 members to 21 for the PCs and one for the New Democratic Party, it was the culmination of a driving campaign which many predicted would determine his political fate. His party held only five of the 46 seats in the last house.

There were indications that he was drawing a parallel with the narrow defeat of the St. Laurent government by the Conservatives under John Diefenbaker in 1957 and the subsequent change of government in Ottawa.

"We came a long way today —from the bottom to the top," Mr. Regan said to workers in his Halifax Needham constituency. Later while driving to the hotel, he confided that he had predicted 18 seats for his party the night before the election.

He strayed away from questions on what position his party would take, pointing to two ridings where recounts were indicated. He was waiting for a "clarifying statement from the premier."

He conceded that "if we are called on to form a government policy," we can form one with 23 members—if we are called on." A fall session of the legislature would then be called "to deal with the priorities in our platform."

Mr. Regan felt the 60,000 new voters on the rolls as a result of the lowering of the voting age to 19 by the legislature last spring went heavily in his favor in the Halifax-Dartmouth metropolitan area, where Liberals won nine out of 10 seats from the PCs.

Throughout the campaign Mr. Regan met with University Students on campuses reiterating that the province was facing its "most crucial decade of development."

For the 41-year-old labor lawyer from Windsor, N.S., it was his second election as Liberal leader. The Liberals lost power to the Conservatives under Robert Stanfield in 1956 after 23 years in office.

His political career began with a bid for election to a seat in the Nova Scotia legislature. Running in Hants West he was defeated by 108 votes. In a second attempt he lost by 218 votes.

Three years later Mr. Regan won his first electoral contest—gaining a Halifax seat in the House of Commons in the 1963 election.

After two years in Ottawa he returned to Nova Scotia to lead the provincial Liberal party. He guided the members from the gallery until 1967 when he won a seat in the provincial house.

As Mr. Regan, accompanied by three of his five children, was driven to his constituency headquarters late Tuesday, he credited his wife's vigorous campaigning in his home riding for ensuring the healthy 1,628 majority.

Carole, a slender brunette, is no stranger to politics. Her father, John Harrison, was the Liberal member of Parliament for Meadow Lake, Sask., from 1940 to 1958.

Potter's Plan Endorsed

Ontario to Integrate Hospital and Health Plans in 1972

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts told the Ontario Legislature Tuesday that hospital and health insurance plans in the province will be combined in a single, integrated plan of health care. The proposal is one which has been advocated by Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter for two years.

Robarts said a health commission, to be implemented July 1, 1972, and called the Ontario Health Insurance Commission, will combine the functions of the Ontario Services Commission, the Health Insurance Registration Board and the health services insurance division of the health department.

He said the commission will be responsible for administrating health insurance and developing the public hospital system.

The commission will assume work previously done by service agents associated with OHSIP and Ontario residents will pay only a single premium, Mr. Robarts added.

Another topic of conversation in the legislature Tuesday was provincial education costs.

During the debate Education Minister William Davis said he would maintain a policy of using Canadian authors and Canadian contents in school textbooks.

Mr. Davis also discussed the future of post-secondary education in the Thunder Bay area and the debate saying a report now in process will likely suggest Lakehead University and community colleges in the area work together more.

Criticized by Liberal Opposition Leader Robert Nixon for preventing the Toronto and North York borough school boards from setting up religion courses, Mr. Davis said his department is preparing guidelines for school boards anxious to introduce courses on comparative religion at the secondary-school level.

In the same discussion, Donald MacDonald, former NDP leader, said the government has no "real philosophy of education" but reacts to pressures with inefficient and costly programs.

He called for a broader education system and a new emphasis on either post-secondary institutions, or in-plant training.

In other business:

—George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, tabled a list of Hamilton and Toronto firms and institutions told to cut back emissions last week because of high air-pollution counts.

—Mr. Robarts said Ontario would balk at accepting a national securities commission if it means giving up more of its power to the federal government when asked by Mr. Nixon why the province had opposed the commission.

—Mr. Robarts also told the legislature that the province did not provide a forecast of its requirements before the federal sale of natural gas to the United States and did not believe the province was even consulted.

—Attorney General Arthur Wishart said he was considering tabling a report on crime in the construction industry but felt that some members would regret it.

—Highways Minister Irwin Haskett, when asked how the province plans to control cars from outside the province when the ban on studded tires goes into effect, said at the time the law was passed he thought other provinces would follow suit.

—Traffic Jam, a children's game accused of being dangerous last week by Hugh Peacock (NDP—Windsor West) was declared safe by the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs.

—Agricultural Minister William Stuart said the province has no plans to include spot damage under its crop insurance program, when asked by Murray Gaunt (L—Huron Bruce).

Quebec's Specialists Reject Bourassa Plea to Return

MONTREAL (CP) — With signs of strain beginning to show on emergency hospital facilities, the province's striking medical specialists said Tuesday they are not yet ready to return to work and rejected a call from the provincial premier to do so.

Premier Robert Bourassa made a plea to the specialists to return to their jobs in view of "this difficult period we are going through." The government presently is wrapped up in finding a solution to the release of two officials kidnapped last week.

The specialists said Mr. Bourassa's request was a call for "unconditional surrender."

They said Tuesday night the federation is informing its members of the premier's request and would transmit a reply to the government as soon as the members have been polled.

Meanwhile, Montreal hospitals reported that emergency services are up to deal with the walkout by 75 per cent of the province's 4,000 medical specialists were showing strain under an influx of patients.

One medical director said "I don't know how much longer we can manage. We've had to pull staff from everywhere to handle the mob."

In Quebec City, a health department spokesman said a special session of the national assembly may be called within a few days to pass legislation ordering the specialists to maintain normal services.

In its daily report on the strike which began last Thursday, the health department said Tuesday the situation "threatens to become critical in the next 24 hours."

The specialists began withdrawal of their services early last week and escalated to a major withdrawal by Thursday to support demands for changes in the province's medical care insurance law. The government has said it wants the plan implemented by Nov. 1 at all costs.

The health department official said the situation is "deteriorating steadily," with the number of patients increasing gradually in hospitals where the specialists are providing emergency services.

Thirty-eight of the province's 250 hospitals have been designated by the specialists as emergency centres, 13 of them in the Greater Montreal area.

The health department spokesman said that if the number of patients at the designated hospitals continues to increase, the government will have to call a special meeting of the national assembly to cope with the now "very complicated" situation.

Legislation ordering the specialists back to work has already been prepared for use if the population is endangered. Its contents have not been made public.

In his appeal Tuesday Mr. Bourassa said:

"In this difficult period we are going through, the smooth functioning of essential services seems an obvious necessity for the public.

"Every Quebecer who works in these services, at one level or another, should assume fully the responsibility which falls to him so that order will reign in our society.

"Also, I anticipate that every medical specialist will continue or resume . . . his professional activities."

Dr. Harvey Barkun, medical director of the Royal Victoria where emergency services are being given, said emergencies Tuesday were more than three times the usual daily volume of about 60 patients.

He said that unless a patient is considered an extreme emergency, he faces a long wait before examination.

The Montreal General issued a statement Tuesday asking the public to "respect the prior need of emergency and urgent cases."

A spokesman for the hospital said "everyone thinks he's an emergency and things are really starting to get a little out of hand."

Meanwhile, the medical director of the Queen Elizabeth said four specialists on his staff have submitted permanent resignations and have moved to Ontario.

Despite the seriousness of the specialist strike, it has been pushed into the background following the kidnap last Saturday of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, the premier's right-hand man in the cabinet. That kidnapping followed the abduction more than a week ago of British diplomat James Cross.

However, the growing concern in the specialist strike may force the government to return its attention more fully to the dispute.

Gotcha!

Baltimore Orioles' third-baseman Brooks Robinson continued to amaze the Cincinnati Reds and the baseball world Tuesday with his hot glove. Here Robinson robs Reds' catcher Johnny Bench of a sixth-inning hit. The Orioles dumped Cincinnati 9-3 to take a commanding 3-0 Series' lead. (AP Photo)

Brooks' Bat Overlooked By Glove-baffled Reds

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cincinnati Reds are so mesmerized by the fielding of Brooks Robinson that they fail to realize that the Baltimore Oriole third baseman is also helping to club them senseless with his bat.

The 33-year-old Robinson has made a sensational play in each of Baltimore's three sunlight World Series victories over the Reds.

After the second game in Cincinnati Sunday, Reds' manager Sparky Anderson said Robinson was the difference in two consecutive one-run decisions and that Cincinnati would have won both had it been for Brooks.

Brooks came up with another spectacular play Tuesday. The victim this time was Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, with Robinson diving to his left to spear a low liner for the final out of the sixth inning.

Robinson, a 10-time Golden Glove winner as the best fielding third baseman in the American League, said during a post-game interview that when he talks salary, the Orioles never say anything about his fielding —"They just want to know how I hit."

BROOKS ROBINSON

The Reds have yet to comment on Robinson's offensive contributions:

—A seventh-inning homer which broke a tie and won the opener 4-3.

—An RBI single which tied the score in the fifth inning of the second game. Brooks scored the final run of the five-run rally, the one which meant victory in a 6-5 decision.

—Two doubles, the first driving in Baltimore's two first-inning runs in Tuesday's 9-3 rout.

Dave McNally, who hurled a complete game and slugged a grand-slam homer, and Frank Robinson with two singles and a homer, shared the hero honors Tuesday with Brooks.

"I liked my hitting better than my pitching," said McNally, who allowed nine hits while becoming the first pitcher ever to hit a World Series grand slam and the 12th player on the all-time list.

The Orioles now have won 17 games in a row including the last 11 of the regular season and three straight over Minnesota Twins in the American League playoffs.

Orioles Within One Victory Of Stopping Big Red Machine

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sparky Anderson wasn't throwing in the towel today, but he had to be wondering from which direction the next Baltimore Orioles punch would come-and whether it would be a World Series knockout blow to his reeling Cincinnati Reds.

"It ain't over yet, but it's getting awful close," the Cincinnati manager murmured Tuesday after the Orioles, striking with brute force from expected and unexpected sources, floored the Reds 9-3 to soar within one victory of their second series sweep in five years.

Jim Palmer, who beat Nolan 4-3 in the series opener last Saturday, was Baltimore pick Earl Weaver's choice to try for the take-out-and the 11th four-game sweep in the 67-year history of baseball's main event.

"I like to walk out a winner, but if I'm a loser, even in four games, I won't go out with my head down," Anderson said after Tuesday's lopsided setback to a Baltimore team which has won its last 17 games—11 at the end of the regular season, three in the American League playoffs against Minnesota and three more in the series.

"I remember a man named Walter Alston who got beat four straight and he's still walking around with his head high."

The Orioles shocked Alston's favored Los Angeles Dodgers with a four-game series blitz in 1966, outpitching Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Claude Osteen in the process.

This time, they have outpitched, outhit and-doe primarily by the sensational play of third baseman Brooks Robinson-outfielded one of the strongest National League series contenders in recent years.

As far as Weaver is concerned, the Orioles could be doing even better-at least in the one department.

"I really don't honestly feel that any of our three starting pitchers have had their best stuff," he said after McNally scattered nine hits while adding a second post-season victory to 34 in regular American League play. "When they do, they pitch shutouts."

Neither Weaver nor any of the 31,773 bird-watchers at Memorial Stadium Tuesday could find fault with McNally's hitting and the stickwork of the Robinson, Buford and Paul Blair.

"They're hitting the nests awful best," Anderson sighed. "They're getting them up there we can't catch 'em."

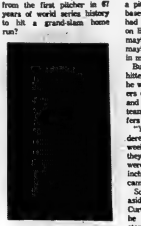
McNally became the first pitcher in series history to hit a grandslam homer when he unloaded into the left field bleachers off Reds relief ace Wayne Granger in the sixth inning to give Baltimore an 8-1 lead. It was the 12th grand-slam in series play.

Frank Robinson, hitless in the Orioles' two one-run victories at Cincinnati last weekend, broke loose with two singles and a third-inning home run off losing pitcher Tony Cloninger that cleared the centre field fence.

Brooks Robinson, a hitting and fielding standout from the outset of the best-of-seven classic, cracked two doubles, the first one for two runs in the first inning. Buford bounced over the right field fence in the fifth and Blair stroked two singles and a double, for a total of six hits in 12 series at-bats.

Boog Powell, who had clubbed two homers and delivered four runs in the first two games, went 0-for-3-and was hardly missed.

"With this club," said Frank Robinson, "you never feel the load is all on your shoulders. If one fellow doesn't do it, another will."



The Reds' heads also were shaking over spectacular plays by Brooks Robinson and second baseman Davey Johnson that helped back them into a dark corner from which no other club in series history has been able to escape.

Brooks took a bit away from backers Johnny Bench in the sixth when he sprawled headlong to snare the Cincinnati slugger's vicious line drive in the webbing of his glove. Johnson made a leaping, backhand stab of a third inning liner, ticketed for extra bases, off Rose's bat.

McNally Hit Slam With Borrowed Bat

What else would you expect from the first pitcher in 67 years of world series history to hit a grand-slam home run?

DAVE McNALLY

"Hey, I'm a hitter," giggled McNally in the giddiness of the Baltimore Orioles' dressing room after he had pitched —and batted—the Birds to a 9-3 romp Tuesday for their third straight series victory over Cincinnati.

To tell the truth, McNally isn't really a hitter.

"Oh, I'm about average for a pitcher," he said after his bases-loaded sixth-inning shot had put the finishing touches on Baltimore's victory. "I hit maybe .140 or .150. I've had maybe seven or eight homers in my career."

But McNally is enough of a hitter to know the kind of bat he wants to swing. Most pitchers don't have their own bats and must borrow them from batting practice. But McNally prefers to order his own models.

"Yeah, a whole bunch I ordered got here about three weeks ago," he said. "But they came in wrong. They were too short. I ordered 36 inches and 34 ounces. They came 36-36."

So McNally put the bad bats aside and borrowed one from Curt Motton. That's the one he was wielding when he stepped in to face Wayne Granger, the Reds' relief ace, in the sixth inning.

McNally's slam was the 12th in World Series history and the first ever by a man who earns his salary pitching.

Knicks Open Right

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Knickerbockers successfully launched defence of their National Basketball Association championship Tuesday night with a 114-108 victory over the Boston Celtics while Chicago Bulls proved a rude host in whipping San Diego Rockets 111-96.

The Knicks, who defeated the Los Angeles Lakers in seven games in 1969-70 for their first NBA crown, outscored the Colts 42-27, built a commanding 71-54 halftime lodge and then staved off a belated Boston surge before 18,838 fans.

Willis Reed collected 35 points in leading the Knicks.

Bob Love and Chet Walker provided the scoring punch with 28 points apiece in Chicago's conquest of San Diego. The Bulls opened a 27-point advantage in the third quarter after leading at halftime 56-45.

Bronx Boys Back; Hawks Sign Stapleton

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

National Hockey League players who held out in training camp for bigger contracts apparently prefer to settle their differences at the box office rather than in action once the season gets under way.

Three such holdouts ended their contract disputes with their clubs Tuesday and agreed to terms, less than a week after the NHL season opened.

Defenceman Brad Park and centre Walt Tkaczuk, two of the younger stars with New York Rangers, have signed contracts after missing the opening game of the season against St. Louis Blues.

PAT STAPLETON

Park, in his second year in the league last season, made the NHL's first all-star team while Tkaczuk was New York's leading scorer with 77 points. The two are the last of four Ranger players who have agreed to terms after contract disputes. Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield signed last week.

Another holdout, defenceman Pat Stapleton of Chicago Black Hawks, signed a three-year contract Tuesday with the Hawks, now of the NHL's Western Division.

Meanwhile on the ice, Montreal Canadiens, using three power-play goals, the last at 12:29 of the third period, beat Detroit Red Wings 4-3 for their second consecutive victory. The loss was the second in three starts for the Wings.

Montreal right winger Yvan Cournoyer got two of the power-play goals for the Canadiens and centre and captain Jean Beliveau got the third. Montreal's other goal was scored by Henri Richard.

The Wings got a first-period goal by Alex Delvecchia while the teams were each a man short. Gordie Howe and Peter Stemkowski scored the other goals for Detroit on power plays in the third period.

Delvecchio's goal, the first of the game and his second for the season, came 65 seconds after play started. Cournoyer tied the score at 6:38 four seconds later after Dale Rolfe of Detroit was sent off for tripping.

Cournoyer counted his second power-play goal at 4:38 of the second period, 67 seconds after Gary Unger went off for tripping. Richard scored early in the third period to give Montreal a 3-1 lead.

Howe narrowed the lead following a penalty to Paul Tardif but Beliveau made it 4-3 by tipping in Cournoyer's slapshot behind Detroit goalie Roy Edwards.

Stemkowski once again brought Detroit to within a one-goal spread when he beat Rogatien Vachon with a shot that glanced off the goal post.

TEST Facing Supreme Test

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — The Territorial Experimental Ski Training program (TEST) faces a critical shortage of funds and coach Bjorger V. Pettersen has asked Canadians for help.

Backing his plea with a promise that he will personally donate $2,000 to the cause, Petterson says the program must continue because it is a key that can unlock the human potential of the Indian, Eskimo and Metis people of the North.

The program has a 1970-71 budget of $52,118. It has been promised $20,000, but more than $30,000 must be raised for research, development and racing.

The program had its beginnings in 1965 and young Indians greeted it as enthusiastically, that in 1967 the federal department of health and welfare financed the TEST plan.

More than 250 Indian, Eskimo and Metis youngsters now are taking part in the program, training up to six days a week.

Bing Crosby Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner
"SHAFT AT TOP

to target

At the top of the backswing with the longer clubs, the clubshaft should be approximately horizontal to the ground. If a variation is made from this, "err" on the short rather than the long side. If the shaft dips below horizontal, you've probably lost control by loosening your left hand grip.

The shaft should point slightly to the right of the target. This indicates a good shoulder-turn in the backswing and a properly upright swing. If the shaft points to the left of the target, you've swung from or too flat a plane. If it points farther than slightly to the right of the target, you have probably overswung.

Five Could Rush 1,000 Yards

TORONTO (CP) — For the first time since 1961, as many as five Canadian Football League players may reach the 1,000-yard rushing plateau.

The CFL's weekly statistics released Tuesday show Hugh McGinnis of Calgary Stampeders, Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions, George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders and Bill Symons and Dave Raimey of Toronto Argonauts all within reach of the 1,000-yard mark.

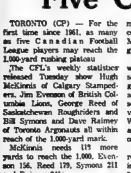
McGinnis needs 175 more yards to reach the 1,000. Evenson 156, Reed 179, Symons 211 and Raimey 241.

Evenson has four games remaining, including tonight's contest against the Alouettes in Montreal. The others have three games left.

If Reed reaches the plateau, it will be his seventh consecutive season with 1,000 or more yards gained by rushing. For Evenson, it would be his third consecutive year. Raimey previously reached the mark with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1963 and 1966 and Symons made it once in 1968.

Reed also is on his way to reaching the 10,000-yard mark in career rushing. So far, he has 9,807 yards in 1,934 carries. The league record is held by former Calgary and Edmonton rusher Johnny Bright who picked up 10,909 yards in 1,969 carries during 13 seasons.

Another milestone about to be surpassed is in the field goal department where Larry Robinson of the Stampeders needs just two more to pass the career record of 118 set by Don Sutherin, former Ottawa Rough Rider.



Robinson currently ranks fifth among the Western Conference season scoring leaders with 59 points on 22 converts, 10 field goals and seven singles.

JIM THORPE

Thorpe Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts said Tuesday he may have to suspend flanker Jim Thorpe because he "simply refuses medical attention."

"He's like all these track men —they don't want anyone messing around with their legs," Cahill said of Thorpe who suffered knee damage in Saturday night's Canadian Football League interlocking game against British Columbia Lions.

"If we can cure his condition, OK," Cahill said. "But if we can't he's suspended without pay."

Meanwhile, flanker Billy Gambrell, who played seven years in the National Football League with St. Louis Cardinals and Detroit Lions, is on a five-day tryout with the Eastern Conference Argos.

Als Could Even East-west Record

MONTREAL (CP) — East meets West for the last time in the 1970 Canadian Football League schedule tonight as Montreal Alouettes play host to British Columbia Lions at the Autostade.

The game is important for both teams currently out to snap losing streaks.

A win for Montreal would break a five-game losing streak and give the Eastern Football Conference an even split in their 20 games with Western Conference teams.

The Lions are 1-2 against eastern opposition with the Alouettes are 2-2 against western competition.

The Alouettes' losing streak takes in the two games they dropped on their westerns wing last week. The Lions suffered their fourth consecutive loss last Saturday when they were whipped 50-7 by Toronto Argonauts in Toronto.

The Alouettes will have a new slotback in action tonight, Bruce Van Ness, a six-foot four-inch 225-pounder from Rutgers University, replaces Dick Smith, traded Tuesday to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Smith was sent to the Blue Bombers for a player to be named later.

Van Ness is a qualified quarterback, running back and has wrekked as a tight end. He had tryouts with Atlanta Falcons and Dallas Cowboys, both of the National Football League.

Montreal has played 10 games for a 6-4 record and has points while Toronto and Hamilton, tied with the Als for first place in the EFC, have played 11 games.

The Als, who have not made the playoffs since 1965, could clinch a spot in the post season activities with a win over B.C. tonight.

Als coach Sam Etcheverry said his club isn't under-estimating the Lions, despite the result in Toronto.

"It was a combination of Toronto playing well offensively and a poor defensive effort by B.C.," he said. "But, you can bet they will be up for this one and we have to be prepared."

Lions coach Jackie Parker said Ted Gerela, B.C. placement kicker, will not start as a defensive half against Montreal. Gerela drew his first assignment as a defensive back against Toronto.

He suffered a leg injury in the game, but Parker said he hoped it would not keep the WFC's scoring leader from his kicking chores.

The game will be televised on the national network of the CBC starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

Junior Hawks Pacing Little Wings In Second

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks and Hamilton Red Wings were tied for second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings after both won games Tuesday.

St. Catharines defeated Montreal Junior Canadiens 6-3 at home, breaking an unbroken two-year string of losses against the Canadiens, while at Hamilton the Red Wings came from behind to beat Niagara Falls Flyers 6-3.

At St. Catharines, Marcel Dionne and Clyde Simon each got two goals for the Hawks. Bob Peppler and Bob MacMillan each had one.

Richard Martin, Robert Lalonde and Richard Lemieux replied for Montreal.

Play was hampered throughout the game due to a heavy fog over the ice.

In Hamilton, Tommy Williams paced the Wings with two goals while Bob Neely, Randy Osborne, Rick Kehoe and Eddie Gilbert each got one before 1,045 home fans.

There I was, trying to work out solutions to major problems like how to straighten the pin on the back of my Argonaut booster button when this 15-ounce piece of mail-iron mushfaced itself on my desk.

Either that is a gift paperweight or I have written once too often about my innate dislike of the Montreal Canadiens, says I to myself.

Andre Mercier was an alternative that had not crossed my mind.

"What do you ting of dat?" he gestured at the six-inch hunk of steel in his inimitable Laurentian tones.

I replied to Andy that I thought his contribution was very nice, as far as 15-ounce red pieces of cast-iron go, but would not venture a guess as to what model purpose it might be employed.

Forcemeat is my mind was to avoid hurting Andy's feelings. This specimen could have been anything from part of the prow of Jacques Cartier's ship to the pendulum of some far-fetched timepiece Monsieur Mercier was concocting in his Victoria Avenue lair.

I relaxed when Andy told me he had just made me a gift of the metal knave of a Comic Mack Stadium nest. I was, naturally, overwhelmed.

Here was something to go right up on the mantel beside my treasured pigeon egg, laid by a dove believed to have once roosted on Babe Ruth's plaque in Yankee Stadium centrefield.

But I was missing Andy's account as how he came into possession of such a rare item.

". . . . . so my son and I tot we'd go down to Philadelphia to watch dee Expo. It was dee las' game to be played in Comic Mack Stadium, you know, an everyone took something home wit 'im.

"Dey tore hop do seats and everyting; id even saw dis wan big guy carry out a toilet bowl!"

My 15-ounce hunk of metal was looking better all the time.

In addition to being a charter Expo supporter, Andy has also been known to larver Montreal Canadiens, a hockey team of his founding race.

I leaped at the opportunity to seek an inside opinion of the 1968-71 chances of the depleted Canadiens' roster.

"Wasi — dey will miss Fergy and Backstrom, and Daff — but dey have plenty of reserve. Guys like Savard, you know.

"He, sure — dey'll be in de playoff.

"HIT bet a nickel hon it!"

It could be the best five cents Andy ever spent.

Monsieur Mercier was the only one around the Memorial Arena who could pronounce the names of two Belleville Mo-Hawk prospects this week.

Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones would give his Green Bay Packer sweatshirt for a consistent goal-scorer.

Since the weekend, Jones has been watching a pair of ever-age Quebec juniors work out. Winger Gaetan Higgins and centre Serge Fournier dazzled the Junior B Fairways with their skating and shooting last night when they got permission to join the practice in the absence of Mo-Hawk ice time.

"I'd like to give them a shot in our games with Galt this weekend," said Jones. Both kids played their positions extremely well in our practice Monday. They have to go home Thursday but I'd like to see them back at the weekend."

General manager Robert Temple also imported a surprise for Saturday's Mo-Hawk practice session in the person of Leslie Farkas (pronounced "ah"). The Montreal tool-and-die maker was a defenceman for the Hungarian national team until last December, when he skipped the Iron Curtain life while visiting Denmark.

"He's a great skater," said Jones. "And big — he's almost six-two and goes around 196."

It was not known whether Farkas would be on hand for tonight's 8:45 Mo-Hawk workout.

Jones has been looking for a trigger-man to key the Mo-Hawk attack.

Kingston transfer Doug Senior should help the Mo-Hawks out some in that regard. Senior, who has scored 28 goals in every league he has played right upto the Americas, last winter contributed 19 goals and 17 assists in only 27 games with Kingston Aces.

Senior has been held off the scoresheet in the first two Mo-Hawk contests of their 60-game schedule, but set up three goals in a 7-1 exhibition win against his former Kingston teammates.

Numerically the Mo-Hawks are in excellent shape. They have already signed 18 players and, unlike the past couple of seasons, Jones will have genuine choices to make to decide which 16 (including two goaltenders) he will dress for each game.

After Jan. 15, senior clubs must carry no more than 21 players, including two goalies, and that still gives the Mo-Hawks leeway to watch some prospects waiting in the wings.

Lost in the shuffle of the out-of-town prospects have been John McConnell, Steve Reze, and Meehan Bonnar.

McConnell, the rookie forward tryout who shone in Belleville junior B company last winter, has not skated with the Mo-Hawks since sprraining an ankle in a 3-2 exhibition loss to Kingston. The younger brother to Mo-Hawk regular Wayne scored one of the two Mo-Hawk goals in that opening game.

Goalie Steve Reze is reported interested in rejoining the Mo-Hawks, but has not come to terms with management.

Hardest skill to swallow would be the loss of 23-year-old right-winger Meehan Bonnar, a 36-point prospecer in 32 International League games with Des Moines last year.

Boston Bruins' first amateur draft choice in 1967, the recent addition of Belleville's provincial police detachment was bitterly contested in town by the request to play senior hockey in Belleville denied by his Toronto superiors.

Bonnar had not expected his job would permit him to get in all Mo-Hawk games, but was taken aback to find that the OPP policy would restrict his senior hockey interests to that of a spectator.

In an era when law enforcement agencies are trying to improve their public image, to prove that good cops are just plain folks trying to do a job, the OPP seems to have missed the boat.

Return Exhibitions to Settle Fairway Lineup

The Belleville Fairways will finish their pre - season tune up this weekend with return exhibiton matches against Trenton and Kingston.

The Fairways split their first two games winning 6-4 over Trenton and dropping a 4-3 decision to the Kingston Frontenacs.

The club has already signed 12 players, but coach Floyd Crawford is still uncertain about a number of newcomers. This weekend's action could go along way towards go a long way towards determining who will stick with the club.

One spot that will be tough to determine is that of backup goalie. Ron Jary is virtually certain of starting and judging from his performances in the first two games, should maintain his position as one of the top interpreters in the six - team loop.

Both Bob Moore, a 15-year-old hockey graduate and Arnie Istead from Picton performed well in their initial outings. Also in the fight for a position is Roger LaMorre, who has yet to see action.

Wingers Keith McConnell from Stirling and Joe Clarke looked impressive in the exhibition games and both stand good chances of cracking the lineup.

Centre Dave Blakely is a bit of a quandery. The big Napanee pivot seems to be having trouble finding his skating legs, but at the same time he has the size, shot and moves to help the club, if and when he gets into top shape.

Still another impressive forward addition is Rod Palmer, who tallied a goal and an assist in Sunday's win over Trenton.

Defensively the Fairways are solid. John Mulvihill, remains calm collected and effective on the Belleville blueline and is rushing more this season. His offensively-minded play has accounted for three of the five goals that the Belleville defence collected.

Midget grad Peter Ackerman has been paired with Mulvihill and what the small-ish rearguard lacks in size he makes up for in puckhandling ability. He's a good one.

The other returning veteran, Kevin Dockrill appears to have matured tremendously from his rookie year and is dealing out some healthy checks despite the handicap of a broken hand.

Right winger Terry Meagher tested an ankle injured at the Niagara Falls Junior A camp at last night's two - hour practice as Crawford worked on conditioning. Something Belleville has lacked in their first two games.

The 27 - goal scorer will go a long way towards filling the Fairway's biggest need Scoring punch.

A lot will be on the line for many of the candidates this Friday when the team travels to Trenton for a 9 p.m. game and Sunday, when the Fairways are at home to the Kingston Frontenacs. Game time is 8 p.m.

Reds Manager Still Has Spark

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I knew he would grow up some day," a beaming, proud mother said Tuesday of her son, Sparky Anderson, manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"As a boy, George always had drive," Mrs. Leroy Anderson added. "He was a real fire-brand. If he thought he was right, nothing could change him.

"But all of us have to mellow. I think the turning point in his career was when he was fired at Toronto."

Anderson's father and mother sat along the first base line behind the Reds' dugout at Tuesday's third game of the World Series.

Earl N. Weaver and Mrs. Weaver, parents of the Baltimore manager, Earl Sidney Weaver, had seats behind home plate.

"Earl was a good boy—he got in mischief sometimes—but he was always a good boy," said the elder Weaver, who gave Billie Earl his first glove when the letter was four years old.

"Sure, I second-guess him sometimes. I have to keep him honest. But he's a pretty good manager."

"Sparky always had a bad temper," his father said. "As a boy, he would get mad but usually he was right. Then when he got into baseball as a manager he still could get fired up when things didn't go right."

At Toronto, Sparky was thrown out of more than 20 games. They said he spent more time cooling his heels in the locker room than on the field.

At the end of the 1964 season, he was fired. He worked in a furniture factory, fitting legs into table tops.

Then one day he got a call from St. Louis and was offered a chance to manage Rock Hill, S.C., in the .West Carolina League.

From then on he moved around until he got the Cincinnati job for the 1970 season.

Robinson Returns From Baseball 'Twilight Zone'

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave McNally didn't know where he was. Frank Robinson returned from the twilight zone, and Brooks Robinson played brilliantly again.

McNally confessed to "not knowing what was going on" while rounding the bases after hitting a grand slam homer in Baltimore's 9-3 victory over Cincinnati Reds Tuesday as the Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the World Series.

"I was in a bit of a daze," said the left-hander who won 20 games during the regular season.

McNally said he didn't recall what his teammates said to him or what he said to them when he returned to the dugout after hitting his second series homer in two years and the second grand slam of his career.

"I was just yelling, I think."

Brooks Robinson, who was called the difference between the two teams by Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, even before game No. 3, helped quash the Reds again.

He made two spectacular plays, one a diving catch of a Johnny Bench liner in the sixth inning, which led to a standing ovation by the home crowd the next time he came to bat.

In the 1970 series, Robinson has four hits and four runs batted in. His homer won the opener 4-3, and Tuesday he had two doubles and two runs batted in off Tony Cloninger in the first inning.

"Can you imagine it- in a row? It's amazing," said Rose.

Wayne Granger, the Reds' premier relief pitcher, made his first 1970 Series appearance an inauspicious one when he served up the bases-loaded homer to McNally.

"That little red book there says McNally will hit the fast ball up out of the park," Reds manager Sparky Anderson said, pointing to a Cincinnati scouting report on the Orioles.

"I was trying to strike him out and got the fast ball tonight," the slender Granger said.

Englehard Top Horseman

LONDON (AP) — Charles W. Englehard, American owner of cancer-researcher Nijinsky, Tuesday was awarded the Owner of the Year award by the British Horseracing Writers and Reporters Association.

Other awards went to Vicent O'Brien, who trains Englehard's horses in Ireland, and jockey Lester Piggott, his rider.

Nijinsky, by Northern Dancer out of Flaming Page, was bred in Canada by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and will be running in the Champion Stakes at Newmarket Saturday. It probably will be the three-year-old wonder colt's last race before being sent to stud.

Nijinsky was defeated for the first time when he finished second to Sassafras in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe in Paris recently. It of the horse wins the Champion Stakes it will boost his earnings to more than $720,000.

Ashford Gets 'Brush-off' From Broom Girl

BALTIMORE (AP) — It wasn't Linda's idea to belt umpire Emmett Ashford in his behind with a broom in the World Series Tuesday, but she's glad she did it.

"It was the most fun I've had," said Linda Wentzel, a Baltimore's 14-year-old broom girl who has become as much an attraction as Boog Powell and Brooks Robinson with the American League champions.

"Mr. Pat put me up to it," she added, referring to Pat Santarone, Baltimore's ground keeper. "I really gave Mr. Ashford a hard whack."

It was at the end of the fifth inning of Tuesday's game that Linda went through her routine of racing around the bases, sweeping them off with a broom.

In the process, she brushed the shoes of the players starting with Powell at first and winding up with Brooks Robinson at third.

Tuesday, before a crowd of 51,773 and millions watching on television, she changed her windup.

When she got around to third base, she hauled off and hit Ashford, the first Negro umpire in the majors, full force on his rear with her broom.

The flamboyant umpire, known for his dramatic gestures, reacted in character.

He flung off his cap, raised both hands high in the air and let out a yelp of pain while the smiling Linda, her blonde hair waving in the wind, ran to the sidelines.

The crowd roared.

Canadian Press Editor Tells 'Grey Cup Story'

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

On Nov. 25, 1950, a fortunately grey young man sat in the press box at Varsity Stadium in Toronto and hammered out the story of the great Mud Bowl in which the Edmonton Eskimos shivered to a 13-6 Grey Cup victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

He was there in 1953 in the atop Empire Stadium in Vancouver, the first time the Grey Cup game went west, shaking his head in disbelief but faithfully reporting Edmonton Eskimos' 34-19 victory over Montreal Alouettes.

Jack Sullivan has attended 20 Grey Cup games, 15 in a working capacity as sports editor for The Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative newsgathering organization which serves more than 100 daily newspapers, more than 300 radio and television stations and a number of weekly publications.

He was named CP's first sports editor in 1948 and, served in that post until late 1966 when he left to enter private business.

Now back with CP in a supervisory capacity, Sullivan has collected the statistics, the facts and the legends of the Grey Cup going back 61 years.

It's all there in his new book, The Grey Cup Story, published by Paperian Press Ltd.

Sullivan worked with CP in Vancouver, Edmonton, New York, Toronto and London, gaining a solid grounding as a news writer and editor before moving into sport.

There, he found virtually no information available on the history of Canada's annual football classic. He set about collecting it.

"It was mostly in self-defence," he says. "As CP sports editor I had to be able to answer thousands of questions about the Grey Cup. And in 1948 there just wasn't any information."

There has to be more to it than that. The Grey Cup Story, chapter by chapter, takes you through the era after another as the game developed.

It's colorful, but nowhere does the author intrude on his subject. He doesn't mention how old-time press boxes—and some still in use—were so cold his operator's teletype froze.

He doesn't belabor the Canadian obsession with family communications or the fury of coaches and the steam-bath conditions in dressing rooms after a game.

Sullivan presents the history of the Cup simply, with humor and taste. He'll deny it, but it's a labor of love.

EASY ACTING

Paula Prentiss took a lunch hour nap on the set of the production Move before filming was scheduled to start on a sequence in which co-star Elliot Gould leaves the bed of his insensible wife. Miss Prentiss was so deep in sleep she didn't wake up when director Stuart Rosenburg and the crew returned. In three takes it was all over. "an Academy Award performance," Mr. Gould congratulated her when she awoke.

White Sox Make Deal

BALTIMORE (AP) — Chicago White Sox Tuesday traded first baseman Gail Hopkins and outfielder John Matias to Kansas City Royals for outfielder Jim Kelly and pitcher Don O'Riley. Key player in the trade for the White Sox was Kelly. He hit .235 and stole 34 bases in 126 games for Kansas City this season.

Can't Pay Bills

Calcutta Faces Decade of Unrest

BOMBAY (UP)— The plight of Calcutta, India's largest city, was dramatized recently when its municipal corporation, or local government, was unable to pay the salaries of Rs 33,000 workers.

Only an infusion of funds from the provincial exchequer of West Bengal saved the situation by preventing metropolis. Newspaper editorials asked how could a city which earned over 23 crores rupees regularly hope to tackle the massive problems of urban unrest?

The city's population now is close to eight million. According to a recent survey, almost one in five families live in slums. Sixty per cent of the people have no bathrooms, 38 per cent have no piped water and some 25 per cent are crowded into one-room tenements.

Experts have estimated that during this decade Greater Calcutta will have to develop enough land to accommodate another two million people. One municipal official predicted that the population of the metropolis may grow to nearly 15 million by 1981.

The city has been plagued by industrial unrest, student strikes, Naxalite attacks on government buildings and banks and a constant shifting of political loyalties which has virtually paralyzed the local administration.

Both the provincial regime and the federal government in New Delhi have come to the conclusion that the only effective way to halt this unrest is to give a better deal to the people who live in the city's festering slums, known as bustees.

The bustees number more than 3,000. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's administration has told the mayor of Calcutta that it is prepared to divert large sums of money for providing the slums with drainage facilities, piped water, roads and electricity.

Work has already started in some slum areas. Official expectation is that it will take five years to give relief to an estimated half a million people to begin with.

Simultaneously, slum families are being persuaded to move to rural areas in other provinces where developed agricultural land will be allotted to them on a priority basis.

A vast tract in the Dandakaranya forest in central India is being developed to accommodate the slum families who are mostly refugees from Pakistan. They fled from their homes during the riots which followed the partition of the subcontinent in 1947.

A special difficulty is that the agricultural families now crowding the slums of Calcutta do not want to move out of the province of West Bengal. They want land within the province, but this is virtually impossible to find. The result is more unrest in the bustees.

The slums of Calcutta have become recruiting grounds for West Bengal's militant opposition parties. One observer estimates that in the last five years the Communists—who are split into at least four ideological factions—have created at least 25,000 additional young men and women to their ranks.

The Indian government is also seeking the co-operation of the country's leading industrialists to start new factories in and around Calcutta so that more slum residents get jobs.

The industrialists say the immediate problem is to ensure that existing factories are not forced to leave Calcutta because of Communist-sponsored unrest. However, they have told the government that they would contribute generously to the proposed Calcutta development fund.

The World Bank's aid is also being sought. Two years ago its president, Robert McNamara, made an on-the-spot study of Calcutta's needs. But provincial officials say that things are not moving as fast as they should.

Calcutta's powerful Communist groups have often said that they are against World Bank money coming into the city.

Jyoti Basu, the leader of the pro-Peking Marxist Communist party, says that "the people of Calcutta do not want any tainted money." He thinks that the only real solution for the city's problems is to nationalize all the industries, break up the monopolies and resettle the agricultural families who have migrated from Pakistan on land wrested from big landlords.

The Indian government is not in favor of taking such extreme steps which would amount to handing over Calcutta to the Communist ideology. It has sought the co-operation of the left-wing political groups in the city to push through the slum-improvement scheme.

There are fears that the Communist groups may try to foil the urban renewal plan to the best of their ability.

One strategy they are already adopting is to goad slum residents to ask for priority for their own areas. Since work in all the 3,000 bustees cannot be taken up at the same time, the Reds expect to generate a lot of discontent against the government.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 15

Your birthday today: One of the quickest years in your existence begins. You develop general competence in your field, mastering new techniques and very likely reach the point of leading the way, speaking for your group. You must continue expressing your deeper feelings daily. Today's natives are careful students with interest in research. Their impartiality is considered vital by all people born under the sign of Libra.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your urge toward reckless plunges into questionable ventures. Your patience with any delays is near expiration — sudden purchases aren't the best answer now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Don't let enthusiasm for change lead you into going along with expensive schemes. See that your changes are conservative, however, rather than radical departures.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Set your own warning signals, guidelines, to tell when you are overdoing anything. Emotional urges lead to unnecessary extravagance — just be sure it's what you really want.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Where you get interest and co-operation, much can be done.

Eldorado

The annual railroad banquet was held at the Eldorado United Church on Friday evening with a large attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sabine of Mount Julian were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer on the weekend and attended the Fox-Stewart wedding on Saturday.

The local Couple's Club held an organizational meeting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Sedgewick last Wednesday evening.

Ask for help on a large task rather than tackle a small one alone. Your mood toward loved ones is generous.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Go to the core of the issues and have it out early. Use the greatest tact, but press firmly forward. The loved things you cause for mild celebration, revision of plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Think matters through privately. Once you have a picture of what is to be done, move without extended explanations. Sensitive family relations are settled later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Aside from the urge to overinvest in equipment, this is an inventive day. Ideas in touch can be changed toward a more ideal situation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Co-operation and self-discipline early bring better results later. When others have had their briefing. Move tactfully to switch directions for tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There are unseen crises of your work. Work to suit permitting pressure to lead to errors. Your money has legs and what you don't play can be very productive. Start with the attitude that you are aimed in the right direction, willing to work and learn.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Find extra time and some symbolic gift for your loved ones. Conflict between home and material interests should not be allowed to become chronic — set limits, and abide by them.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): More attention to details and the feelings of others are all that are needed to make this a reasonably happy, worthwhile day. Celebrate this evening.

Rapid Growth of Cities Man's Biggest Challenge

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough says the most powerful force challenging man is rapid urbanization of cities and its influence on surrounding rural landscapes.

He says two provincial government programs—design for development and regional government—provide the framework to preserve the rural areas but more co-ordination is needed.

"The regional government program is an attempt to create structures of local government that have the substance and resources to make effective development decisions possible."

The design program, outlined in the legislature last May, includes a concept whereby pressures for growth on Metropolitan Toronto would be eased, by encouraging growth in such centres as Barrie, Midland, Cobourg-Port Hope, while conserving rural areas for agriculture and recreation.

European Talks Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Polish Foreign Minister Stefan Jedrychowski called Tuesday for a speedup of preparatory work on a European security conference, and said Mitchell Sharp, Canada's external affairs minister, agreed with him.

He also told a news conference the Soviet bloc has spoken very clearly in favor of Canadian and United States participation in such a conference.

He suggested there no longer is any question about where the meeting will be held. All European governments agree to Helsinki, Finland.

Mr. Jedrychowski arrived Sunday for a three-day visit, during which he had intensive talks with Mr. Sharp and other Canadian government leaders. They covered both bilateral relations and ways of expanding the "wide-ranging co-operation" between Poland and Canada in the international sphere.

The foreign minister in his statement denounced what he called American aggression in Vietnam and urged the unconditional withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina.

Asked whether he and Mr. Sharp were in agreement on Vietnam, Mr. Jedrychowski said they had not been able to develop the theme in great detail.

Mr. Jedrychowski leaves today for New York, where he is to attend the United Nations General Assembly.

Planning Board Receives Letter

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has received word from W. Darcy McKeough, Minister of Municipal Affairs, outlining partial plans for dissolution of the BSPB.

The board requested an outline of plans for employees, files and offices.

Contained in the letter, dated Oct. 7, was the following:

Staff of the Community Planning Branch will be meeting on Oct. 14 with the planning committee that has been set up to look into the details of setting up the proposed Quinte Planning Board. It is expected that the discussions will consider all aspects of the proposal, including an appropriate date for the establishment of the Quinte Planning Board and for the dissolution of the existing planning boards."

In his letter, Mr. McKeough gave encouragement to the BSPB in the disclosure that "the existing planning boards will not be dissolved without full discussion with the local municipalities and planning boards concerned."

Services And Costs Increase

Cost of salaries for business administration personnel has risen 25 per cent since formation of the Hastings county board of education.

The figure was given last night in a report from the business administrators of the county board, in response to queries from trustees.

The 13 board individual boards operating in the city before amalgamation employed 29 people in business administration, with a total salary cost in 1968 of $131,696.

But, says the report, "for a meaningful comparison, the 1968 figure must be updated to 1970 dollars. Allowing a 7% annual increase in salaries in each of the two years, the 1968 figure of $131,696 would become $152,193. The increase in salaries from 1968 to the present total of $190,250 is 25 per cent."

This is recognized as a significant increase. But we have also been aware that there has been a significant increase in service during a time of rapid and extreme change in educational administration," the report concludes.

Although the number of employees in the business administration department of the board has increased, the number of academic supervisory personnel has decreased, director of education Eric Rundle says told the board.

"With the new code of accounts established by the department of education, all boards for the first time will be able to make valid comparisons of costs," he said. "I am anxious to see how we rate — I think we are in a very favorable position with respect to other boards."

Board Seeks Approval For $791,208 School

North Hastings will have a new senior elementary school some time next year if plans of the Hastings county board of education go smoothly.

Trustees decided last night to seek approval from the province for the $20 - pupil capacity school. Cost of the figure represents the maximum amount the department of education is willing to approve for the building, not the expected cost. The board's building committee is hopeful that the price will be held to less than the approved amount.

The proposed school is the first step in implementing the board's five - year capital building program.

Director of education Eric Rundle said the Hastings to the school from the department of education, and set their sights on May 1971 starting date for construction.

The board will seek approval for expenditure of $101,208 for the 420 - pupil capacity school. Eventually the figure represents the maximum amount the department of education is willing to approve for the building, not the expected cost. The board's building committee is hopeful that the price will be held to less

Corby's Wins Top Award

Corby Distilleries Ltd. a nearby Corbyville, will receive Canada's premier award this year for anti - pollution achievement in industry.

The Canadian Institute of Pollution Control has announced that the A. V. Delaporte Award will go to Corby Distilleries Ltd. and will be received on behalf of the firm Corby's president by F. H. Bjelkhagen. Corby's assistant distillery manager, at the Institute's 5th annual convention in Calgary, Oct. 20.

Mr. Bellazdi, a scientifically trained administrator, headed the research effort that ended pollution of the Moira River as result of plant industrial wastes.

The company built a half million - dollar anti - pollution system at Corbyville which is now in successful operation. The system includes a large setting pond and water cooling towers to reduce the temperature of water before it is returned to the river.

The research findings of the Corby laboratory group, working with consultants and the Ontario Water Resources Commission, have been made available to other North American distillers facing similar pollution abatement problems.

Centre Aids In Lake Rescue

TRENTON (Staff) — A Burlington man was saved last night from the wreckage of his single-engined aircraft after a forced landing in Lake Ontario.

G. Thompson was enroute from St. Catharines to Bronte when the plane he was flying ran nio heavy fog cover.

Mayday signals were received from the aircraft by the rescue co - ordination centre here and a commercial ship, The Martin Karlsen, was dispatched to the scene, six miles off Oakville.

Lock Cars, Chief Says

A recent rash of stolen cars has resulted in a warning from Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie concerning caution in ensuring cars are protected from theft.

"I'm reminding people about locking their cars and taking the keys," he said. Chief Crosbie explained that six cars had been stolen recently, but five had been recovered following police investigation.

Panel Arranged At Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Human Growth and Development will be the theme for a panel discussion sponsored in Bloomfield School, Bloomfield, Nov. 4 by the Prince Edward Home and School Council.

Guest speakers from Hastings County will be present to answer questions pertaining to courses in these subjects in their schools.

The Prince Edward Home and School Council has invited members of the county board of education to attend the meeting since they would like to see a similar course of study introduced in county schools. The course was described as one that deals with health, physical safety and to a small degree, sex."

Discussion After Lunch

Paul Ignatieff, executive director of the Canadian UNICEF Committee, talks about the work of the international committee to newly-elected Belleville Kiwanis Club president, John Kunetsky.

Population A Problem Says Kiwanis Speaker

Approximately 30,000 children die per day in countries of the world from hunger, disease and neglect.

That statistic offered testimony for the world's population growth problems yesterday when Paul Ignatieff, executive director of the Canadian Unicef Committee, addressed the weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Ignatieff discussed the main problems of the United Nations of which UNICEF is a service — war and peace, population, and development.

"When we look at population graphs and statistics, we are thunderstruck because, between 1960 and the year 2,000, the world's population will have doubled," Mr. Ignatieff predicted.

"It took millions of years for the earth's population to reach its present level of three billion. Now within the next 30 short years, it will have doubled. By 1975, there will be more children in the developing countries of the world than the whole population of the developed countries of the world such as Canada."

He spoke of a situation in developing countries in which parents did not have the knowledge to raise their children properly.

He added that Canadian children are lucky they are taught things while developing countries had no resources and no opportunity for such advanced technology and a financial base such as Canada has.

"In Nepal 10 per cent of the people get primary school education. In Brazil, 50 per children can't get beyond grade three.

"In a sense, poverty is self - generating," Mr. Ignatieff said. "And, unless the developed countries can close the gap between the 'haves' and the 'have nots', this poverty will still increase."

He explained the origin and work of UNICEF, explaining that it was created 24 years ago to protect and aid the development of children. It was conceived as a crash program to help the 20 million children left homeless and starving after World War II.

It was afterwards that UNICEF made a change in purpose and identity, instead of dealing with just emergencies, becoming a developmental organization.

And in this cause, UNICEF has been doing its job. In 1969, it helped equip 263 teacher training institutions and 8,759 associated schools for practise teaching. It has equipped 3,825 health centres and vaccinated millions of children against diseases.

"UNICEF works in conjunction with governments. All its projects are conceived and carried out with full approval and co-operation of the local government," he added.

The budget for UNICEF this year has been set at $54.5 million. All its money comes from voluntary contributions, both by government and by individuals.

"At the moment, the governments provide about .5 per cent of the budget, the remainder being collected by National Committees for UNICEF and through the sale of UNICEF greeting cards."

This October 31,500,000 children will be campaigning for pennies on Hallowe'en night.

School Bus Route Policy Probed by PE Residents

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A Hillier Township resident renewed his attack on the Prince Edward County Board of Education transportation system last night demanding "why can't they board treat all children the same."

Peter Van Haarlem first complained to trustees last month when his children were not picked up by a school bus for the first time in 12 years. He demanded an explanation as to why the youngsters were no longer ride the bus the half - mile distance to Wellington Consolidated School and threatened to withdraw them from classes unless a satisfactory decision was reached.

Mr. Van Haarlem called the board's method "chauvinistic" because there is no sidewalk and made it clear that he was protesting lack of safety, not the walk itself.

Board members told him that the bus had been rerouted this fall bypassing his home.

The Van Haarlem children were picked up in former years as "a neighborly act" of the bus drivers and not because of board policy.

Harmon Montgomery, chairman of the transportation committee, added that the bus system was basically for country students, not for town pupils. Mr. Van Haarlem suggested that he would request a sidewalk from Hillier Township council.

He also suggested that his children perhaps could be boarded to school until the sidewalks could be built.

Last night he returned to a board of education meeting and reported that township council has refused to construct a sidewalk.

Mr. Van Haarlem said that Bloomfield pupils are bussed to Pinecrest School but Wellington students walk to classes. He being refused to pay the children picked up in Bloomfield to ride?"

Edward Rutter, chairman of the county board, told him the payment is equalized in the county.

"I pay for children to be picked up in Bloomfield and then must drive my own child here to school," he declared.

Mr. Van Haarlem also argued that the school board is not exercising discrimination against his children.

"It's making a money matter in trying to finance it," said trustee Hulton Marsh.

He said that transportation costs now are in excess of 10 per cent of the budget and commented "we don't feel the taxpayer can afford an increase."

Still angered, Mr. Van Haarlem retorted "if it's going to be such big issue, why can't something be worked out properly. You may think I'm not easy to get along with but I'm fighting for my kids, not myself."

Mr. Van Haarlem has driven on his children to school since the board changed calling for them this fall.

A second Hillier parent, David Bikker, also expressed dissatisfaction with the transportation system last night, claiming trustees have ignored letters concerning his efforts to have a proper road in his home permitting his children to be picked up by a school bus.

Mr. Bikker declared he has constructed a turnabout for the bus on property he owned and graded the road, formerly impassible in bad weather.

Harmon Montgomery said he would contact Hillier Reeve Gordon Lloyd to learn what improvements have been made to the road. Trustees also agreed to inspect the turnabout built by Mr. Bikker.

His children at present are being approximately a mile to board the second bus.

Film Group Premieres

Tonight marks the beginning of a new film society for the Quinte Region as Loyalist College presents Umbrella, a realistic, modern interpretation of life.

Directed by Vittorio De Sica, this film is Italian with English sub titles.

It is the hope of the organizers that this new society may amalgamate all other small ones in Belleville into one well-organized club.

Invitations are extended to everyone interested in forming a film society for the Quinte region and views and wishes of the free film in the lecture theatre of the new college building at 7.30 p.m.

Other scheduled film nights are Nov. 11, with the feature Now I Can Be Told, a story of spy training in the second World War. The feature for Dec. 9 will be Othello with Orson Wells. This is held to be one of the greatest roles played by Wells.

Board Not Obligated To Compensate Builder

Hastings county board of education is under no obligation to compensate Ball Brothers Construction in Kingston for extra expenses incurred in building Centre Hastings Secondary School.

In the opinion of the board's solicitor, the contractor is the author of his own misfortune and the board is under no liability.

The company two weeks ago requested "some compensation" for extra expenses incurred in removing rock from the building site. It had encountered "much more rock and found the actual cost to be $18,780.

In his letter to the board, solicitor Douglas Bateman said it appeared the contractor was negligent in his preliminary testing for rock, especially in view of the estimates made by other, testdoing companies, which arranged more than one.

The company also lost about $50,000 on the $791,208 job because of the financial failure of four sub - contractors.

"We are in sympathy with the contractor," said trustee Macdonald Smith. "But if we act on sympathy, others will think of us as a soft touch and quote low so they can extract better terms for compensation."

In moving that no compensation be granted, he noted that the construction company can take the matter to arbitration and "we are not its last resort."

Underwater Park Planned

Great for Novices

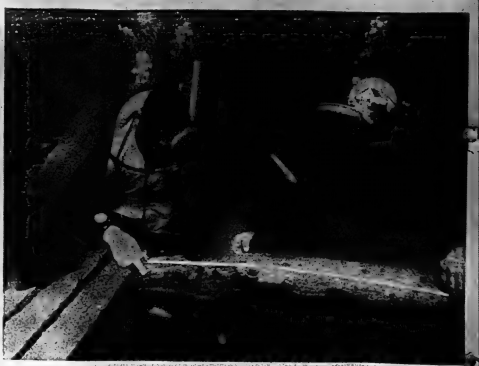
The remains of the Great Lakes schooner Sweepstakes lie in 20 feet of water in Bib Tub Harbor near Tobermory, Ont., where she sank 74 years ago. Nearby is the wreck of the steamer City of Grand Rapids in shallower (and lighter) water. The easy accessibility of these two vessels make them ideal for novice divers. (CP Photo)

TOBERMORY, Ont., (CP) — The Sweepstakes, the last known intact sunken schooner in the Great Lakes, is being restored by the Ontario Underwater Council. But when the restoration is complete, the 119-foot, 103-year-old vessel won't be raised. She will be left on the bottom of Big Tub Harbor at Tobermory, Ont., for the future pleasure of divers and landlubbers alike.

The OUC is hopeful that some day tourists will visit the site to look from glass-bottom boats as well as in diving gear. Plans have recently been announced for Canada's first underwater park near Tobermory.

The Sweepstakes, built in Burlington, Ont., sank in 20 feet of water with a cargo of coal in 1896. An excellent example of the era of sail in the Great Lakes, the schooner's wooden deck winch and portions of her rail are still intact.

However, time, man and nature have taken their toll. In 1962 she was damaged when a steel tug ran into her port side. Two years later she suffered considerable ice damage due to low water during freeze-up. John Hunter, Canadian Sub Aqua Diving Club president, says she is so shallow "I can stand on her rudder stock and my head and shoulders are out of the water."



It seems this accessibility, which makes the vessel ideal for novice divers, is a hitch in the restoration work. Divers keep interfering with the project and stripping off pieces of the vessels for souvenirs.

The Sweepstakes isn't alone at the bottom of Big Tub. Nearby is the hulk of the City of Grand Rapids, a steamer which caught fire and sank in 1907. The rudder and propeller of this vessel were raised by the Sub Aqua club in 1963 and are on display in a museum near Tobermory.

Stan McLelland, historical supervisor of the Sweepstakes project, says "we hope that by example divers will be encouraged to either leave relics where they are or at least turn anything they find over to the historical group so everyone can enjoy them."

Revenge Is Costly

OGIES, South Africa (AP) — Catherine Keel's hairdresser gossiped with a friend while she worked. Mrs. Keel thought nothing of it until she got home. Then, she said, she discovered her hair looked terrible. Seeking revenge, Mrs. Keel marched to the salon with scissors and snipped off the hairdresser's wig. A judge fined her $84 for malicious damage to property.

Damaged by Souvenir Hunters

John Hunter, (right), president of the Canadian Sub Aqua Diving Club, and Rolf Somman measure the stern transom section of the schooner Sweepstakes so that a new one can be built. The old one has fallen victim to time and souvenir-hunting divers. The Sweepstakes, which sank in Big Tub Harbor near Tobermory, Ont., in 1896, is being restored by the Ontario Underwater Council. Trudeau Calls Off Planned Russian Trip

Kidnap Talks Stall

MONTREAL (CP) — Talks aimed at freeing two political hostages held by Quebec terrorists were up in the air today with the kidnappers' spokesman in Montreal and the government representative in Quebec City with the provincial cabinet.

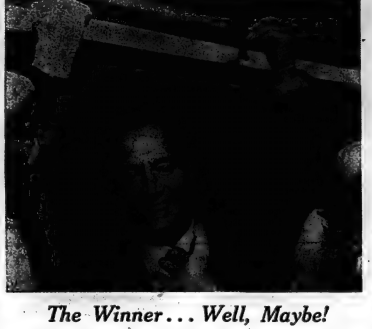
After a nine-hour meeting with Robert Demers, government contact man, lawyer Robert Lemieux said Wednesday he had been invited to continue the sessions in Quebec City where Mr. Demers had gone.

The Wednesday session was a continuation of discussions by which the government seeks establishment of a "mechanism" to guarantee the safety of Brit. ish diplomat James (Jasper) Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, abducted last week and held for ransom by the revolutionary Front de Libération du Québec.

Mr. Demers had gone to the provincial capital with the provincial cabinet which moved there from temporary quarters in Montreal.

The cabinet had to be there for an important session of the national assembly on the province's yhel medical care insurance program starting today.

The FLQ lawyer said he expected to be in telephone touch with the government representatives to discuss the next meeting.



"It was impossible for me to accept this fordtaks," Mr. Lemieux said at his Wednesday news conference.

"I would be prejudicing the interests of my clients here if I moved to Quebec. And besides I have no money."

He also said his communications with the FLQ are through the Montreal news media.

The lawyer has said he is not in direct touch with his clients.

He learns their needs through the communiques the FLQ sends to Montreal trash-cans and phone booths, after tipping radio stations on their presence.

Separate School Group Takes Issue to Public

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Separate school ratepayers today took another step in their campaign for the reinstatement of suspended superintendent F. B. Allore.

In an advertisement in The Intelligencer a group of 67 ratepayers and "interested citizens" rap the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board for conducting its affairs "in a manner which had given scandal to the community".

The "statement of dissatisfaction" with the board follows two appearances at board meetings by ratepayer delegations and a demand for Education Minister William Davis' intervention, sent to the minister by telegram Oct. 8.

No acknowledgement of the telegram has been received here, a ratepayers' spokesman, Mrs. Douglas Boyle, told The Intelligencer today.

Mrs. Boyle said 90 per cent of the signatures on the statement are those of ratepayers, the remainder are "interested citizens".

Mrs. Boyle said trustees have promised her group a public meeting Oct. 27, at which they will answer questions put to them in a written brief.

Although the questions concern board operations and the state of special education in the system, they make no specific reference to Mr. Allore's suspension.

But, said Mrs. Boyle, the the questions are "tricky" and the answers would shed light on the charges leading to the superintendent's suspension.

Board chairman E. J. Buckley has so far refused to reveal the charges, telling deputations that "it would not be in Mr. Allore's interest to publish the facts: a man's whole career is at stake."

The matter now rests in part with the department of education in Toronto, where it was referred by the board Oct. 2, following breakdown of negotiations between the board and Mr. Allore.

Before the employment of a suspended chief executive can be officially terminated, ratification of the board's action must be given by the department.

Education minister Davis will be in Belleville next Tuesday in connection with celebrations honoring the

Two Jewish Hijackers Seize Russian Plane

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuter) — Jewish hijackers seized a Russian airliner today, and a stewardess was killed and both pilots wounded before the plane landed at the Black Sea town of Trabzon.

Official sources said two hijackers—both of Jewish origin —had been seized and taken into custody. Police said the men held the crew at gunpoint.

The airliner, on an internal flight from the Soviet port of Batumi, capital of the Adjarian Republic, was an Ilyushin-18 and had a total of 31 persons on board.

The wounded pilots were taken to hospital at Trabzon on the Turkish Black Sea coast 100 miles southwest of Batumi. The passengers were taken to hotels in the town, police said.

The aircraft was ordered held pending contact with the Soviet government.

MPs Urge Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced today that he has reluctantly cancelled his visit to Russia, planned to start Monday.

The prime minister told the Commons that he had notified the Soviet authorities Tuesday of the possibility that he might not be able to go on the trip.

Since formal cancellation of the trip, he said, he had received "a very understanding reply from Premier Alexei Kosygin.

He said he had expressed a hope that his visit to the Soviet Union might be held later.

Mr. Trudeau had wanted to go ahead with the trip on the grounds that postponement would be tantamount to an admission that the terrorists were running events.

However, it was recognized that Mr. Trudeau should not be out of the country at a critical time when quick decisions might have to be made.

Bridge Fault Kills Fifty

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuter) — Fifty-one men were feared killed today when a 2,000-ton section of a huge new steel and concrete bridge collapsed atop wooden sheds where workmen were eating lunch.

Thirty bodies were recovered but 21 men were missing and feared dead in the debris. Nineteen survivors were taken to hospital, some with serious injuries.

Sixty-seven welders were strengthening the concrete span with heavy-duty steel when part of the 8,400-foot bridge tumbled down.

The West Gate Road Bridge, costing about $48 million, was scheduled to open early next year to provide Melbourne's western suburbs with an eight-lane traffic link over the Yarra River to the city centre.

Between 70 and 80 men were working on or near the 438-foot bridge section which crumbled and fell 134 feet on to the riverside sheds where dozens of other workmen were taking their lunch break.

Eyewitnesses said the falling concrete and steel buried some men in soft mud on the river bank.

Six mobile cranes were brought in to lift the wreckage of the huts as police and rescue workers searched for victims. Police in boats searched for bodies in the river.

First broke out after the collapse, but was quickly doused by firemen.

Dazed and bleeding workmen were taken to city and suburban hospitals by ambulances.

The bridge site in the suburb of Footscray was declared a state disaster area, giving police power over all emergency services.

Within hours of the tragedy unions withdrew labor from the entire bridge project.

Premier Sir Henry Bolte of Victoria state ordered a royal commission investigation into the disaster.

An improvised morgue was set up beside the road with the bodies laid out and covered by white sheets.

"I was thinking I would not like to be working up there on the bridge on such a windy day," he said.

"Then I saw a crack appear two-thirds down a concrete support column. The crack widened and the support column tumbled with a massive bang that shook the whole area.

"The bridge section was left dangling at a crazy angle. Then it collapsed in a heap of rubble.

"The bang was monstrous, bigger than the first. It shook me out of my chair. I saw flames burst into the air."

One man working under the bridge said he ran for his life when the bridge collapsed. "I heard the bolts snapping. The bridge was coming down. There was no hope."

Miss Folkard and Cappy Reunited

Peregrinating Parakeet Is Safe Home at Last

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Cappy, a rainbow parakeet, owned by Cecelia Folkard, has discovered definite advantages in being "only a bird in a gilded cage."

The prize - winning budgie became the object of a neighborhood search this week after migrating from Miss Folkard's kitchen door out — of doors.

When Hill Street residents learned that the bird had flown the coop search parties formed to coax him from the treetops.

A strong flyer, accustomed to the freedom of Folkard home, Cappy sailed from limb to limb and from street to street with frustrating ease. For three days and nights the AWOL bird eluded his pursuers before making an outdoor landing on Miss Folkard's shoulder.

Amazed that she paraketed had survived-the heavy rains and cool temperatures accompanying his unscheduled flight, Miss Folkard considered his return as a festive in his cap. She observed that the budgie's escape probably tired her far more than it seemed to have fatigued the bird.

Each time a well meaning neighbor spotted Cappy perched in a treetop or on a telephone wire Miss Folkard was immediately called. She rushed out, cage in hand, to a dozen different locations during his three-day flight.

Each time she attempted to charm the bird right out of the trees she invariably attracted a group of bystanders wondering at her enthusiasm for birdwatching. But Miss Folkard took their questions in good part as she attempted to recapture her talkative budgie.

Taught to say numerous words and phrases Cappy several times replied "Speak up" when spectators called to him. Miss Folkard explained that this is one of his favorite phrases and undoubtedly the bird was not relating it to bystanders' remarks.

Yesterday morning a bedraggled but repentant Cappy landed on a telephone wire directly in front of his home. A neighbor's call to Miss Folkard brought her outside where she was greeted by the budgie who promptly flew to her shoulder. Safely back in his cage, Cappy seems to be recovering rapidly from his disturbing brush with outdoors living. His owner is now amused as she recalls well - meaning suggestions forwarded by neighbors who joined in "bird watching week".

One man wanted me to call a public utilities truck and have an employee raised to Cappy's level on the telephone wire with a boom," she chuckled.

Since the valuable show-winning bird has been returned to his cage several Hill Street neighbors have admittedly begun to miss their daily bird watching.

River Road Trailer Park To Be 'Fought to the End'

A storm of protest has erupted over a proposed "modern home park" allegedly to be situated within Thurlow Township bordering on the River Road on the banks of the Moira River.

A delegation led by a River Road resident Derek White appeared at Thurlow Township Council's regular monthly meeting yesterday to announce their protest to the situation of a mobile park in their area.

Thurlow council turned down the establishment of such a mobile park almost one year ago.

K. E. Maxfield, of RR 3, Belleville, owner of Maxfield's Trailer Sales and Service, had requested permission to establish a mobile camp bordering on the River Road in Thurlow Township.

Mr. Maxfield had been turned down previously in Ameliasburg and Sidney Townships.

However, several residents of the River Road area launched a storm of protest when a sign was erected three or four weeks ago on the site in question which read "the site of Modern Home Park by Maxfield's Trailer Sales."

The delegation brought a petition with them to the council meeting yesterday with the signatures of all but two residents of the River Road.

The residents object strongly to a permit being issued to Mr. Maxfield, claiming devaluation of property and the bad effects of heavier traffic from the point of view of children. The delegation also complained from a garage and pollution viewpoint.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission and the Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit have stipulated to Mr. Maxfield that they do not favor "discharge of sewage effluent to the Moira River upstream of Belleville."

Council informed Mr. Maxfield in letter dated Dec. 17, 1969 that they were not prepared to pass the necessary township bylaws to provide for the establishment of a mobile home park.

But since the erection of the sign, residents have been in doubt as to the intentions of council. Yesterday, however, the air was cleared.

Reeve Horace Casey explained that the park had been turned down almost a year ago and told the delegation that council intended to stop its inception.

"We're going to fight it to the bitter end," deputy reeve Borden Forsythe added.

Council commented on the fact that they now were aware of how River Road residents felt about the mobile home park and said they were glad of the support.

Belleville Mayor Fearful Of Planning Squeeze

TRENTON (Staff) —Belleville mayor, Dr. J. Russell Scott, objected last night to the constitutional set up for the Quinte Planning Board proposed by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

However, the steering committee for the new Quinte Area Planning Board meeting here did not entertain the Belleville suggestion of constitutional revision expressed by Mayor Scott.

Principal concern of the mayor was the number of representatives Belleville will have on the board. No municipality should have representation greater than Belleville on the Municipal Affairs Department.

Belleville will pay half the cost of the planning board the mayor said, but will have only one-quarter of the say on the regional planning agency — not enough in Belleville's view.

The city council of Belleville proposes that the city be permitted to have as many representatives on the board, Mayor Scott said today, as the mayor said, due to the suggested ceiling of six members for each municipality.

The township, by Municipal Affairs Department suggestion, would have three board representatives and could boost this number by three more, one for each increase of 5,000 in population — having as many representatives as Belleville although the city is much larger.

A second concern raised by the mayor, who expressed the view of city fathers, was that Sidney township, not the city of Belleville, is the designated centre in the department's proposed constitution.

The mayor said that Belleville is the growth centre of the Quinte region, with an equalized assessment total as high as, if not higher than all the other municipalities combined.

He indicated that Belleville is ahead of Sidney in planning techniques and suggested that the city be named as the region's designated area. Belleville council has taken this position and made it known to the Municipal Affairs Department, city manager J. R. Reynolds said today.

* * *

KITCHENER (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough said Wednesday Ontario lacks the political machinery for creating good community and regional plans.

In a speech to the Ontario division of the Community Planning Association of Canada, he said:

"A major aim of local government reform in Ontario is an improved system of community planning with the responsibility clearly in the hands of the elected representatives."

Under the new regional forms of government, planning is done by elected council, rather than appointed boards with the result that "accountability for decision - making . . . is clearly visible to the local electorate."

"I believe that what is most important is that people understand who is making the decision."

Police Pay Arbitration Opens Here

An arbitration board decision on the 1970 salary contract request of the Belleville Police Association is expected by Friday afternoon, this despite a delay in the start of the board hearing scheduled to get underway at 10 this morning.

As the two-day hearing was convened, board chairman, Judge A. A. Willmott of Cobourg said it was hoped proceedings could be completed today with the board's decision being made known on Friday.

But presentation of briefs by the police association and by the city, were delayed following request for an adjournment to see if various questions of the 18-item police request could not be settled amicably without going to arbitration.

The request for adjournment was granted with the hearing scheduled to resume at 2 p.m.

Number one item on the police association request is for the salary of a first class constable to be increased from the present $7,775 to $9,720 with salaries of other ranks to be increased proportionately.

The board asked that an inspector's salary be increased to $12,000 per year.

Other requests included a $300 clothing allowance, $100 clothing cleansing allowance and a $10 per week bonus of each member not receiving his vacation during July and August.

The request still asked that 100 per cent of insurance and welfare plans be paid by the police commission and that all police motor vehicles be manned by two police officers, regardless of the time or area patrolled.

Knight for the Pawns

Stuart Perry, acting vice-president of the Quinte Chess Club, plays theoretical and practical chess. For the United Community Services, he will play 12 simultaneous games at Walker's department Store between 5 and 8 p.m. Friday, and 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. With playing fees of $1 per board, the Quinte club is setting a precedent. According to Mr. Perry, governor of the Canadian Chess Federation, chess has never been used to raise funds for the United Appeal. The club hopes to attract more members to their Tuesday night, 7:30 meetings at the Recreation Centre by allowing anybody to take on Mr. Perry. Courses are being established by the club and special visits will be made to classrooms throughout the city. Held to be the "world's fastest game," Mr. Perry explained that even with more than half a million standard variations fed into computers, world chess masters move faster than the machine and it is not uncommon to find the human element triumphant.

IN MEMORIAM

FOUND — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Harry Sandiford, who passed away October 12th, 1969.
He suffered, driven, no night rest
But that I think of you.
Memories are sweet, you were good,
You never realized how much
Many a silent tear is shed.
When I think of you.
The sun I loved so very much, the Sun has gone down.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Bessie, son Ross, daughter-in-law Muriel and Frank Harris.

FOUND — In loving memory of my dear husband Harry Sandiford who passed away 10 months ago, October 12th, 1969.
Dear Harry you were taken
When we did not know
Without a word you walked away,
Your life was great the clock ran out
We can not turn Harry dear to see you
To hear you speak
To hold your hand or kiss goodbye,
Is more than I can bear
Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Bessie, son Ross, daughter-in-law Muriel and Frank Harris.

Sheep Killers Raid Thurlow

Thurlow Township Council has expressed concern at the number of sheep killed during the year within the township.

At yesterday's regular monthly council meeting, councillors discussed the amount of money paid out by the municipality as a rebate for livestock, in particular, sheep.

The township usually pays approximately $25 for a sheep which shows evidence of having been killed by dogs. The rebate only applies to domestic predators such as dogs.

This year so far, the township has paid $1,110 in rebates, mainly for sheep killed in the southeastern fringes of the township.

Deputy reeve, Borden Forsythe, told council of his suspicions that wolves could possibly be killing the sheep.

"Dogs would at least be spotted at some time during the day," he commented.

He and councillor Fletcher Reid agreed that dogs from the Shannonville and Point Anne areas were suspects as well.

Thurlow enlists the aid of a municipal dogcatcher, but so far his efforts in track down the elusive predators have been fruitless.

Some Vote, Some Don't

This is an off year for municipal elections in some municipalities but residents of Tyendinaga township will be faced with filling seats on township council and on two school boards.

On November 23 there will be nomination meetings to name candidates for the Hastings County Board of Education in Ward 4, and the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Ward 4 comprises the municipalities of Huntingdon, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Deseronto and Tyendinaga.

The nomination meeting for Ward 4 of the Hastings County Board of Education will be held at the Hungerford township hall in Tweed at 7 p.m.

For representation on the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board, Tyendinaga this year is in a ward with Thurlow and Richmond with one representative to be elected. The nomination meeting will be at Tyendinaga township hall, also at 7 p.m.

Then on November 25 there will be a nomination meeting for municipal council seats also at the township hall at 7 p.m.

If an election for any of the boards or council is necessary residents will vote on Monday, Dec. 7 with polls open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Six Injured In Accident

Six persons — one an infant — were taken to hospital with minor injuries after a three-car crash on Highway 14 north of Belleville this morning.

Provincial police expected all would be released after emergency treatment at Belleville General Hospital.

Taken to hospital, say OPP were: Mary Eleanor Burnham, 397 West Dundas Street, a passenger in her car, Jacqueline Callaghan, 52, South George Street; Peter Wirth, 22, RR3, Belleville, his wife, Catherine, daughters Catherine, 5, and Elizabeth, 10 months.

Driver of the third vehicle was William Holmes, Madoc, who escaped injury.

ANAF Pipe Band To Change Dress

Belleville's Army, Navy and Air Force Pipe Band will soon blossom out in new uniforms.

Breaking away from the traditional dress usually associated with pipe bands, they are changing to the classic dress of the Scottish highlands.

Belleville's band, under the direction of Pipe Major Dougal McCaskey and Drum Major Ken Candler, will be one of only four or five bands in Canada dressed in this manner.

Welcome Back Reception

Alderman Mrs. Jean Smith offers her welcome to Y General Secretary George Diamantides and his wife Helen at a reception held last night at the Belleville Family YMCA. General secretary between 1954 and 1965, Mr. Diamantides served the association in Greece and Winnipeg before returning to Belleville to take on his old job, left vacant by the resignation of the late Bert Messacar early this summer.

Returning YMCA Head Explains Group's Role

One of the most important undertakings that George Diamantides, general secretary for the Belleville Family YMCA will take on as he settles into his new position is to provide information on Y activities so that the public will better understand the purpose and facilities of this community organization, he said.

"We have the facilities, the knowhow . . . I can see that there are certain needs not yet met, such as the inclusion of preschool and kindergarten children in our programs."

Already, 28 youngsters have been enrolled in the Kinder-Gym program offering swimming and gym classes for children between three and five. Starting next week, an instructional swimming period will be initiated for that same age group. Additionally, there were 66 children taking part in the six- to seven-year-old swim program.

On the international scene, in which Mr. Diamantides has been active in recent years, the emphasis is on fulfilling the particular needs of a country.

Unlike the usual picture brought to mind when a YMCA is mentioned, some Y organizations provide rural districts with evening educational classes, health education, agriculture lessons . . . all without aid of a gymnasium.

This, of course, is not the case everywhere. Through international conventions and while serving with the Y in Thesaloniki in his native Greece, the retiring general secretary was able to see what role the association played in the lives of European, Asians and Africans.

He explained that in many of these countries the Y is sometimes considered a safe place from the political world where people of all religious races and creeds could meet without fear, a kind of common meeting ground.

In Asia and Africa, there are two organizations considered worthwhile in trying to win the minds of the youth: the YMCA and the Communist Youth movements.

Organized in London, England in 1844, coming to Montreal and then Boston in 1851, the Y quickly spread over the globe to encompass 87 countries.

In every case, the needs of the community dictate the extent to which this organization serves the people. . . .

The Belleville Family YMCA is supported through membership fees, which provide for a portion of the activities and inclusion in the United Community Services, from which comes a portion of the yearly United Appeal funds.

The city provides a third portion in the form of a $18,000-city tax exemption and a grant of $6,000.

As the public becomes more aware of the Y, increased and new programs are scheduled. Newest are a special fitness class for overweight women, and a Ladies Afternoon Out program.

Livestock Losses Set New Record

Tyendinaga township is being hard hit with livestock losses caused by dogs and wild animals.

At the October meeting of township council, members authorized payment of a record $875.to farmers for livestock lost during September.

"We have been hard hit this year," commented township clerk William J. Walsh, who noted that the big percentage of losses were young cattle which have been chased by dogs or possibly brush wolves.

Normally livestock losses seldom amount to more than $50 in any one month, Mr. Walsh said.

Runway Extension Construction On Schedule at CFB Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — The first portion of a massive runway extension program at Canadian Forces Base Trenton is nearing completion.

Private contractors are now adding the first of two 1,000-ft. sections to the main runway here and this phase of the job is "90 per cent complete" according to Base spokesman.

Work crews are on schedule and are due to finish the addition at the east end of the runway by November 5.

A second 1,000-foot extension at the main runway's western approach will begin no later than July 15, 1971 and is slated for completion by October 31, 1971.

When the building program is over, the main runway will be nearly 10,000 feet long, making it the largest military runway in Canada, suitable for Boeing 707 service in all conditions.

Capt. W. S. Crowell, protocol officer at CFB Trenton, explains that the 2,000-ft. runway extension program will provide "a safety factor for large jet aircraft".

The four 707s used by Air Transport Command here are subject to stringent safety precautions now but the additional concrete provides an optimum field for their landing and takeoff, he indicated.

Total cost of the runway construction at the base is nearly $1.5 million. This figure includes a sum allocated for landscaping around the new surfaces and additional field lighting.

Guide lights will be strung along the periphery of the new concrete fingers.

Next year's construction push will bring the west end of the runway near 6RD Road running along the townward side of the Forces Base.

This fall's construction moves the eastern extremity closer to the Canadian Pacific Railway's right - of - way.

The Job has meant very little disruption to Base Trenton, although some weather - recording equipment had to be relocated for the eastern extension.

Council to Get Coffee Breaks

Members of city council are to have coffee breaks during future elongated meetings.

This week's meeting of the city fathers lasted for well over three hours and although there was a brief break, it was without coffee or other refreshment.

But Alderman Robin Jeffrey felt things had gone far enough and with the resumption of the meeting, moved that council purchase a 36-cup coffee percolator for use at council meetings "and other city hall functions."

It Is World-Wide

In the present situation in Quebec we note that former Assistant Commissioner William Kelly of the RCMP is of the opinion the FLQ movement is not part of any International conspiracy.

This we would dispute. The FLQ manifesto made public in the wake of the Cross and Laporte kidnappings gives unconditional support to "the American blacks and those of Africa, the liberation movements of Latin America, of Palestine and of Asia, the revolutionary Catholics of Northern Ireland . . . And so on; the manifesto also salutes the Cuban and Algerian people "who are heroically fighting against imperialism and colonialism under all its forms, for a just society where man's exploitation by man is banned."

This is the very jargon used by left-wing socialist militants the world over. It is the sort of guff which has been perpetrated by propagandists in Moscow, Peking and the Communist satellite countries for years past and it should not fool anyone.

As to man's "exploitation by man," there are no more assiduous exploiters than the Reds, no regimes more cruel and oppressive than those of the Communist world and no regime in Canada would be more ruthless in this same general vein than one which might find itself in power here after violent revolution. If the "masses" feel oppressed now, just let a bunch of terrorists gain control and see how they like the kind of freedom we have.

There is evidence moreover that FLQ terrorists have been trained in Cuba and in the Middle East. There is the evidence too of the Maoists led by extremists like Robert Cruise who are dedicated to the violent overthrow of established order.

The Maoists are followers of the political theories of Chinese party chairman Mao Tse-tung and they constitute further evidence that Communist-style ideology is alive and well and rooted in Canada.

There is word too that guerrilla groups are in training in the United States and that their purpose is also the violent overthrow of society as we know it. Former Assistant Commissioner Kelly, of all people, should be aware of these trends. Whether they escalate or not must await further developments, but we will not be surprised if they do. The authorities meanwhile have been warned — they should step up their security now before it is too late.

Medical Insurance

Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter's progressive views on the need, among other things, to streamline the functions of government bureaucracy, have received belated endorsation in Premier Robarts' announcement that Ontario residents will pay no premiums for their health and hospital insurance starting July 1, 1972.

Some months ago Dr. Potter was replaced as chairman of the Legislature's health committee, because he was not to full agreement with the policies of his own party regarding health matters.

We doubt if Dr. Potter is interested in making political capital out of this matter, but the improvement of medical care and the needs of citizens are paramount in his thinking, but the Opposition was quick to see the irony of the situation. Premier Robarts' announcement was greeted with hoots of derision, with Opposition members noting that the new plan indicated the Government had accepted Dr. Potter's ideas.

So be it. All's well that ends well and we are sure that Dr. Potter's image will not suffer as a result.

Township's Lure

A pleasant drive in these declining days of autumn is through Sidney township to Wallbridge, then north to Frankford and south again along the river back to Trenton.

There is the little community in the area of the township offices and centennial hall while further along, topping the rise before entering Wallbridge there are a number of new homes commanding a fine view of the hills toward Stirling. Similarly, a wooded area before the traveller reaches the township community contains several secluded homes.

To the right is a handsome big farm home, well back from the road. Farther back again, toward Belleville, and on the other side, is a new church. Its architecture, like the homes springing up in this area, is contemporary. All in all it is a peaceful stretch of countryside and, as many are discovering, a desirable place to live while still remaining close to the city.

Maritimer Zaps It to the Grits

Robert Coates Is King of the PCs' Hard-Liners

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So in this session of Parliament, and from now on through the coming 18 months or two years to the next federal election, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and his Tory troops in the Commons are going to be more hard-nosed.

Some of them have been that way all along.

Tough, uncompromising, and as Opposition MPs unco-operative with the Government, even beastly to the Liberals.

Some have not.

Instead, believing that the Opposition must do more than oppose, they have, at times, supported the Government.

If, finally, the Conservatives as a power bloc do, indeed, are to get rough with the Government and even occasionally downright unreasonable, they will only be doing what the New Democrats have done from the start.

There are only two places to do it.

On the floor of the House of Commons or on the public platform.

At either scene of political action, the basic requirement is a speech. It should be short, and bristling with sharp points.

Not an academic thesis on government, the words should be simple, the sentences sharp, the thought clear and hard.

Generally people have little time or patience for politicians, none for boring political windbags.

How then is the more gentle Conservative putting such stock in the persuasive power of street orator to bypass more like hard-nosed They types?

Not complete carbon - hard copies of the toughies, mind you, but a little more flinty and a little less like political powder puffs.

By subscribing to the proposition that people do not really vote Is[illegible] for as they do against governments.

The biggest segment of the vote usually is cast to defeat the Government, not necessarily elect the Opposition.

So the main Opposition chance has to be the setting up of an anti-Government target for the party-shooting taxpayers.

Robert Coates, a 13-year parliamentary veteran from the Maritimes, is the prototype Tory hard-liner.

There are others, but he is frost and centre for the coincidental reason he has just got the prototype hard-nose speech off his chest.

It was delivered to the arch-Conservative Eastern Ontario constituency of Grenville-Carleton which, for the first time in its long political history, went Liberal in the last election.

It caught Trudeaumania.

Robert Coates went in the other night to begin the pre-election cure.

His speech — or talk — went on 19 minutes, 18 points.

The theme: what has the Trudeau Government done for you?

The answers, pared down even leaner than Robert Coates served them:

1. If you are a working man and unemployed, you have company, more than 600,000 others.

2. If you are a farmer, you are still in a race with rising prices.

3. If you are a farmer, fisherman, or lumberman you find it more difficult to get your co-operative or your firm to sell your product because of dollar revaluation.

4. If you are a manufacturer or exporter, the difficulty is the same as the market at home and abroad, increased foreign competition.

5. If you are a university or high school student you face the summer prospect of competing with 600,000 others for scarce jobs.

6. If you are a federal civil servant, your job could be in jeopardy and if you are not bilingual your promotion prospects are in peril.

7. If you are British - born or descended, you find the Crown and Old Country history and tradition discounted.

8. If you live in rural Canada you will watch your local Post Office closing and other services decreasing as government interest and concern shifts to the new semi-states of the big metro cities.

9. If you are a member of the Prime Minister's staff life is an $800,000 bowl of marshmallow salary cherries for the 80 elite of you.

10. If you are the Prime Minister you gaze on a glamorous fun-filled world through rose-colored glasses from the windows of your private jet.

Reasonable stuff this? Not entirely.

Lacks fair balance? Some, perhaps. But credible because there is more than a grain of truth in all 10 tough points. Tells it like the Opposition should.

For after all, are Opposition MPs supposed to be members of the Let's - Be - Kind - to - the - PM- and - the - Grit - Government - Cheering - Society?

Advice on Teens

Doctors Should Listen To Patients' Troubles

From The Globe and Mail

Doctors must make time to help patients with emotional worries as well as those with physical ailments, a Toronto family pediatrician told the Ontario Chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada recently.

Dr. Ray LaForest, chief of pediatrics at Scarborough General Hospital, said people are just crying out to talk to their doctors, who talk with the clergy in people's trust. Often doctors say they lack time, but "we've got to make time. otherwise we are selling ourselves down the river."

Auxiliary workers can be brought in to do the books or take over routine tasks, he said, but only physicians can talk to people without offending them, without scolding or being critical.

Everyone is telling parents today what to do and they are getting more and more mixed up. Basically parents are good and do not make many mistakes. Also no two children are alike; even identical twins are poles apart, the pediatrician said.

D.R LaForest said the brain is not fully developed until growth ceases with the closing of the growing ends of the long bones. This occurs in boys at 18 to 19 and in girls at 17 to 18 years of age.

"Letting teen-agers run the show is for the birds; they don't have the equipment to do it."

When he sees a young patient, he said, "I assume the child is a human being and can communicate with me, and so I ask him questions and talk about things with him."

Self - esteem is vital. If a child is browbeaten he will treat worse than the dog "you can't expect you are going to make him feel any better story by the time he's 17."

Children wish to be part of society and not to be different from their friends. They need disciplined, controlled to learn how to prepare for the duties of adulthood; and they need to learn values. He said the child who has no respect for parents, brothers or sisters or for other kids will eventually be labelled a juvenile delinquent. Delinquency is basically disrespect for the law, whether in the home or out of it.

Dr. LaForest said a child also needs a strong sense of identity — of why he is and where he fits on. Children also wish to be disciplined. There was a time when children were assumed to be normal unless proven otherwise, he said. Today "there's scarcely a kid in Scarborough" who isn't labelled by some term such as minimally brain damaged, having a visual motor problems or learning disabilities or emotional problems.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 15, 1970 . . .

The Great Exhibition ended in London, England, 118 years ago today—in 1851 —after 6,170,000 people had visited it in five months. One of the projects of Prince Albert, it was founded as the first big international exposition in the world, providing a model for modern world's fairs. A glass and cast-iron Crystal Palace was built to house displays and the profits of $150,000 bought land in Kensington upon which many of England's great museums now stand.

1965—A Vatican ecumenical council decree denied collective Jewish responsibility for the death of Christ.

1946—Goering committed suicide.

1944—The death of German Field Marshal Rommel was announced.

1917—Germany's famed women spy Mata Hari was executed in Paris.

Way Out—But Economical

Teens, Clothes and Parental Compromises

Letters to Mrs. Thompson of The Globe and Mail

As a mother who has fought the clothing battle for years, let me sympathize with your correspondent who is Tired Fighting. Unfortunately (or perhaps fortunately?) I have no husband, either to consult or offer criticism, I go out to the lions and a knot in my stomach at 8:30 a.m. is all I need!

Nevertheless I've experienced it many a time, in pitched battle with my daughters — now aged 12 and 14 — as they set off in jeans and sneakers, or eyebrow - raising minis. How one longs to outfit them in neat pleated skirts of a conservative length, pressed blouses and polished leather loafers. Maybe even a nice wool blazer. Then I wonder if my mother felt the same in the 1940s, when I went off in a sloppy-joe sweater or Sinatra jacket, bobby-socks and worn saddle-shoes. It was approved by our peers, and therefore compulsory for social acceptance in our most insecure years. There are so many far more important issues these days, that I have reluctantly conceded "the clothing battle.

Since their schools permit pants (as does my office) I content myself that their jeans are clean, their turtlenecks and safari jackets warm enough for the weather, and my stomach un-knotted. As far as economy goes, nothing could be more economical than their taste in clothes these days — as long as square old mother doesn't waste any cash in the first place, wistfully choosing tunics, blouses and blazers. Sign me by my slogan, taken from the hit song by my daughters' idols, The Beatles.

Let It Be

* * *

At the public school nearby, I notice many girls do still wear navy tunics — but they must be very short, and they hang loose without the belt.

A number of mothers of girls responded with sympathy to the letter from Tired Fighting. Here is one who compromises with good results:

* * *

I think it would be great if students could wear uniforms to school, but like everything else this isn't the world we live in. Fashion unfortunately is being pushed on children from a very young age. But is it really worth alienating one's daughter over clothes?

My daughter and I look through the catalogues and fashion pages together, choose the likes, which I think are in terrible taste, but usually we manage to find quite a few we both like. I do make a point of only shopping in the stores that carry the better selection. This applies to shoe stores too. Our daughter, like the rest of her friends, is very fashion conscious, but also well adjusted and happy and this is the main thing.

I could mention our 13-year-old son. Now there's a challenge! Gone those nice grey flannel suits. There's no way for peace but to put up with a junior hippie. Strangely enough I was the only mother that didn't object to long hair because I rather like it. And guess who thinks he needs a haircut?

Defence Commitments

Montreal Gazette

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald's announcement in the Commons that Canada's current naval shipbuilding program might be delayed for a year is disconcerting news. The four helicopter-destroyers are under construction at Sorel and Lauzon, where 1,200 workers are involved in building the ships.

The shipyards are already running behind schedule and there is concern that the estimated cost of the $222,000,000 program is beginning to escalate. Mr. Macdonald has rightly ordered an examination of the situation. While caution seems out of the question at this time, the doubt will overshadow the whole project until results of the examination are available.

The Liberal government is somewhat about its military procurement record, and it should be. The fiasco of the Bonaventure's refitting will long be remembered. The moth - balling of 115 CF-5 fighter-bombers as fast as they come off the assembly line is a painful act.

It is easy to understand why the defence department should want to take a long look at where its destroyer program is going. Nevertheless, it must make up its mind. It must ask itself what ships will form the core of the navy of the 1970s, if not these destroyers.

Cancellation would be a heavy blow to Quebec's shipbuilding industry.

Board

100th anniversary of Ontario School for the Deaf.

On a previous visit to the city he refused comment on the separate school situation here and further written enquiries from The Intelligencer have been acknowledged but not answered.

Deputy - minister of education J. R. McCarthy said today that he understood the matter was still before the board because of the notice of motion made my Msgr. J. P. Sullivan, calling for the re - instatement of Mr. Allore.

"I understand there is a letter coming from the board clarifying the situation regarding the notice of motion Depending upon its contents, we may take the matter under consideration," he told The Intelligencer by telephone from Toronto.

He said the department turned the matter back to the board June 23 at its request, because negotiations had begun between the board and the superintendent.

"The board has to justify to us its decision to suspend the superintendent, then we individuals who sit will sustain the decision," said the deputy minister.

A "board of reference" could be set up by the department to hear both sides of the argument (Mr. Allore's and the board's) in closed hearings.

But no decision on whether to set up a board of reference has yet been made by the department.

Dr. McCarthy said the decision to inform the ratepayers of the charges against Mr. Allore rests with the board.

"We have not asked the board to maintain secrecy on the matter, nor could we," he said.

A ratepayer who signed the statement said this morning that the continued silence by board and department is "unfair to the individual concerned".

That is why I signed the statement," she said. "Because no charges have been made public, everyone thinks the very worst. The department should act to end the speculation. I hope this won't become an election issue."

QDLC to Support Some Candidates

Candidates in upcoming municipal elections seeking the support of organized labor should contact the Quinte District Labor Council.

The reminder came last night from QDLC president Robert Andrus as the council endorsed two of its members for re-election in the December local government stakes.

They were Trenton town councillor George Greer and William Menzies. Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board trustee for Trenton and Murray township.

At its next meeting in early November the QDLC's political action committee is expected to submit a roster of candidates seeking local labor's endorsement. In bids for municipal offices.

Last night's meeting also heard a written request for enforcement from Trenton public utilities commission chairman C. A. Baker.

Mr. Andrus said he welcomed the letter — the first such request from outside the ranks of local labor.

Union Representative Charges Tweed Firm A U.S. Branch

A labor official last night charged that a new electronics plant at Tweed was a branch of Amplifone Canada Ltd., which closed out its Belleville operations six weeks ago.

Ken Levack, United Steelworkers' district representative, said the union will place its claim before federal and provincial government authorities.

The U.S. - owned Amplifone closed its 15-year-old Belleville operation Aug. 28. At that time a company official blamed the shutdown on failure to reach an agreement on a new work contract with its 85 employees — represented by the Steelworkers.

The Tweed plant, Avenger Electronics, is operated by E. A. Murdoff, former production manager at Amplifone. Two weeks ago Mr. Murdoff said his operation was completely dissociated with Amplifone. He reiterated his statement this morning.

Mr. Murdoff's stand was supported by Amplifone president T. E. Gemmell of Chicago who was in Belleville today.

Mr. Handing said the Tweed plant was an "absolutely independent operation."

Mr. Levack met in Belleville last night with members of the Steelworkers' Local 7313 — the Amplifone union unit — following a Quinte District Labor Council meeting at the Canadian Legion hall.

"There's no question that the Tweed plant is a branch of the Amplifone corporation," Mr. Levack said after the discussion.

"This is another example of the American company exploiting Canadian labor in their never-ending search for cheap labor. It's our intention to investigate this thoroughly with the provincial and federal authorities and see what can be done to make this employer assume his responsibility as a Canadian employer," said Mr. Levack.

"It's further evidence of the need for some provincial and federal legislation to prevent these companies from repeating this act," added Mr. Levack.

At Tweed, Mr. Murdoff said his operation was in "no way" connected with Amplifone.

The plant, opened a month ago, now employs 22 people — workforce which will be slowly built up, said Mr. Murdoff.

Meanime, Mr. Handing, who said his Belleville visit was part of a disposal process of Amplifone assets in the city, denied that Avenger Electronics was a branch of his company.

"If they (the Steelworkers) want to find out, why don't they go to the government and see where they (Avenger Electronics) are listed."

Amplifone had rented equipment to the Tweed company because "they didn't have money to pay for it," said Mr. Handing.

"And we repressed them in sales — which we do for other companies too," he added.

Amplifone, he said, had cancelled its manufacturing permit.

Mr. Handing said it was "perfectly all right with us".

If the union went to government authorities.

LORDC Will Press For Bay Bridge Action

The Lake Ontario Regional Development Council expects to soon initiate a wide-ranging discussion on the need for a new Bay of Quinte bridge in Belleville, minister George Gomme stated the present structure linking the city to Prince Edward County was inadequate for at least another decade.

Disgruntled councillors vetoed to request Mr. Gomme personally explain his stand at a city hall meeting.

Today, Ald. Ireland said there was no conflict between council's request and the projected LORDC debate.

He felt that LORDC — with wider contacts throughout the Quinte area — could attract more participants on an "unbiased basis."

A new bridge would have significance over a wide area of the district and the LORDC "can play a very neutral role in bringing people together," said Mr. Ireland.

Ald. Ireland is a representative for the LORDC's zone 3 — an area reaching from Napanee to Trenton and north from Picton to Bancroft.

Mr. Fred Allore, Superintendent of Separate Schools for the Prince Edward and Hastings County, was suspended by the Board of Trustees, May 8, 1970.

To this day, no satisfactory explanation of this act of the Board has been forthcoming. Delegations from the ratepayers have demanded an explanation from the Board but have received none.

The undersigned wish to make public their dissatisfaction with the Separate School Board and their dismay that the actions of the Board have displayed such a lack of concern for the quality of the education of children and for the rights of the ratepayers who have entrusted this Board with responsibilities.

The undersigned also express their regret that the Catholic School system in Belleville has allowed itself to conduct its affairs in a manner which not only has given scandal to the community but also which has displayed a lack of concern for Christian charity and justice.

Four Seats in Question; Official Count Oct. 22

HALIFAX (CP) — Whether the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives won Tuesday's Nova Scotia election may not be known until official returns and ballot counts are filed.

Unofficially, the Liberals won 23 seats, the Conservatives 21 and the NDP two in the 46-seat legislature in election night tabulations. Standings in the last house: PCs 41, Liberals five.

The outcome of possible recounts in four ridings where the voting was close could determine which party forms the next government.

Premier G. I. Smith had no comment on his plans Wednesday but he did say there will be a statement today or Friday. The PC caucus was to meet today.

NDP Leader Jeremy Akerman said Wednesday he will support the party which has the majority of seats when the official count is known. However, his continued support would depend on the party's legislative program, and he would "play it by ear."

Liberal Leader Gerald Regan was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Narrow margins raise the possibility of recounts in four ridings.

In Kings West, Welfare Minister Gordon Tidman won by 16 votes over Liberal Frank Beckerson. In Pictou East, Liberal A. Lloyd MacDonald edged Conservative member Tom MacQueen by 17 votes.

Mines Minister Percy Gaum lost by 67 votes to Paul McEwan the second NDP candidate to be elected, in Cape Breton Nova. Liberal Scott McNutt defeated Highways Minister I. W. Akerley by 86 votes in Dartmouth South.

Revised figures Wednesday in Colchester gave Industry Minister Gerald Ritcey a 143-vote edge over his nearest opponent, Liberal George Norrie. He had a four-vote edge election night.

Premier Smith, the second PC member in the two-member Colchester riding, got a substantial increase. Revised figures gave him more than 1,000 more votes. No immediate explanation was given for the difference with election night vote-counting.

Returning officers in the province will begin the official collation of the votes next Tuesday. Their official reports could be in by Oct. 22.

Mr. Akerman said which ever party gains the most seats after the official addition of votes is filed should be "given the chance to govern."

Retail Costs Stability Continues in September

OTTAWA (CP) — Retail prices in Canada were marked down last month to a rate of $9.96 from $10 in July and August.

That was the measure of a decline reported Wednesday in the consumer price index—to 130.2 points in September from 130.5 in the summer months. It was 126.6 in September, 1969.

While not a spectacular bargain and not entirely unexpected with the normal harvest-time drop in food prices the drop nevertheless prolongs a recent trend to more stability in retail costs after a long stretch of price inflation.

Figures published by Dominion Bureau of Statistics since March show price inflation has slowed to a gentle pace of two per cent a year after a gallop of five per cent or more through 1969 and into this spring.

The index measures changes in the prices of hundred of goods and services whose prices in 1961 were given a rating of 100 points.

The measurement means in effect that $100 worth of food, clothing, shelter, transport and other goods and services in 1961 had risen in price to $128.80 in September, 1969, was up again to $130.50 this summer, then dropped to $130.20 last month.

A seasonal decline in prices of fresh vegetables and fruit, along with lower prices for beef, pork and poultry, brought the decline in the general index. It followed the September pattern in three of the last five years.

A drop of 1.4 per cent in the food category offset increases in the prices of clothing, housing and recreation.

INTERNATIONAL CREDIT UNION WEEK, 1970

Around the world this week, some 38 million members of credit unions are counting the ways in which these self-help savings and credit organizations have enriched their lives.

Ontario's million credit union members have saved close to $700 million in their credit union accounts. This money is loaned to members to help buy or repair homes and cars, to pay for household furnishings and appliances, education and family vacations.

Credit union members in this province, and elsewhere in Canada and the United States, are also aiding people in the developing nations — with people and funds — to organize their own credit unions.

CIAG is proud to provide insurance of every kind to these good managers, the credit union families of Ontario. If you'd like more information about credit union membership (or insurance) please call us:

Tough Provisions

Parliament Hears Call to Make FLQ Membership A Crime

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons heard a call Wednesday for tough new provisions in the Criminal Code—including making membership in the Front de la Liberation du Quebec a crime—to stop terrorist acts such as the recent kidnappings in Quebec.

Hyllard Chappell (L—Peel South), speaking on the third day of the eight-day throne speech debate, said FLQ members now in prison were led by "international political gangsters."

The Criminal Code should be amended to provide the "strictest penalty for those who kidnap people and hold them as hostages, or pirate a plane or vessel, or place bombs where there is a reasonable chance of causing death."

The legal definition of conspiracy and conspirators should be expanded to include those "who openly support and encourage conspiracies."

Trial and appeal procedures should be speeded "so that the final penalty is carried out and attempts to rescue them by committing further crimes are thwarted."

Mr. Chappell said a new type of hearing should be instituted "at least during this emergency" in which people "are forced to disclose the names of their fellow conspirators."

Along with making membership in the FLQ a crime Mr. Chappell recommended tightened immigration laws "to forbid entrance to Canada of those who preach the violent overthrow of our system."

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) introduced a non-confidence motion attacking the government for not increasing family allowances as a step to a guaranteed annual income.

The motion, along with a Conservation, will be voted on later in the debate. An NDP non-confidence motion was defeated Tuesday night.

Earlier in the House, Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien said there was no program in his department for sterilization of Eskimo women.

And Prime Minister Trudeau said in the question period he could not say whether nuclear disarmament had been discussed in negotiations leading to the diplomatic recognition by Canada of Communist China.

While Mr. Chappell stressed the danger of terrorism in Canada, James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the "greatest threat to democracy in this country is the destruction of Parliament by this government."

Prime Minister Trudeau "has systematically set out to destroy this institution" with revised procedural rules adopted in 1968.

Referring to the FLQ kidnappings, Mr. McGrath said "the government "acted responsibly in placing paramount importance on the maintenance of the rule of law."

But the government had "overplayed its hand" in bringing armed troops on to Parliament Hill.

The government should treat the cause of the current trouble, which he suggested was regional poverty, with more than the band-aid treatment so far forthcoming.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) also attacked the government's economic policies.

Eleanor Minister Benson, he said, had not disclosed how the government planned to halt "the real downturn in the economy and mounting unemployment."

The government had left the country in "an economic doldrum, in part because of its wild and irresponsible proposals in its white paper on taxation."

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa Whitby) criticized Mr. Trudeau for accumulating great personal power, then failing to use it effectively.

Of four major bills, two—amendments to the Criminal Code and the Official Languages Act—were first introduced by Prime Minister Pearson.

The third, the Regional Development Incentives Act, suffered from insufficient funds. The fourth, the Canada Water Act, suffered from a lack of stiff pollution controls.

We have succeeded in pulling a particularly interesting upstaging caper: A portable radio with a pop-up, honest-to goodness television.

Goes anywhere. On battery or house current. And it delivers a great black and white picture, as well as great FM/AM music.

This innovation popped-up at our TV factory. Where we make TV's ranging from 11½ inches to 20 inches in screen size. The 11½-inch one is the world's smallest TV. Sort of like a wrist-watch.

You've got the idea now. We become very involved in making TV's.

And we make them in all kinds of combinations. Some with FM/AM radios. Some with clocks. Even portable TV's with batteries inside so you can take them anywhere.

And as features go . . . we don't skimp. Which explains our slide lever controls for precision adjusting.

Speed-o-Vision for instant sound and picture.

—so the team doesn't score while your TV is warming up. And a few other goodies like dark-tinted screens and direct vision tubes for better viewing.

So go to any Panasonic dealer and ask to see our TV's.

Ask our dealer what Arnold has to say about us.

New Look Requires Hats

Showing that hats are definitely 'in' once again are (front) June Woodley and Beverley Lewis, (back) June Moorcroft, Catherine MacIntosh, Carolyn Emerson and Nadine Dolan who modelled at the College Hill U.C.W. fashion show on Wednesday evening.

Hats Predominate At College Hill UCW Show

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Hats, once considered a very important part of every chic woman's wardrobe are about to make a spectacular re-entry into the fashion scene, according to the 'World of Fashion', a show presented by Woodley Furriers and sponsored by the College Hill U.C.W. on Wednesday evening. Hats or - ordained by Eva Wannamaker, head of the millinery department at Woodley's dominated the show which was held in the church hall, and appeared in all styles and colors.

Mrs. June Woodley wore a white peak cap with side streamers of matching felt with her green and white checked aquascutum coat and black boots. Mrs. Nadine Dolan's long - haired lynx coat was set off by a green knit fringed maxi scarf and matching beret.

Mrs. Beverly Lewis modelled a pale green Robin Hood hat and matching scarf with orange flecks giving a tweed effect. Her shaped brown leather coat was in longuette length.

Mrs. Catherine MacIntosh looked well prepared for any raindrops that might 'fall from the sky' in her head with her shocking pink umbrella which had a black print inside. Her aquascutum rain coat had a matching pink and black print. She also wore black gloves and a black velvet hat.

Carolyn Emerson showed off a chocolate brown sombrero with her Helen Harper pant, suit featuring slightly flared pants and a turtle necked top. June Moorcroft's Persian Lamb midi coat in a most unusual sirocco shade, trimmed with Russian blue fox and set off by a matching cossack hat was reminiscent of Dr. Zhivago.

Beverley Lewis appeared again in an oyster muskrat coat with a three-tiered profile hat in lavender, fuschia and deep purple. A fuschia ballerina hat with a ruffle round the bottom gave this outfit a feminine and romantic air.

Carolyn Emerson modelled a plum colored pant suit. The swirls of pink and blue on her long scarf were re-echoed on her umbrella. Commentator Doug Woodley compared scarves to the tie-on because they completely change the look of each outfit.

Other items that caught the eye included Beverley Lewis' striped muskrat coat worn with a velour Spanish hat and some hats worn by June Woodley — a turquoise picture profile hat, a deep brown beaver gaucho and a dark green Beaver Breton hat with a turned - up brim.

The boots worn by the models were from Leslie Shoe Store while the clothes and all the other accessories were from Woodley Furriers.

During the interval, Mrs. Marslyn McIntosh, president of the UCW conducted draws for several prizes which included umbrellas and pantyhose. Joachim Hansen on the violin, accompanied by his daughter Elizabeth on the piano entertained the crowd with a 'traveling in music', a selection of pieces from different countries.

The show was convened by Carolyn Emerson. Tea and refreshments were served after the show.

UCW MEETINGS

QUEENSBORO UCW

QUEENSBORO — The general meeting of the Queensboro United Church Women was held on October 3 in St. Andrews United Church, Queensboro with Unit One as hostesses.

Mrs. Rex Rollins, president was in charge of the business period and plans for the UCW rally to be held here on Oct. 20 were discussed. Members decided to have a turkey supper later this month.

Mrs. Sedgwick gave a report on a meeting that was held in Belleville recently for the discussion of union between the United and Anglican churches.

Mrs. Harry Love conducted the devotional, assisted by Mrs. Wannamaker and Mrs. Harry Declair.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Rollins showed slides of local scenes and also scenes of several places of interest they had visited.

Lunch was served in the Sunday school room by Unit two and a social time enjoyed as the close of the meeting.

The Experts Say

Parents Must Keep Unsafe Toys from Kids

OTTAWA (CP) — The responsibility for the protection of children lies with parents as well as toy designers, manufacturers and legislators, Mrs. A. B. R. Lawrence, president of the Canadian Toy Testing Council, says.

In an article written for Canadian Consumer, a magazine published by the Consumers Association of Canada, she says that almost any toy can be unsafe if it is misused or given to the wrong child.

"Parents must anticipate the accidents that can occur, particularly in a family where there is a wide age span, and teach older children to keep many of their toys out of the reach of younger ones.

"This is true not only of obviously dangerous toys such as chemistry sets and dart games but of many seemingly harmless toys. A marble, for instance can mean hours of play to a nine-year-old boy and death to a baby.

"In addition, an intelligent assessment of the possible misuse of a toy in order. For example, a pull toy is an excellent one for a toddler but should never accompany him into a play pen or crib where the cord could get caught around his neck and strangle him."

Mrs. Lawrence, wife of the Ontario minister of financial and commercial affairs and mother of four, says parents should also realize the dangers inherent in some toys.

"They should warn school-age children who are using electrical toys such as wood-burning sets not to operate such toys when their hands or clothing are wet. They should see that inflatable water toys are never used by non-swimmers in water beyond their depth.

"Finally, that most innocent-appearing toy, the balloon, has been known to asphyxiate several children who inhaled instead of inflating while blowing them up."

Mrs. Lawrence, whose Ottawa-based organization of about 20 volunteer workers each year tests a quantity of toys on the market, includes in her article both explanations of legislation affecting toy safety in Canada and tips to consumers about hazards to watch for when buying toys.

For example, she advises persons buying rattles and similar infant toys to avoid thin, brittle plastic "as it is extremely splintery and dangerous when broken." Balls and balls which are part of infant toys should be too large to swallow should they become detached.

A section on costumes warn parents to read a costume label carefully to see whether the outfit resists flame and whether washing will affect this quality.

"Some light-reflecting parts are desirable if the costume is to be worn at night. As masks can restrict vision and be uncomfortable, the Canadian Toy Testing Council recommends using washable theatrical makeup instead. It is safer, cheaper and just as much fun."

The council also says that play housekeeping equipment which is primarily intended for three-, four- and five-year-olds should not be electrical.

"This age group has no way of understanding the potential fire, shock and burn hazard or the potential of an electrical outlet and so has no business plugging anything into one."

CLUB ACTIVITIES

ELMBROOK FRIENDSHIP CIRCLE

The October meeting of the Elmbrook Friendship Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Gladys Lister on Oct. 8.

Mrs. Arnold Ackerman was in charge of the devotional. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. George Benson. "Thank some one every day" was the theme of the reading by Mrs. Ackerman. A solo was rendered by Miss Lola Benny followed by a reading by Mrs. Arthur Sicree.

President Mrs. Howard Norton, took charge of the business part of the meeting. It was announced that the next meeting will be held on December 2 at the home of Mrs. Arnold Ackerman. Mrs. Howard Norton will be in charge of the lunch. Mrs. Orval May of the devotional and Mrs. Ella Goralline of the contest. This will be the Christmas meeting, so members were asked to bring a gift for their "secret pal". It was decided to hold a rummage sale in the near future.

An amusing contest regarding different kinds of material used in dressmaking was conducted by Mrs. Gerald Norton and was won by Mrs. George Benson who left with Mrs. Reg. Moore.

A Simple Dessert

By MARY MOORE

For an obvious reason self-saucing puddings are popular — because they require just one operation.

Some of you will be impatient as I am, at having to buy a half pint of sour cream when a recipe calls for a much smaller amount. There you are stuck with the leftover sour cream. You can serve sour cream dressings on your salad greens, especially cucumbers, but other uses would be welcome. Here is a little beauty — Self Saucing Sour Cream Pudding

SELF - SAUCING SOUR CREAM PUDDING (serves 5)

¾ cup unsifted all - purpose flour
1½ tsps. baking powder
½ cup sugar
¼ tsp salt
¼ cup margarine (room temperature)
½ tsp. vanilla
1-3 cup milk
1 egg
1 cup light brown sugar, packed
1 cup dairy sour cream

For speed's sake measure directly into a 1½-qt. casserole the flour, baking powder, sugar, salt, margarine, vanilla and milk. Mix until blended. Beat in egg. Wipe down sides of casserole. Sprinkle top evenly with the brown sugar then spread smoothly over top the sour cream. (NOTE: If desired you can use a whole half pint carton.) Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 45-55 min. or until cakey top begins to brown. Brown sugar and sour cream scop through to bottom and form sauce but if desired this may be served with half-and-half cream or milk. Add this recipe to your self-saucing or quick dessert file.

Points for Parents

Father: "Why don't you and the children go with me on my business trip next weekend?"

Mother: "I wish we could, but I have to spend my days off cleaning up the house or the place would go to pot in no time at all."

Something has to give when a mother works away from home, but the wise mother won't put the house ahead of the people who live in it.

QUINTE W.I.

The Quinte W.I. held a euchre meeting on Friday night with 11 tables in play. Mrs. K. Vivian and Mrs Douglas Atkins, assisted by Mrs. Arnold Mitchell and Mrs Charles Wood, convened the meeting. Prizes were won by Mrs. Aida McNish, Mrs. W. Fairbrother and Mrs. Gladys Larier in the ladies' section and Raymond Higgins, R. Anderson and Clifford Anderson in the men's section.

The draw was won by Mrs. Charles Wood. Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed by all. The next euchre meeting will be held on Oct. 23 at W.I. hall.

Successful Living

Aged Should Keep in Touch with the World

By DORIS CLARK

Many aged people feel superfluous. Society is geared to the young and Grandpa and Grandma get the impression that they have no business being under foot any more.

What is it like to be old? I have it on good authority that the aged person feels just the same, inside as when he was young. The same interest in people and things, the same desire to love and be loved, the same need to be doing something which makes sense. The thing that is different is that the feet won't run as fast; the body won't move as easily.

It is true that old people must slow down. They have to adjust to less income, often, and some inconveniences. They suffer a loss in looks. They lose friends through death. They may lose a little of their memory; and health often isn't quite as good.

If they are in a situation which encourages them to keep in contact with the world about them, they don't shove as many signs of old age, and not as soon. But if they're in a situation where they really feel discarded, they can deteriorate over night.

What a pity! When you think of all the education and knowledge and experience wrapped up in each mature individual!

You who read this column: If you have an elderly person in your house or in your family, take a little time out to keep him involved. Involved in something worthwhile, something which will use some of that stored-up knowledge and wisdom. Put a little valuable manpower to use and bring cheer to a human spirit.

Dear Doris: My brother and his girl friend are getting married and they want me to be their bridesmaid. The wedding is going to be in a Canadian city 200 miles from here.

I want to do this but my boy friend said that if I go we will not go together any more because it will hurt him real bad. I gave him his ring back and we started crying.

If I don't go it will make him happy and I'd end up crying and vice versa. He also said if I go he'll take off from home so no one will know where he is. — Horns of Dilemma.

Dear Horns: What nonsense! Apparently marrying such a one would mean cutting off all family ties. What kind of a love can be destroyed over one brief legitimate separation?

Real love wants the loved one to be happy, to do what is right, and to not have the feeling of being held down. Go, by all means! If the B.F. gets lost so much the better.

Dear Doris: I would like to know which of the royal family is the oldest: Princess Anne or Prince Charles. I think Anne was the first baby.

— Let Me Know.

Dear Let Me: No. Anne came second. Prince Charles is heir - apparent to the throne, born on November 14, 1948. He is now 21 years old and a fine upstanding young man; well loved, and now carrying the title of Prince of Wales.

Anne's two younger brothers, Prince Andrew and Prince Edward, are second and third in succession to the throne. Anne is fourth in line — since she is merely a girl!

Ann Landers

Young Woman Has Many Heartaches

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am only 20 and have decided that I dare not fall in love again. Here is my story and I am desperate for some advice.

ANN LANDERS

My childhood sweetheart was the boy next door. I knew I would marry him from the day we enrolled together in kindergarten. He was stricken at 15 with a mysterious malady and died a few days later. It took me two years to recover from his death. Finally I became interested in another young man — this time, the handsomest and sweetest boy in town. Our friendship grew into love and I felt so lucky to have found someone who could replace my childhood sweetheart.

Two weeks before high school graduation this boy was drowned in a surfing accident. I was so torn apart the doctor kept me under sedation for three days. I was not permitted to attend the funeral.

Eight months ago my cousin was shipped to Vietnam. He showed my picture to a buddy from South Carolina. His buddy wrote to me and sent me his picture. He looked very much like my childhood sweetheart. After several months of letter writing, he asked me to fly to Honolulu to meet him for R. and R. I did. We both realized it was more than just a paper romance. It was love. After a heavenly five days we said good-by. He promised to send an engagement ring within two weeks. The ring arrived — a beautiful diamond — on July 21st. Five days later I received word that he was killed in action.

Why do these terrible things always happen to me? I am afraid to fall in love again. I seem to jinx ever man whose life touches mine. Please help me make some sense out of this. I am — LOSING MY GRIP WITH REALITY.

DEAR FRIEND: You've had more grief in your first 20 years than most people experience in a lifetime. I can provide no answers, but I can tell you this: You have proven to yourself that you can live through anything.

Apparently you possess an indomitable spirit and a buoyancy reserved for the few. Your refusal to be beaten down by tragedy and misfortune shows extraordinary courage. Rose Kennedy is another such person. You are in excellent company.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A certain woman in our crowd has a neat little trick that makes me so mad I can barely remain civil toward her. I'd like to know if I am suffering from menopausal jealousy (my husband's name for it), or do I have a point?

This redhead is a chain smoker. I don't mind that she is destroying her lungs and smells like a saloon, but I loathe the way she taps the cigarette on her wrist, places it sensuously between her lips, nuzzles up to my husband for a light and gazes into his eyes. She always manages to hold his hand several seconds longer than is necessary — ostensibly to steady it after he has struck the match. Get these scenes?

What do you think, Ann? Do I have a point? — ON TO THE WENCH.

DEAR ON: That tired piece of theatre is old as the hills and twice as dusty. Anything so obvious can't be very effective — unless the guy is a case of arrested development, is he?

* * *

Confidential to WANT TO LEARN FROM EXPERIENCE: You've never jumped from a ten storey window but I'm sure you have a fairly good idea that it would not be healthy. Certain things are best learned by taking someone else's word for it. The experiment you describe is extremely risky and I urge you to forget it.

Hallowe'en Costumes Too

ACW Bazaar Features Indian Handcrafts

By SUSAN KORAH

Trying to stimulate an interest in crafts was one of the objects of the bazaar held by St. Thomas ACW on Wednesday afternoon at the parish hall. According to Mrs. Stewart Robertson, president of the ACW, a common interest in activities such as smocking, quilting, crocheting or knitting would bring together women of all ages from teenagers to grandmothers and promote fellowship and goodwill among them. This is why the ACW would like volunteers to teach these crafts as well as those who wish to learn them to come forward and form groups for this purpose. She said that this project was planned because she felt that people are no longer interested in the old fashioned church group.

A notable feature of the bazaar was the stall displaying handcrafts done by the Mohawk Indians of the Bay of Quinte. Moderately priced beaded articles such as headbands and belts as well as moccasins and coats of deerskin were exhibited at this stall and orders were taken on any of the items there.

Mrs. C. J. Beits who helps the Mohawk Indians to sell their wares was in charge of this stall and Mrs. Mildred Braud was demonstrating freehand bead work.

Another stall featured baby wear, toys, aprons and knitwear. Mrs. Ossie Hale was in charge of the costumes which proved to be popular with children. Mrs. M. Smith was in charge of the 'boutique' where a number of hand puppets and several stuffed bears (Winnie the Pooh) waited to be bought. There was also a garden centre with Mr. C. Coleman in charge and an odds 'n' ends stall with Mrs. P. Loder in charge. Some of the articles sold at the bazaar were the result of individual effort while others were made by groups.

The convenor of the bazaar was Mrs. N. C. Fisher. Mrs. Dianne Tett, wife of the rector and Mrs. S. Robertson, president of the ACW received visitors at the door.

Tea was served during the afternoon with Mrs. J. Henry being in charge of the tea room. A hot supper was served in the evening by the women of St. Paul's parish with Mrs. J. McKenna in charge. An auction sale which started at 7 p.m. was convened by Mrs. R. Aitken and Mrs. Harold Carruthers.

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE WI

The October meeting of the Canniffon-Corbyville WI was held on Monday evening in the Institute hall with Mrs D. Ellsworth, president in the chair.

A donation was given to the pee wee baseball club. Plans were completed for the area convention to be held at Club Canara on Oct. 28 and 29, also to cater for the Postmen's banquet as in previous years. A report was given of the district tea held at Gilead Hall the previous week. Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Avery, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Milton reported for standing committees.

Mrs. Bowers, convener for health was in charge of the program which consisted of readings on various topics and a poem. Lunch was served by the committee.

Separatists Hold Fort

Action Centre for Quebec Radicals at Small Montreal Hotel

MONTREAL (CP) — Focal point for news of the dealings on which hang the fate of two kidnap hostages is a small hotel in a historic section of Montreal.

Robert Lemieux, a radical young lawyer, holds court with his separatist friends in the Nelson Hotel and meets press and broadcasters there to tell of the progress of negotiations aimed at releasing the kidnap victims.

The 29-year-old Mr. Lemieux, himself an avowed separatist, represents the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec in talks by which the provincial government seeks the release of the abducted British envoy James (Jasper) Cross, and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

The violence-oriented FLQ insists frequent communiques about the hostages, repeating threats to assassinate them unless its numerous demands are fulfilled.

Obviously the kidnappers in their hideouts are out of reach of reporters seeking amplification.

It's also hard to get more details from the provincial authorities. Government statements are terse because of the delicate nature of the negotiations.

But in the hotel's smoke-filled conference room, blazing with television lights, the fluently bilingual lawyer tells of the action in his dealings with lawyer Robert Demers, the government spokesman.

And he answers questions from reporters politely in both French and English.

The four-storey hotel, where the McGill Law School graduate has a $15-a-week room, is on the east side of Place Jacques Cartier, now aflame with banks of autumn flowers.

The flag-stoned square lies in what citizens call Old Montreal where ancient fortifications were demolished 153 years ago.

In contrast to the separatist gatherings in the hotel's lobby bar, the most prominent feature of the square is a column commemorating Britain's naval hero, Lord Nelson.

On four sides of the column's plinth are details of the sea lord's victories—all in English.

Wednesday, before his news conference with the latest details of the talks, Mr. Lemieux sat in the bar with ferry labor leader Michel Chartrand and other separatist cronies at a table covered with beer bottles and papers.

Half the people in the bar were reporters, drinking the time away as they waited for the action.

But many more were obviously separatists and some of them ocassionally came to the table to speak to Mr. Lemieux.

When it was time for the news conference, Mr. Lemieux picked up his papers and entered the adjoining room which quickly filled up with about 100 reporters.

After a previous conference where punches were thrown between an English-speaking reporter and a bystander, press cards had to be produced Wednesday before one could enter the room.

Mr. Lemieux, who lives upstairs in the Nelson—newspaper pictures show the room lined with separatist posters, the lord unmade—is blessed a study in contrasts.

Although he says he makes only $5,000 a year and that is "sort of an allowance" from the FLQ, he dresses as well as any up-and-coming young lawyer in Montreal's judicial district.

But his hair is almost down to his shoulders and his untrimmed moustache droops.

Last week he told an interviewer:

"Lawyers appearing before the courts are expected to go there with dignity, decorum and good, quiet attire.

"That's not a dress like this. I have to be conservative for my clients.

"It's all a phoney facade."

No Longer Together

A recent photograph, taken in their suburban Montreal residence, shows all four members of the Laporte family: Claire, 20; Mrs. Laporte; Pierre Laporte, 49; and Jean, 10. Mr. Laporte, provincial minister of labor and of manpower and immigration, was kidnapped Saturday night. (CP Wirephoto)

Meet Terms, Group Asks

MONTREAL (CP) — A statement by 10 prominent Quebecers Wednesday night asks the Quebec government to free 23 convicted or accused terrorists in return for the lives of a cabinet minister and a diplomat, both abducted by the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The statement, read at a news conference by Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, is signed by Claude Ryan, publisher of Montreal Le Devoir; Louis Laberge, president of the 750,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, Yves Charbonneau, president of the 65,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation, and other community leaders.

The statement supported a government decision Sunday to appoint a mediator to negotiate the release of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte and British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross.

But it said it is urgent that an FLQ demand for the liberation of the 23 so-called "political" prisoners be met immediately.

It also criticized strongly statements by Premier John Roberts of Ontario that Quebec province is heading for "open war."

The statement said any further delay in releasing the prisoners would harm "the honor and dignity of all Quebecers."

"Another delay would mean the abolition of social and political liberties in Quebec. The solution can be found here and not outside the province."

Army Sets Up Centre

QUEBEC (CP) — A group of 16 Canadian Armed Forces signalmen Wednesday moved into offices adjacent to Premier Bourassa's own office in the national assembly building.

Observers said the action is unprecedented and that the Canadian Armed Forces had never before been called inside the assembly buildings to protect its members.

A spokesman for the premier's office said a communications system has been set up through which 4,000 men at the nearby Valcartier base could be summoned by the government at a moment's notice.

A written authorization permitting the 16 army men access to the legislature buildings specifies that the number of men may be amended.

Mr. Bourassa held a news conference Wednesday that all necessary precautions will be taken to protect members of the assembly at an emergency session to discuss the medical care situation today.

Don't Give in: Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario said Wednesday the Quebec terrorist situation has evolved into "total war" and the time has come "to stand and fight."

In an interview, the premier said the federal and Quebec governments must stop protecting the rights of the minorities at the expense of the majority —a situation that would be produced in any compromise with the terrorists. Mr. Robarts said he has the greatest respect for kidnap victims James Cross and Pierre Laporte, but "some of us have seen hundreds of men and thousands of men killed in war."

"There is no way that we can yield to these terrorist demands," he said. "It's the most difficult decision of all but there's no compromise."

"By jove, this has got to be a law-abiding country where you can bring up your family without fear. Whatever you give the terrorists you are asked to give more the next day.

"They will try the same thing again if they have success this time."

Mr. Robarts said the demands are wrong—"morally wrong and socially wrong."

He predicted a general crackdown on dangerously militant dissidents in the wake of the Montreal kidnappings.

Heckling Irks PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau abruptly cut off his explanation in the Commons Wednesday of why he was not attending ceremonies in New York marking the 25th anniversary of the United Nations.

Mr. Trudeau had been asked by Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) to explain his absence from the UN celebrations where the government is being represented by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Interrupted by Conservative heckling, Mr. Trudeau cut off his reply with the remark: "If you don't want an answer, talk to your neighbor."

The prime minister had begun to explain how a planned trip to Russia beginning Monday, Oct. 19, made a visit to the UN, at this time, impracticable.

Mr. Trudeau later refused to answer Mr. Thompson who asked whether Conservatives surrounding Quebec kidnappings will interfere with the Russian trip.

Former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker asked whether Mr. Trudeau will have an armed guard for protection on trip to Russia. There was no reply.

Mr. Diefenbaker has criticized the government for calling in armed forces personnel to complement existing police security arrangements in Ottawa as a result of terrorist kidnappings in Quebec.

World Reaction

Praise to Bronx Cheer Greet China Recognition

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While the Peking People's Daily expressed its welcome today to establishment of diplomatic relations between Canada and Communist China, editorial reaction in major world newspapers ranged from the disapproval of a couple of United States publications to speculation, about Ottawa's underlying motives.

The People's Daily, mainland China's official Communist party paper, said in a special commentary that the "major development in the relation between Communist China and Canada . . . reflects the common aspirations of the two peoples and conforms to their interest."

"Mischief," the Chicago Tribune called the Peking-Ottawa agreement announced Tuesday.

The Tribune said: "There is plenty of mischief in Canada's recognition of Red China as the sole legal government of China, but that mischief is compounded by the timing of the deal.

"The United Nations is just about to go through the annual routine of dealing with China's representation in that body. . . . Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has given Peking an enormous propaganda boost at a psychological moment, and it could have widespread effects not only in the UN but in contributing to the deterioration of the Nationalist position in challenging the legitimacy of the Communist holds on the mainland."

After praising the Canadian prime minister for his stand in not giving in to Quebec terrorist kidnappers, The Daily News raised "a loud Bronx cheer for Trudeau," calling his establishment of ties with China "petty stuff."

"It was certainly not a friendly act toward the U.S.A.," said The News. "Indeed, there is widespread suspicion that Trudeau decided about snubbly to invite Washington and show how independent Canada is.

"That is petty stuff."

Excerpts from other editorials:

New York Times: " . . . Canada long ago concluded it was absurd to deny recognition to the government that has been in control of China for two decades. . . . This will place Canada at odds with the United States, which refuses even to back a 'two-China' policy. . . . Washington long ago should have worked for adoption of the two-China formula, even though both Peking and Taiwan are opposed to it."

London Financial Times: "What this means is purely economic terms is that China is once again becoming interested in trading with the West, and that for a handful of countries it could be on the verge of becoming a really important trading partner."

East Saddeutsche Zeitung: "It (establishment of diplomatic relations) can have nothing to do with China's ideological affinities to the Trudeau government. But Ottawa's desire for greater independence from Washington, whose economic predominance weighs heavy on the Canadian consciousness, was sufficient reason for establishing relations."

Hong Kong Standard: "It matters what opinion the nations of the world may have of the present masters of China, it is obvious to all that the Communist regime is the effective government of 750 million Chinese. Canada's decision raised cries again the question of America's long-delayed recognition of the men in Peking. Many American politicians would like to officially recognize China, but the adamant 'one-China' stand by both Peking and Taiwan makes this impossible."

Swedish newspapers said Canada's recognition of China was a result of the country's desire to carve out its own foreign policy profile independent of the United States.

Of Stockholm's mass-circulation evening newspapers, Aftonbladet said Canada's decision served above all "to underline . . . failure of Washington's Asian policy, which consists of keeping China in quarantine."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1970

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

The problem with the Toronto Argonauts is that they are favorites.

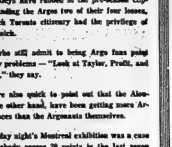
Oh, not favorites in the fan club sense; after some of their Sunday slumbers not even Johnny Easw has a kind word for them.

Rather, the Argos tend to titillate the oddsmakers to the extent that, before the current Canadian Football League season opened, they declared that nothing could put a hole in the 1970 Scullers' boat.

That included wind, fog, sleet, TV blackouts, snowy, and especially a group of would-be football players that was looking very motley up the St. Lawrence.

Well we all knew what has happened in the interim. There have been mere experts stricken with foot-in-mouth disease than in a cupboard full of Super Bowls.

The Argonauts are not breezing to the Grey Cup; they are scrambling to keep the Montreal Maileys in sight in the eastern standings.



The Maileys have rubbed in the pre-season clippings by handing the Argos two of their four losses, one of which Toronto citizenry had the privilege of paying to watch.

Those who still admit to being Argo fans pulg to the injury problems — "Look at Taylor, Pruitt, and now Thorpe," they say.

They are also quick to point out that the Alouettes, on the other hand, have been getting more Argonaut bounces than the Argonauts themselves.

Wednesday night's Montreal exhibition was a case in point. Nobody scores 20 points in the last seven minutes to win a football game 28-27. Nobody, that is, except the Als.

That is, as the current idiom goes, "unreal."

LEO CAHILL
More Anonymity?

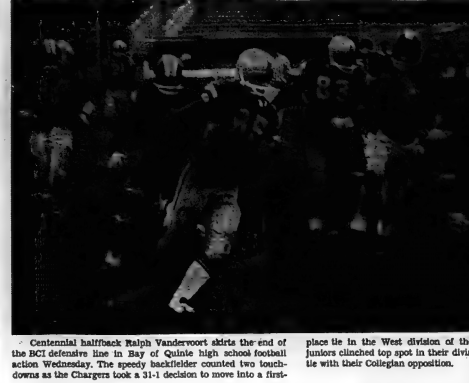
The key Argonaut injuries have been to members of their potent offense, yet the eastern CFL statistics read like a T-party.

"Rushing, individual - Symons, Tor. - 789 yards not, average 5.6; . . . Rairney, Tor. - 30 . . . ; longest run, average 8.4 . . . ; pass-receiving, individual - Thorpe, Tor. - average 15.6 . . . ; passing, individual - Jones, Tor. - for 17 touchdowns . . . ; punting, individual - Mann, Tor. - 2,945 yards, average - 45. 8 . . . ; converts, individual - Jonas, Tor. - 30 . . . ; longest run from scrimmage - Symons, Tor. - 36, Tor. at Hamn., Oct. 4; longest punt - Mann, Tor. - 77 yards, Tor. at Sask., Aug. 30; points scored, team - Tor. - 287 . . . ; total offence, team - Tor. - 4,515 yards . . . ; total first downs, team - Tor. - 243 . . . ; etc. etc.

The Argos have scored more points (287) than even Saskatchewan's Big Green Machine (281), despite having played two fewer games!

This would lead one to believe that either Sam Etcheverry is more inspiring than Leo Cahill, or the Toronto defence is a sieve.

Argo defenders have come up with only 18 interceptions in 11 games, lowest in the east, and even eight fewer than last-place Ottawa.



Penalties, the bulk of which are usually incurred by the defensive unit, have been more costly to the Argos than any of the eight other CFL teams. The Scullers have had the ball marched back 631 yards, nearly 200 more than most of their opposition.

Coach Cahill has to find the solution to these dilemmas by Sunday afternoon when the Argos get their last regular-season crack at the Maileys in a battle for first place in the east.

Home field, revenge, and long-overdue evening out of luck should help the Argos crush the Als by, say, two touchdowns.

If not, we suggest coach Cahill investigate the possibility of hiring an "assemynity" (as opposed to publicity) agent. His sole job would be to play down any reason which might possibly be construed as an excuse for making the Argos favorites in anything but inter-squad games.

I, for one, think the Alouettes are long overdue and would like to see them represent the east in the Grey Cup. That is largely because I am a Saskatchewan Roughrider fan.

Centennial halfback Ralph Vandervoort skirts the end of the BCI defensive line in Bay of Quinte high school football action Wednesday. The speedy backfielder counted two touchdowns as the Chargers took a 31-1 decision to move into first-place tie in the West division of the league. The Centennial juniors clinched top spot in their division by playing to a 14-14 tie with their Collegian opposition.

Charger Back Flying

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Sportswriter)

The Centennial senior Chargers are hoping that the "Flying Dutchman" keeps flying for the remainder of their Bay of Quinte football schedule. No, the Chargers haven't enlisted help from the phantom sailor, but plenty of high school defences are convinced that halfback Ralph Vandervoort could be his next of kin.

The five-foot, ten-inch, 170-pound set-back has rambled through opposing teams for six touchdowns so far this season to lead the Chargers to a 3-1 record with one game left to play.

Vandervoort gave a virtuoso performance of broken field running in Wednesday's 31-1 win over Belleville Collegiate, piling up 122 yards rushing on 13 carries and one touchdown. In addition he snared four throws from quarterback Mike Thompson, one good for another major.

"He's an outside breakaway type of runner with deceptive speed," acknowledged offensive backfield coach Harold Werkhoven. "He doesn't seem to be running all out, but once he's in the clear nobody seems to be able to catch him."

Running from the tailback position in Centennial's power-I formation, Vandervoort assumes most of the Chargers rushing load. "We set it up around him," says the coach. "Pretty well everything else goes inside and then we try to get him loose around the end."

The grade 12 student displayed his all - around ability to good advantage on his second touchdown against, BCI, collecting a pass in the flat, breaking one tackle (in which he lost most of his sweater) and outdigging the Collegian defensive backs for a 40-yard score.

Werkhoven adds, "For a high school back, he's pretty hard to improve upon. He's got good hands, blocks well and gets himself mentally up for the games."

Vandervoort and the rest of his Centennial teammates will undoubtedly be "up" for next Thursday's match with Trenton. The two teams are deadlocked with identical 3-1 records and in all likelihood a spot in the league playoffs will be riding on the game.

Senior Chargers Snare Share of First

By ALAN TEBWORTH

The Centennial Chargers last night picked up a share of first place in the western division of the Bay of Quinte high school football league.

The Chargers notched their third win against one loss to tie with Quinte and Trenton. Quinte has a game in hand over both other teams.

The Junior Chargers clinched first place in their conference by battling to a 14-14 tie with BCI Juniors.

"We are looking forward to meeting Trenton," said assistant coach Harold Werkhoven, after his squad had taken a convincing 31-1 victory over BCI, winless in four starts.

The game with Trenton may well decide the final play-off berth in the west. They meet next Thursday at Centennial.

Ralph Vandervoort led the Chargers to their win, scoring two touchdowns. His first came on a 14-yard end sweep to open the scoring late in the first period.

Mike Thompson relied heavily on his passing game, throwing three touchdown passes, the first to end Phil Easton from 13 yards out. Ralph Vandervoort was the target of the second, this time from 27 yards. End Randy Derry was the receiver on Thompson's final toss after a march from their own 31.

Chargers' outstanding kicker Ken Bertrand booted 6 points in the game coming on 4 converts and 2 singles on his booming punts.

The BCI offense could simply not get untracked, with their only point of the game coming when punt returner Steve Ford was tackled in the end zone.

The Collegians used a straight snap set-up most of the game. Steve Hubbard was the receiver of the snap, and did most of his 51-yards of damage down the middle.

Ralph Vandervoort was the offensive stand-out for CSS, while Barry Mullins played a good game on defense for the winners.

In the junior contest the teams played to a rare tie, battling it out 14-14.

Ed Kafka and Bob Vanderwater scored the majors for the Chargers with Dick Howe picking up a two point conversion.

Collegians Still Top Kickers

BCI continued their superiority in Bay of Quinte high school soccer by sweeping a pair of games from Picton last night.

In the senior contest the Collegians pounded Prince Edward to the tune of 10-0. BCI was in control all the way with the losers never coming up with a scoring threat.

John Thompson led the onslaught with four markers, while Peter Hamilton had two. Other scores went to Jim Lovett, John Wilson and Charles Nestorovski.

The junior Collegians managed a 3-0 win to maintain their undefeated record. Several missed scoring opportunities cost the winners a chance to run up an even higher score.

Seniors Try Out New Two

If Belleville Mo-Hawks don't enjoy the senior hockey success they plan for the coming season, it won't be because they've lacked a pool of prospective players.

With 18 of their 25 - card allotment already filled, the local seniors have announced that they will be trying out two more potential roster - members in this weekend's home-and-home series with Galt Hornets.

Following Wednesday's Memorial Arena workout, general manager Robert Trenaz said centre Serge Fournier and winger Gaetan Higgins — both of Val d'Or, Quebec — would join the Mo-Hawks for a weekend tryout.

Fournier, 20 last month, played last winter with the Shawinigan Bruins of the Quebec Junior A league. Higgins, who played last season with the Intermediate A Val d'Or Olympics, will be 22 in January.

Coach Dave Jones was impressed with the pair's skating and positional play since they joined Mo-Hawk workouts Saturday, but said he was not yet sure where they would be worked into the lineup.

"If they can make it down here Friday, I'd like to dress them against Galt," he added. "That's a good game to see if they're going to be able to help us."

The Mo-Hawks repay tomorrow night's 9 p.m. Hornet visit back in Galt Saturday.

Quinte League Facing Off October 26

First face-off of the 1970-71 Quinte Hockey League season will come at 8 p.m., Monday, Oct. 26.

Al Kelleher, president of the four - team city league, said the season will open with Central Taxi tangling with defending champion Belvedere Hotel, to be followed by a 9 p.m. Stinson's - Aluminum Star game.

Depending on the fate of the Gas House League, the Quinte League may operate in the 8-10 Monday night time slot for the 15-week regular schedule.

May Does Last-minute Oiling for Big Red Machine

Did Hodges Give Magic Met Advice?

By DICK COUCH

BALTIMORE (AP) — Has Sparky Anderson discovered Gil Hodges' magic elixir in time to make a miracle for the Cincinnati Reds?

The desperate Reds, one step from oblivion in the 1970 World Series, startled Baltimore Orioles 6-5 Wednesday on a three-run, eighth-inning homer by strongman Lee May—after a pre-game chat between their manager and New York Mets' skipper Hodges.

"I told him, 'I don't know what your magic was last year, but I sure can't seem to find it,'" Anderson recalled.

If Hodges, whose club lost the series opener to Baltimore last year and then won four in a row, passed on the Met formula, Anderson wasn't about to reveal it after May's wallop and the airtight relief pitching of Clay Carroll saved the Big Red Machine from the scrap heap.

Nor would the Reds' predicament—the team ever has come on to win a series after losing the first three games—was worsened when Jim McGlothlin, losing pitcher in game No. 2 last Sunday, came up with arm trouble.

Merritt, a 20-game winner, also has had arm problems while relief specialist Granger never has started a major league game and Wilcox, a rookie with only five regular season appearances under his belt, was raked by the Orioles in relief of McGlothlin.

But the Reds' spirits definitely were on the upswing as they prepared to face 24-game winner Cuellar, a knockout victim in his two post-season starts. They had overcome a four-hit spree by series standout Brooks Robinson Wednesday and had come up with their own clutch performer—first baseman May.

"We've got more momentum now, we've started swinging better and we're more relaxed," said the 205-pound slugger, who drilled the first pitch from reliever Eddie Watt into the left field bleachers at jam-packed Memorial Stadium to erase a 5-3 Baltimore lead. The homer was his second of the series and gave him eight RBI, high for either club.

"I think we're going to win it," he said.

Carroll blanked the Orioles on one hit for a three-game relief string of 8 1-3 scoreless innings in the series.

"We were a little bit down, but we're going to be way up tomorrow," he said. "I'll be ready.

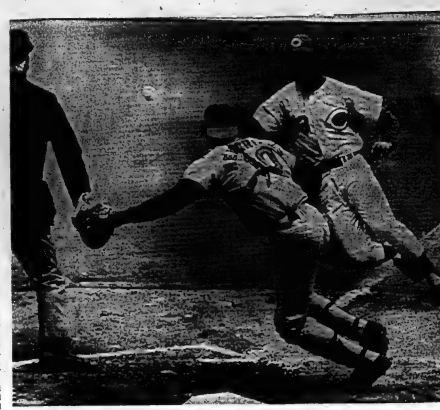
"If I pitch again I might hurt my arm. But we're trying to win this thing. So I'll be out there."

"We'll use all 10 pitchers if we have to," added centre fielder Bobby Tolan.

Until the eighth inning Wednesday, the Reds were hanging by their thumbs. Brooks Robinson's second series homer and a three-run burst in the third inning sent the Orioles on top and they added an unearned run in the sixth.

Dave Concepcion's triple delivered a second inning run for the Reds, May singled home another in the second and Pete Rose homered in the fifth. But Orioles' starter Jim Palmer appeared to be in command, despite control difficulties, going into the eighth.

Then Tony Perez, who has stroked just one hit in 14 series at bats, walked on a 2-2 pitch and Johnny Bench, two-for-14 as he came to the plate, lined a long single to left.



Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles lifted Palmer in that point and Watt, a stocky late-inning stopper, got the call for the first time in the series.

His first pitch was a belt-high fastball—which May deposited in the seats.

"Watt has done the job for me all year in short relief," Weaver said. "May just went up there and ripped the ball. You've got to give him the credit. It might have been a good pitch and it might have been a bad pitch. Sometimes a bad pitch goes for a pop-up."

The dramatic homer thwarted Baltimore's bid for a second series sweep in five years and snapped a winning string that began during the end of the season and carried through a three-game sweep over Minnesota in the American League pennant playoffs.

"All they did today was stay alive," Weaver said. "We're looking for a winning streak of one game now. I'd prefer to get it tomorrow."

New Series Hero

Cincinnati Reds' first-baseman Lee May, shown here scoring past Baltimore Orioles' catcher Elrod Hendricks, became the latest World Series' hero Wednesday when his three-run, eighth-inning home run gave the Reds their first Series win, forcing today's fifth game in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium. May's clout gave him eight RBIs for the series, highest on either team.

Cincinnati Chances 'As Good as Before'

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson thinks the Reds turned the corner Wednesday with their 6-5 triumph over Baltimore Orioles in the World Series.

"Our chances? They're as good as they were when we started the series," said the Reds pilot.

No team in World Series history has ever bounced back to win it after dropping three games.

Lee May's three-run homer in the eighth inning rallied the Reds to their first series victory over the Orioles in four games.

"May came back to the dugout when they brought Watt in and asked for the scouting report," Anderson recalled. "I told him he throws sinkers and fast balls."

"It was a sinker," the Reds first baseman said of the first pitch which he hit over Orioles' ball yen in left field.

"I think we can win it," May said.

While May provided the power, Reds reliever Clay Carroll stopped the Orioles on one hit in the last 2 2-3 innings.

The right-hander said this was his best job in the series. He has not given up a run in 8 1-3 innings against Baltimore.

"If I get a run ahead," Carroll said, "I just rare back and throw. My fast ball and curve were both working today."

In the Baltimore dressing room, manager Earl Weaver said "all the Reds did was stay alive."

"When we go out there tomorrow the Reds still have to win that one.

"The next game depends on who hits the ball out of the park or who makes the big play."

"It was a fast ball right down the middle," said Watt; referring to his first pitch to May in the eighth.

Asked if he had considered the possibility of using Moe Drabowsky instead of Watt, Weaver answered:

"If you're asking if I now wish I had brought anyone in who would not throw the home-run ball, yes. But I wanted Watt."

Jim Palmer, the winner of the first game, was relieved in the eighth after walking Tony Perez and yielding a single to Johnny Bench.

"Palmer told me after the seventh inning that he was getting tired," Weaver said. "He had good stuff all day, but the Reds were hitting it."

Oriole Wine-taster Returns to Cellar

BALTIMORE (AP) — Omar the wine-waster wailed and wailed and then, at the top of the eighth inning, started to haul the champagne to the Oriole dressing room for the World Series victory celebration.

"I had just started down the corridor when I heard this loud roar," said Omar Aparicio, Baltimore's man in charge of the champagne.

"I rushed into one of the offices where the television was on. They told me Lee May had just hit a three-run home run for the Reds.

"So I went back to the case. I was all iced and ready. We'll keep it on ice overnight. It should be really cold by Thursday."

The Reds won 6-5.

Aparicio, 34, a former minor leaguer from Maracaibo, Venezuela, and a cousin of Chicago White Sox. Luis Aparicio, has been Baltimore's official wine man since 1966.

"They call me a 'sommelier'—that's French for wine taster," said Omar. "My main job is that of wine captain at a Baltimore restaurant.

"But for four years I've been handling the champagne for the Orioles."

Omar said the World Series is a 10-case, 120 - bottle event.

"We used 10 cases in 1966 when we beat the Dodgers," he explained.

Omar, who wears an orange shirt and black tie for Oriole colors, says he loves his job—but has one regret.

"During a celebration, about 40 per cent of the champagne is wasted by players pouring it over each other's heads . . .

"I dread to see so much of the wonderful stuff go to waste."

Second-string Passander Pulls Few for Als

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes can thank second-string quarterback Tony Passander today for leaving the club his first Eastern Football Conference playoff berth since 1966.

With the Alouettes trailing British Columbia Lions 27-8 in the fourth quarter Wednesday night, coach Sam Etcheverry sent Passander into the game in an attempt to head off disaster. The Alouettes won 28-27.

Before Passander took over, they appeared unable to do anything to change the trend of the Canadian Football League interlocking game, library of the 18,977 fans were leaving.

But Passander upset the

to play. The first came six minutes earlier on an eight-yard dash.

Sandwiched between his two majors, Passander threw a nine-yard strike to flanker Terry Evanshen on a third-and-seven situation for another touchdown.

Donnig Duncan scored the other Montreal touchdown in the first quarter, while George Springate contributed three converts and a single point on a wide field goal attempt in the second quarter.

The victory gave the Als 14 points, two more than Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts, while Ottawa Rough Riders trail the EFC with six. No matter how well the Riders do for their remaining three games they can not dislodge the Als from the playoffs.

Etcheverry was left almost numb by the turn of events, after he had watched the Lions roar with two touchdowns by Jim Young, another by Jim Evanow, along with three converts and two field goals by Ted Gerela.

"I can't even think," Etcheverry said following the game. "That was something else—it was hard to take."

The Montreal coach said he will start Passander against the Argos in Toronto Sunday instead of Sonny Wade. Passander succeeded Wade Wednesday night.

"I'm very definitely going to start Tony," Etcheverry, who is looking for his third victory against the Argos this season, said. "He's coming along very well and he knows how to move the ball."

Passander said that after his first touchdown, still trailing 27-15 with 7:47 left on the clock, he realized the Als needed a break.

The break came in the form of a dropped snap by Ken Philips of the Lions on a punt situation. Phillips wound up on the Lions' 12-yard line and the Als took over.

That set the scene for Passander's third-down gamble to Evanshen which paid off.

Jackie Parker, head coach of the Lions, was stunned by the defeat, the fifth in a row for his teams.

"What can you say?" Parker asked. "Our guys came back after that thing in Toronto and we still lost."

Parker's Lions were doubled, 56-7 by the Argos in Toronto last Saturday.

Parker paid tribute to Passander with "the kid came in and did a hell of a job."

"Now we've got to win our last three games to get in the playoffs," Parker added.

The Lions now trail Saskatchewan Roughriders, who lead the WFC with 23 points, by 12 and Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos by four. All four teams have three games left to play.

The nine points he counted in defeat allowed Gerela to take over first place in the WFC scoring race with 99 points, five more than Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan.

The Als put together a total offence of 377 yards compared to 329 for the visitors. Montreal had 24 first downs to 19 for the losers.

Football Briefs

JOINS TI-CATS

HAMILTON (CP) — Irby Augustine, linebacker released by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League last week, has joined Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Hamilton plays in Ottawa Saturday but it was doubtful, said Tiger-Cats head coach Joe Restic, that Augustine would be ready for that game.

TO HONOR NYKOLUK

TORONTO (CP) — It will be Danny Nykoluk Day Oct. 21, when Toronto Argonauts play their final game of this Canadian Football League season at home to Ottawa Rough Riders. Nykoluk, a veteran of 14 years with the Argonauts, will have his No. 60 sweater retired when he quits football on that date.

BOMBERS SIGN REID

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League announced the signing Wednesday of Frank Reid, 24, placed on waivers earlier this month by Ottawa Rough Riders. Reid a six-foot-three, 227-pound offensive guard and defensive tackle, was dropped from the roster when veteran Ottawa running back Ron Stewart returned from the injury list.

Giacomin Avoids NHL Flurry Of Goal Traffic

Except where Ed Giacomin stood, the scoring was fast and furious in National Hockey League action Wednesday night.

Giacomin, the veteran New York Rangers goalie, stood alone unscathed as Buffalo Sabres managed only 15 shots at him. He stopped all of them for the first shutout of the season and the Rangers won their first game 3-0.

ED GIACOMIN

But 10 or more goa's were scored in each of three other games.

Chicago Black Hawks clowned Vancouver Canucks 8-2, Boston Bruins whipped Los Angeles Kings 8-5 and Toronto Maple Leafs slammed St. Louis Blues 7-3.

An opening-night crowd of 16,932 in New York saw the Rangers pepper Buffalo goalie Roger Crozier with 42 shots. Red Gilbert, Jean Ratelle and Dave Balon got the goals for him for the Rangers victory. They lost to St. Louis 3-1 in their first game Saturday.

The rambunctious Reggie Fleming, a former Ranger now with the Sabres, tormented his old team-mates on several occasions. He knocked Balon unconscious for three minutes in the second period with a cross check and later tangled with Giacomin behind the nets.

In Toronto, the Leafs took advantage of a loose Blues defence and a shakey Glenn Hall in goal to pour four goals in during the first period.

Asked why he pulled Hall out of goal after the first period, rookie Blues coach Al Arbour said:

"The defence wasn't playing in front of Glenn, so there wasn't any sense leaving him in there. I thought there might be a change if we put Ernie (Wakely) in, but there wasn't."

Arbour even refused to place any blame on referee Bruce Hood, with whom he argued in the second period over a group of penalties assessed against both clubs for a melee that broke out behind Jacques Plante in the Toronto nets.

"We just played a poor game, that's all there is to it," said Arbour.

Rookies Garry Monahan and Bill MacMillan of the Leafs got their first NHL goals. Paul Henderson and Mike Walton scored in the first three minutes of play with Jim Harrison and Monahan providing the other goals in the first-period outburst.

Centre Red Berenson scored twice for the Blues, who were outshot 47-31 in the game.

Another rookie, Don Maloney of the Black Hawks, made his NHL scoring debut with two goals against Vancouver goalie George Gardiner.

The rookie left winger also picked up an assist with other goals coming from Bobby and Dennis Hull, Gerry Pinder, Bryan Campbell and Lou Angotti with two.

Murray Hall and Mike Corrigan scored for the Canucks.

Phil Esposito, league scoring champion two years ago, jumped off to a fast start with three goals against the Kings in Los Angeles. Tom Hodge got two for the Stanley Cup champion Bruins.

The Kings had a 2-1 lead going into the second period when the Bruins broke loose with five goals.

Montreal Canadiens will have defenceman Jacques Laperriere back in the lineup tonight when they visit Buffalo.

Doctors confirmed Wednesday that what had been suspected was a fractured ankle was only an inflamed tendon, which forced Laperriere to sit out most of Tuesday's game against Detroit Red Wings.

Montreal defenceman Serge Savard may also be back with the team soon. He was told Wednesday he may start scrimmaging with the club, another step in his recovery from a leg fracture last spring.

In other games tonight, Chicago visits Detroit, Vancouver takes on the Flyers in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Penguins meet the North Stars in Minnesota.

That's Some Dough!

TORONTO (CP) — Donato Padiano, a one-time $1-a-day employee, expects to make more than $100,000 this year—and he expects to earn at least $17,500 tonight.

That's what the Italian-born Canadian welterweight title holder will make for meeting Colin Fraser of Toronto in a 10-round bout at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Now fighting out of Montreal, Padiano has earned more than 60 per cent of his goal and if pre-fight sales are any indication, he may pick up more than $17,500.

His fight contracts calls for $17,500 or 20 per cent of the gross, whichever is greater. Pre-fight sales to Wednesday were more than $20,000.

"We're expecting between 12,000 and 14,000 people," said co-promoter Gus McLellan.

"I feel they can get 17,500 in the Gardens for boxing." Fraser will pick up $5,000 or 15% per cent of the gross.

But Padiano has been having trouble getting his weight down for the fight and, according to his contract with Fraser, will forfeit $1,000 if he weighs in at more than 155 pounds.

Wednesday evening, after a meal of carrots, lettuce and salmon salad, Padiano weighed 154½. But the contract allowed him one pound leeway.

Patent System Not In Step

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian patent system should be put into step with those of other nations, possibly on a North American basis first, says a study prepared for the Science Council of Canada.

But in recommending internationalization, the study cautions against discarding one Canadian feature—compulsory licensing.

Compulsory licensing consists of awarding the rights of patent holder to rival companies on payment of a royalty where it is in the public interest to do so.

A prime example is in the drug manufacturing field where compulsory licences recently have been granted several firms with the aim of bringing down the retail price of drugs protected by patents. This now is being tested in the courts.

The study, made by Andrew H. Wilson, an economist-engineer who is a science adviser to the Council, says it would be an advantage if the Canadian and United States patent systems corresponded closely.

In accompanying comments on research and development, Mr. Wilson says federal incentives for industrial research and development have not been uniformly effective.

They have tended to become less attractive as the economy has slowed. Industry favored tax-based incentives such as the Economic Council of Canada had recommended but which were bypassed by the government in favor of incentive grants.

Mr. Wilson suggests that apart from this shortcoming, federal help might be more effective if one department had charge of assistance programs, the industrial research institutes and government patents, with powers to contract with industry for development and procurement.

He says government agencies and programs will have to favor companies with proven capabilities or with exceptional promise.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I can't get it out of my head that that thing is biding its time, planning to overthrow us and take over the house."

National Vote OKs New Postal Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers have voted 69 per cent in favor of their new contract with the government, union officials announced Wednesday.

Results of the national ratification vote, which began last week and continued until Tuesday, appeared to come as a surprise to William Houle, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

"I didn't expect such a high vote," Mr. Houle said.

"I expected maybe 60 per cent. . . . It's a confirmation of faith in the bargaining team."

Mr. Houle said all locals voted in favor of the contract which was settled early last month following a yelling-deadlock between the federal treasury board and the 27,000-member Council of Postal Unions.

The contract provides for a 55-cent-an-hour increase in postal wage rates that averaged $3.06. Mr. Houle said the settlement means an increase of more than 10 per cent in the first year for mail handlers at the bottom of the scale.

He said that before the contract expires in April, 1972, it will have added $22 a week to the pay envelope of the average postal employee.

Hydro Employees Ratify Agreement

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro employees have ratified a two-year agreement between Hydro and Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, a union spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman said 77 per cent of about 10,000 employees who took part in a two-week vote supported the contract.

The old contract provided an average weekly wage of $146.

The agreement, which calls for an average wage increase of 13.9 per cent over two years, was reached Sept. 12 and ended more than nine months of bargaining and a work slowdown that began late in August.

The publicly-owned utility had dropped its demand for a work week which includes weekends.

The union had come down from a proposal for a 21-per-cent increase.

The bargaining, which included 3½ months of mediation under the provincial labor department, broke down Aug. 27 and the workers began the work slowdown.

The agreement is retroactive to April 1, 1970, and runs to March 31, 1972.

It includes a three-step wage increase.

Weekly salaried clerks and technical staff will receive a 6.5-per-cent boost in 1970 and another 6.25 per cent, including a 1.25 per cent prepayment, in 1971.

Operators will receive a six-per-cent increase in 1970 and 5.75 per cent in 1971, including the 1.25 prepayment.

Trades personnel and employees on other salary scheduled will receive an 8.5-per-cent increase in 1970 and 1971, 7.25 per cent including the 1.25 prepayment.

Shift differentials will be increased to 71 cents for afternoon shift and 21 cents for night shifts and employees will receive an increase in pension credits to two per cent from 1.5 per cent for service before 1948.

Aborigine Reprisal Dooms Man to Death

PERTH, Australia (AP) — An aborigine who murdered his wife is being systematically tortured to death by her tribe, reports from the interior say.

Jimmy Ferguson, 45, already has been speared several times and burned by heated stones.

Ferguson, a nomadic desert native from the remote Warburton Range area, was convicted of murdering his wife, Yerangai, 25. At his trial the jury was told he had returned to the native reserve from a "walkabout" and found his wife pregnant by another man. He killed her with blows on the head with a rock.

After serving two years, Ferguson was released and returned to his tribal area on the fringe of the Simpson Desert.

Since then, reports say, he has been subjected to physical and psychological punishment from his wife's tribe as retribution for her murder.

Experts on aboriginal lore say he will be subjected to ever-worsening tortures until the time comes for him to die, between one and two years from now.

They say that by this time he will be glad to die.

WINTER CARE FOR ROSES
IN THIS AREA ROSES MUST BE COVERED OVER IN WINTER.
Do not cover too soon. The sap rises in roses until November, so wait until they stop growing.
Simply mound earth well up on the bush to a height of 8 - 10 inches, then trim the longer stems.
Next April the earth should be raked away and the stems pruned down to about 6-8 inches.

DIG A GRAVE FOR YOUR TREE ROSES
Choose a spot in your vegetable garden and prepare a trench large enough to bury the whole tree, bush and all in the open. Dig at least 18" deep.
Late in November, dig the tree rose completely out of the ground, carrying as much of a root ball as possible. Bury the whole bush in the grave, cover with peat moss, then mound up with earth.
Dig up and re-plant next April, at which time the branches may be pruned.

Canada's Position Clear On Security Conference

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada appears to have staked out a positive position for itself on the question of a European Security conference in advance of Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to the Soviet Union next week.

Such a conference is one of the main aims of the Soviet bloc and it is certain to be a prime subject of discussion between Trudeau and Soviet officials after the Canadian leader arrives in Moscow Oct. 19.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in an interview Wednesday that Canada is seeking a detente between East and West on the conference.

While the East bloc has been pressing for such a conference, the West has been dragging its feet, expressing doubt whether it would be fruitful at such a time.

Sharp agreed with reports here that he and Polish Foreign Minister Steven Jedrychowski had one of the deepest East-West studies yet on the whole question of the conference during a visit by the Polish official to Ottawa during the weekend.

The Eastern sources said that the Polish minister left Ottawa after his first visit well content with his talks with Sharp and Jean-Luc Pepin, trade and commerce minister. The Pepin talks are said to have included a Polish suggestion of Canadian-Polish joint ventures, with Canada sending experts to Poland to develop industries.

Sharp also discussed the security conference proposal for the second time this year with President Nicoli Ceausescu of Romania during a 45-minute talk Wednesday at the Romanian Embassy.

The Eastern sources said that Canada is considered to have a positive approach to the conference. This compared with the lack of a definite statement from the U.S. and statements in the General Assembly by Britain, France, Belgium and Holland that link the conference with settlement of the issue of divided Berlin.

The Polish minister is reported to have said that instead of one conference, there could be a series of conferences, each dealing with a specific aspect of European security, and including economic issues.

He is reported to have left Ottawa with no undertaking from Sharp. But it is reported also that Poland assumes Canada will pass on its views to Washington.

U Thant on UN

Reached the Moon But Not Each Other

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The shortcomings of the United Nations during the last 25 years was the major theme of the all-ver anniversary opening session of the General Assembly Wednesday. Secretary-General U Thant said "we have reached the moon but we have not reached each other."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, in the first address of the commemorative assembly, called on member countries to clean up the situation within their own borders as a way of helping the UN achieve the objectives of its founders.

Sharp made only a brief mention of China, following Canada's recognition of the Peking regime Tuesday, but dealt with the subject extensively at a later news conference.

He told reporters: "I don't think there has been any other action taken this year as important as Canada's agreement to establish good relations with Peking. I can think of no initiative that is more likely to advance this matter in the UN than what we did yesterday Tuesday."

Sharp said members of the UN must express themselves clearly on the issue of China admittance, a hint that he thinks that some countries which like Canada, have been abstaining, should now cast a firm vote on the annual resolution on the seating of the Peking regime.

Canada will support Peking's admission to the UN this year but has not yet made up its mind how to vote on the crucial issue of whether the China seat resolution should be considered an important question—one requiring a two-thirds majority.

The United States has led the fight to keep China out of the UN by strongly backing the important-question qualification. The U.S. and 17 other countries tabled it again Wednesday.

Another controversial subject, the Middle East, will be given urgent debate after the anniversary session ends Oct. 24.

A UN spokesman also announced that the Big Four foreign ministers have accepted an invitation to dine with Secretary-General U Thant Oct. 22 or 23 in Thant's offices. The American, British, Soviet and French diplomats are expected to discuss the Middle East and other world problems.

Thant set the theme of the commemorative session Wednesday with a message calling on member states to try to provide a brighter future for the 1,000 million people in countries that have gained independence in the last quarter century.

"Squalid poverty lives side by side with overabundance on our earth," he said. "We have reached the moon but we have not reached each other."

"The United Nations, this hesitant, almost reluctant instrument of nations of world peace and unity can only succeed if its governments will it and if they love it, give it their best and want it to succeed. It will fail if governments scoff at it and continue to tread their isolated, divisive paths."

Low Rental Housing Concerns Alderman

City council at its next meeting will be asked to set up a committee to make a study of the crisis in low rental housing accommodation in the city and report back to council.

The notice of motion presented at last night's council meeting was from Alderman Robin Jeffrey who today said that despite rental housing construction by Ontario Housing Corporation there was still a crisis in the city for this type of accommodation.

"People desperate for accomodation are phoning me every day," said Alderman Jeffrey.

Currently representatives from Ontario Housing Corporation are in the city interviewing people who answered questionnaires sent out in connection with the last survey on the need of housing accommodation done by the OHC.

One of the OHC representatives — Miss Linda Booth — said today that about 250 persons had answered the questionnaires, although not all of these were looking for accomodation.

Miss Booth said the survey was to determine the need for accommodation further in the two senior citizen apartment complexes and low rental family units now under construction.

She said there would be a waiting list of people looking for accommodation even after the units now under construction were filled.

But Alderman Jeffrey said that many people desperate for accommodation had not understood the OHC questionnaires when they were sent out and did not bother to answer them.

Trent Isle Home Site?

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Island property in the Trent River has been proposed as a possible site for a new United Counties home for the aged.

Campbellford Deputy Reeve Donk, county director of the Golden Plow Lodge told council that the Ontario government was considering the erection of several smaller type homes for the aged in Durham - Northumberland rather than enlarge the present lodge at Cobourg.

He said these would be homes of 75 bed capacity, the cost of which would be borne in the ratio of 7½ per cent by the town, 50 per cent by Central Mortgage and Housing and 42½ per cent by the Ontario government.

Mayor Tanner suggested that the Island property be made a residential area and Deputy Reeve Donk considered the area an ideal site for the county home project.

Pupils Plan Plane Purchase

BLOOMFIELD (Staff)— A student project to erect a memorial to servicemen at Pinecrest school has taken shape. Boys and girls attending Pinecrest have carefully budgeted toward the purchase of a jet aircraft, complete with controls from the department of national defence. Cost of the plane is $800, plus a mounting cost estimated at $300, requested from the Prince Edward County board of education.

School trustees have agreed that installation costs will be paid if the pupils can raise the purchase price of the aircraft by November 1.

As well as serving as a memorial the jet aircraft would be used as a method of teaching various courses in science and mathematics.

Deloro Election December 4

DELORO — Deloro village council recently passed a by-law calling for municipal elections here to nominate and elect a reeve and four councillors.

Voters will nominate candidates on Nov. 27 in time for the election Dec. 4.

Council also selected jurors for the forthcoming year.

A delegation from the Deloro Village Association attended the meeting bringing forth teenagers with them. Council granted a request by the young people that Friday evening dances be held in the community hall.

The council also authorized a request to Ontario Provincial Police officials to patrol the village due to laxness of village property and a quantity of damage to public buildings.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Next time you must give me your recipe for those delicious creamed onions!"

ANAF News

Members were happy to know their new president was elevated to a higher position in the church but regretted sincerely that it meant his having to resign as padre of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit as he is being transferred to St. Catharine's and will take up residence there. Although a very busy man, Rev. Stanley Gentle graciously accepted position of chaplain to the unit a few short years ago and has been a faithful padre to all and not only performed the duties of a padre but also attended meetings where he made a point of greeting as many members as he could and dropping in the club to have a chat with members. He certainly will be hard to replace.

He served with the RCAF before he was ordained so therefore knew both sides of the story. At the end of last Thursday's meeting president Dick Burns made the announcement and thanked the Padre for his great efforts on behalf of the Unit and the deep appreciation all members had for his friendly helpfulness.

It had been discovered that Padre Gentle was interested in the dog - to - dey changes in the weather so the Unit presented him with a combined barometer and thermometer tastefully set in carved oak. A suitably engraved plate was affixed to the base. The padre, in a few brief remarks, said that he had enjoyed the companionship with the members and was proud that he was able to assist at the various ceremonies the Unit attended. Though a sad duty he had always been available to conduct the services for those comrades who had joined the Higher Command and hoped in some small way he had helped comfort the bereaved families.

He also received a halt dozen glasses engraved with the name of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit. He went on to say that the barometer would be hung where he could easily read it which he would do several times a day and the pleasant memories of his association with the Unit would be refreshed in his memories. He sincerely thanked comrades on behalf of his charming wife for the really beautiful bouquet she had received that afternoon. He also remarked that her certainly appreciated the thought of sending the bouquet, as parsons' wives were usually forgotten on many occasions. He closed with "God bless you all and may you have continued success in all your projects". He received a prolonged standing ovation.

The president extended him a cordial invitation to be sure and visit the clubrooms whenever he was in the Quinte district. When the meeting adjourned the padre went around and shook hands with a pleasant word for all members present. The Unit will miss him.

The oldtimers have been honored by having the noon to three hours nominated as the Old Vets' Hours. It is an enlargement of the old Thursday Afternoon Club and there will be special privileges for those senior citizens who have really earned it -in more ways than one.

The Pipe Band has arranged to have a dance on Sat. Oct. 17. This will be the first of two fall dances held by them. the other is on Dec. 13 when the 22 inch portable color TV will go to some lucky person. The sports chairman has selected the date for the opening Mr. and Mrs. Darts League to Oct. 24.

Cdes. F. Crouch and I. Browning are recuperating at home. Cde. D. Locke has been admitted to the Belleville General Hospital and is in room 528. Cde. P. 10,000 Construction Workers Rally Against Labor Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said he "was very happy to get" the union's point of view Wednesday, but the union representatives weren't as pleased with the response.

The comments followed a rally by 10,000 construction workers outside the legislature and a meeting between Mr. Robarts and Labor Minister Dalton Bales and a delegation of union leaders over the government's proposed Bill 167—amendments to the Labor Relations Act.

The demonstration was one of the largest at the steps of the legislature in 25 years. One union leader said in an interview that were stopped on 52 million worth of construction projects in Ontario while workers attended the rally.

But after the hour-long meeting with the union leaders, Mr. Roberts said only that there would be no difficulty in making changes in the bill if necessary, although it has already been approved in principle.

Ken Martin, president of the Ontario Building and Construction Trades Council, and Hank Kobryn, secretary-treasurer of the council, both expressed disappointment that they were unable to obtain any concessions during their meeting.

They said Mr. Bales and Mr. Roberts "seemed interested" in their plea for a union-management committee to solve problems of the industry without resorting to legislation.

Bill 167 was introduced in the legislature last spring, with passage delayed until employers and employees affected could offer their opinion. The 35-page bill is called An Act to Amend the Labor Relations Act.

Organized labor calls it "union busting" and has objected to sections that would permit construction companies to form associations for collective bargaining purposes and change the membership required for a certification vote.

There were also rumblings of anger by the workers, who began arriving by bus as early as 8:30 a.m.

The throng cheered when Stephan Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, called the bill "oppressive, arbitrary and unjust."

Mr. Bales was booed and jeered when he attempted to read a four-page statement.

The demonstrators came from as far as Sudbury, areia and

Report on Crime in Unions Will Not Be Made Public

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts announced Wednesday he would not make public a secret government report on infiltration of organized crime into construction trade unions.

Mr. Robarts told the Ontario legislature the report by the provincial police contained "certain unsubstantiated" claims that would not be in the public interest to reveal. He did not elaborate.

The report was presented to the government early this year by the OPP which conducted an investigation into construction trade unions after James Mackey alleged in 1969 that crime syndicates had infiltrated the unions. Mr. Mackey was Metropolitan Toronto police chief at the time.

Mr. Roberts offered to provide Liberal Opposition Leader Robert Nixon with a copy of the report. Mr. Nixon described the offer as "interesting" but included the report be made public.

Replying to Mr. Nixon, the premier said he could not recall if the report recommended a public inquiry into the problem.

When the question was asked in the house Tuesday of Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, the reply was the same.

Police College Wide Open -- NDP

TORONTO (CP) — When two New Democratic Party members of the legislature visited the Ontario Police College at Aylmer Saturday, they found the buildings deserted and unlocked.

Patrick Lawlor (Toronto-Lakeshore) and Dr. Morton Shulman (Toronto-High Park) said in a statement Wednesday:

"We spent a leisurely hour touring the classrooms, the library and the other facilities. All the books and instructions for police were lying open and samples could have been removed by any criminal. These books included instructions on how to investigate crimes and how to handle guns which would have been of inestimable value to lawbreakers."

They said it is time to place a policeman at the head of the OPP, Commissioner Eric Silk is a civilian.

When Dr. Shulman raised the matter in the house, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said there was nothing in the way of security that needed to be locked up at the college.

He said Dr. Shulman's position had usually been that there was not enough freedom at such institutions.

He said an officer is on duty at all times at the college.

Committee Set Up To Define Smut

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Wednesday he would never attempt to provide guidelines on pornography for police officers seeking to crack down on obscene literature.

"I don't think one can, as a minister, define for the police force what is pornographic and what is not," he told the Ontario legislature in reply to James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale).

Mr. Wishart said the question of defining pornography has baffled experts and "even our most capable jurists." Mr. Trotter had asked if the minister was considering guidelines for the provincial police.

Mr. Wishart said a committee has been established to help police when a pornographic case arises and his department makes judgments on pornographic material and where charges can be laid.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Acne Can Be Controlled

Pimples know no boundaries — except age. Acne plagues teenagers. For example, consider the following letter from a 15-year-old Canadian reader. She expresses so well the frustrations which youngsters with acne undergo, it is almost difficult to believe she is so young:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I could not resist this letter in response, after reading the letter in your column written by the girl who had the acne problem. I, too, in the not-so-distant past have had a terrible time with pimples. I looked like the close-up shot of the moon!

Oh, how I felt like a swollen greasy and scarred mess. Like an ostrich, I would have given anything to have hidden my face for good or bandaged it and said I'd been in an accident. I was so desperate I would have tried anything. I even dreamed at night that I had a beautiful face and in the morning shocked myself when I gazed in the mirror. Tears and fears and more tears accompanied a distressed and practically continuously depressed disposition.

How my parents and brother put up with it, I don't know. But I hope the girl who wrote you previously on the subject is reading my letter in your column. I have all the compassion and sympathy in the world for her.

Lucky for me, my parents sent me to a dermatologist. He put me on this diet: No chocolates, peanuts or candy. No greasy or fried foods. No pork or bacon. Nothing extremely hot or cold. No ice cream, butter or cream. Drink lots of water! Although this diet seems very restrictive, you don't miss these things after a while. Second, he prescribed special soap for my face. Third, I had to take antibiotics.

I saw him regularly. After a year my face was pretty well settled down. I hope that I do not sound like an advertisement, but I know how awful it is to be plagued by pimples and I want to help. I'm only 15 but the very word makes my skin crawl.

People who have clear complexions have no conception of what it is like to run a finger over the "Rocky Mountain." Please, Miss X., chin up. Keep smiling and those eyes of yours cheerful. Good luck. I'll be thinking about you. — Miss E.

For Mrs. N.: Whatever the necessary qualifications for a medicine to be called a "wonder drug," I think you are right in saying that cortisone should be admitted to the exclusive club. However, it cannot be used without a doctor's supervision.

It is true that it may be harmful for some patients with ulcer. It may even aggravate diabetes. There are other contraindications, too. Although it may help some patients who suffer from hay fever and asthma, let the doctor decide the need and the dosage.

* * *

For Mrs. F.: There is a choice in treating an overactive thyroid. The method will depend upon just what kind of hyperthyroidism you have, on your age, whether or not you are pregnant — and other factors. The common choices? Operation called thyroidectomy with special pills. The use of radio-iodine (I-131).

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 16

Your birthday today: Material gain proves unlikely if you neglect the spiritual side in the year ahead. Your wishes are idealistic, vaguely defined, hard to fulfill. Prayer and meditation are of great importance now. Your relationships must take on deeper qualities than mere emotional appeal. Strive for self-adequacy and a balance of all factors. Today's natives have tenacity of purpose and strong vitality.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Depend mainly on your own efforts; resist appeals to expand budgets. The needs of older people may force higher spending anyway. Don't show irritation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Any shortage of co-operation is probably due to your own behavior. Give sincere attention to others. Find time for creative projects.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your habitual freedom of movement and change of story once encounters limks or embarrassing circumstances. Brazen it all out as well as you can.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Nobody seems satisfied with any social invention today. Nothing turns out as planned. Proceed as if all were well and becoming much better.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Make sure what you do has real meaning. Keep busy without getting so deeply involved that you miss something. Home life has some stress but will improve with tact.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): It is easy to pout out imaginings, very difficult to find virtues and actions well taken aside from your own, that is), but you must try. Keep the story quite simple.

LIBRA (Sept. 23- Oct. 22): Work out your inner tensions in your job rather than on your loved ones. Differences of opinion are normal now. Listen for unconscious reasons unrelated to the argument.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Personal relations require attention, every word somehow has to serve an extra function. It is not so much what you say as how you say it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): An early start is helpful, but pace your efforts through a long day. Confidential matters turn out to be difficult. Associates provide help only for very simple requests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Everybody has his own idea about money. Put a hi asside no matter what the provocation, as some special need is almost certain before the weekend is out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can, quit early today, give extra attention to loved ones. Do something that tells them how you truly feel. Home arrangements, improvements are favored.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your sympathy will be much in demand this weekend. Resolve not to go beyond what your friends would do. Reserve most of your time for your own welfare.

Pollution Study To Be Intensified

OTTAWA (CP) — From Howe Sound on the West Coast to the Bay of Chaleur on the east, Canadian ocean and fresh waters have been polluted by poisonous mercury.

Even as the battle goes on to reduce mercury levels in the rivers and lakes, the fisheries department is checking for possible water contamination by no less than 12 other elements—arsenic, lead, copper, zinc, nickel, cadmium, antimony, tin, manganese, boron, chromium and uranium.

Water pollution, which may be even worse than originally suspected, will be studied by a special 12-member Commons committee re-established this week.

Formation of the committee followed by only a few days Commons tabling of water pollution information at the request of Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni).

The information, supplied by the fisheries department, shows:

—Fourteen industrial and manufacturing plants in Canada use mercury compounds in their operations.

—This is believed to be a small number compared with industries using the 12 other elements now being tested for possible toxic effect on natural waters.

—Testing of fish has produced evidence that mercury contamination all water systems directly connected with mercury-using plants that discharge their waste into those systems.

—Waters directly contaminated by mercury are: Howe Sound, the Saskatchewan River, Lake Winnipeg, Lake Superior, Lake St. Clair, Lake Ontario, the St. Lawrence River, the Nottaway River and the Bay of Chaleur.

—As a result, commercial fishing has been closed for all species in: The Ottawa River from Ottawa to Montreal; the St. Lawrence from Kingston to Trois-Rivieres; the Richelieu River; Missisquoi Bay;

Lake St. Clair; the Detroit River; the St. Clair River; Clay Lake; the Wabigoon River; the English River system, including 10 lakes; the Winnipeg River from Kenora to English River, including two bays and 9[illegible] lakes and other bodies.

War Measures Proclaimed

Police Raid Picks Up Hundreds of Radicals

Crackdown in Effect All Across Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Police pounced on hundreds of known Quebec separatists, sympathizers and others in raids across the province early today, hours after the federal War Measures Act was invoked.

Among those taken into custody in Rimouski, 15 in Hull and 11 in Chicoutimi — and said others are being sought on warrants.

Police searches resulted in the seizure of "firearms of all kinds," the spokesman said, and huge quantities of literature, posters, books and political pamphlets.

QPP Insp. Pierre Lafleur, speaking for the combined police and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

A statement from the office of Premier Robert Bourassa in Quebec City gave the kidnappers six hours to answer.

Lawyer Robert Lemieux, acting in the ransom talks for the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec, angrily rejected the government offer as "an incredible mockery" and in effect, washed his hands of the talks.

But there was no reply from the FLQ itself when the six hours were up at 3 a.m.

At Quebec City a government spokesman, as the deadline passed, said there was no comment.

"My mandate has ended," Mr. Lemieux said.

"I have nothing more to say." That left the ball in his clients' court.

The FLQ, which usually makes its position known by clandestinely-delivered communiques, promised Wednesday to issue a bulletin setting "a last deadline for the execution of our demands."

The Quebec government called on the armed forces to help assure public safety, spelling wearied policemen who have been on extra duty since the first kidnapping 19 days ago.

In Ottawa Prime Minister Trudeau called off an important visit to the Soviet Union and a Sunday night Liberal party dinner in Montreal where he was to speak was cancelled.

In Montreal Mr. Lemieux said today were lawyer Robert Lemieux, who has negotiated in behalf of the terrorist kidnappers of two political figures, and labor leader Michel Chartrand.

A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman reported a total of 238 arrests — 140 in Montreal, 52, in Quebec City, 20 in Quebec government invoked the Police Act which gives the director of Provincial police. Maurice St. Pierre, command of 14,000 police and army personnel.

Among those taken into custody, police said, were prominent members of the FLQ including Pierre Vallieres and Charles Gagnon, who have appeared before Quebec courts on charges arising from terrorist activities and who once were arrested in New York while parading in front of the United Nations building in support of Quebec separatism.

Another was singer Pauline Julien, who refused in 1964 to go to Charlottetown to sing for the Queen and who caused a stir at a conference of French-speaking nations in Niamey by shouting "Vive le Quebec Libre"—Long Live Free Quebec—in the presence of State Secretary Gerard Pelletier.

Turkey Rejects Return

ANKARA (AP) — The Turkish government will reject the Soviet government's demand for extradition of the father and son who hijacked a Soviet airliner Thursday if the pair can establish a valid political reason for seeking asylum, a government security official said today.

The Soviet government demanded the return of Brazinskas Kovorets, 48, and his son Algot, 18, who commandeered a twin-engined AN-24 with 48 other persons aboard and forced it to land at the Black Sea port of Trabzon. A stewardess was killed and three crew members were wounded in the hijacking.

A spokesman for the Turkish foreign ministry confirmed that the pair had asked for asylum. He said that if a true political motive could not be established, the hijackers would be treated as common criminals and possibly handed over to the Soviet authorities, even though Turkey and the Soviet Union do not have an extradition treaty.

The security official said the hijackers probably would be tried in Turkey on charges of murder and other felonies if given asylum.

The plane, operated by the Soviet government airline, Aeroflot, was seized 10 minutes after it took off from the Georgian town of Batumi, on the eastern edge of the Black Sea, for Sukhumis, 100 miles to the north. The elder Korovets told the Turks he and his son opened fire when the pilots refused to change course.

The stewardess, Natasha Kurchenko, 21, was killed as she tried to block the door to the pilot's compartment.

Turkish newspapers said the hijackers were Jews who were from Uzbekistan and had been living in Lithuania. The Soviet Union has refused to permit thousands of Jews to leave the country.

This was the first known successful hijacking of a Soviet airliner, although four other attempts are known: one in 1964, one in 1963, one in 1968 and one last June.

FLQ Lawyer Arrested

News Briefs

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Intense private talks on the Middle East have started here amid Western fears that a forth-coming debate in the General Assembly will set hopes for peace in the area back even farther than they now are. The Americans evidently are taking tough as they demand that Egypt roll back missiles the U.S. and Israel say the Egyptians put in the Suez cease-fire zone.

Act Outlaws FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau today tabled in the Commons regulations under the War Measures Act that outlaw the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Mr. Trudeau repeated the government's earlier statement that the action was taken in response to letters received shortly after 2 a.m. today from Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa and civic leaders in Montreal.

The letters, which Mr. Trudeau then read to the Commons, asked the federal government to authorize the power necessary to control the danger of an "apprehended insurrection," violence and other illegal action, and terrorist intimidation.

A person arrested under the tabled regulations—which forbid even advocating the aims or principles of the FLQ—"shall be detained in custody without bail pending trial" unless the attorney-general in the province in question consents to release under bail.

If the trial of a person detained under the regulations has not begun within 90 days of his arrest those in custody of the accused may apply to a judge of the provincial Supreme Court to have a date fixed for the trial.

The judge can fix a date for trial or give any directions he feels necessary to expedite a trial.

Mr. Trudeau said it was with "deep regret and great concern" that he found it necessary to invoke the emergency powers against the FLQ, which kidnapped British envoy James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte and held them for ransom.

But faced with the "rapid deterioration" of the situation in Quebec, and the failure of the FLQ to accept the Quebec government's offer to release five prisoners and grant safe passage to other FLQ members, the government "had no choice" but to proclaim the act.

While the FLQ alleged it was seeking "social change through violence," Mr. Trudeau said, it is actually pursuing social destruction through "clandestine means."

Mr. Trudeau said the regulations, which he said it intended even to advocate the principles of the FLQ or any successor to

Smith Rumored To Resign Post

SYDNEY N.S. (CP) — The Cape Breton Post says Premier G. I. Smith will resign as Progressive Conservative party leader and Liberal Leader Gerald Regan will form the new Nova Scotia government "on or before" Oct. 27.

The newspaper says the 61-year-old premier personally accepts responsibility for the government's setback in Tuesday's general election and will advise the party caucus of his plans today.

The caucus is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. ADT and the premier has said he will make a statement following the meeting.

The Conservatives won only 21 seats in Tuesday's election, with the Liberals taking 23. However, the NDP won two seats to hold the balance of power in the 46-seat legislature.

Australian Bridge

Death Toll 31; 14 Men Missing

MELBOURNE (CP) — Another part of Australia's biggest bridge began shaking today—24 hours after the sudden collapse of one section killed more than 30 workmen.

Rescue attempts to find 14 men still missing among the debris were halted for 90 minutes until experts said there was no danger of a further fall on the West Gate bridge in the Melbourne suburb of Footscray.

Thirty-one bodies were recovered Thursday after a 450-foot span of the bridge collapsed, partly into the Yarra River and partly on a group of huts where workmen building the $47-million bridge were having lunch. Eighteen persons were injured. Some of the unrecovered bodies could be seen in the rubble.

Another 18 workmen were injured, and seven of them were in critical condition.

The recovery work was suspended temporarily when an emergency crew of six riggers on an adjoining 450-foot section of the bridge felt it moving. They came down and refused to go up again.

First Arrivals

They are shown the town by Canada Manpower officials Gus Staub (rear left) and Jim Staveley. (See Page 2.)

Troops Flown To Site

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Armed Forces airborne regiment has been moved to St. Hubert, near Montreal, from Edmonton, a defence department spokesman said today.

The paratroopers number about 1,000 men.

They were flown overnight from Edmonton to St. Hubert, the spokesman said.

At the same time, troops of the Royal Canadien Regiment were moved from Camp Gagetown, N.B., to Camp Valcartier, near Quebec City.

For the time being at least, the troops moved to Quebec province from Alberta and New Brunswick were believed to be confined to their bases at St. Hubert and Valcartier. They are English-speaking.

The spokesman said the Gagetown troops at Valcartier are being used for base security, relieving soldiers of the French-speaking Royal 22nd Regiment on patrol in Montreal and Quebec City.

More than half the infantrymen in the Canadian Armed Forces now are understood to be in Quebec. However, the defence department declined to give any official figures.

Kidnapped Pair in Background as Events Fast Moving

MONTREAL (CP) — The deadline for acceptance of a Quebec government offer to buy the lives of two kidnap hostages with parole for, five criminals and safe conduct out of Canada for the kidnappers passed early today with no known response from the terrorist abductors.

The government at 5 p.m. EDT Thursday took a "final position" on the ransom of British envoy James (Jasper) Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

A statement from the office of Premier Robert Bourassa in Quebec City gave the kidnappers six hours to answer.

Lawyer Robert Lemieux, acting in the ransom talks for the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec, angrily rejected the government offer as "an incredible mockery" and in effect, washed his hands of the talks.

But there was no reply from the FLQ itself when the six hours were up at 3 a.m.

At Quebec City a government spokesman, as the deadline passed, said there was no comment.

"My mandate has ended," Mr. Lemieux said.

"I have nothing more to say." That left the ball in his clients' court.

The FLQ, which usually makes its position known by clandestinely-delivered communiques, promised Wednesday to issue a bulletin setting "a last deadline for the execution of our demands."

In Ottawa Prime Minister Trudeau called off an important visit to the Soviet Union and a Sunday night Liberal party dinner in Montreal where he was to speak was cancelled.

In Montreal Mr. Lemieux said he had information that police had discovered the lair of Mr. Laporte's kidnappers and were waiting to pounce on them.

The Quebec cabinet, which Wednesday abandoned its temporary kidnap-conference headquarters in Montreal to return to Quebec for a national assembly session on the province's medical care problem, made its "final position" known because of the "deteriorating circumstances of the situation."

The statement rejected most of the kidnappers' ransom demands:

Freeing of 23 FLQ conspirators convicted or accused of terrorist crimes, their safe transport to Cuba or Algeria with their families for those who want it, the payment of

Builder to Study West Park Report

A letter received from Maurice H. Rollins last night disclosed the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board to table its reassessment of a rezoning application which they had previously turned down.

The reassessment was necessitated by city council's disagreement with the board decision.

In his letter, Mr., Rollins asked for time to study the West Park Village report, tabled by the planning board at their Sept. 17 meeting.

The resolution at that time suggested that Almo Developments Ltd. redesign the plan to accommodate single family lots only, in accordance with the tabled report.

This request met with the approval of the board and the decision for reassessment was postponed until Mr. Rollins is prepared for the rehearing.

Planning director R. J. Kenny offered a forecast of the planning staff's position on the reassessment.

"I don't think the staff's opinion would be significantly changed."

O.F. Bradley Resigns As C of C Secretary

The resignation of Belleville Chamber of Commerce secretary and general manager O. F. "Brad" Bradley, tendered to a chamber executive committee meeting on Tuesday night, was accepted at a regular meeting of the chamber last night.

Chamber president Frank C. Emery said that the resignation "came as a shock" and described Mr. Bradley as a "dedicated, sincere man who had worked beyond the call of duty on behalf of the chamber."

In his letter to Mr. Murray, Mr. Bradley expressed "mixed feelings" in asking for acceptance of his resignation, stating that he has "enjoyed the challenges offered by my present position over the past 9½ years" and his association with the officers, directors and members of the chamber.

Mr. Bradley will continue with his duties until Nov. 15, when he will begin his new position with the Belleville Credit Bureau.

Unanimous approval was given by the directors at the appointment of J. C. Pat Houston to fill the upcoming vacancy.

Now serving in an advisory capacity with Dubro Bedlie, the firm he worked for as plant manager and later general manager, Mr. Houston is no stranger to the chamber of commerce, serving as president some years ago.

Serving as chairman of the past - presidents committee which tabled its findings at chamber operation, directors feel Mr. Houston will be in a good position to correct faults the committee found in the examination.

Mr. Houston will begin his duties on Nov. 1.

First Tibet Emigres Arrive in Belleville

Phil Bennett is pleased to announce that Gord Robin, formerly president and owner of Noble Dairy Ltd. of Belleville is now associated with Phil Bennett Real Estate as a Real Estate representative. Gord has already negotiated several real estate transactions and will be pleased to assist you in any form of real estate that you require. Gord may be reached at any time at 962-2383 or 968-7777. Thank you.

Two young immigrants slipped quietly into the Quinte district last night — their arrival like most new-settlers, unheralded and publicly unknown.

Today, the significance of their presence contrasts with the anonymity of their arrival.

Belleville becomes the host Canadian community to the first Tibetan immigrants ever to enter the country.

Tsering Dorjee and Jampa Dorjee, both 25, friends and one-time refugees from Chinese occupation of their homeland, are advance members of 240 of their countrymen who will settle in Canada.

About 20 more Tibetans are expected later in the Belleville area in the near future, say local Canada Manpower officials who are supervising the settlement program.

Similar numbers will settle in the Cobourg and Lindsay districts, while the remainder of the immigrants will go to Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia.

Their native origins impart an exotic background to the new arrivals.

Tibet, sealed off from easy communication by the Himalayas, has sure of romantic mystery for the Western world. But like the countrymen who will follow them, Tsering and Jampa have not known their native landscape for many years.

They fled the Chinese invasion of Tibet in 1959, taking refuge in the sympathetic India.

It was there, while living in refugee camps, that both young men received their training and education. More recently, they have been living and training at Beta International Centre near Delhi in preparation for their Canadian settlement.

The Bata Shoe company has agreed to employ both men in the Quinte district.

Manpower officials.

"They will probably go to work in one of Bata's factories — and as soon as they get time to catch their breath," said Hiren Sarvaiya, personal Manpower consultant from Toronto.

Both Mr. Sarvaiya and Mr. Stanley Belleville Manpower official, Mr. Staub met both young Tibetans at Toronto International Airport last night as they arrived on the last leg of a flight from New Delhi.

Family groups of their countrymen are expected to follow them by mid-December.

Manpower officials say necessary educational and training facilities have been made with Loyalist College, says Mr. Staveley.

Police Await Board Decision

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Following an all-day hearing Thursday, members of the Belleville Police Commission today are awaiting the arbitration board award on their 1970 salary contract with the city.

Headed by Judge A. R. Willmott of Cobourg the three-men board yesterday heard briefs from James L. Cooke, of Hamilton, representing the local police association and city solicitor John C. Miller, counsel for the police commission.

Judge Willmott said the board would sit again today to consider the police request and make their award this afternoon.

Main monetary requests by the police are a 25 per cent across - the - board salary increase; time and a half on overtime and differential pay for late afternoon and night shifts.

The salary request for a first class constable is $9,720 per annum as compared to $7775 received under the 1969 contract.

Most of yesterday was spent in last - minute negotiations in an effort to settle some of the 12 items remaining at issue, while another four were withdrawn by police.

In the end five of the requests were settled or agreed to, while another four were withdrawn by police.

In support of the police request for higher salaries for Belleville police, Mr. Cooke urged that they be brought up to a "realistic level."

Currently, he said, local police were receiving $1800 less than Ontario Provincial Police officers doing the same work. The Belleville salary scale was also less than in many other Ontario municipalities, he added.

The cost of a 11 per cent increase had been declined, Mr. Cooke said.

The present increase in salary increases had already been set by city aldermen who this year found themselves raises of 33 per cent, according to Mr. Cooke.

He quoted the 1969 annual report of Police Chief Douglas Crooks which said police work was increasing as were the risks police assumed.

In rebuttal, commission counsel John Miller maintained the role of city police was not to be compared with that of provincial police.

He said their duties were different and their COST centers were subject to transfer on short notice. This resulted in officers having to sell their homes and moves to other communities which reflected on family life and education of children.

Salaries of provincial police officers were adjusted for these inconveniences, he said. Mr. Miller added that the city's offer of a 14 per cent salary increase was "very fair."

With other city costs rising the city could not afford the requested 25 per cent increase "for anything like it". If the full 25 per cent increase was granted it would cost the city an additional $90,000.

Mr. Cooke placed considerable importance on the requested 25 cent per hour differential for shift work, claiming this to be a matter of principle.

He said the shift work differential was recognized in industry and should be given to police.

Other police requests to be decided by the arbitral l o board are competition for 11 statutory holidays at double time, four weeks vacation after 15 years service, and payment of 100 per cent of insurance and welfare plans by the commission.

The Commission now pays two-thirds of police insurance and welfare plans and pays for 10 statutory holidays at regular rates whether or not the holidays are worked.

In last-minute negotiation the police commission agreed to increase the clothing allowance of plainclothesmen to $275 per year from the present $250, and to increase the amount of service pay to $50 for each five years of service to a maximum of $150.

Self-styled Deserter Is Returned to U.S.

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Immigration authorities in Belleville today confirmed they had deported an 18-year-old self-styled United States army deserter yesterday.

Peter Ostrokvic was released from Canadian custody at the Alexandria Bay border crossing — after a two-month wait in Hastings County jail while authorities verified his citizenship status.

The youth — whose hometown is Hiram, Ohio, was subsequently driven to the border by Myles Tillotson, the immigration official who had been handling his case.

Ostrokvic, said the official, was "happy to get home" after his prolonged stay in custody.

The youth was first picked up while hitchhiking near Kaladar Aug. 31. Provincial police said he had first entered Canada illegally in May, near Vancouver and said him he had deserted from the U.S. army after his brother was killed in Vietnam.

Several days before he was taken in custody he had attempted to return to the U.S. at Detroit, but had been turned back because he could not verify his citizenship, said police. Later the same day he fled from a border station at Windsor while being questioned by Canadian authorities.

Ostrokvic's citizenship status created a dilemma for Canadian authorities.

Born in Austria, he entered Canada as a three-month-old infant with his family.

He had been said he be verified to decide a destination if he was deported.

The draft document he possessed when interviewed by Mr. Tillotson was an Austrian birth certificate.

Had the United States not recognized Ostrokvic's citizenship claims he only other country which could have accepted him was Austria, pointed out the official.

But there would be no "humanitarian reason" to follow such a course, he added.

Meantime, while the case was being processed, it was considered best to keep the youth lodged in the jail, since he was penniless.

Mr. Tillotson said he was satisfied Ostrokvic wouldn't again have fled authorities and under normal circumstances — he would have released the youth on his own recognizance.

That he had no means of support. At least he was getting three meals a day.

"He didn't have any complaints whatsoever," he added.

He said Ostrokvic was informed he had a right to appeal his deportation and could secure free legal aid in Ontario.

"He declined to be represented. He declined to appeal. He only wanted to go home. Those were his words."

Mr. Tillotson said he was convinced the youth voluntarily wished to return to the U.S. because of Ostrokvic's earlier abortive attempt at Detroit.

"It certainly wasn't his intention to remain permanently outside the U.S.," said Mr. Tillotson.

U.S. authorities finally signified yesterday they would accept Ostrokvic back, and Mr. Tillotson said he decided to waive any other formalities and immediately take the youth to the border himself.

Before leaving the jail, Ostrokvic shook hands with his custodians, said the official.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of a dear son and wife, Jesse and Ruth Johnston, who passed away on October 16th, 1966, and Ruth on October 8th, 1967.

Two years ago, October 8th, 1967,
God took a loved one home to rest,
He thought her work on earth was done,
And He was needing one in heaven.

Two years ago, October 16th, 1966,
God took a loved one home to rest,
He thought his work on earth was done,
And He was needing one in heaven.

Two loved ones taken from our home,
But I think of the double joy
That two loved ones in heaven enjoy.
In our heart you are always here,
For I love you and miss you.

Sadly missed by mother, sister, daughter and brother-in-law.

CRAIGHEAD — In loving memory of a loving wife and mother, Isabella Craighead who passed away on this day, October 16, 1965.
Though her smile is gone forever,
And her face we cannot see,
What we have is memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
You left us for a while dear mother,
With which we'll never part,
God took you home because
He loved you best.
—Lovingly remembered by husband, daughter and son-in-law.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of our mother, the late Mrs. Lola Fluke, wish to thank the Rector and congregation of St. Thomas', friends and neighbors for their kindness shown to us in our recent bereavement.

Lila Desmond,
R. H.

The family of the late Mr. Alexander Ferguson wish to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to Dr. Ross, Dr. Hall, Dr. Spink, Dr. Orr and Mrs. K. E. Mackie, and the nurses at ninth and seventh floor of the Belleville General Hospital, who gave such excellent care to our father during his recent illness. We also wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacKenzie, Rev. Father F. Cullen, Rev. Father J. O'Keefe, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy in our sad bereavement and for flowers and death of a dear husband, friend and grandfather.

The Wilmot Family,
Mother, Son.

Madoc's Water Problems Not Solved

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Water in rain-sodden Quinte district — these days easily provokes irritation.

The same applies here — but for opposite reasons.

Target of much of this community's talk in recent days has been its municipal water service.

Charges of erratic behavior — symptomized by failing water pressures — have been laid against the system by local householders, in a series of complaints which even reached public health authorities.

The situation is not exactly newly - born. In mid-summer town officials reported pressure problems existed in the system that pumps water from the village well to local consumers.

However in the past week the problem has gathered new momentum — with attention centering in the village's east side.

Councillor Harry Roscoe, chairman of the town's water and sewage committee, says the situation is "not really critical."

"But it is a worry," he adds.

Cause of the problem has not been decided.

Water - service customers total about "400-plus" in this community of about 2,500, estimates Mr. Roscoe. Consumption now is running 145- or 150,000 gallons daily, he estimates.

But the supply system's original design provided for up to 300,000 daily gallons, he says.

During the mid - summer dropoff a possible leak, air in the pumps or lower dry-season water level may be a leak loss as yet undiscovered. The pump's manufacturer has been on equipment in pumping air thus reducing the water flow.

But, says the councillor "they don't give us much satisfaction."

A town resident also noted the community's arena had been using town water for its artificial ice plant.

However, that situation now is "under control" since a well has been drilled this week adjacent to the arena to meet the centre's water supply needs, said Mr. Roscoe.

"They claim to have a good well" he added.

The situation does not pose any emergency hazard, he believes for most Madoc residents.

In the event of an emergency such as fire other lines can be shut down to boost water pressure where needed, he says.

Meantime an engineering study on the water system now is finally in the council's hands and suggestions mulled for additional facilities, he said. However the report has not yet been aired by council and he could not disclose details.

In Belleville, a Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit official said his office had received two complaints Wednesday from Madoc residents and had sent an inspector to investigate.

However he added, the situation was "something that was no control over," he added.

The official said he believed a complaint also had been made to the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The situation apparently had "been going on for three weeks off and on."

Mr. Roscoe believed the problem may first have arisen during prolonged dry weather in August, when water tables dropped in the area.

A local property owner also noted a drastic drop in water levels on his own land.

A well on his property, which originally had water to a depth of 24 feet had plummeted to three feet in September.

The village also has undergone expansion in recent years.

Education centralization also has considerably boosted the school population.

School facilities are now using "large quantities" of water, Mr. Roscoe agrees.

Population growth also is a factor cited by a leading town merchant Kel Kincaid.

The town well was drilled in 1950 and was so adequate installation. But two decades have brought many changes — "and the well is trying to tell us that."

Reeve Tom Burnside is at present on vacation.

Mr. Kincaid believed the reeve was "getting unfair criticism" in the course of recent complaints.

The reeve, he said, was a ceaseless worker for the community.

"Madoc has growing pains and the well is trying to tell us this. They can't blame any individual for that."

Stephen Badgley

Talents Channeled Into Film-making

There's a young man in Belleville who is a designer and a film-maker and, despite his youth, could be making a name for himself in both fields.

Stephen Badgley, in his first year of fine arts at Vanier College at York University in Toronto, is majoring in film-making. At 19, he has several designing assignments to his credit and one animated film as well as plans for a movie to be made at the university.

At school this year he takes such heavy-duty courses as imagination and perception in art.

"You could call it a mind-expanding art course," he said. "You concentrate on the medium in which you work. You have to learn it and learn to love it as if it's the only thing the room."

Next year Stephen will take a course in general design to display talents on posters for example.

"It's an abstract thing. You take basic colors and geometric shapes and come up with something."

Art and drawing and design began for Stephen when he was five or six years old. Stephen grins when he thinks of his early beginnings.

"When I was five or six I was always drawing cars, not the ones already out, but designing new ones. Everyone thought I might become a car designer. I thought I might become one.

"Then I started drawing others like buildings and everyone thought I might become a commercial artist. I thought I might too."

But then Stephen changed his mind again, turning away from art to begin using film. Then the call of the pen was heard again and the paint brush. He started working with abstracts, creating a number of water colors. But he continued to work with film.

"I think if I find a way to combine the two, I'll be in heaven," Stephen commented.

He came close with his animated film and with a friend Bill Mitchell co - designed and photographed the slides and lettering that served to give the credits for the Belleville Theatre Guild's Arts Festival '70 production of Rocking Boeing.

His most recent project was for the Quinte Arts Council, a poster advertising the performance of Aline Van Barentzen in Belleville.

Stephen has even dabbled in theatre design, designing the set for a play performed by students at Centennial Secondary School.

His second film will be different from the first. The first was experimental and its title — No. one — explains the philosophy with which it was attempted, merely a challenge.

"I took some old slides against colored backgrounds and animated them. I filmed one frame at a time."

Stephen will do his second film at university with the assistance of some fellow students who have other specialized talents.

"One student wants to write the script. Another student has already written some songs for it. This one will be pure realism."

Stephen discussed the opportunities for film-makers in Canada.

"You have to come into film-making from an appreciative point of view. I wouldn't work in the United States. The United States turns me off."

He explained that a film can be made on his own but only on an amateur scale if the job is to be done cheaply.

"It's hard to start off independently. You need a lot of backing. It's difficult to make a film without some support.

"The idea is to get into a secondary industry such as advertising. I could learn some layout design," he explained. "Of course I've got three years of school left."

Stephen, 19, has a lot of work ahead and a lot of options ready for creativity.

In the living-room of the home he shares with his mother, Doris Badgley, a number of paintings adorn the walls. In the kitchen there is a mural.

But these paintings and designing efforts are not the work of Stephen, but the work of his mother.

She's interested in interior design. She's only been painting for three or four years. I think she's quite good."

Stephen comes by his talent naturally enough, a tangible evidence of the Greek philosopher. Plato's theory that creative talent is divine and is passed from gods to families.

In 'Now Generation', He's 100 Years Old

PICTON (Staff) — A skilled fiddler, Charles Brownson yesterday celebrated his years of keeping in tune with life.

This active senior citizen, who resides with his great niece, Mrs. Charles Fletcher, Picton, spent part of his 100th birthday resting for his appearance in the final game of the world series. Music and sports represent only two of many interests that have kept Mr. Brownson young at heart since his retirement in 1913.

To him, becoming 100 years of age is no excuse for opting out of life. Mr. Brownson described his retirement years as "some of the best days of my life."

Born in Madoc township, four miles west of the village of Madoc, he is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Marion Brownson. As a lad of 13 Charles Brownson learned to play the fiddle, a pastime that has entertained his family and friends ever since. He enthusiastically joined in old time fiddlers' competitions held at Prince Edward County fair until he was 97 years of age. Today he's retired from show business and limits his fiddling to family gatherings.

Jack of all trades and master of one, Mr. Brownson in his youth was a blacksmith, cheesemaker in the Quinte area. He worked for a time at the Maxwagon cheese factory and was later employed by the Quinte cheese factory on Redmerryside road. For 32 years Mr. Brownson's name was respected by fellow cheesemakers in the Quinte district.

Charles Brownson may have been a cheesemaker by trade but he firmly believed that variety is the spice of life.

He recalled yesterday that he also worked as an auctioneer for 17 years, labored as a construction worker on bridges, was employed as a logger and also sold real estate.

"Real estate, now that's where I made my fortune," he quipped. "I drove the river for three years, too," reminisced Mr. Brownson.

Charles Brownson vividly remembers the year 1897 for it was then that he became "the nicest girl in Madoc". Margaret Gillies, Married in Foxboro, the couple had two children, a daughter Annie Brownson and a son Carl. Their son became a medical doctor and practised in Picton for several years prior to his death. Annie Brownson, who married and became Annie Gough, also predeceased her father. A grandaughter, Margaret Gough, Bloomfield, is Mr. Brownson's closest surviving relative.

"I have so many nieces and nephews it's hard for me to remember to count them," remarked Mr. Brownson. He has grandchildren in Picton, brothers and three sisters.

Mr. Brownson settled in Prince Edward County in 1933, retiring in Bloomfield. "I don't know whether I retired for or was fired," he chuckled. In 1943 he moved to Picton and for the past 13 years has resided with Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher.

His secret for longevity is simply to retain his membership card in the "now generation".

A sports enthusiast, Mr. Brownson follows baseball and hockey games on television as well as many of the sports in progress. Until he became 98 years of age he made two trips daily to a downtown pool hall for an occasional game with the boys. His latest minor remodelled task: storytelling is another favorite pastime for her uncle.

Mr. Brownson said he remembered subscribing to The Intelligencer when Sir Mackenzie Bowell was publisher.

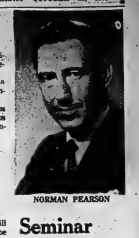
He still looks forward to occasional outings and recently enjoyed a visit to Madoc fall fair.

A highlight of Mr. Brownson's 100th birthday celebrations were congratulatory telegrams from the Hon. George Hees, MP, Prince Edward-Hastings, Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier John Robarts.

Tight Security At CFB Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Security measures at the Canadian Forces Base here are being stepped up in line with a policy on the drawing boards for several weeks.

Decision to intensify security cordons originated with CFB Trenton authorities and is not part of a widespread across - the - board national program.



Changes in security will not be abrupt. They will be "eventual rather than immediate" as one spokesman put it.

Measures instituted yesterday include an increase in military police patrols on the base and a stepping up of surveillance at the main gate.

Many details will be issued for use on the vehicles of base employees — civilian and military — thus, minimizing access of unauthorized persons.

Cars will be watched more closely and with the details it will be easier to confirm or deny entry" the source said.

The NATO variety of identification tag, bearing a head-and-shoulders mug-shot of its authorized carrier will be worn by certain personnel, as a requirement for entry into particular classified and strategic areas of the Forces installation.

NORMAN PEARSON

Seminar To Hear Pearson

A leading Canadian authority on environment will deliver the keynote address to the day's program before the seminar divides into individual discussions on the theme, Pollution: An Individual Responsibility.

A cross-section of community leaders and interested citizens from the four Quinte counties will take part in the seminar — a joint project of Loyalist and the Quinte District Labor Council.

Similar conferences are being held simultaneously at all community colleges across Ontario.

Space limitations rule against a general public invitation to the seminar, say organizers.

However, the aim is that participants will return to their various communities and establish local anti-pollution groups.

The Loyalist conference gets underway at 9 a.m. with the opening address from Mr. Pearson. The participants will then divide into small discussion groups headed by co-ordinators specializing in pollution control or related fields.

Reeves To Run

The reeves of both Tweed village and Hungerford township have announced their intention of running for re-election this year.

Barbara Allen of Tweed, and William McCrea of Hungerford have indicated their intention of contesting their seats.

Nomination meeting for Hungerford township will be held Nov. 23. Tweed's nomination meeting is scheduled for Nov. 28.

Sorority Belleville Boosters

Members of the Belleville Beta Sigma Phi Sorority have come in for commendation as Belleville boosters.

At a recent convention in Kitchener, the sorority members wore Quinte tartans and handed out favors courtesy of local industries and the Belleville, Industrial Commission.

At city council this week Industrial Commission chairman Alderman Gerald Joyce commended sorority members for boosting Belleville.

"Credit should be given where credit is due," he said.

Bridge Hangup

Ten to 15 more years of the Bay Bridge? This is the prospect thrown out by Ontario Highways Minister George Gomme in a letter to City Council.

Evidently City Council's brief to the minister on the obvious need for a new high level bridge has not had the desired impact.

But it must — and this newspaper, which for long has campaigned on this issue, endorses Council's decision to approach the minister again.

With Belleville and the Quinte area generally enjoying fresh economic impetus, with new industry and increasing population, not to mention tourist traffic, the existing bridge link must go — and soon.

The present antiquated structure is not only patently inadequate for modern conditions but the constant summer tie-ups, caused when the bridge is opened to admit passage of boat traffic, poses an increasingly intolerable situation.

To consider perpetuating this piece of obsolescence by more than another year or two — the time it would likely take to have a new structure built — let alone upwards of 15 years betrays a complete lack of knowledge of the traffic problem that now exists in the summer months particularly.

Belleville has had to fight for progress before. It looks as if it must now bring pressure on government once again. No time should be wasted by Council in pursuing this matter to a satisfactory conclusion.

Urban Problems Recognized

By the end of the century, according to the recent Speech from the Throne, an estimated 80 per cent of Canadians will live in a few large cities. It appears this was one of the mounting pressures which led to the government decision to establish a Ministry of Urban Affairs.

Nothing is more important to the proper functioning of society than adequate housing. Moreover, the planning that goes along with it is a monumental task and the establishing of this new arm of government is recognition of the escalating problems associated with housing in this country today.

Significantly, one of the ministry's tasks will be to "foster" co-ordination of the activities of all levels of government and to contribute to sound urban growth and development." Between the lines of this rather trite phraseology is the suggestion that orderly growth is being hampered by red tape, duplication, hangups as between one government department and another, and general administrative confusion.

One wonders about the other 20 per cent of Canadians who will not be pursuing the routine 9 to 5 thing in the cities of the year 2,000. Presumably they will be the farmers of the day, the miners and the prospectors — and yes the dropouts of this next turn of the century. Will they still be hanging around Front Street by then? As seem on the CBC's late night news recently) plaguing the authorities in such remote spots as Katmandu where the living is easy man and the hash there for the taking?

Yes, It's Here Too!

Canadians can no longer display any smugness about events in countries like Northern Ireland. There is talk of introducing the kind of special powers employed there to curb terrorism, such as the holding of suspects without trial. There is also talk of re-introducing the death penalty in the case of kidnappings.

We recall when former Ulster Premier Terence O'Neill was in this country on a visit he was asked about conditions there and he replied, "You have your problems too." And this, long before the disturbing events in Quebec of the last couple of weeks.

Yes, let us put our own house in order before we start criticizing — if only by implication — others.

Students' Portage

Congratulations to Loyalist College's Outward Bound group on their rugged, rain-drenched passage from north Hastings into Belleville. It is the courage and sense of adventure of youth at work, and if occasionally a not lost in spite of other, much less desirable trends among the young today. Loyalist teacher Michael Barrett was the driving force behind the three-day canoe portage by nearly 40 students. For him the event ended with a high-spirited dunking in the Moira, at the hands of the students. Perhaps he is now in a position to give us the pollution count at the time!

Health Insurance Plan Streamlined

Election Straws in the Wind in Ontario

By FRED HAMILTON

TORONTO (CP) — It is little more than a week since the legislature resumed, but policy statements made since then indicate the ship of state is being readied to carry a full cargo of surprises to voters—probably within a year.

The latest came Tuesday when Premier John Roberts announced elimination of private agents from Ontario's health insurance plan and proposed a single premium for both health and hospital insurance.

The premier does not have to call an election until October, 1973, but Queen's Park observers believe the medical care change and others since the house resumed last Tuesday indicate an election could come in the late summer or fall next year.

The new health plan—to be introduced July 1, 1973—will bring the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan and hospital insurance now provided by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission under one agency.

The government now receives health insurance premiums of $5.90 a month for a single person, $11.80 for 4 couple and $14.75 for a family. Hospital premiums are $6.50 monthly for a single person and $11 for a family.

The two stacked in an integrated program would mean $11.40 for a single person, $22.80 for a couple and $28.75 for families.

The change-over, Mr. Roberts said, will "substantially reduce" administrative costs of running the two plans separately and eliminate 22 private carriers now providing insurance on a non-profit basis.

That was the latest change. Within the last week, the government has also announced these programs:

—Virtual elimination of county boundaries in labor disputes, removing one them from the side of organized labor.

—A promise from Provincial Secretary Robert Welch of pending reform in Ontario's drinking laws.

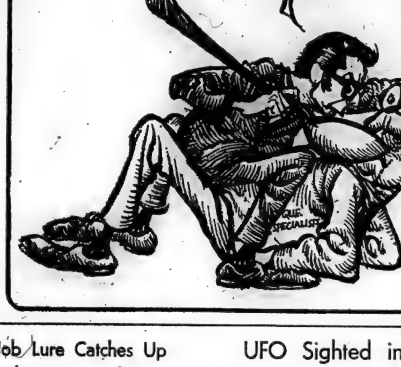
—A redistribution of responsibilities within the courts, to speed to the processing of divorce cases and to provide appeals from government boards and commissioners.

—A shelter allowance for needy pensioners to relieve them of much of the burden of municipal taxes.

—A direct rebate to farmers of 25 per cent of their municipal taxes as relief from the costs of education taxes on land.

—Promise of provincial financial support for rapid transit systems.

—Promise of a new system of municipal taxation to be worked out in a two-county experiment.



The changes in health-care legislation affect only its administration, not its operations. But Premier Roberts told the house the changes are "only the first in a series of steps to improve health services."

Creation of the Health Insurance Commission as the single agency to handle both hospital and health insurance under a single premium is an essential step in the government's announced intention to give Ontario "total, integrated health care," Mr. Roberts said.

Once insurance plans are more tightly organized, the government can go on to its total-health package, which includes improvements in mental health and nursing home care, the creation of health centres staffed by both medical and para-medical personnel and the provision of adequate health facilities in remote areas.

Financing money will be saved through an integrated insurance administration is not known, since operating costs for the first year of OHSIP have not yet been made public. However, Health Minister Thomas Wells in an interview last December gave a breakdown of estimated costs.

Total cost of health insurance in its first full year would be $483 million, Treasury payments and government grants would bring it to $313 million, leaving the province with a one-year surplus of $19 million.

Job Lure Catches Up With Women of Japan

Peterborough Examiner

It may come as a surprise to many people, but Japanese women are not really sitting at home or cooking or changing or beautifying themselves while waiting for the arrival of the master of the house, namely their husbands.

The women of Japan, who are supposed to be the best wives on earth, are leaving their homes in ever increasing numbers and going to work in schools, offices and factories.

The great economic boom has finally caught up with the Japanese, too, and is breaking traditions right and left. Men are still desperately trying to cover up and protect their reputations, of course, but the statisticians are mercilessly disproving their claims of still being the masters of their houses.

There are 10,670,000 working women in Japan today, one-third of the work force of the country, an astonishingly high number in a nation which is really, traditionally home-oriented. In primary, schools, for example, women outnumber men teachers. In many other fields, too, women have become indispensable.

And the women's lib movement hasn't even reached them yet.

UFO Sighted in Quinte Area

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I wish to report to you the sighting of a most extraordinary celestial phenomenon which I witnessed early on the morning of Friday, Oct. 8. I have been working for the Norton Brothers who farm on the first concession west of Bloomfield, just off Highway 14. For the first time this summer our cows were not some time during the previous evening or the morning of Oct. 9. After failing to find them in our pasture I returned to the barn and Grant Norton took me along in his pickup truck and we drove to the northern limits of his property along the lane on the farm of Burton's farm. No cows were to be seen.

We turned around and headed home, looking out the rolled-down window for our missing cows. Suddenly I saw a fantastic sight in the sky to the south of Trenton. A string of bright lights were strung out at regular intervals. There were at least six such lights, and the flotilla was proceeding in a northerly direction. The light at the southern end of the string would blink out and one would light up at the head of the string. I tried to draw Mr. Norton's attention to this display of celestial fireworks, but his only comment was that it must be an aircraft. A flotilla of man-made planes of this size would have made an ear-deafening roar, but no sound could be heard above the motor of the truck. After a few seconds all the lights blinked out and only the stars could be seen in the dark sky. The time must have been between 6:28 and 6:30 a.m., for when we reached the barn I checked the watch. The time was 6:40 a.m. and morning was breaking.

I would never have had the temerity to make this revelation had I not quite by chance (or was it chance?) driven over to Trenton that evening. I bought a copy of The Trentonian for Friday Oct. 9. On page one was this report: "Reports Seeing Flare. A member of the Belleville UFOIC phoned us on his way to work at 6:20 a.m. this morning reported seeing a flare in the sky while driving east on Highway 30. It appeared to be in the area of Presqu'ile Point. CFB Trenton search and rescue section was notified and was checking the report. Nothing is missing." That officer driving south with the flotilla to the south of him would see only a "flare" in the sky. This flotilla of what I can only believe were space craft of some unknown origin was heading north at speed and my line of vision in a parallel position to the direction of my travel. Thus I was able to see not a flare but at least six separate lights strung out in the dark sky, with the last one going out and another lighting up at the head of the flotilla.

A sudden hush, almost reverent in its utter silence, fell over city and district homes at 12.15 Sunday afternoon. A Princess of the Royal Blood was speaking and thousands of ears and eyes were attuned to radio receiving sets as Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth spoke to the children of the Empire in her first airwave address. "Britain's children at home are red full of courage and courage," Her Royal Highness said, and urged children to remember "that when peace comes it will be for the children of today to make the men of tomorrow a better and happier place." With her simple sincerity, England's future Queen, Princess Elizabeth, unknowingly perhaps, forged a strong link in the chain of unity that binds the nations of the British Commonwealth.

Morris Callaghan, George Kiser and Ernest Bowerman probably can lay claim to the record catch of 'fungs' in a fourday period. Starting on the many stories that were emanating from Muscote Bay regarding the immense fish being taken and their large size, these three anglers decided to take a hand in the proceedings. Equipped with plenty of tackle they trolled down the Bay, and at the end of four days had nine lunges in the creel, weighing from 15 to 35 pounds.

A Plea For Deliverance

Escape—from the Mindless Banalities of Our Day

Orillia Packet and Times

We all seek it, each in his own way, each to his own degree. Escape from the pressures of an increasingly dehumanized world, from the mindless banalities of a shallow society. Some of us seek it in furnished silence broken only by the throaty drumming of crickets, surcease from the incessant roar and clangour of our strident cities. Others find, in the sun - splashed shallows of a purling brook or the misty reedbeds of some loon-haunted lake, escape from the suburban search for status and the unending frustrations of urban life.

Escape; the need grows more urgent with each passing year, and slumped of all for insensitive, the concerned, the intelligent, the mature, until it becomes the principal preoccupation of our most significant strata of society.

The ogres, sheer and old, grow greater by the minute. Deliver us, O Lord, from the abysmal ignorance and violence, the posturing and pretence of our campus radicals, and from the beards and beads and drugs of shiftless youth. Protect us from the warmongings of politicians and pundits, from the mindless babble of radio's ineffable announcers, from endless traffic reports and inane jingles, from Johnny Cash and Red Skelton and the legal tedium of television, with its infantile panel games and contrived confrontations. From the slugline commercial, the artale NFB doodle, the long - haired arrogance of the CBC, deliver us, Lord!

Who among us does not long for escape from the systemized greed of collective bargaining, from the blackmail and brigandage of organized labor, from the computerized rubbishness of the soulless corporation? Who has not grown weary of the avante garde, of the meretricious, of the tasteless in film and book and stage, or of a society that equates artistic freedom with nude movies?

Who does not yearn to fly from the increasing violence and lawlessness of the crowded cities, and their restless, rootless masses? From protests and Pierre, from riots and Rubin, from Benson and Hi and Bi, who does not long for deliverance? Is there, somewhere, some sheltered corner secure from Doe-Joes and the split-level, from work - to - rule and pop art and country rock?

It is a measure of the shallowness and lack of purpose of today's trendy urban society that more and more Canadians are driven to seek escape from it, and from an existence like Shakespeare's "tale, told by an idiot; full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." What they seek is a meaningful role in an ordered society, and a harmonious relationship with their environment, which may be why so many city dwellers are finding a new interest in the simplest manifestations of Nature; in clouds and stars, birds and animals, green fields and running water. From them, escape can be a chipmunk on the lawn, or a chickadee at the window.

Kidnappings Leave Hush In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The two kidnappings last week have left a kind of hush in this metropolis of 2,000,000. You can almost hear people listening.

A civic election will be held Oct. 25 but Jean Drapeau, a shoo-in for re-election as mayor, is holding few public meetings. His office says he doesn't want to tie up police.

At night, the expressways to the suburbs are eerily empty. Montrealers, after eight years of terrorist bombings, are too aware that some 10,000 sticks of dynamite have been stolen this year.

Even the underworld seems to have gone still since the kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Perhaps it is because so many police are about, but thefts have been practically no major crimes since Mr. Cross was abducted Oct. 5. During Thanksgiving weekend, as the populace sat glued to TV after the kidnapping last Saturday of Mr. Laporte, even traffic deaths were down.

"Yeah, it's too quiet," says a La Salle area diver recently. He worries about the stolen dynamite. Will a bomb turn up in the engine of his parked next to, the cafe he eats at, the valise of a customer, . . .

As he cruises down a quiet, expensive street near the Cross home, where two police constables don't give him a glance, a well-dressed man at the curb becomes alert, and watches the cab closely until it passes. A mailman going into the Cross home also watches it suspiciously.

Eyewitnesses to the Cross kidnapping said a car with a La Salle dome light was involved. There are more than 1,000 La Salle cabs in the city.

At the International Firearms Co. Ltd. store on Henry Street, where two employees were killed Aug. 19, 1964, in a terrorist raid for arms, business is slow and the occasional shopper is eyed warily.

Among the 30 men the FLQ wants released from prison, in exchange for the life of Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte, are three serving life for the killings in the firearms shop.

At the courthouse farther east, watchful police check the briefcases of lawyers as they enter the main door. Police in a cruiser across the street also watch the door.

The terrorists sentenced in this courthouse and it is said to be high on the list of FLQ targets, Judge Maurice Allard, who presided at the arraignment of Robert Lemieux. FLQ lawyer in negotiations with the Quebec court case Tuesday he fears for the safety of his family.

The courthouse is around the corner from the Nelson Hotel, where Mr. Lemieux and others in the FLQ camp have held news conferences this week.

Appeal Bypassed

Request by Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, and Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, for release of 23 imprisoned terrorists faded into the background today in light of passing of the Emergency War Measures Act. The request by the two French Canadian leaders was backed up by other prominent Montrealers.

FLQ Outlawed Until April, 1971

it, are effective at least until April, 30, 1971.

Mr. Stanfield said this was much too long a period for the government to hold such sweeping powers.

The prime minister will go on television later today.

Mr. Trudeau promised to try to write a new statute which would be less sweeping than the War Measures Act and which could be used in circumstances similar to the present ones.

The act is emergency legislation that allows the government to proclaim arbitrarily that there is a state of "war, invasion or insurrection, real or apprehended."

It can punish those who break its regulations with any combination of fines up to $5,000 and five years imprisonment. Even after the emergency is declared over, sentences under the act continue in full.

The spokesman said the government need not necessarily invoke all provisions under the act, but only those which it deemed necessary under the circumstances.

"The government can exercise discretion as to what sections are required and would exercise powers only commensurate with circumstances as they exist.

"They don't necessarily have to use the same powers as they would in a state of war."

He said that while "apprehended insurrection" was necessary to define the federal government was convinced that circumstances were such as to "lead the government of Quebec and authorities in Quebec to believe that such a state exists."

He said the act was law from the moment it was proclaimed and a person could be apprehended under the act during period prior to specific orders-in-council being tabled in Parliament and while that person did not know the contents of those orders.

The powers of the act were in no way limited to Montreal or Quebec, he said. "They have no geographical limitation."

The government, though, must table enabling orders-in-council in Parliament immediately if the House is in session and within four days if it is not.

This became necessary under the Bill of Rights passed in 1960.

The Bill of Rights left the act intact, but made it necessary for debate on the act if any 10 members of the Commons or Senate requested its revokation.

Then, upon approval of both the houses of Parliament, the act would be revoked.

But, the spokesman said, the act could immediately be reproclaimed should there be any new telling orders-in-council.

In developments Thursday, Mr. Trudeau said air passengers in Canada and their luggage are being searched by authorities before boarding planes.

However, an Air Canada spokesman said this was not being done on Air Canada planes. A transport department spokesman said the department is conferring with the RCMP about possible security measures.

Immigration Minister Otto Lang said immigration laws are being reviewed. He was replying to a Commons question about alleged admission to Canada of suspected terrorist revolutionaries.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked for protection of both trains and planes against terrorists.

Mr. Trudeau cancelled plans to go on a 10-day tour of Russia, which was to have started Monday, and to address a Liberal fund-raising dinner in Montreal Sunday.

He expressed hope the visit to Russia could take place at a future date.

A Quebec City dinner planned for Friday night by the Food and Agriculture Organization, an agency of the United Nations, was also cancelled. Mr. Trudeau had been invited to speak at the dinner.

Mr. Trudeau earlier cancelled plans to attend the 25th-anniversary celebrations of the UN in New York.

Hard News Asked Not Commentary

OTTAWA (CP) — George Davidson, president of the CBC, said Thursday he has told news departments of the French and English networks to reduce the amount of commentary devoted to the FLQ kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Davidson said in an interview that certain parts of programs already planned would not be used, and that other programs must be cancelled.

He said the news media, including the CBC, have "given far too much attention, particularly in the area of speculation," to the kidnappings.

The CBC news departments have been ordered to introduce more real, hard news" in place of commentary programs.

He said a "greater sense of accuracy in news and a greater discipline" were required.

News coverage of the kidnappings, especially commentary, had "gone farther than it is in the public interest that it should go," the CBC president said.

There had been "instances of inaccuracies" in CBC coverage as well as in other reporting and "all sorts of wild rumors and speculation."

"When you're playing with men's lives it's necessary to be somewhat more serious," he said.

He said CBC executives had consulted government officials and cabinet ministers almost daily since the start of the kidnap crisis, but the "decision we took was on our own responsibility."

Decisions on just what will be covered by the CBC will remain with the heads of the news departments of the French and English networks, he said but they have been told to exercise "more restraint as well as a measure of proportion" in broadcasting reports and comments on the kidnappings.

Recreation Staff To Conference

Three staff members of the Belleville Recreation department will attend the Ontario Municipal Recreation Association zone conference to be held at Campbellford on October 24.

Attending the conference will be recreation director Lorne S. Williams, Mrs. Wilma Summers and Clifford Belch.

Purpose of the conference is to assist recreation committee members in becoming aware of their roles and to inform them of the resources available in the assistance and promotion of leisure time activities.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be David L. Smith, co-ordinator of community studies programs for the Hastings County Board of Education.

Kidnapped Pair in Background As Events Move Quickly

$500,000 in gold, cessation of the current police search, exposure of an FLQ informer, and re-employment of more than 400 mail-truck drivers now jobless because of a shift this year in a postal contract.

"1. It (the government) does not accept the total release of the prisoners named by the FLQ. However, it commits itself to the conditional release of five of those prisoners who have consented to such liberation. It has already taken steps in this direction.

"2. The involved authorities are disposed to ensure safe passage to members of FLQ cells which have participated in the kidnappings . . .

The government suggested either the International Red Cross or the Cuban consulate in Montreal as intermediaries.

There was no immediate response from either of these two agencies.

The government said a plane would be available to take the kidnappers to the country of their choice.

The government did not name the five men for whom parole would be recommended, nor did Mr. Lemieux in a subsequent statement.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Sharp said Premier Bourassa had conferred with Prime Minister Trudeau before making the offer. He said Mr. Bourassa was speaking for both provincial and federal governments.

The external affairs minister said he understood Premier Bourassa was asking for the release of the five prisoners through the National Parole Board.

The government in Quebec said Mr. Lemieux had been informed of the contents of its statement.

Within an hour of the statement, Mr. Lemieux pitched into the government at a news conference in his downtown Montreal hotel.

"I urge the government to meet, not in the next few hours, but in minutes, and reconsider," he shouted.

"In offering to free five Quebec guys who should have been paroled a long time ago anyway, and whose parolees are coming up soon, the government is simply mocking the people of Quebec," he said.

Three hours before the government statement was issued, Mr. Lemieux told a news conference he had unsubstantiated information that police had tracked down one of the terrorist cells.

This was the Chenier cell which claims the kidnaping of Mr. Laporte.

He said his informant told him that when police learned the location of the Liberation cell, which kidnapped Mr. Cross, they would pounce on both and free the hostages.

Mr. Lemieux said his informant was a businessman who quoted a Quebec cabinet minister.

The lawyer said he could not immediately verify the information but he considered it to be "very, very serious."

He said he had told Robert Demers, his opposite number acting for the government in secret talks of the information.

Mr. Demers had conveyed it to Premier Bourassa whose reply was quoted as: It is a "police matter."

In Canada's capital there were kidnap-related developments Thursday.

CBC president George Davidson told news departments of the French and English networks to reduce the amount of commentary devoted to the FLQ kidnappings. CBC news departments were ordered to introduce more real "hard news" in place of commentary programs.

The prime minister said air passengers in Canada and their luggage were being searched by authorities before they board planes.

However, an Air Canada spokesman said this was not being done on his airline.

The Science Council of Canada cancelled a Friday-through-Sunday meeting at St. Jovite in the Laurentian Mountains north of here at request of federal security authorities.

This was in the face of an FLQ threat to kidnap more prominent men.

In Toronto, Ontario Provincial Police checked an anonymous call that a bus carrying FLQ members was travelling on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway between the Quebec border and the Detroit River. Nothing came of the report.

In Vancouver, it was disclosed that Premier W. A. C. Bennett had an RCMP bodyguard.

Mayor Tom Campbell, who got a belly-laugh out of it, then discovered that police were guarding his own office and home after an anonymous kidnap threat.

In Washington, the Justice department warned congressmen and senators they may become targets for abduction. The FBI had received reports some U.S. terrorist groups may try to kidnap foreign diplomats or campaigning politicians.

In London, The Times said abductions such as those in Quebec and Latin America are bound to raise the question whether kidnapping should be added to the list of universal crimes.

Also the BBC reported that the FLQ may want to negotiate with the British government for be release of Mr. Cross.

The annual autumn pollution party.

Sad but true.

Our pleasant custom of burning leaves is a meaningful cause of air pollution.

Just how bad is it? The answer may surprise you. One pound of leaves burned in the open throws up 60 times the pollutants released by burning a pound of coal in a furnace. Pound for pound, six hundred times more of these damaging pollutants: hydrocarbons, aldehydes, organic acids.

Taken all by itself, the open burning of leaves would not be much of a problem. But when it's piled onto all the industrial smokes, plus the gasoline and diesel exhausts, you've got a serious contribution.

Air pollution is a big, complicated problem. Maybe you've wanted to help, but so far could only feel helpless and angry.

Now there's something you can do. Don't burn your leaves.

What do you do with them? Pile them in a heap and mulch them. Failing that, pack them up for the garbage collectors. If they refuse to pick them up, take them to the dump yourself. If that's against your local by-law, get together with a few others who want to help and go see your council. Let them know how you feel.

If this seems like a lot of trouble over a few innocent leaves, remember this: you and your children and your neighbours and their children, all of us, we've been given exactly one pair of lungs.

You want to help, don't you?

MR. AND MRS. RONALD JONES

Jones – Storr

Doris Elaine Storr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Storr of Marysville became the bride of Ronald Arthur Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones of Belleville on Oct. 3 at 1 p.m. at a ceremony held in Melrose United Church. Rev. William Heudry conducted the ceremony while Miss Patsy Pascoe at the organ and Newton De Mille, soloist provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an empire style gown of Italian faille taffeta, trimmed with chantilly lace and featuring a sweeping chapel train. A scalloped, lace trimmed multi-tiered veil fell from the flowered headpiece to the waist. Her bouquet consisted of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Harold McMechan, the bride's sister who was the matron of honor wore an empire style green faille over polyester chiffon over taffeta. The neckline was scooped in front and dipped to a V at the back. A set-in panel was gathered to the back neckline and a self-covered bow accentuated the waist. The short sleeves were trimmed with appliqued daisies in turquoise and yellow with dark green leaves. She carried a bouquet of pink and blue flowers.

Mrs. Chris James, the bridegroom's sister and Miss Nancy English as bridesmaids were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in pink. The appliqued daisies on their sleeves were pink and yellow with dark green leaves. Both carried bouquets of pink and blue flowers.

The best man was Keith Taylor and the ushers were Harold McMechan the bride's brother - in - law and Chris James, the bridegroom's brother - in - law.

For the reception held at the church hall, the bride's mother wore a royal blue coat and dress ensemble of imported crunchkoll with matching accessories and corsage of baby pink roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a light grey coat and dress ensemble of crimplene with matching accessories and a corsage of baby pink roses.

RYLSTONE W.I.

Mrs. Paul McKeown gave a talk on dentistry and also gave an account of her job as dental hygiene teacher in the Northumberland County Public schools during the fall. 7 meeting of the Rylstone W.I. held in the W.I. hall. She stressed the fact that dentists are now giving much more importance to the prevention of dental troubles than to their cure. This is done in connection with the health unit which has its headquarters in Cobourg.

Hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Eldon Anderson and Mrs. Jack Watson. Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson, president conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Ernest Irwin, secretary - treasurer read a letter from the Campbellford Hospital thanking the institute aid for their fall bazaar.

Mrs. Charles Stewart was chosen to be delegate to the area convention to be held at Club Canara, Belleville on Oct. 28 and Mrs. Lindsay Anderson and Mrs. Jack Watson volunteered to be the refreshment committee for the November card parties on Nov. 7 and 21. Mrs. Ernest Irwin offered to arrange for prizes for all the parties. Mrs. Carl Reid and Mrs. Ernest Irwin will be in charge of refreshments for the December party. There will be only one party in December because of concerts and other entertainments during the holiday season. W.I. members will do the catering for the community sale to be held on Dec. 14.

An invitation has been received to attend the 60th anniversary celebrations of Marmora W.I. to be held in the Marmora education rooms of Marmora United Church on Oct. 20 at 10 a.m. Mrs. Paul McKeown and Mrs. Austin Dunk who attended the leaders' course in Stirling on dessetts will demonstrate what they learnt. Each one who attends is expected to bring one dish for the first course and the dessert will be made at the demonstration.

The draw for the bouquet of fall flowers donated by Mrs. Lindsay Anderson was won by Mrs. Ellis Jones.

Cash donations collected in a "travelling apron" totalled $300. The apron itself was won by Mrs. Donald Kerr and verses accompanying the cash donations were drawn. Mrs. Stanley Kerr being the writer of the lucky verse. Mrs. Mathew Machree gave a piano solo. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Lack of Hormones Slowed Her Growth

EDMONTON (CP) — Three-year-old Donna Lussier is growing.

That's good news, because at one time it was not known whether she was a constitutional dwarf or just deficient in growth-hormone secretion.

When Donna was 13 months old, doctors discovered her bone age was compatible with that of a newly-born infant.

Donna is one of the youngest children in a national growth-hormone study sponsored by the Medical Research Council of Canada. The council hopes to determine the cause and treatment of hormone deficiency which retards the bone growth of children.

"Our goal is to achieve normal height, but the study is still too new and so much is still unknown about the growth hormone to be able fully to assess possible results of the study," said Dr. Peter Crockford, assistant associate professor of medicine at the University (of Alberta) Hospital's division of endocrinology.

Examination of Donna when she was 13 months old revealed that she also was thyroid-deficient and in all likelihood would never be taller than four feet. To determine whether she was deficient in growth-hormone secretion or was a constitutional dwarf, doctors stimulated the growth hormones by lowering her blood sugar with insulin or by administering amino acid. The test showed Donna was deficient in body thyroid and growth hormone.

Further tests revealed that the hormone deficiency was not secondary to the thyroid deficiency, but they were separate entities and had to be treated individually.

The growth hormone is released from the pituitary gland which sits at the base of the brain and is referred to as the "leader of the endocrine orchestra." It is responsible for the release of at least six hormones, one of which is the growth hormone.

"The growth hormone also influences many of the body tissues," said Dr. Crockford. "It builds protein, breaks down fat and antagonizes insulin action on carbohydrate. Without it there is no breakdown of fats so a growth-hormone deficiency is likely to produce mild obesity."

The cause of lack of growth hormones is not known, but it can be due to chronic illness, severe emotional problems or an abnormal growth hormone. Or there could be a normal hormone release, but for some unknown reason the target, the bone, doesn't respond.

Donna, like others in the tests, goes on six-month treatments, then off for six months. While on, she receives hormone injections from her doctor three times a week.

"These hormones are scarce and hard to come by because they are derived from human source," said Dr. Crockford.

However, studies on animal hormones are in progress, with the hope the active central core of non-human hormone might be extracted and found effective in man. There also are experiments to synthesize human hormones.

"She may have grown a half-inch of that amount (two inches) on her own, but the rest would be due to the treatment," Dr. Crockford said.

Women Enjoy Fondue Cook-in at YMCA

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

A variety of sauces bubbling in fondue pots, tempting tidbits of turkey, beef and fruit arranged attractively in trays and a large group of enthusiastic women obviously enjoying themselves at the YMCA auditorium on Wednesday afternoon showed any visitor that the Ladies' Afternoon Out program was in full swing.

Under the guidance of Dorothy Batcheller, Director of Home Economics, Poultry Products Institute of Canada the topic for the day was 'fun with fondues'. Some of the fondues tried during the afternoon were bourgignon (beef), turkey with heated oil and turkey chinois, cooked in broth. Recipes for the last two were created by Dorothy Batcheller.

Mrs. Irene Harris is in charge of the Ladies' Afternoon Out program which consists of four sessions. The first one led by Mrs. Lou Halpin was on decorating with flowers and will be conducted by Susan Maikawa from Japan. The final one will be on wigs.

Miss Maureen Kelly, Women and Girls' program secretary said this program is open to the general public as well as to members of the Y.

Princess Joins Hemline Battle

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret has joined the great hemline argument on how much leg a woman should show. She put on a midiskirt —and clothes watchers promptly deplored the royal fashion breakthrough as "a disaster."

The 36 year old princess looked like "a little plump dumpy" in the new clothes, said columnist Jean Rook.

The Sun said: "Being fashionable is one thing. Looking ridiculous is another."

Margaret wore the midi on a visit to a school for blind children.

On the princess' five-foot one-inch well-padded frame, the midi suit that drew the fashion boos looked something less than svelte.

With a sombrero-type hat, boots, a primly-cut and shapeless jacket and a dark-colored skirt eight inches below the knee, the effect resembles an unsanforized Mary Poppins, or a frontier schoolteacher circa 1875.

Margaret's cousin, the Duchess of Kent—a slender 37-year-old blonde with the delicate grace of a fashion model—made her midi debut shortly after Margaret and the critics' jeers turned to cheers.

The duchess' knee-length white costume, said The Sun, proved that "the slim skin can make some look like a million and the others a disaster."

"Lipstick and Nail Polish the Basic Cosmetics"

The very first experience a woman has with cosmetics is the use of a little lipstick and perhaps some nail polish. But, even when the cosmetic wardrobe grows larger, these two items still remain the basics. As she becomes more sophisticated with the use of make-up several shades of lipstick and matching polishes are added to complement a particular dress, time of day or season of the year.

With so many colors, textures, sizes, applicators, advertising claims and other features to decide on, as well as keeping up with current vogues, the advice of a beauty consultant is naturally important to you when making lipstick, nail polish or for that matter any cosmetic purchase. This expert advice is always available to you at "Beauty Boutique."

For at Geen's 'Beauty Boutique" we cater to the beauty conscious woman who wishes to always be at her very best — using carefully chosen perfumes, make-up, treatment and other cosmetic products.

Former School Teacher Regrets Perfection

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I cried when I read the letter from the grandma who said her daughter-in-law (former school teacher) restricts all her grandson's letters so they would be perfect — no mistakes.

Something similar happened in my life and I will never forgive myself for being such a perfectionist. I insisted on filling out our son's report book because my husband wasn't up to par about spelling or grammar. When the boy was four months old his daddy died. Now that I wish I hadn't been so particular. I am heart-broken that I did not let his daddy write things ANN LANDERS down, in his own way — misspelled words, cherry phrases and all. The book would have been a treasure. — SMART TOO LATE IN ELIZABETHTOWN.

* * *

DEAR TOO LATE: Here's your letter, in the hope that it will open the eyes of others for whom it is not too late.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We recently returned from visiting our son, his wife and their three children. There is serious trouble in that family and I don't know what to do about it. Can you help?

The youngest child is deaf. Because of her handicap the older children must cater to her and wait on her hand and foot. They get blamed for everything.

Of course, the handicapped child is spoiled rotten, grossly overweight, thoroughly obnoxious. Her behavior defies description. She has no friends. It doesn't get her own way in everything she has a temper tantrum.

The mother has a guilt complex because the child's deafness is a congenital condition caused by an illness contracted during her pregnancy. When the deaf child's father converts her, the mother jumps all over him. He has learned to keep quiet in order to keep peace in the family.

Don't suggest a clergyman. They don't believe in religion. And don't suggest a doctor because they don't believe in doctors either. What's the answer? — SAD GRANDMA.

* * *

DEAR GRANDMA: Do they believe in mental hospitals? They will eventually, because that's where this child might end up unless someone steps in and does something. The child's future depends on what has to be taken to a school that evaluates handicapped children. The County or State Medical Society can direct him. The person who does the evaluation will recognize the problem and the father will then have an ally.

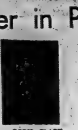
Handicapped children should be treated as if they were normal in every instance where it is possible to do so. The worst thing a parent can do is to allow a handicapped child to use his defect to take advantage of others.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I feel foolish asking you for advice because I'm old enough to be your mother, but I do need help. It's the man next door. He is 76 and frisky as a young buck. I used to let him come over and help me with the chores but when he got fresh last winter I told him not to come over anymore. But, Ann, he comes anyway and he's getting on my nerves.

Yesterday I was gardening and he sneaked up behind me and kissed me on the back of the neck. I told him to leave or I'd telephone his wife. He said, "She wouldn't believe you. I haven't kissed her in 15 years."

What can I do about this crazy old fool? — OLIVIA.



* * *

DEAR LIVVY: I thought it was all sort of cute until you mentioned his wife. Now I think he's a dirty old man. I also think you enjoy the attention. If you really want to get rid of him, go in the house and lock the door behind you.

Successful Living

No Excuse for Losing Your Temper in Public

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband's brother and sister have had nothing to do with me for 10 years, although I have never stopped my family from visiting them.

At a recent dance they came over to our table uninvited and monopolized our guests' time so that I was left sitting twiddling my thumbs. I finally blew my top and asked my son to dance with me so I might just punch my sister - in - law in the face. Of course the family felt I was out of place and I was hustled home, and our son and guests (my son's parents - in - law) came with us.

I felt I was made a fool of in front of my guests and that my in-laws were cheaply out of place in coming over to stand at our table.

— Conscious Of Pleasure.

Dear Commont: That's the trouble with family rows, or "not speaking." They pile up into the darnedest situations. I don't suppose you really think that throwing yourself at a lady in the face is exactly lady - like?

They know really know whether they stood at your table to spite you or because you didn't want to be where they were.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a widow and I have two sons who are married and living away from home. My daughter - in - law seems to resent my calling my youngest (her husband) "sweetheart" and kissing and hugging him when he arrives and leaves.

What should I do? — Forlorn.

* * *

Dear Forlorn: Gently and graciously grant her the sole privilege of calling him sweetheart. You call him Joe, or Joe dear, or Sonny Boy.

Kiss him if you like. Show your devotion in kind deeds, and in making a good friend of his wife. She'll grow kinder and more mellow. Right now she is struggling with the problem of feeling secure and wifely and possessive.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have a very dry skin except my nose is oily. Before applying make-up I use a foundation cream. The make-up on my nose appears cakey; and my cheeks and chin look shiny.

How can I get rid of this cakey and shiny appearance? Also I have a few blackheads on my nose. Any tips as to getting rid of them? — Make-Up.

Dear Make-Up: Far be it from me to diagnose at long distance, but did you know that acne often appears on forehead, nose and chin, and not on cheeks? That oily panel down the midline suggests an acne set-up — especially with those blackheads.

The cake-y effect on your nose sounds like powder caking up over an oily base, on an oily surface.

Part of the treatment is to use nothing but soap on forehead, nose and chin, although you may use a cleansing cream on those dry cheek There are special soaps and cleansers to help clear away the blackheads and unplug those oily pores.

I'm sending you my 10 cent leaflet "Acne — What To Do About It?" which goes into all of this.

* * *

(When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a six - cent - stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Shuswap Salmon Crepes Are Elegant, Economical

By MARY MOORE

Over the air I heard that salmon were coming from the sea in great numbers this summer and fall. I examined the grocery shelves and this was confirmed by the lowered prices of canned salmon.

So that all of you cooks and hostesses could take advantage of the low price of this precious Canadian fish I have made Shuswap Salmon Crepes.

(Hopefully when this is printed I will be in Calgary to go on a trip to the Shuswap Lake area to observe firsthand the return of the spawning salmon after their hazardous journey of hundreds of miles from the Pacific back to their birthplace. I will tell you more about this miracle of nature later.)

This recipe is based on a beauty I gave you in 1966 called Bengaline Crabmeat Crepes served at Trader Vic's and graciously given to me.

SHUSWAP SALMON CREPES (elegant and economical — serves 4)

CREPES:
2 med. eggs
½ cup all-purpose flour
⅓ tsp. salt
1 cup milk
Butter (see below)

SALMON FILLING:
2½ tbsps. butter or margarine
4½ tbsps. flour
¼ tsp. salt
1¼ cups hot milk
One ½-lb. can red salmon
½ tsp. minced onion
½ tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. MSG
½ tsp. soy or Worcestershire sauce
½ cup Canadian cooking Sauterne or Rose wine

TOPPING:
¼ cup (reserved) white sauce
¼ cup mayonnaise

Make crepes first by beating cream ingredients together until smooth. Make one at a time in heavy 6" diameter frying pan, in which you have melted ½ tsp. butter to coat bottom, pouring in scant ¼ cup batter for each crepe and cooking until dry on top and golden on bottom. With lifter transfer to large plate, flat out. Continue until all batter is cooked into crepes. Then add Make White Sauce by blending 3½ tbsps. butter with 4½ tbsps. flour (see under filling) and salt then stirring in milk until thick. Reserve ¼ cup white sauce.

Into pan tip flaked salmon — bones, liquid and all — and add onion, curry powder, MSG, soy or Worcestershire sauce and stir together over low heat for a minute or two, then add 1 cup white sauce and wine and stir to heat through. Cook. NOTE: All above may be made in advance on day the crepes are to be served.

To assemble Crepes, lay one flat on a plate, across centre spread ¼ cup salmon filling and roll up and place cross-wise on large long shallow au gratin dish. Repeat until all crepes are filled and rolled. Do not crowd them. Mix together reserved ¼ cup white sauce and mayonnaise and spread some over each. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 5-7 min. or until heated through and bubbling and golden on top. Serve two to each guest. A superb combination of flavors.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Becky, you're a bad, bad girl to write in Daddy's book. I ought to spank you."

Mother: "You sit here at the table while you write and draw on the paper. The pencils and crayons stay here when you're through."

It takes a while for a toddler to learn what is permitted and what is not. Some damage of household objects can be prevented by a little foresight and a few definite rules about pencils and crayons.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

WALLBRIDGE WI

"The generation gap or what's delinquents" was the topic chosen by Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey, president of Hastings West District WI who was the guest speaker at the October meeting of the Wallbridge WI, Mrs. Jeffrey expressed the opinion that since women's institutes were formed for the welfare of children members should be vitally interested in the effect of drugs on the lives of families. She felt that perhaps parents should examine their own attitudes and aim for mutual respect and co-operation between the generations. She said that to bridge the generation gap parents must give love, and provide discipline and independence in their children.

Mrs. Jeffrey who was introduced by Mrs., Everett Phillips, president was presented with a gift by Mrs. Don Sherey.

An article on the effects of various drugs was read by Mrs. Walter Johnstone. There was also a humorous reading by Mrs. Harry Fisher.

Members were invited to attend the pollution seminar at Loyalist College and also to tour Parliament Hours, Belleville. Mrs. Walter Johnson was appointed delegate to the area convention which will be held at Club Canara on Oct. 23 and 24.

A social evening was planned for the November meeting, which will be held in the Wallbridge Orange Hall. The committee consisting of Mrs. Clapp, Mrs. E. Evans and Mrs. D. Sherey will notify members of the arrangements.

The winner of the draw was Mrs. Cecil Sze.

Historical Society Supports Faulkner House as Museum

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings county historical society last night decided to ask the City of Belleville and the county to buy and maintain the Faulkner house at 257 Bridge St. East as a museum.

Annual cost to each of the two municipalities would be $8,500 for operating expenses. The Historical Society suggested that the purchase and renovation of the house be financed with funds from the A. Saleman bequest to the city.

The money, now held in trust for the city, is invested in securities worth about $78,-183, and was left to the city by a former member of the Dodder family for establishment of quarters to house memorabilia of Victorians.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey, president of the society, revealed last night that the house has been designated as a historic site by the Historic Sites and Monument Board of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

This entitles any organization that buys the house for museum use to apply for federal grants to cover one-half the purchase price.

Mrs. George (Phillips) Faulkner, owner of the house, has agreed to sell it for $45,000, together with some chattels.

With the federal government paying half the purchase price, the cost to the city and county would be $22,500, to be paid out of the Saleman bequest money.

A further $18,000 would be required the first year from the same source for establishment of the museum in the house. This covers such items as moving of the museum collections from the new location; refurbishing of furniture and paintings in the Coakley collection; estimated at $2,000 annually; equipments, landscaping, signs and exterior lighting and purchase of showcases at a cost of $5,000 annually for five years.

Operating expenses were estimated at $23,920 annually. Expected revenue from museum operations in the present building on Church St. is about $6,-130. This sum is made up of provincial / a d municipal grants, admissions, membership, and $1,200 paid annually by the public and separate school boards.

Mrs. Jeffrey and her executive asked the city and county to assume the remaining annual operating expenses of about $17,800 on a shared basis. Among the estimated expenses are salaries — $9,000 for a professional curator, $3,-600 for an assistant and $1,800 for a bi-lingual secretary, preferably a retired couple who would occupy an apartment in the house.

In presenting the case for purchase of the house, Mrs. Jeffrey noted that the present museum premises, the former county registry office on Church Street would probably have to be vacated within two years.

She termed the Faulkner house, built in 1883 by an ancestor of the present owner, "an example of one of the best periods of Canadian house design, a handsome testament to the high period of Victoriana".

The society president said the house is suited for a variety of museum functions. The first floor could be renovated to house the Coakley collection, willed to the city, and the Paul lamp collection, also city property.

The second floor could house the museum archives, and library. The basement could accommodate pioneer displays and workshops. Part of the designated basement and the attic could be used for storage.

"The house would become a major tourist attraction, a shrine for lovers of Victoriana," she said. "What a fine place to entertain Prime Minister Trudeau if he comes to the city." she told Mayor J. Russell Scott, one of about 50 people who attended the meeting at Corby Library.

Thirty-five of the society members present voted in favor of asking city and county to acquire the house and develop it as a museum. Seven members voted against the motion. The society has a membership of 170 this year.

S J

Among those objecting were Rosa Irwin, present acting curator of the museum and Mrs. W. Sargent, Tyendinaga, curator for 1961, when the museum was established, until 1971.

Mrs. Sargent said she doubted if a permanent display in a rented house would prove to be the attraction the society expected it to be. Visitors are local people, regular museum goers.

"There is a lot of showmanship in operating a museum," she said. "Displays have to be changed and rotated to draw crowds. Does anyone here know what is now in the museum?"

Mr. Irwin said the members ought to be told that Peter Styrmo, provincial museums' director, is not in favor of purchase of the house, or use of any house for museum purposes.

On a visit to the house, Mr. Irwin said, the provincial expert has repeated his conviction that a fireproof windowless warehouse type building with moveable partitions would best suited for a museum.

Mayor Scott noted that a joint city-county committee has investigated the cost of erecting such a building as Fry park on the Moira River, using the Saleman money. The cost was estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000. The plans were provided by Mr. Styrmo and were designed for cheap easy operation and maintenance. He suggested that the society review the plans.

Warden John Wilkes of Hastings county told the group he was "delighted with the house", but "expected difficulty in selling the county on a site in the heart of residential Belleville".

Former museum director and historical society president Mrs. Harold Burns summed up the arguments for and against the house.

It is not a flexible for museum use as the type of building advocated by Mr. Styrmo, could not be fireproofed and presented traffic pattern problems, he noted.

"The Coakley collection would not furnish the ground floor of the house — it contains only a few large pieces and chairs and paintings of variable artistic merit," he said. "Most of the collection consists of plates and silverware, small pieces which require housing in rooms.

The building is remote from the people of the county."

But, he added in view of the considerable cost of the present museum building, he leaned in favor of proceeding with purchase of the Faulkner house.

He made two suggestions to the executive for its consideration. In place of a carriage house-type addition to the house to hold the pioneer artifacts in the museum, a log house project outlined by Mrs. Jeffrey, be advocated putting the early Canadians in a rural setting at O'Hara's Mill.

"Its archives are the most valuable part of the museum," he said. "Books and documents should be available to the public for a longer period each day than the museum would be open and they should be housed in a fireproof structure, not a house."

Mr. Boyce a former history teacher and author of the county's centennial history, urged the society to promote the house of a small structure at the rear of the present Corby Library on Pinnacle St. to house the archives.

The society's option on the Faulkner house taken in July with a deposit of $200, expires Oct. 17. The members directed society executives to renew the option for a further three - month period for an additional sum of $200 to be applied to the purchase price.

Bayside Location Hit by Planner

The new Bayside Secondary School did not escape unscathed in a battery of charges levied last night by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board chairman Zdenek Kvarda.

The new large school in Sidney Township is under construction with no prior discussions with this board and is not related to any established plan," he charged.

Qualifying this statement, he indicated that there are no municipal services available for the new school. Recent reports indicate that the water intake and sewage disposal facilities are being provided at the expense of the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Kvarda explained that establishment of this school will encourage "poor development surrounding this site."

He drew a mental picture of hordes of youngsters on foot, on bicycles, in buses or cars converging on the site with regular traffic dodging in and out on the four-lane highway yet to be constructed.

It was evident that the board and the township could assert no control over housing of the new school as the board of education was complying with subdivision control rulings which demand adequate water and sewer facilities.

A Bit of Victoriana

The Faulkner house on Bridge Street East was opened last night to Hastings County Historical Society members as a preliminary to their consideration of the building as a museum. Among those admiring the Victorian decor were society president Ald. Robin Jeffrey, county Warden John Wilkes and Phillipa Faulkner, owner of the house. The society later asked the city and county to acquire and develop the house as a museum.

CPR Phasing Out Trenton Layovers

TRENTON (Staff) — The crews of Canadian Pacific freight trains will not be changing here in the future, a CP spokesman said yesterday.

"Instead of stopping in Trenton, trains will go straight through from Agincourt to Smiths Falls," the source explained, adding that from six to eight trains a day will be affected by the policy change.

Trenton is midway point for the 250-mile run on the Kingston and Smiths Falls switched here for many years. Crews are also changed during the Trenton stops and mechanical checks and services took place at the same time.

Dormitory facilities for crew will be shut down as the yards here but more will be installed at Smiths Falls.

October 25 is the tentative date for terminating the Trenton stops. From that date, the familiar freights will pass by the yards here.

Some of the yard staff at Trenton will no longer be needed. Anticipating the decision three Trenton employees have already gone to western Canada as trainmen" the railway spokesman said.

CP rail will not fire the men no longer needed at the yards; they will all be offered positions elsewhere, particularly in the west where crews are needed to man coal trains from the British Columbia interior to Vancouver.

Three diesel locomotives were based at the Trenton yards, each with a five man crew. It is anticipated that one of these engines will remain with a crew.

Additionally, the spokesman said "we will still have an agent, mechanical service and yard staff a couple of others at Trenton as well as office staff".

Montrose Avenue Area Is Planner's Target

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Montrose Avenue, an area in Sidney Township, is "mushrooming in line with predictions of detrimental effects of uncontrolled, low-density range planning disclosed in a report of Aug. 22, 1968."

This statement came from Zdenek Kvarda, chairman of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night in a series of charges and statements against a tied - handed policy for planning board experiences.

"The Ontario Government originally also stated this development was undesirable," and then "did nothing, but has allowed it to go on and to grow."

In the wake of-these charges Mr. Kvarda outlined the history of the area of development in a brief rundown.

— It was on Sept. 12, 1966 that plans were first suggested for a development in the Montrose Road area.

— The Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs turned down the subdivision plans in 1968.

— In June of that same year, the restrictive order of Nov, 1965 was lifted and developing started.

— In planning board minutes of Aug. 22, 1968, a directors' report brought to the public's attention the "detrimental effects" if the area was fully developed.

At this time, development is over the CPR line and "shows signs of mushrooming in line with predictions."

He continued, charging that there are no services; no plans for schools or parks, a dangerous rail crossing, poor road of streets; and possible pollution of septic tanks."

Also included was the indication of traffic problems caused by "traffic being diverted from one street onto a 4 - lane highway.

"This board viewed this development as poor and undesirable; the Ontario Government also stated this development was undesirable.

Sidney Township Reeve Jack Bush defended the township's position bringing the board the explanation that the "councils have no control over the committees of adjustment other than making suggestions which they don't have to heed."

The committees of adjustment, authorized by the minister of municipal affairs and appointed by a municipal council, established to relieve council of amending bylaws for minor variances, and on the division of land in the area of subdivision control, and rule on the extension of non-conforming users.

Mr. Kvarda noted one incident where a township resident Stanley Brown, applied for a subdivision west of the Montrose development going through proper channels. He was turned down by the planning board, Sidney council and the Ontario government.

A new owner applied for a granted in October of this year with construction commencing soon after.

"This is a case where a change of 6wners allows what couldn't happen before to happen now" nearby another home is complete and four more are underway.

Despite all objections this (construction) goes on."

The government position, outlined in a letter received from the government suggested that urban development remain restricted to urban centres, "where the necessary services and amenities can be provided presently or in the near future."

Mr. Kvarda explained the position of planning control in simple terms occasionally quoting from certain planning acts.

"Planning is supposed to safeguard the health, safety, convenience and welfare of the citizens of today and the future inhabitants. I don't think it's supposed to safeguard the investments of developers . . . they wouldn't and don't share their economic profits with us in the future."

Mrs. M. Orr a board director vehemently agreed with Mr. Kvarda's assertations joining in his statement by commenting that "when it comes to a developer, they know how to get around the rules . . . we only seem able to deal with the small developers, not the large ones."

"It's obvious that rules can be broken if you know the right people."

Planner Terms Planning Plan As 'Premature'

Zdenek Kvarda last night termed the formation of the new Quinte Planning Area Board "premature" to serve it as "premature".

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board chairman added to this statement with a query as to "why the Ontario government wants us (the planning board) to plan for Ontario's future" given the undesirable conditions taking place — conditions they themselves supposedly compose.

He drew to the board's attention the Ontario government's "desire" objections of this board and recognition from the Township as bad planning." In the situation such as that in Sidney Township, Byrd subdivision is allowed.

"It seems we don't have the (the power) authority to act.

He indicated that certain developers go through proper channels and abide by the decisions of the board. "At times we seek delays and hope people will become tired in order to achieve proper planning.

"Others ignore good planning and proceed according to their plans, and it turn are ignored by the Ontario government," he asserted, referring to the case of Mrs. D. Lamb, senior planner, subdivisions section for the Department of Municipal Affairs which stated:

"In the absence of an Official Plan it is the basic policy and it has been stated to discourage isolated urban residential development in rural areas, ban from residential growth should occur within existing urban centres where the necessary services and amenities or in the near future."

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough said Wednesday that "a major aim of the government of Ontario is an improved system of community planning that will be responsible clearly in the hands of the elected representatives."

The Act is a fraud upon the citizens and upon this board and its members, in have the Ontario Government encouraged us to spend our money on planning and to spend it the time and energy of the members of this board only to turn around and ignore the contributions of this board," said Mr. Kvarda.

"The Ontario, Government has policies regarding planning to which this board adheres. It would appear that the Ontario Government ignores its own policies.

"If this is the case then we will be wasting larger sums of money and larger amounts of time and energy when we go into the Quinte Planning area," he concluded.

Town Deputation Calls on OMB

TRENTON (Staff) — A deputation from the town went to Toronto yesterday to discuss the post office development scheme with J. J. Kennedy, chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board.

The afternoon meeting with Mr. Kennedy followed a resolution passed by council October 5 that OMB approval be sought for the project under the Ontario Condominium Act.

There has been some doubt as to whether senior governments will approve of municipal offices being part of a condominium shared with business firms.

Members of the Trenton delegation were the mayor, councillors Bob Patrick and Ken Fraser and town clerk, O. W. Larry.

Purpose of the Dundas St. Mall development scheme is to provide new quarters for the town's offices and spearhead urban renewal in the core area.

Trenton PUC to Lease Loyalist's Computer

TRENTON (Staff) — The Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized that a project with Loyalist College to be prepared as a process of fully filling the billing and clerical work of the commission.

Consideration has been given to the possibility of handling accounts by computer since 1968. This year's commission budget provides $10,-000 for computer service but no decision had been reached as to how this should be used.

Commissioners ruled out the possibility of acquiring a computer system for the Trenton offices, especially in view of the fact that the community college has computer time available, and has indicated a willingness to handle the PUC account.

The Loyalist computer will be able to process 600 bills in ten minutes and the system is considerably larger and more sophisticated than those considered by the commission before its own acquisition.

Council to Be Asked To Name New Rink

Belleville city council will be asked to decide on a name for the new $1,600,000 ice rise under construction on Harder Drive.

The recreation and Arena Committee at its regular meeting yesterday voted to recommend to council that this rink, following which the design of an identification sign will be erected.

In other business the committee agreed to leave the operation of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club. A spokesman for the club advised city members will be set up to assist in the planning and operation of the tennis club.

Col. Ross Allan, C.O. of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be contacted to see if the Belleville Armories could be made available for practice sessions by the Community Drum and Bugle Band. The band is sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club with the assistance of the Recreation - Arena Committee and the Hastings County Board of Education.

Recreation director Arnold Dever. Is purchased for use at the Memorial Arena. The canteen at the rink will be operated by the Recreation - Arena Committee on a concession basis and returned to a private individual.

Committee members voted to make the Memorial Arena available on Saturday, Feb. 24 for a meeting of club advisory members will be set up to assist in the planning and operation of the tennis club.

Committee members voted to make the Memorial Arena available on Saturday, Feb. 24 for a meeting of club advisories. If the new rink on Harder Ave. is completed at winter carnival time, some of the activities scheduled for the Memorial Arena would be transferred to the new building as part of an official opening ceremony.

No decision was taken on a request from Radio Station CJBQ to operate dances next year at the Memorial Arena. Members discussed the possibility of the recreation committee operating the dances next year and asked for a report from the arena manager who will first get an outline of the program proposed by the radio station.

Permission was granted to the sponsors of the new-closed Second Stage to run dances at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium to raise funds to offset previous expenses.

A joint meeting of the recreation committee with the city parks board will be arranged for discussion of three items of concern to both boards.

These are the Exhibition Park study recently completed by Miss Bertha Crone; the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board West Park Village study and the East Zwick's Island concept.

Batter Reds 9-3 in Finale

Baltimore Completes Series' Blitz

BALTIMORE (AP) — All the clouds have rolled by for Baltimore Orioles, bathing in a shower of champagne after they turned a rainy payday into a World Series bonanza.

The Orioles battered Cincinnati Reds 9-3 Thursday at rain-drenched Memorial Stadium to complete a five-game blitz of baseball's 67th summit battle, pocket winners' shares of $15,000-plus per player and rid themselves of the stigma of last year's series sweep at the hands of the upstart New York Mets.

"It's payday, and...had to come out to pick up our checks," Orioles Manager Earl Weaver said before the American League champions rode a 15-hit barrage and the left arm of Mike Cuellar to the series-clinching triumph over a power-laden but pitching-thin Cincinnati club.

Baltimore's fourth victory in five games closed out the best-of-seven series and gave the Orioles whopping bonuses in addition to their regular, twice-monthly pay envelopes. Moreover, it vindicated their claim to major league supremacy after a year of attrition.

"The money is a great reward but the personal satisfaction of being the best ball club means more," said Frank Robinson, who led the Orioles to their first series conquest five years ago against Los Angeles Dodgers and started their final charge Thursday with a two-run homer.

"This makes up for everything," said Brooks Robinson, whose clutch hitting and sensational defensive play earned him landslide acclaim as the most valuable payer in the series. "Nothing can replace winning [or the first time 1966, but there's more satisfaction bouncing back to do it again."

The Orioles, beaten in five games by the Mets last October, rebounded with 108 regular season wins—the last 11 in succession—then swept the American League pennant playoffs in three games and won three more from the Reds before Lee May's three-run eighth inning homer snapped the 17-game streak Wednesday.

That victory kept Cincinnati alive, but the Orioles applied the death blow Thursday as Cuellar shackled the Reds on seven hits.

"This year, we had a little added incentive," said Paul Blair...whose nine hits matched Brooks Robinson's record-tying total for a five-game series. "We worked harder to do small things go our way.

"The Mets did everything they had to do to win last year —just like we did in this Series. But I don't think we played up to our capability against them."

Cuellar, a 24-game winner during the season but an early knockout victim in the second Series game, was at his best Thursday after a shaky start. He yielded three runs on four hits in the first inning, then checked the Reds on two harmless singles the rest of the way.

Heavy morning rains preceded the Reds' opening salvo and a deluge of Baltimore hits followed it.

Frank Robinson, 6-for-9 in the first two games at Cincinnati last weekend, closed the gap in bottom of the first with his second homer of the Series.

The Orioles scored two runs in the second to take the lead and added two more in the third, another in the fifth on Merv Rettenmund's homer and a final pair in the eighth.

Blair and Dave Johnson led the assault against six Cincinnati pitchers with three hits apiece.

"We had deep respect for the Reds but I think we caught them short on pitching," said Brooks Robinson who received a new car as the series MVP following his 9-for-21, two-homer binge.

The Orioles banged out 50 hits in the five games. Their 10 home runs set a record for a five-game set.

"Baltimore just came out hungry and whipped us," Anderson said. "I think they went out to prove something this year, and they did. They had to live all year with the fact that the Mets beat them.

"I know how Earl must feel. He's on Cloud Nine. He had to eat crow last year. Now I'm eating crow."

"This is just a superb ball club, an outstanding ball club," Weaver said as his players revelled in a champagne-splashing, shaving cream-squirting victory party—and caravans of horn-tooting cars began clogging the downtown streets in a wild celebration of the Orioles' second world championship.

Orioles' Boog Powell starts his slide as Reds' catcher Johnny Bench takes throw from centre-fielder Bobby Tolan in third inning. Powell scored from second on Merv Rettenmund's single.

Birds Jubilant About Jamming Red Machine

BALTIMORE (AP) — "There's a lot of birdseed in that Big Red Machine now," yelled Boog Powell of Baltimore Orioles. "It's the Big Dead Machine now."

Cincinnati Reds, nick-named the Big Red Machine during its dash to the National League pennant, had just lost a 9-3 decision Thursday and dropped the World Series to the Orioles four games to one.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles said as the clubhouse celebrations got under way that he didn't want to think about Baltimore's loss to New York Mets in the 1969 Series. But the players had it on their minds.

"This makes up for everything," said Brooks Robinson, voted the most valuable player in the Series. "Nothing can replace winning for the first time (1966), but there's more satisfaction bouncing back to do it again."

"This is something we've been working for since we lost to the Mets," said Paul Blair. "Now we don't have to answer all those questions about what happened. Now maybe people will believe we're a good team."

"We were dedicated from spring training on to win again," said Frank Robinson. "Each guy said to himself, and some out loud, that we wanted another shot at the World Series."

Asked about the turning point in the Series, Blair said:

"Brooks Robinson was the turning point. He did the job in every game."

Robinson's fielding was spectacular in all but the fourth game — when he had only one chance — and he had key hits in all but the final game.

"We had deep respect for the Reds," he said. "But I think we caught them short on pitching. I just wanted to get the series over before somebody else did something and took it away."

Mike Cuellar stopped the Reds on two hits after yielding three runs on four hits in the opening inning, when Weaver came "within one batter" of taking him out.

"It was a typical Cuellar "shutout," said shortstop Mark Belanger, referring to Cuellar's usual difficulty in getting started.

"My best pitches were the fast ball and slider," said Cuellar, a 24-game winner who failed to last three innings in game No. 2.

Cincy Pitchers Ran Out of Gas

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Big Red Machine, its pitching part stripped by injuries, ran out of gas Thursday.

"You can't win with only two regular starting pitchers," Cincinnati right fielder Pete Rose said after the Reds lost the fifth game 9-3 and the World Series to Baltimore Orioles four games to one.

The Orioles bombed 18 pitchers for 33 runs and a record 10 homers in the five games.

"You don't need a lot of pitchers," Rose said. "The Orioles proved three Jim Palmer, Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar were enough. But we had only Tony Cloninger and Gary Nolan. Not enough."

Manager Sparky Anderson refused to criticize his pitching, choosing to praise the Baltimore sluggers.

"Sure we used 18 pitchers," Anderson said. "But I've got to do what the scoreboard shows. They just kept knocking us. Give Baltimore batters the credit."

Cincinnati starter Jim Merritt, the sore-armed, 26-game winner and the victim of Baltimore's first four runs in the first two innings, said he felt good.

"I was throwing free and easy and had no pain," Merritt said. "I was disappointed in my control."

"He wasn't as sharp as he has been," Anderson said. "That comes from not working."

Merritt's last start was in the second game of the National League playoffs 11 days ago.

Anderson replaced Merritt with Wayne Granger with two out in the second inning.

"We had to use Granger that early," Rose said. "That hasn't been our game plan all year."

Anderson also said:

"I can't blame the pitchers, the scouts, anybody. We just made too many mistakes. I have a hunch we'll be back here next year."

"In my heart, I feel we're still the best. But you should give all the credit to the winners," he said.

Brooks Didn't Drop A Thing, Not Even Victory Champagne!

BALTIMORE (AP) — The champagne party taking place in the Baltimore Orioles' dressing room was beginning to make its way toward Brooks Robinson's locker when Elrod Hendricks handed a bottle of the chilled bubbly to the World Series hero and delivered an admonition as we.

"This is for users, not abusers," said Hendricks as the Orioles spilled the stuff. "Don't drop it."

If Robinson had dropped the champagne, it would have been the biggest spill of the night. He dropped nothing throughout the five games against Cincinnati and seemed to thoroughly demoralize the Reds with his fielding gems.

But Robinson's bat did its share of damage, too. He had nine hits in 21 trips to the plate, a .428 pace that included two homers and six runs batted in and was a far cry from the 1-for-19 frustration he suffered in the 1969 series against New York Mets.

Robinson socked a game-winning homer in the opener, drove in the tying run as the Orioles came from behind to take No. 2, smacked a pair of doubles in the third game triumph and went 4-for-4 in the Orioles' only loss.

He had one hit in Thursday's 9-3 wrap-up victory and took a called third strike in the eighth inning, his final time at bat.

When he wheeled to walk toward the Orioles' dugout, the Memorial Stadium crowd of 45,341, gave him a standing ovation.

"I heard it," said Robinson, "and I appreciated it.

"But I still mad about taking that third strike."

So, as he had all through the series, Robinson took out his mad on the Reds with his glove. The Orioles had the game all but won when he put the finishing touch on with a diving stab of Johnny Bench's ninth-inning liner in foul territory.

It was the third time in two days that Robinson had robbed Bench. Lee May, another pull-hitting, right-handed slugger, had been frustrated repeatedly earlier in the series.

Fairways Cut for Trenton Exhibition

The Belleville Fairways will be getting down to business in tonight's exhibition encounter with the Trenton Golden Hawks as coach Floyd Crawford has pared his lineup to 18 players.

The Eastern Ontario Junior B entry ran through a two-hour scrimmage last night mixing the contest because of a steaming positional hockey and conditioning.

Crawford will be looking for a better third-period performance from his team after letdowns in the first two exhibition games. The extra week of skating should go a long way towards remedying that.

One performer who may miss the contest because of a leg injury is Stirling winger Keith McConnell who showed well in the first two exhibition games.

In last Sunday's loss to Kingston the Fairways were often guilty of overpassing. Centre Danny Lapenskie was one of the major culprits. After playing a flawless game against Trenton, the second-year standout gave up too many scoring chances in Kingston by passing off to his wingers.

The defensive corps has given the club an unexpected boost in the scoring column, counting half of the 10 goals notched by the Fairways last weekend.

Trenton coach Norm Cairns wasn't overly worried by his team's initial loss to Belleville. The Golden Hawks have been stressing fundamentals in most of their pre-season workouts and had held only one scrimmage prior to Sunday's contest.

Game time tonight is 8 p.m. at the Trenton Community Gardens.

The Fairways open their 26 game schedule Sunday, Oct. 25 at home to Oshawa Crushmen, five nights after Trenton opens on the road in Kingston.

Saints Still Unbeaten, Pummel Napanee This Time

By ALAN TEEWORTH

The Quinte Saints yesterday kept their unbeaten record intact and clinched at least a tie for the first spot in their division as they blanked the Napanee seniors 65-0 at home.

The junior Saints notched their second win of the season as they followed suit to dump Napanee 34-8 in Napanee.

The seniors completely dominated the play in their half of the doubleheader as they scored the first three times they had the ball.

Rick Meagher used a strong passing attack against the injury-riddled Napanee squad, as he tossed four touchdown passes.

Paul McQuaid led the Saints attack as he racked up three touchdowns. Rick Grisham, Paul Hall, Ralph Lepore, Stan Brooks and Rick Meagher tallied a major each.

The defence also got into the scoring act as Bill Skinner recovered a Napanee fumble in the visitor's end zone and linebacker Ken Vos ran back an interception.

Terry Meagher booted three converts and Brian Hennessy ran in for a two-point conversion.

After the first five minutes of the game in which Quinte had built up a 24-0 lead, the Saints went to experimenting with new plays, including a "daisy", a play in which the ball goes from quarterback to halfback to fullback, and then again to the quarterback who throws to a downfield end.

The Saints used their second stringers for most of the game, preserving their regulars for the upcoming playoffs.

The junior Saints picked up their second win in their drive for a playoff spot as they ripped Napanee for 34 points.

Mike Mayo led the rampage with two touchdowns on identical 15 yard end runs. Terry Marek, Glen Lessard and Bruce Nickle also picked up a score apiece. George Hymen picked up a pair of two point conversions for Quinte.

Don Cunningham scored the only Napanee major early in the third quarter. Tim Griffin picked up two points on an end - run conversion.

Terry Marek was the primary receiver in quarterback Bruce Nickle's strong passing attack, while Cunningham and Griffin carried the bulk of the running for the losing Napanee squad.

Harness Season Ends Here Saturday

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club will wind up its harness racing schedule for the year this weekend.

A total of 11 new horses will be making their first appearance on the Belleville track, Saturday at 7.45 for the nine - race card.

Who Will Have Most Surprises?

It should be a question of who surprises whom the most in tonight's 9 p.m. senior hockey game at the Memorial Arena.

Galt Hornets will probably be surprised to find Belleville

Mo-Hawks stronger than the team they eliminated in five games of OHA Senior A semifinals last spring.

But the Mo-Hawks will be facing a Hornet lineup even more potent than the one which won the Allan Cup two winters ago.

New Galt faces include veteran goaltender Harold "Bont" Hurley and forward Pete Bettiol, both acquired from Oakville in a trade that sent all - star defenceman Mike Corbett to the Oaks.

Also back with the Hornets after a year's sabbatical in the USHL with Muskegon is Ian Hergot, a perennial senior all - star capable of playing defence or forward.

Former Boston Bruin goalkeeper Norm Defelice, active as a player with the Hornets last season, is handling this year's coaching chores.

Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones has 20 names from which to draw his starting lineup of 18 (including ballerinas Bob Moon and Callum MacPhee) tonight.

Among them may be forward prospects Gaetan Higgins and Serge Poirier, who were expected to make the trip from Val d'Or for a weekend tryout with the Mo-Hawks.

The Mo-Hawks play back in Galt Saturday night.

Donato Dumps Fraser

TORONTO (CP) — The sweat was still pouring down Donato Padoano's smiling face Thursday night when the fight managers started delivering for another match for the stylish Montreal boxer.

Padoano, fifth-ranked welterweight in the world, had just won an unanimous 10-round decision over Colin Fraser of Toronto.

Irv Ungerman approached Roger Latreve, Padoano's manager, in the dressing room and offered $7,000 for the Italian-born Montrealer to meet Ungerman's prize welterweight, Clyde Gray.

"You make it twice that figure and we might consider it," said Latreve, turning to apply a towel to Padoano's face.

Gray, No. 1 contender for Padoano's Canadian welterweight title, won a seven-round technical knockout over Frankie Steele of Akron, Ohio in a preliminary bout.

Asked about reports that he was considering moving up to the middleweight division, Padoano said he wasn't yet sure what he would do.

Asked the same question, Latreve said: "We might do it."

Padoano, 22, weighed 152½ pounds for the Fraser fight, which extended his record to 21 consecutive victories against no losses.

Fraser, Canadian junior welter champion, weighed 147.

"He was in better shape," said Padoano who looked slightly flabby around the midsection, an area that the slugging Toronto fighter worked on.

Fraser tried working inside with body punches in the early rounds but later started working on Padoano's left eye which took a slight cut in the fourth round.

Lucky Creper Says:

Golf's Million Dollar Winner

ALWAYS STAY IN MOTION

To my mind one of the greatest deterrents to a smooth golf swing is an involuntary stiffening of the muscles before the clubhead is started back. This causes tension... an unbreakable barrier to an easy and controlled swing.

My advice is to always stay in some kind of motion before you make any shot, including the putt. Do all of your sizing up of the shot before you step to the ball. Know where you want to hit it, and how. Take your position quickly, and waggle the clubhead a few times. Keep the head behind the ball during the waggle. Set it down and start your backswing immediately. Your golf can't help but improve.

Sport Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Flanker Jim Thorpe's refusal to allow medical treatment to the knee injury he suffered in last Saturday's game against British Columbia Lions has cost him his job, at least temporarily, with Toronto Argonauts. Thorpe was placed on the Canadian Football League's suspended list Wednesday by Argo coach Leo Cahill, and his place on the roster for Sunday's game with Montreal Alouettes will be taken by Billy Gambrell, a National Football League veteran.

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — The Blue Flame rocket car hit 609 miles an hour Thursday night in the first of two runs needed to break Craig Breedlove's 1965 land speed mark of 600 and 601 miles an hour. However, an attempt for an official record failed when a fueling mishap sent hydrogen peroxide spilling over the car's fuselage. The accident occurred while crew members were trying to get the rocket car ready for a return run — within the required one hour — to break the record.

KITCHENER (CP) — Ken Girard of Toronto Summit battled the elements and a 74-man field Wednesday to take a four-stroke lead in the revised Canadian Professional Golfers' Association of Ontario tournament. Girard overcame the windswept Kitchener-Westmount course and temperatures ranging from mid-40s to 51 degrees to card a 68-five under par for 18 holes. Only other golfer to break par was Dave Clayton of Toronto Donalda while four others were in at 71 — Leon DeCaire of Buttonville, Jack Kay of Toronto Rosedale, Moe Norman of Clifford and Gary Bowerman, Toronto Maple Downs' touring pro.

Sabre Hopes Rattled on Two Fronts

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Buffalo Sabres, fending for a Stanley Cup playoff spot in their first National Hockey League season, have been rattled on two fronts Thursday.

During the day, veterans Don Marshall and Phil Goyette, 36, stood firm on their decision to retire.

At night, Buffalo fell 3-0 to Montreal Canadiens in their NHL debut at home before 10,331 fans.

The statistics of Marshall and Goyette with the Sabres had been in doubt since they left the Buffalo training camp two weeks ago to return to their Lachine, Que., homes to consider the future.

Marshall, 36, and Goyette, 36, had been knocking about the NHL for years with Montreal before going to New York Rangers with goalie Jacques Plante on June 6, 1969, in return for Dave Balon, Leon Rochefort, Len Ronson and goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

Goyette subsequently went to St. Louis Blues where, last year, he won the Lady Byng Trophy as the league's most-gentlemanly player. Both were drafted by the Sabres in the NHL draft last June.

In other games Thursday, Chicago Black Hawks came from behind to nip Detroit Red Wings 3-1, Philadelphia Flyers scored four second-period goals but used all out to take Vancouver Canucks 5-4 and Minnesota North Stars toppled Pittsburgh Penguins 6-2.

Coach Punch Imlach saw his punchless Sabres suffer their second setback in three games. They took only 14 shots at Montreal goalie Phil Myre while the Canadiens, who got two goals from Yvon Cournoyer in registering their third straight win, peppered Roger Crozier with 33.

Walt McKechnie's three goals carried Minnesota from a 3-0 first-period deficit to their first win although Danny O'Shea's goal at 10:15 of the third period was the winner against winless Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh-Minnesota encounter is designated as the 1,000th NHL game since the league played its inaugural in 1917, was witnessed by 13,134.

Pit Martin spoiled Jack Petrolf defencemen Gary Bergman and Jerry Hart to notch the Chicago winner midway through the second period before 12,493 at Detroit.

Bobby Hull, whose errant pass in the first period was picked up by Detroit's Tom Webster and rifled past goalie Gerry Desjardins, tied the score earlier in the second period.

The Flyers, playing at home before 11,796, were on the short end of a 2-1 score against the expansionist Canucks before their outburst.

Serge Bernier paced the Flyers with two goals, but they had to struggle for the victory as Vancouver rebounded in the third on goals by Ray Cullen and Murray Hall.

Voyageurs Nearly All Newcomers

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Voyageurs, sporting almost an entirely new lineup, open their home schedule tonight at the Forum against Baltimore Clippers in an American Hockey League game.

The Voyageurs, defending AHL East Division champs, will have only two players in the lineup who finished the season with them last year.

Returning to the Voyageurs roster this year are defencemen Jean Gauthier and forward Phil Robert. Most of last season's team is scattered in various National Hockey League cities.

Montreal Canadiens now have nine players that played with their AHL farm club last season.

One of the new faces with the Voyageurs is Claude Provet, a veteran of 14 NHL seasons. Provost was recently made a playing assistant to head coach and general manager Ron Caron.

Other new additions include Fran Huck and Chuck Lefley, one-time members of the now-defunct Canadian national team, Wayne Maxner, formerly with Boston Bruins of the NHL, and goalie Ken Dryden, an all-star at Cornell University.

Voyageurs are winless after their first two AHL games.

National Standards to Be Set To Establish Pollution Control

OTTAWA (CP) — A national environmental council and nationwide water standards are to be two bricks in a small wall Fisheries Minister Jack Davis plans to build against pollution.

Mr. Davis, to head the proposed environmental affairs department, told the Commons Thursday the first nationwide standards under the Fisheries Act soon will be released.

They would deal first with elemental mercury and phosphorus and later with pulp and paper and other industries.

The council would include a dozen top men in environmental control and resource development who would help plan pollution control.

The fisheries minister said these are two of the steps that could be taken before the proposed environmental affairs department is formally established. He was speaking on the fourth day of the eight-day throne speech debate, which continues today.

Conservative and Creditiste non-confidence motions were overwhelmingly defeated Thursday night. A New Democratic Party motion was voted down Tuesday.

The Liberal majority downed the Conservative motion 188 to 53, the New Democrats voting with the Conservatives and the Creditistes abstaining.

The Creditiste motion was defeated 158 to 38, the New Democrats voting with the Creditistes and the Conservatives with the government.

Speaking in the 264-seat Commons Liberals 152, Conservatives 72, NDP 23, Creditistes 13, Independent 1, vacant 3.

The Conservative motion said that because of the failures of the government the just society is a distant blend.

The Creditiste motion criticized the government for not introducing national income.

Earlier, Prime Minister Trudeau announced he was cancelling his planned trip to the Soviet Union. He did not explain publicly the reason for this action but it was known to be because of terrorist kidnappings in Montreal.

Mr. Trudeau was chastised by former prime minister John Diefenbaker who said the government was "abdicating its responsibilities for the protection of diplomats" by allowing Quebec to lead in negotiations for the release of James Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal.

Mr. Davis said shaping the Canadian environment is a bigger challenge than unemployment or inflation or the Front de Libération du Quebec. "To many Canadians it is a bigger challenge than all of our financial and social problems put together."

He said he would visit provincial capitals seeking advice and co-operation on pollution matters and on how to word the proposed national clean air act.

Gordon Aiken (Parry Sound-Muskoka) Conservative environment critic, said Mr. Davis's current views were promoted last year by the opposition and rejected by the government, but he is happy the government now has adopted the opposition's views.

Both Conservative and New Democrat MPs last year had demanded national pollution standards, a clause in the Canada Water Act forbidding export of water and a single pollution department, but the government had rejected each idea.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said Mr. Davis's speech was the "biggest contribution to air pollution in Canada in the last couple of years."

Replying to James McGrath (PC—St. John's East), Mr. Davis said the fisheries service will remain a distinct section in the new environmental affairs department, Fisheries problems would have "first claim on my time."

Donald Tolmie (L—Welland) said parole should be granted more liberally and probation should be extended to others besides first offenders.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) said the dissent of women, youth, minorities and terrorist groups indicated people have lost faith in Prime Minister Trudeau's promises.

Earlier, the Commons agreed to reconstitute the joint parliamentary committee on the constitution after a debate of about two hours.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is the usual treatment of high blood pressure? — Mrs. J.

Comment: I think of "usual" treatment of any disease as "blanket" treatment. In other words, it is a dangerous concept to believe that whatever method is good for one patient will work on another.

All pneumonia patients do not receive identical treatment. Neither do those who suffer from tuberculosis, heart disease, kidney trouble — or, for that matter, any of the diseases. This includes hypertension.

There are various grades and types and causes. Individual treatment is the answer to good results. What is good for one may be bad for another. When you consider that high blood pressure affects about 10 per cent of the population, you will realize that there is no one comfortable "blanket" treatment that is effective for all.

What is of first importance is to make the diagnosis. Some doctors say it is present when the pressure is over 90. Others do not subscribe to active treatment of their patients until it reaches 100 over 100.

I believe some measures to treat high blood pressure should be taken at the lower level. Even if it consists only of a low sodium diet, sedatives, and weight regulation — an early attack on the condition often prevents unnecessary complications. Once the diagnosis has been made, both the doctor and patient begin to travel what might be called an experimental treatment tour.

In mild hypertension we give special drugs. Most patients can take them without discomfort. But some develop a depression, nasal stuffiness, diarrhea, hyperacidity, etc., and the drug has to be discontinued — or its dosage decreased. Most can take antidiuretic drugs. But some lose too much potassium from the blood and develop fatigue.

In cases where patients have higher blood pressures we use stronger acting drugs, either singly or in combination. Some cause headaches and faintness. The medicine has to be continually changed. In especially severe attacks of hypertension we also have drugs which we administer intravenously to bring dangerously high blood pressure down quickly.

At least 85 per cent of patients with high blood pressure have "essential hypertension" (as we don't know the cause). In the others, there may be some trouble in the blood circulation of a kidney, or a pheochromocytoma (adrenal tumor) or congenital constriction in the aorta (large artery leading from the heart). If these can be corrected by surgery, the hypertension improves or disappears.

I believe you'll understand, Mrs. J., why I can't say there is a "usual" treatment of high blood pressure. All we know is that each individual hypertensive patient deserves individual care to prevent heart, kidney or stroke complications.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have missed your columns on hyperventilation. Will you explain briefly? — Mrs. F.

Comment: Consciously or subconsciously, the patient breathes rapidly and deeply. It is often found in nervous people — and makes them more nervous because it causes mental confusion, tingling and numbness of fingers and toes and dizziness.

The deep, rapid breathing depletes the blood of its normal amount of carbon dioxide and this causes alkalosis which, in turn, causes the symptoms.

* * *

Rebreathing into an ordinary paper bag often builds up the carbon dioxide and neutralizes the effects of hyperventilation. But best treatment of all is trying to overcome the underlying cause of nervousness to prevent attacks of hyperventilation.

—H. R. Jarvis, of Agincourt, in the tractors-mounted-utility class, three or more furrows;

—Gordon Bradfield, of Peterborough, in the tractors-open-mounted or trailer class, two or more furrows;

—Robert Campbell, of Uxbridge, in the tractors-mounted or trailer class, four or more furrows;

—Reg Opersko, of Waterford, in the tractors-mounted class, two or more furrows.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 17

Your birthday today: This is a year of search for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Project after project touches you here more, and can pile up to quite an achievement. Pertinacity produces results. Where your steadfastness and maturity keeps pace with material improvement, real happiness opens for you. Today's natives are often notable, honored, but prefer to work in privacy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Resist the temptation to engage in arguments. Your work is strenuous enough without adding personal conflicts. Pace your efforts, hold your temper.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Overindulgence of any sort would backfire and spoil things. Squabbles drift into quarrels very rapidly. Fluid discussions which take enough concentration to hold your interest.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Dissension is a sort of partnership where each agrees to be disagreeable beyond reason. To solve not to get into this circle. Practical transactions are better postponed.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Anything you offer is the best of emotional stress will be long remembered, so make it something you really want to say or give. Delay decisions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Any recent presentation of yourself is open to attack or comment. Remember that those who comment are likely to project their own faults as if they were yours. Listen and learn.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Follow any technical instructions exactly. Care in all areas should prove fluently and gracefully, to the general benefit of all. Keep the peace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Don't make any great outward show of your concern, as most people are unaware of your weak spots. A bold front with an effort at inner serenity works better. The evening is cheerful, with a chance to learn something fascinating.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Direct your emotional expression where it belongs, not onto bystanders not involved in what is causing your dissatisfaction. Your anger a sharper than you realize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your continued restless may be hurt by your impulsive whims and overexpression. Think what you are saying, and try to listen more than you shout.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Everything you do now is taken quite seriously, and as an indication of more beneath the surface. Those who know you the best are the most sensitive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Tidy up as you go; make no reference to bigger plans. Group affairs need little discussion but are subject to confusion with unwanted explanations.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Accept delay as a part of testing the peace. Avoid presenting a detailed schedule. Any definite proposal becomes an area for conflict.

Ontario May Institute Own Winter Works

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is considering a winter works program and a $500 rebate for builders who begin home construction during the winter. A similar program was discontinued several years ago.

Announcing this Wednesday, Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said the province is considering a variety of programs to offset a national unemployment rate of nine per cent predicted for the winter.

He told Syl Apps (PC—Kingston and Islands) in the legislature that provincial statistics confirm "to an extent" the situation forecast Monday by federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

The Ontario action may parallel a federal program. Mr. Benson announced in Ottawa Monday that the federal government will spend $60 million on emergency measures to create jobs this winter.

However, Mr. MacNaughton would not say whether Ontario action would be taken independently.

The legislature also heard Premier John Robarts say the crisis in Quebec over the holding of political hostages by the terrorist FLQ is a national problem, not limited to Quebec province.

He said he stands by remarks made in an interview earlier this week that the Quebec crisis has evolved into "total war" and every force must be used to halt this kind of terrorist influence on society.

Some Quebec political spokesmen had interpreted Mr. Robarts' remarks as "incredible interference."

Earlier the premier said Ontario Provincial Police have been put on the alert in case they are needed to help in military activity because of the Quebec crisis. But so far OPP help had not been required.

In other business:

—Mr. McKeough said the federal government has contributed "not one penny" to a relief fund for the Sudbury area, hit by a near-strikeless in August. Total relief money will come to $250,000. Claims amount to about $600,000 so disaster victims would get from 90 t 95 cents for every dollar claimed.

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said he is considering establishment of a special government agency to track down husbands who desert their families and ensure they pay support money.

—Premier Robarts said the government is reviewing its policy of allowing timber cutting in Quetico Park in northwestern Ontario. He said the government "has no intention of allowing the park to be ravaged."

'Magic Bullet' Virus Shot Hoped as Arthritis Control

TORONTO (CP) — Rheumatoid arthritis may be caused by a virus and the search for a "magic bullet" to control the crippling disease may be successful within a decade, a conference on rheumatic diseases was told Thursday.

Arthritis specialists from Canada, the United States and Britain presented papers on research into the cause of arthritis and means of finding a control agency—they avoided the word "cure"—that would be similar to insulin in controlling diabetes.

Drs. Hugh Smythe and Duncan Gordon of the University of Toronto, co-chairman of the fourth Canadian conference on research in the rheumatic diseases, told a press conference there was optimism among the 175 doctors attending the meeting that a major breakthrough could come within 10 years.

The role of human proteins comprising what doctors termed the complement system is being discussed in depth at the three-day conference, sponsored by the Canadian Rheumatism Society and the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Dr. Smythe said researchers are hopeful they can develop a drug, given perhaps in daily doses, that would control spread of arthritis in the body without creating undesirable side effects such as occur in heart transplants.

For example, he said cortisone had been found to have a profoundly beneficial effect on patients but its side effects had been such that its use is limited to severe cases. What was needed was a "magic bullet" that would control without harming body tissues.

More than one million Canadians suffer from some form of rheumatic disease. About 283,000 are disabled with some 75,000 confined to bed or wheelchair.

Rail Service Must Remain Says Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission will be asked this month to freeze applications for the discontinuance of rail passenger services in Ontario, provincial Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said Thursday.

In an interview, Mr. Haskett said the province will ask for "minimum, frozen rail passenger service" sufficient to meet the economic and social needs of provincial residents.

Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways should not be permitted to apply to end service on Ontario lines until such a minimum plan is in effect, Mr. Haskett said.

He added that common sense calls for development of a similar plan for the entire country.

He said the railways are determined to eliminate all passenger services in Canada and he does not believe they should be allowed to do so through applications made one at a time to end service on small sections of line.

Mr. Haskett would not disclose details of the proposed he will make to the commission when it meets later this month to hear a CPR application to discontinue the Canadian Transcontinental passenger train.

However, he said the details already have been made available to the companies, which have expressed interest, and by mail to the commission, which has not replied.

Mr. Haskett first mentioned his minimum-service plan last Friday when he told the legislature he will not appeal a commission decision to permit CPR to discontinue its passenger service between Toronto and Owen Sound on the Bruce Peninsula.

The service which ends Nov. 1, produces a fare of $3.36, but it costs $19.01 a passenger to operate, he said.

Its use indicates that most people prefer to travel by car or bus.

If the service is continued, he said, CPR would be eligible for an 80-per-cent federal subsidy on its operating losses. As a result the passenger would pay $3.36 the company $3.92 and the taxpayers $15.69.

However, Mr. Haskett said, he hopes it is the last line to lose its passenger service until there is a plan of minimum service.

Agency May Chase Husbands Who Desert

TORONTO (CP) — Studies are being made to determine the feasibility of creating a province-wide agency to collect support payments from errant husbands who desert their wives, John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, said Thursday.

Mr. Yaremko said in an interview the project may prove too costly. But something had to be done because the number of deserted wives has increased by a third in the last few years.

Plymouth comes through for you with a new design concept: '71 SATELLITE

More style in hardtops, more room in sedans and wagons—all at a sensible price.

Plymouth's new approach to mid-size cars is 2 different approaches.

Satellite sedans and wagons are designed differently—for family roominess: 117" wheelbase, almost 5' of shoulder and hip room front and back and loads of legroom. And speaking of loads, 2- and 3-seat Satellite wagons take more... even that old bugaboo: the 4' x 8' sheet of plywood, flat on the floor!

Depending on the model, power goes from a 225 Slant Six to a potent 440 V8. Grrr!

Whatever you've got in mind, Satellite and your Plymouth dealer will come through for you. See them today.

PM Says Situation Is 'Well in Hand'

Trudeau Checks Notes

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau checks his notes yesterday prior to addressing Canada over a nation-wide television and radio network. He assured Canadians everything was being done to protect their best interest.

Contact Lost With Radicals

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 230 Quebecers were in jail today as the government cracked down on revolutionaries in the wake of two political kidnappings.

The proclamation of emergency wartime powers across Canada and the ensuing wave of arrests in Quebec province were sparked by the Oct. 5 abduction of British envoy James Jasper Cross and the kidnapping last Saturday of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

While the outlawing of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec, arrests of its members, and sympathizers, government assumption of extraordinary powers and talk by political leaders of "apprehended insurrection" took the spotlight, nothing was heard of the FLQ's two hostages.

The last word on them came Wednesday in an FLQ communique receiving threats against them unless the terrorist demands were fulfilled.

Thursday night, the Quebec government, which had started talks with an FLQ contact man, gave its final answer rejecting FLQ ransom demands.

Shortly after the federal government proclaimed the War Measures Act at 4 a.m., Friday, the FLQ contact man Robert Lemieux, along with a gaggle of FLQ and separatist colleagues, was jailed under the severe legislation.

Distasteful

The suddenness of the government crackdown after nine days of desultory negotiations led to speculation that police had stumbled on something more widespread than a series of political kidnappings.

Prime Minister Trudeau went on television Friday night to say the emergency powers were "distasteful" but the threat posed by Quebec terrorists "is out of proportion to their numbers."

"This follows from the fact that they act stealthily and because they are known to have in their possession a considerable amount of dynamite," the prime minister said.

Mr. Lamarche's mention of dynamite recalled an early FLQ communique which said the kidnapping cells were armed and had plenty of dynamite.

Premier Robert Bourassa, who originally asked for intervention of the armed forces to help the province's over-extended police forces in guarding public buildings and individuals, spoke of a threat of anarchy.

He told a news conference his administration had received information indicating existence of "a concentrated effort to intimidate and overthrow the government and the democratic institutions of this province by means of the planned and systematic commission of illegal acts, including insurrection."

He also spoke of a "terrorist

While the War Measures Act applied across Canada, something else was added in Quebec.

The provincial government has proclaimed its Police Act, placing the province's 13,000 policemen and unknown thousands of troops under command of Maurice St. Pierre, director-general of Quebec Provincial Police.

The combination of the War Measures Act and the Police Act, giving police power to detain anyone or carry out a search without a warrant makes Mr. St. Pierre one of the most powerful men in this province of six million.

Despite the government deadline, Mr. Bourassa made it clear the government offer still remains open.

Besides Lemieux, some prominent Quebec figures had been picked up under the emergency powers.

Locked up was Michel Chartrand fiery Montreal labor leader and a crony of Lemieux.

Another was Stanley Gray, a former political science lecturer at McGill University and organizer of separatist demonstrations.

Singer Arrested

Pauline Julien, dark-haired songstress who is said to have refused to sing for the Queen during a 1964 royal visit, was another. More recently she has been critical of State Secretary Gerard Pelletier for re-couping his bilingualism in Quebec.

For Lemieux it was the second arrest in a week.

Jailing of the 29-year-old lawyer cuts off the news pipeline into the intentions of the kidnappers.

Lemieux' sometimes twice-daily news conferences gave at least some insight into the FLQ position.

The tough provisions of the War Measures Act also forbid persons to give assistance to members of the outlawed FLQ.

This may prevent the terrorists from having their communiques aired by radio stations.

Their communiques in the past have been directed to two French-language radio stations. The method was to slip them into a trash-can, a telephone booth or under the entrance mat of a public building, then telephone the station.

Lightning Raids Net Big Fish

QUEBEC (CP) — Empowered with new authority under the federal War Measures Act invoked Friday, detachments of police swooped down on various suspected Front de Liberation du Quebec sympathizers across the province.

Quebec Provincial Police and RCMP staged the lightning raids in almost every part of the property.

In the list of those detained are some of Quebec's better-known entertainers, writers, political figures and labor leaders.

Provincial police confirmed that Michel Chartrand, fiery president of the Montreal central council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and two avowed members of the FLQ were in custody.

Police also arrested Arthur Vachon, a former member of the QPP anti-subversive squad fired for attempting to organize a union within the force.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Milder air moving eastward in association with a disturbance over the eastern Northwest Territories will spread across Northern Ontario today and over central and southern regions Sunday. Afternoon temperatures today should reach 50 across the province and readings near 60 are likely in the south Sunday.

FLQ Now Has 'United Us'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau assured Canadians Friday night in a nation-wide television and radio broadcast that authorities have the Quebec situation "well in hand."

"Everything that needs to be done is being done; every level of government in this country is well prepared to act in your interests," the prime minister said in a special broadcast carried by the CBC.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and NDP Leader T. C. Douglas also were given time by the CBC to give their views of the government decision to proclaim the War Measures Act to deal with the terroristic activities in Quebec of the FLQ.

The government earlier declared the terrorist organization an illegal one. Jail sentences of up to five years can be imposed on its members and those who aid them.

All three leaders stuck close to statements made earlier in the day, in the Commons. All delivered their speeches in measured tones with little of the rhetoric used in the Commons.

Mr. Trudeau's speech was taped earlier in the day, apparently in his office in the East Block of the Parliament Buildings. Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Douglas spoke from Ottawa studios of the CBC.

Mr. Stanfield said Canadians are entitled to the fullest possible information on persons detained under the War Measures Act.

Proclamation of the act carried the risk of worsening the climate of violence, said Mr. Stanfield. But he added that "it may have been a decision for which there was no alternative."

Trudeau Tired

Mr. Douglas expressed strong reservations about the government assuming such powers for the first time in peacetime.

He said the extra police powers sought by police to deal with the kidnappers of British Trade Commissioner James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte could have been granted by Parliament in a special piece of legislation.

Mr. Trudeau, appearing worn after the events of Friday which started with the proclamation at 4 a.m. EDT, said the FLQ had embarked on its course of bombings and kidnappings to destroy the Canadian society and divide the country.

"The result of their acts will be a stronger society in a united country," he said.

"Those who would have divided us will have united us."

The FLQ was demanding the return of convicted murderers, of persons found guilty of manslaughter, bombings and armed robberies.

Canadians were asked to believe that these men have been unjustly dealt with, "that they have been imprisoned as a result of their political beliefs."

To give in to the demands of the FLQ would be "an abdication of responsibility" by the federal government.

The powers given police to search and arrest without warrant, to detain suspected persons without laying charges immediately and to detain persons without bail be found distasteful.

But they were necessary to deal with the terrorists.

He repeated his promise to revoke the powers as soon as possible.

Mr. Stanfield said he agreed that the government must have the necessary power to deal with "this small group of ruthless men."

He was aware too that there would be "immediate and widespread acceptance" of the government decisions to proclaim the War Measures Act.

He said his party could afford to raise questions about the government's decisions and put forward objections because while the debate was going on, the government had its emergency powers.

Nixon Loophole Outlined

PARIS (AP) — Informed sources say the United States will not require that North Vietnam publicly admit it has troops in South Vietnam if Hanoi pulls out its forces as part of a general peace settlement.

This is the meaning of President Nixon's omission of the demand for "mutual withdrawal" in his Oct. 7 peace plan the sources said Friday.

They said the United States would accept a private understanding from the North Vietnamese that their units will be removed from the South as the American withdrawal is completed.

The 1968 bomb-halt agreement was cited by the sources as a precedent because although the North Vietnamese demanded an unconditional halt to U.S. bombing of their country at that time they did make concessions.

U.S. negotiators told the North Vietnamese then that air raids would stop, but that the United States understood that Communist forces would cease rocket attacks on South Vietnamese cities and lower the level of combat.

The North Vietnamese never formally agreed, but U.S. officials point to subsequent history as proof that the understanding worked.

The same kind of mechanism is envisaged for the key issue of troop withdrawals, which Hanoi sees with a special point of view.

Arbitration Board Announces Police Pay-Fringe Package

Belleville police have gained a salary increase of nearly 16 per cent over their current pay as the result of an arbitration board decision made yesterday.

Under the award, the salary of a first class constable on the Belleville force will be $9,000 with the pay increase made retroactive to January 1 of this year. The present pay of a first class constable is $7,776.

Salaries of other police ranks will be raised by the same proportion increase across the board, with the exception of the inspector who will receive $11,500.

The police request was for a salary of $9,720 for first class constables and $13,000 for the Inspector.

The board hearing opened on Wednesday with Judge J. R. Willmott as chairman, and R. Bevan of St. Catharines and T. R. Wilcox of Kingston as members.

Under the arbitration board award, police will receive three - and - a - half for overtime after the first 30 minutes.

Under the 1969 agreement police received straight time pay for overtime.

Belleville Native Wins U.S. Medal

A Belleville native has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his service with the American forces in Vietnam.

Maj. James. D. Cooke was cited for meritorious service as an engineer staff officer. He was responsible for planning and co-ordinating a joint service military construction program, and helped to ensure "the early reclamation of essential facilities are crucial to the military posture in Vietnam."

Maj. Cooke was born in Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cooke, who later moved to Fresno California.

The board directed that police be allowed $50 per year clothing cleaning allowance instead of the present $25; that they be allowed 11 statutory holidays instead of the present 10, and that they be granted 45 minutes lunch time instead of the present 30 minutes.

Under the award, police will receive four weeks vacation after 15 years instead of 18 years and will have 10 per cent of insurance and welfare plans paid by the city instead of the present two thirds.

The board directed that police are to have their annual vacations during the months of June, July, August or September, and if two weeks of their vacations are not granted in these months, compensation at $50 per week to a maximum of $100 is to be paid.

The board, however, denied the police request for a shift work premium of 25 cents per hour. The board said that wage provisions granted could be considered as a "fair and reasonable attempt" to deal with this request.

Jack Frost Here Late

Easily a full month later than in the normal season, Old Jack Frost made his initial visit to the Quinte area last night with the temperature dropping to 28 degrees at the city filtration plant.

As result of the four degrees of frost, there was ice this morning on roadside water puddles and white frost spowered on roofs.

And motorists had their first taste of troubles to come.

Most drivers had to dig out scrapers and remove the frost from windshields before they could drive to work.

New Jail Could Cost City $40,000 A Year

Despite the fact the province has taken over administration of justice expenses, operation of the new four-county regional jail at Napanee is going to cost the city money.

This was learned by city council this week from Mayor J. Russell Scott who said that involved municipalities were concerned over the expected costs of transporting prisoners.

The cost of this item to the city has been estimated at $40,000, made up mainly by the cost of extra police salaries.

The mayor said transportation costs of prisoners for court appearance is and from the central jail was the responsibility of the municipality until sentence was given.

He said efforts would be made to secure relief from the province.

"They assured us that the regional jail would not increase costs," Mayor Scott said, "but the $40,000 is more than our share of present jail costs."

Construction of the jail is now nearing completion and the detention centre is expected to be opened next year.

Variety Is the Spice Of Council Meeting

AMELIASBURG (Special)— The monthly meeting of council was a study in contrast.

Decisions made by the elected representatives ranged from a resident obtaining authority for a permit to build a barn for his wife's riding horse to showing willingness to co - operate with a young student minister.

The student minister gave council the reason he was living a former school bus as a sleeping accommodation for his family . . . a wife and small child. The bus is in the process of being converted into a mobile home.

The family will be moving away, possibly to the United States where the student expects to be called to a charge after he is ordained, council was assured.

The bus is parked beside the student's grandfather's home in Roseneath. Water and refrigeration units will be acquired and installed in the course of renovations.

In the meantime the family will continue to prepare meals from the stove in the cabin-like necessary for living at the grandfather's place. The bus where they sleep is winterized and heated by an oil burner.

Deputy-reeve Norman Peel asked the student minister to reassure council the makeshift sleeping arrangement was not creating a fire hazard. He was told the doors at both the rear and front of the bus would be kept clear and allow escape in the case of an emergency.

Council agreed there was no violation of zoning regulations so far and while the student minister would be granted permission to continue residency, his case would be reviewed at the end of December.

Fruit farm operator Howard Weese proposed a way the controversial pulp plant at Huyck's Point could rely on an endless supply of clean water without polluting Lake Ontario.

Whether the idea worked, however," depends on the credibility of figures on percentages of water returns from the paper-making process, he pointed out.

"If the effluent is as clean as they say, why don't they build a tank that'll hold 100 million gallons of water and recycle it again and again?" he asked.

Mr. Weese accompanied a delegation from the front road calling on council to hold a referendum to learn the feeling of township residents toward the location of a giant pulp processing industry in the county.

Information from company officials has been vague although the project in operation would require great quantities of clean water, as much -as 50 million gallons daily was the amount mentioned for publication.

Council insisted more information of a technical nature was needed for them to rule on the delegation's request. They were charged with seeking a detailed report from the pulp company's head office . . . as a means of starting the ball rolling.

The machinery for the annual fall election was set up by the sanction of customary bylaws.

The date for the nomination meeting is Monday, November 23 in the township hall starting at 7 p.m.

Election day is Monday, December 14 with the polls opening at 10 a.m. and closing at 8 p.m.

The advance poll is being held in the township hall Saturday, December 4. The poll opens 10 a.m., closes 8 p.m.

A bylaw spelling out the purpose and use of summer cottages in the township and setting the size of a summer cottage lot (108 feet frontage, 198 feet depth) received council's approval. The legislation will become official on acceptance by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Council also approved an application by Harold and Donald Bonar for rezoning a piece of land along the bayshore road west of Albury church. The authority, with OMB sanction, changes the status to commercial from R-1.

He Can Dream - - Can't He?

So there's no snow. But Robert Howell's not all that premature as he checks skis for another winter. He needs to dispense early with preliminaries. A leader of local Canadian Ski Patrol, he hopes to train volunteers immediately for new sports season. Patrol, which renders first aid services on local ski slopes, needs recruits right away.

Belleville Ski Patrol Needs New Recruits

Fall doesn't officially end for two more months — but it's not too early to start thinking of winter.

At least, as far as the Canadian Ski Patrol in the Belleville area is concerned.

The patrol — the swiftest first aid service on legs in the country — is in need of reinforcements in its Belleville ranks.

Volunteers now are being sought for duty on ski slopes in the city area during the upcoming winters, says local patrol leader Robert Howell.

In recent years the local patrol — its activities concentrated at Oak Hills Ski Club — has mustered a 13-member unit.

This year, its numbers have been thinned by job transfers and departure of younger skiers to university.

Mr. Howell says the unit needs new recruits as soon as possible.

The time element is made more emphatic by the need to train new volunteers in patrol routines. This involves a 20-hour course in first aid.

The course is the major demand on recruits.

Otherwise, says Mr. Howell, it's not mandatory for volunteers to be star performers on the slopes.

"You don't have to be an excellent skier. All the patrol is interested in are average skiers who can perform under control."

Age is no limitation — the patrol is "not necessarily a youth organization," says Mr. Howell.

"It's made up of people who wish to have an extra purpose in skiing. These are people who donate their time to the skiing public."

"The basic purpose is to promote safe skiing," the local patrol leader says.

While patrol members don't police a course, they are ready with advice on safety practices.

"What we like to be able to do is prevent an accident, rather than waiting for it to happen."

From time to time there are "unfortunate accidents" on the slopes — but availability of trained personnel can offset the consequences.

"If our fellows weren't there — well versed in first aid — the mishaps could have more serious results," Mr. Howell says.

Recreation Committee Proposed for Thurlow

Thurlow Township may have a township - wide recreation committee to co - ordinate and increase recreation facilities and activities in the township.

Discussion about a recreation committee was sparked Wednesday at Thurlow council's regular monthly meeting when a former physical education teacher at a Thurlow public school, Mrs. Diane Genereaux, appeared before council.

Mrs. Genereaux told council that a number of people in the township were trying to get a recreation committee going. She commented on the need for co - ordination of recreation pastimes, the inceptions of new activities specifically for girls and older people and the use of all the township recreational facilities.

"We have ball parks and schools that could be used," she said. "We took a survey of what people were interested in and activities like euchre and square dancing were suggested."

Mrs. Genereaux told council that people interested in the new committee idea were prepared with fund - raising ideas as well.

She suggested a five - man committee drawn from five distinctive areas of the township so that the entire municipality was represented.

Council looked upon the idea favorably, suggesting that they might be able to obtain grants. Previous donations by council for recreation facilities have been made upon request, rather than a budgeted or granted system.

"The school board would probably prefer to talk to a committee concerning recreation," Reeve Horace Casey said.

Council decided that the first step toward formation of a recreation committee would be their consideration of a list of names of people who could serve on it. Both council and Mrs. Genereaux agreed that the committee should be appointed by council.

Council suggested that after a committee had been appointed, a meeting between council, the committee and school board and government officials would be needed.

"We would have to know about grants before we could set a budget," Reeve Casey said.

"There has to be more interested parents," Deputy Reeve Ed. "Council can't do it alone, but we will support a committee. I'd like to see something like this."

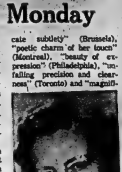
"But it must cover the whole township and all age groups," Mr. Forsythe added.

In speaking of a possible recreation centre, Reeve Casey described the township as "unwieldy" when it came to establishing centralized institutions.

Pianist Appearing Here on Monday

This coming Monday, Madame Aline Van Barentzen internationally recognized concert pianist will make her second appearance before Belleville and district music-lovers when she appears at Centennial Secondary School, sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council and Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

Although American by birth Aline Van Barentzen has spent the major part of her life in Europe. Her first public appearance was at the tender age of four and at only seven she played a Beethoven concerto.



After initial studies at the famed Paris Conservatoire where she won the First Prize for piano (the first American ever to win this) she later studied with legendary master Ernst von/Dohnanyi and Theodor Leschetizky respectively in Berlin and Vienna.

During the course of a long and distinguished career she has made more than 2,000 appearances in solo recital, with orchestras and in radio and television broadcasts. She has concertized most of the major musical capitals of the world and under most of the records for HMV.

She was named Professor of Piano at the Conservatoire National Superieur de Musique of Paris in 1954 and was decorated as Chevalier des Arts et Lettres in 1962 and as Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur in 1964.

Madame van Barentzen has a large repertoire extending from the standard classics to works of a modern idiom Living composers have dedicated compositions to her and she has premiered many twentieth century piano selections.

Leading critics have spoken of her "dazzling technique" (Berlin), "shadings of a delicate subtlety" (Brussels), "poetic charm of her touch" (Montreal), "beauty of expression" (Philadelphia), "unfailing precision and clearness" (Toronto) and "magnificent dynamism and a technique above all praise" (Budapest).

ALINE VAN BARENTZEN

She made a sparkling debut in Belleville on January 20, 1969 and her reappearance here is highly anticipated by all those who heard her previously, along with those forget-me-nots who missed her last recital.

Her forthcoming presentation will include works by Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Faure, Poulenc, and Ravel. Highlighting her difficult program will be Beethoven's Appassionata Sonata. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. at Centennial Secondary School, Mon., Oct. 19.

FLQ Strength

It comes as something of a surprise to learn that hard-core members of the FLQ separatist movement in Quebec number little more than 100. When it is remembered though that Fidel Castro began his campaign against the Batista regime in Cuba with fewer than two dozen men, the Quebec terrorist organization, said to consist of 22 "cells," has a strong base.

Moreover, apart from these hard-core militants — representative of the kidnappers of British trade minister James Cross and Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte — there is strong sympathy throughout the province for an independent Quebec. Student backing, for example, is widespread, although in this case it has been slow to materialize. Ironically, it took an address by FLQ lawyer Robert Lemieux, at the University of Montreal on Wednesday night to arouse some student sentiment. "I am astonished," he said, "that students can stay inactive in face of the present situation."

Marxist orators Michael Chartrand, Pierre Valleres and Charles Gagnon, meanwhile, are reported to have rushed from Friday rally to another to appeal for a mass boycott of classes to put pressure on the Quebec government to yield to the FLQ demands.

Now the three men, in addition to lawyer Lemieux, (whose mediation efforts for the FLQ incidentally were entirely useless, indeed served only as a further propaganda forum for the terrorists) have been detained under the War Measures Act invoked by Ottawa in an effort to control what Quebec authorities earlier had described as a "deteriorating situation."

To say that Canadians are unaccustomed to such a situation would be an understatement, but the Government's action in our opinion is entirely justified. Quebec Premier Bourassa put it succinctly recently when he said a government's duty is to "act." This the province is doing in concert with Ottawa.

The descent toward anarchy in this country, fostered by what Prime Minister Trudeau views as the rise of a "parallel power," must be stopped. The Government's move is timely. It is a measure also of the seriousness of the threat to this nation and its citizens.

Drugs for Medication

In a recent editorial we discussed some of the problems of hospitals in growing communities such as our own, including the need to attract more doctors to cope with the needs of an increasing load. As an extension of this, we would draw attention to the difficulties which can arise with regard to obtaining drugs when the family doctor is not available to authorize a prescription.

Occasionally, a person requiring a constant supply of drugs for medical reasons will find his supply has run out. If it is a weekend and he cannot contact his doctor, there is no trouble. It is argued, of course, that the individual should make sure he is never without, should in fact see to renewing his prescription during the week, but this is not very well. Because a person neglects to do this it is not good enough that he should be made to risk illness or injury for lack of drugs.

That the pharmacists' hands are tied because of the law is no help either. Where a person is known to require a drug, in fact obtains them regularly, the druggist should be permitted to use his discretion in the matter. People on necessary medication should not be penalized for forgetfulness.

Liberation!

Belleville Collegiate's husky footballers may be seen working out in the grounds in front of the school these days. And doing their thing, in relative seclusion, in the corner by St. Andrews church, are the cheerleaders.

How the cheerleaders are an attractive adjunct of outdoor sport for students, but from the girls' viewpoint, we would suggest, it is not enough. Indeed at the risk of being accused of heresy, we think cheerleading might be in the sphere of interest of Women's Lib.

For there is more to outdoor sport, girls, than jumping up and-down and cheering on the boys. Apart from their own sport which should you decide, instead of cheerleading, that you would like to get out and do some jogging. And of course you could always combine the two.

It would be a short season, but we see no reason either why September and October should not be devoted to say field hockey, a game which is played widely — yes, in cool weather too — in British and in other countries of the Commonwealth.

Imagine, the girls of BCI, Centennial, Moira and Quinte, in a regular series of matches in the early part of the fall term. Why not?

PM Handles Colleagues and Kids with Equal Ease

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — With all those curls looping down his neck in ringlets over his collar, Prime Minister Trudeau, colorful in his often mod threads, hardly looks the part of the square.

He only sounds that way.

More of a square than Conservative Leader Stanfield who looks but does not always play the part.

What is a square?

Oh you know, he is the old-fashioned type, who puts down anyone with kids smoking pot and shooting speed, suspects there could be a touch of he look in the maidless campus crazies and tells them so, clings to the quaint idea that more people might do better helping themselves than looking to the state for a living.

This Prime Minister, who seems so much the swinger on the outside and is such a straight on the inside, clings like the establishmentarian he is at heart to all the traditional values, work, self-discipline, order, moderation, loyalty.

Like the Republican - tied older generation that he is, the man honors his Mother, just as his Bible has told him to.

What is even more old-world in this new abrasive world of confrontation and the put-down, the politeness, instinctively is polite.

Treat him with respect — not everyone invariably does — and he responds with courtesy.

Ask him a reasonable question in a decent way and he gives you a sensible answer in a civilized manner.

And that can not be said of all the prime ministers of the last 30 or so years.

Cocky, cool that he refuses to be bothered, will not take the time and trouble for the non-essentials of temperament.

But no patsy, he can be tough.

Tougher than any of the recent prime ministers before him.

Like when he sapped Health and Welfare Minister Munro for getting out of Cabinet and then saying it would be Government policy to ease up on pot prosecutions, then mailing him stand up and face the Opposition music in the Commons' "with an unprecedented rebuke.

And like telling the little minister who hit him in the face with a handful of sour-smelling wet wheat: "Hey, kid, do that again and I'll lamp down and kick your ass."

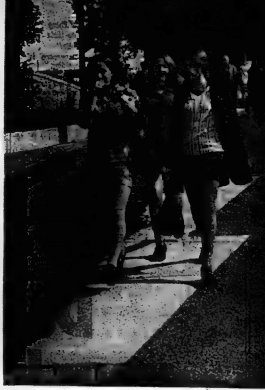
He has this knack of telling the kids the way it is. Like they are risking health, happiness, and perhaps life itself with narcotics.

There is just too much to enjoy in the day-to-day world around them and it is so easy to get their kicks by doing what comes naturally without going for the chemical mind-benders, he has told them on numerous soft-sell occasions in easy, everybody-speaks-his-piece bull sessions with students in gyms and auditoriums.

Like look at him and the things he does to enjoy the good and varied life.

And they know he can outclass them in just about everything from sleep-thinking to hard-rocking.

Like man, he is a performer, a postgrad honors academician, degree in law, economics, political science and sports a brown belt in karate, skin-dives to 200 feet and swings with Barbra Streisand and some other pretty slick chicks.



Some of his toughness is carching on with the members of Cabinet.

Some of them joined the club already tough, like Arthur Laing, George McIlraith, Eric Kierans, Donald Macdonald, all, like the resident "poverty professional," Welfare Minister Munro, and career civil servant and old Lester Pearson pal, Treasury Board President Charles M. Drury.

But there is "Soft John" Munro telling the welfare cavereists that even he knows the taxpayers are stubbornly unwilling to bleed more money in the "war on poverty" as it was called by Lester Pearson who started it, then left Pierre Trudeau to pay for it.

And there is old civil servant Drury telling the needy $50,000 on the federal payroll that they have it wrong when they lament they are lagging behind in the national prosperity parade, when, in fact, Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures have them leading it.

And that is the most amazing thing about this amazing Prime Minister — he can be all things, and convincingly, to all men — a swinger, if there ever was one, and at the same time a square: a "doctrinaire liberal, as left as Tommy Douglas, and a Conservative, too, further right than Robert Stanfield,

The Best Years

Shakespeare said, "youthful rashness skips like a hare over the meshes of good counsel." But "youth with swift flest," so also said the 19th century English novelist Edward Bulwer-Lytton, "walks onward in the way; the land of joy lies all before his eyes." Listen also to English poet Joseph Ridgeway, who said, "youth is the gay and pleasant spring of life," to American poet N. P. Willis, "youth is beautiful," and to the Duc de la Rochefoucauld, "youth is a continual intoxidiction," and we are reminded of the rising greatness of the young of every generation . . . like these Belleville youngsters during their midday break from school. Hospital Stands to Benefit

Administrator's Leave of Absence

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Regarding administrator Philip Rickard's leave of absence from Belleville General Hospital the handling of it, as well as its motivation, is questioned, even criticized by Mr. W. C. Hockley in a manner not compatible with some people who consider themselves at least as well informed as Mr. Hockley.

I remember reading other letters to the Editor from the same author, Mr. Hockley, generally speaking, made the impression on me that he is a staunch defender of democracy which he wants to defend via law, order, respect, discipline and so forth. In other words, democracy achieved by anti-democratic means.

Hospital and School Boards don't operate like that. It's the democracy that 'creates' respect, discipline and order rather than vice versa as Mr. Hockley wants it. Of course, Hospital and School Boards do have much in common. Anybody who fails to see this "at first glance" should look closer. Both are very democratic, both know how to select the right man for the job, both know that maturity, experience and dedication are the major variables to be considered when hiring people. It is more education that Mr. Rickard is after.

I am sure that, if asked, Mr. Rickard would agree that his studies are neither a requirement nor a guarantee. It's misery. Mr. Rickard hand-picked some people presently employed at BGH: Mr Kenetsky is one of them. A good leader organizes in such a manner that the operation will run smoothly, whether he goes on vacation, on leave of absence, becomes ill or dies. That's how it is at BGH: a good running operation, because Mr. Kenetsky is (contrary to your statement) considered to be quite capable of holding (not down) up the job as well.

A hospital the size of BGH employs an Administrator, as well as an Assistant Administrator. Both are paid well, as it should be. During Mr. Rickard's leave of absence the hospital will run normally, though cheaper than last year. The difference? Well, Mr. Rickard's salary minus those lousy $400 per month of course.

The decision of the Board was a good one. Knowing that there are people like Mr. Hockley they kept the amount in a thin line.

TWO JUSTIFIED

Letters to the Editor

Christianity and the World Today

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I write again in answer to the Paul Naras letter of Oct. 7.

First of all, I am a she and also a young parent.

I want to thank Mr. Naras for his letter in reply to mine and for his honesty, of his feelings and suggestions. He is a cherished quality. There are too many false words bealing the air these days.

He seems to feel I too am against youth, anxious to criticize them. This is not so. If he were to read the letter again, he would see my criticism was directed to Belleville youth — including myself as biggest offender — and not to Belleville youth, although I realized I stepped on his toes too, to bring out many points of potential neglect.

He stated at the end of his letter that today's youth need model more than they need critics and I agree fully, for this was the main principle of my letter.

Since Mr. Naras has taken time to my letter personally, I wish to further comment myself on his comments and questions.

I am afraid I will have to use the Bible, that book he called mythical, for my basis, for I have found it is packed full of information on the success and failures of life. May I add too, that is among our present world situations and the future. It is one book man has tried to eliminate all through the ages, but has not succeeded for it is the Divine Word of God.

(God said Heaven and earth shall pass away but My word shall not pass away.")

Morality is old as time. Whether it has been morally or immorally, Man chooses his own destiny by choosing one or the other and he has a bearing on those around him in life.

"Yesterday's dead and tomorrow's blind" philosophy would be an easy out to go by if it were so, but Mr. Naras must admit that yesterday has a bearing on today and on tomorrow. Meaning, what we do each day has a bearing on the future. If we have to go through each day blindly, our future will also be a blind one. This to me is not the picture of a happy life. Ask a person who is blind is happy if they are Re the letter of Paul Naras in your issue of Oct. 7: Amongst other crutches he mentions a religion whose word and deeds accounted for only in one Sacred Book written well after said Person was dead." This statement is quite wrong. There exists profound testimony of the first order and importance to the facts in that one Book.

Not PR Official

Deaconess Is 'Christian Witness'

EDMONTON (CP) — Opposed to the title of public relations officer, Louise Williams says her job would be better described as developing interpersonal relationships.

Miss Williams, deaconess in Lutheran church in Edmonton, gave her title the dictionary-like definition as "theologically-trained professional worker in the church."

Her job is one of constant theological interaction with people, whether she is leading a Bible study with a ladies' group, visiting an elderly shut-in, or just being a Christian witness to those around her.

"At the risk of sounding pious, I believe being a Christian is a great thing. It has brought me a lot of joy and being a deaconess is a way for me to share that joy.

"The more I become an alive, open and joyful person the better I can show people that being involved in the church is not a negative thing but a positive thing."

Rather than strictly trying to "drum up members for the church," Miss Williams believes her duty is to act as a Christian witness. If she gathers a few new church members along the way, so much the better.

"I feel the ministry I'm in is of real worth," she said, adding that she is satisfied to work "without the prestige and leading public worship kind of thing" which comes with being an ordained minister.

The Lutheran Church does not ordain women as ministers.

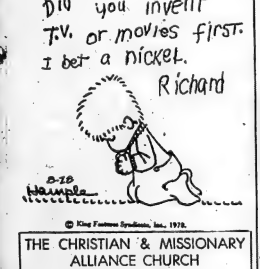
Miss Williams, 34, has been a deaconess since her graduation with a BA in theology from Valparaiso University in Indiana in 1961. She is originally from Missouri.

Her work at the church falls into three basic areas—"with a few other things thrown in on the side."

In the Christian education field Miss Williams directs the Sunday school, trains the teachers and teaches a youth Bible class.

Another area is youth work, "an area I find difficult." She said youth comes across to her as being dissatisfied with present situations, but they are not sure why, or what replacements should be given.

She supports, within limits, youth's assertion that we are living in an age of a new morality. "Many things can change but certain things don't change.



"Take skirts for example. At one time it would have been considered immoral for a woman to show her knees in public, but that does not make it immoral today.

"I believe there is leeway for a bit of change. The church is a bit behind in some ways."

Miss Williams said the third area of her work could be described as evangelism.

"But I don't feel that is a very descriptive word. Perhaps community outreach would be better."

Children's Letters To God

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1970.

Her church is located in, what she called "the changing neighborhood"—a neighborhood whose residents include native people, recent immigrants and elderly citizens. Community outreach involved being timed in to the needs of these people.

The present congregation is made up mainly of people from outside the area and people from the more fashionable parts of Edmonton.

To help localize the church Miss Williams is a year planned a summer program of films and activities "to give the children in the neighborhood something to do."

Following that program she had a vacation Bible school to supervise. Owing to lack of facilities her office was turned into a classroom with the walls plastered with montages and pictures of faces and people engaged in every sort of emotion and activity.

The theme of the class was neighbors. The pictures acted as a teaching aid "to help young people find out who they are; to understand how families get broken; and to understand how they as forgiving Christians can mend broken relationships."

Monkey Was Revered

BOMBAY (CP) — The death nearby Taj Mahal Hotel. His of a beloved monkey has grieved thousands of pious Hindus here.

Two-year-old Champu was worshipped as an incarnation of Lord Hanuman, a Hindu god. He was also the favorite of Bombay's children who used to visit him at all hours of the day with fruits, ice cream and other gifts.

Gulab Singh, a businessman, brought Champu to Bombay from the Hindu pilgrim town of Hardwar in the Himalayas. He installed the monkey in a small "temple-cum-home" in the Colaba district of Bombay and gave him a religious name—Bhagwan Champu Maharaj, or Divine Prince Champu.

He decorated Champu's home with color photographs of the monkey in various poses. Joss sticks burned around the clock.

Champu also became a favorite with American, British and Canadian tourists staying in the regular visitors included many American hippies.

When Champu fell ill—some say he had an overdose of ice cream—there were offers of medical help from many sources.

Many people believed that Champu was a source of good fortune. On Sundays he was visited by hopefuls on their way to the Mahalaxmi race track. One man—a poor tailor—is said to have won $3,500 in bets after visiting the shrine.

Two weeks before his death Champu climbed into an apartment and bit an old woman. Her son—evidently not a monkey-worshipper—called police.

There were moments of tension as the mother came to Champu's rescue by telling police she was not a party to the attack.

Singh now is looking for a successor to Champu.

MR. AND MRS. JACK MacDONALD

MacDonald – Geen

St. Mark's United Church, Canniton was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony when Lois Eleanor Geen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Geen of Plainfield was united in marriage to Jack Macdonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. James MacDonald of Belleville. Rev. J. A. Morrison was the officiating clergyman and wedding music was provided by Fred Porter who also accompanied the soloist Curt Bridgman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white velvet sheath gown with the bodice featuring a high neckline and long lily-point sleeves trimmed with rosettes and alencon lace. Matching lace and rosettes outlined the hem line. A floor length veil extended from a velvet pillbox headdress and she carried a bouquet of autumn shade 'mums.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

* * *

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Jack MacDonald (nee Lois Eleanor Geen) was honored at a shower held at the home of Mrs. A. Russell. Co-workers at the Bell Telephone also held a shower with Mrs. Leona Hulmer as hostess and Miss Lois Carter as cohostess; also at miscellaneous showers given by Miss Suzanne MacDonald with Mrs. Lynda Redner as cohostess and another given by Miss Gale Dawson. A community shower was held at the home of Mrs. Mike Latendre.

FOXBORO
EMMANUEL UCW

FOXBORO — The general meeting of Emmanuel UCW was held in the church hall recently. The meeting was opened with a poem by the President—Mgrid Finkle.

The meeting was turned over to Mae Hollinger and Lily Hubble who were in charge of the worship service and program. They chose as the theme "Belief" and gave an interesting account of a visit to Maplewood Chapel at Apsley.

Mrs. Hollinger introduced guest for the evening, Mrs. Harry Harrison, who is literature secretary for the presbytery. Mrs. Harrison had several books and pamphlets and gave some of the highlights from each. She also introduced new study book "Man, Shaper or Shaped".

Mrs. Homan, citizenship and social action convener, gave a report on the activities of neighboring Indians.

Dora Cook reported on the closing of the Tupperware and thought each could help in seeing it was returned to its rightful owner by writing the MP at Sault Ste. Marie.

Lily Hubble reported that the bale was sent in Toronto courtesy of Lafferty Smith Express Lines. Members were reminded of the bazaar at the Manor on October 21 and feel supper that night.

Sandwiches and coffee, served by Hallaway Unit, were enjoyed by all.

Miss Gale Dawson as maid of honor wore a floor length dress of dark green velvet featuring long sleeves and round neckline. The bodice was enhanced with an overlay of white lacette. Bridesmaids Miss Suzanne MacDonald and Mrs. Beverly Brinkman, both sisters of the bride were dressed similarly to the maid of honor but in gold velvet and carried bouquets of white 'mums. Miss Rhonda Redner, niece of the bridegroom was flower girl dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried a basket of variegated autumn blooms.

Wayne Morrison attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Carl Geen, brother of the bride and Jim MacDonald of Oakville, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a light blue linen dress with turquoise feathered hat, black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Assisting, the mother of the bridegroom wore a blue dress of peau de soie with nylon embroidered coat, matching hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling, the bride chose a three - piece suit of grey and yellow, black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. On return they will reside at Apt. 3, King George Square, Belleville.

SACRED HEART CWL

MARMORA — Thirty-four members and a number of guests attended the CWL meeting in Sacred Heart Parish Hall, Marmora, on Monday evening.

A presentation of slides of Ireland with a most entertaining commentary of that beautiful country and its people, given by Rev. Father E. J. Keyes of Lanark, was highlight of the evening.

President, Mrs. Joseph O'Neill, announced that the CWL scholarship of $100 for highest standing grade 13 pupil from parish had been won by Miss Catherine Murray.

The Christian Family Life committee plans to sponsor a program for youth in the near future with the assistance of Rev. Sister Jean Dreaniel of the Youth Corps, Peterborough.

Members were asked to give particular attention to the coming TV programs of the new season, with a view to commending CBC for any worthy programs.

The three-mile walkathon at national convention in Toronto undertaken by members in aid of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace, was described by Mrs. Breen O'Connor as a successful endeavor.

Mrs. Roger Nesbeth was appointed new secretary of the League.

A full discussion on plans for the annual bazaar on October 30-31 was led by convener, Mrs. Fred Bedore.

A PROFILE OF KINDNESS

"If there be any kindness . . . I can do, let me do it now . . . for I shall not pass this way again." — Etienne De Grellet, (1775 - 1955).

* * *

An elderly widow now living in Belleville who was a farmer's daughter, speaks of days when times were hard in their farming community and a hired man sometimes found himself the owner by turning over the wages he had received to the farmer, now holding the role of the hired man he in turn worked his way back to ownership. She adds:

"I've always considered any act of kindness like a stone tossed in the pool of humanity which affects infinite rings of good-will right on to eternity. Such is the kindness of sharing another's burden . . ."

"A fine thought, surely, but have you any instance . . . ?"

"But of course," she smiled quietly, "One which comes to mind occurred in circles other than farming. Over in England, an aristocrat lived in a fine mansion beautifully presided over by Williams the butler, who when his master lost his fortune, remained to look after him. There was nary a mention of a pay-envelope.

"Behold! — just as in a movie — the owner recovered his fortune, but in a once did the gentlemanly thing. Sad as it was to lose a parapet, among butlers, he staked William the money to build — a hotel. It was completed in 1919, named the Williams Hotel, the biggest in all Europe and remained so up to 1930.

"Fortune, good that is, stood guard. Alone in the world in his opening banquet, who should be invited but his Majesty, the Prince Regent of England (King George IV) who was pleased and impressed he allowed his coat of arms borne with the palace . . . The Regent, then, had opened the patronage of innumerable noble and princely guests from all over Europe.

"Then in 1830 the little 11-year - old Princess Victoria stayed at the Hotel Hotel with her mother the Princess of Kent. This was the first building other than a palace in which the little princess had ever stayed. When she became Queen eight years later, she permitted the town, which was Leamington (about ten miles from Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford on - Avon and today known as the "Garden Town of Shakespeareland") to use the prefix "Royal" in remembrance of her visit there.

"The guest list through the 19th century reads as a history index book: The Duke of Wellington, Ulysses S. Grant, Longfellow the poet, Napoleon, Emperor of France, Charles Dickens, Sarah Bernhardt, Russian dancer, Pavlova . . . all mingled in elegant spacious rooms with founders of American fortunes midst scintillating fashion, finery and gaiety.

"Then came change. Taking the waters at the fashionable Spanish Hotel gave way to doctors' recommendations of sea-bathing, made possible by the advent of railways. The hotel was up for auction, and picked by a "for a song" by one who foresaw the tourist trade, Mr. Cridlan, the new owner, spent a fortune to restore it, and the era between the two wars, it came into its own again.

"This year, the year of its 150 anniversary, Williams Hotel held many celebrations. Its history has faithfully mirrored "the rise, the fall and the rise again of Royal (Leamington Spa" (pop. 44,300 today). It does not stay too much upon "Royal" and "Spa" today, however, for as a hotel always should, admits

"In our old-fashioned way, we are doing nicely — thank you."

MR. AND MRS. DAVID POUND

Pound – Fairman

Lorraine Kathryn Fairman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlef Earl Fairman of RR1, Corbyville, was united in marriage to David Richard Pound, son of Mrs. H. Casey and the late Stanley Pound on Oct. 10 at St. Mark's United Church, Canniton. Rev. J. A. Morrison conducted the ceremony and Mrs. H. Farnham played the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, Lorraine was married in a floor length empire style gown of peau de charme with a bodice of silk lace, embroidered with seed pearls. It had a round neckline and full bishop sleeves. A tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones crowned her head and her full length veil was trimmed with alencon lace. The orange talisman roses in her bouquet were mixed with carnations and 'mums.

Mrs. Cathy Hewton as matron of honor wore an empire-waisted gown of deep gold peau de brauche with full bishop sleeves trimmed with alencon lace. She had a matching bow as her headpiece and carried a basket of orange and yellow carnations and 'mums.

Miss Linda Cannon, Mrs. Susan Green and Mrs. Susan Kennedy the bridesmaids were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in emerald green. They also carried baskets of orange and yellow carnations and 'mums. The best man was Stephen Pound, the bridegroom's brother and the ushers were John Pound, Ron Casey and Peter Heath.

The reception was held at Club Caribana. The bride's mother wore a lilac cost and dress ensemble of polyester cashmere with beaded trim and a matching hat. Black accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses completed her costume. Dark brown accessories and a talisman rose corsage completemented the bridegroom's mother's ivory colored dress of imported silk worsted with a beaded neckline and three-quarter bell sleeves.

For the wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride left in a coarse and white crimplene dress with a matching jacket, black accessories and a white gardenia corsage. Upon return the newlyweds will reside in Belleville.

Housewives Register Gives Women Chance for Intelligent Discussion

TORONTO (CP) — Housewives Register is a kind of friendly think tank for housebound mothers.

National organizer Jean Wylie of Durham Region called it a "non-organization" that offers women a chance to hear and talk about things other than children and laundry.

"Our prime purpose is intelligent conversation, discussion started by members," she said in an interview. "We want to draw the woman who has been so involved with her own out of herself, out of her home, out of her feeling of complete responsibility for her family, and encourage her to express herself, her own identity.

"Housewives are so inundated by magazines, television, radio. There is all this stuff coming in and nothing going out. You might only get few minutes in the library with someone, but who ever had an intelligent conversation in the supermarket?

"We need to identify with other people over own situation, learn to know the similar interests of other housewives. Especially if you're not in an area, by the time you sit through the neighbors, it's difficult to find people who share your interest in yoga or literature or whatever."

Housewives Register began in England, and was brought to Canada by Anne Cossey two years ago. She has since returned to England, but while she lived in Cookville, Ont., her efforts resulted in the formation of Register groups in Montreal and Toronto. Mrs. Wylie said groups now exist in almost all provinces.

The groups meet in members' homes. They may have discussion based on research done by members, or they may invite speakers. Mrs. Wylie said Toronto groups have heard talks on pollution, feminism, abortion, police work and service groups in the community.

"We can provide a stepping stone out of the home into the community and service work. A woman may say, 'I'd like to do something, but don't know what.' She may hear a speaker from the Children's Aid or a hospital, and before she knows it she's going to be involved in her community. We want her to enlarge her horizons as much as she's willing to do."

Register groups go on tours if they wish. Mrs. Wylie's group has gone to the Stratford Festival twice. Occasionally informal sub-groups form if a number of members discover a common interest. Members may organize baby-sitting rotas to give one another a chance to get out.

Mrs. Wylie said they hold picnics, barbecues, pot-luck suppers and an annual dinner.

Whether or not they include husbands in parties is up to the individual groups, but husbands are not welcome in spirit at a normal meeting.

"We say, 'You keep your husband and children at the door. You are here to be you. Even though you are a mixture of self and family, we want your opinions, not your husband's."

The group is developing a national and regional organization, but Mrs. Wylie said it is intended to be a loose one. There is a $2 membership fee but no Register is expected to have committees or set up elaborate organizational structure. The fees largely cover the cost of newsletters and advertising designed to attract members.

Mrs. Wylie said anyone interested in forming or joining the Housewives Register should write to her. She will give them advice and material to help form a group, or put them in touch with local people already organized.

Her address is: Mrs. James Wylie, 88 Clevedon Square, Scarborough 723, Ont.

Tea Motif Was Popular For 19th Century Pottery

Pottery decorated with tea leaf lustre was popular late in the 19th century. The tea leaf design bears little relation to the actual tea plant, which is closely related to the camellia. Tea leaf design includes a blossom not unlike the tea blossom and many spiked leaves completely unlike the actual tea leaf.

Most tea leaf lustre is unmarked and is probably made in the period between the discovery of lustre at the beginning of the 19th century and the passing of the McKinley Tariff Act at the end of the 19th century, requiring the marking of a country of origin on goods imported to the United States.

There were other factors that determined the popularity of tea and tea motifs in the 19th century, particularly in Canada, the largest tea-drinking country in the western hemisphere.

The Duchess of Bedford invented afternoon tea. With tea and cakes as we know it somewhere in the 1840's, about the time that Queen Victoria ascended the throne. There was also a Harry Meakin in business in Hanley in 1870 and Henry Meakin in Cobridge in 1872.

J. and G. Meakin of Hanley were in the earthenware and ironstone business beginning in 1851. They used the royal arms and the leading Ironstone China over their name in the 1890's. Their ware is also stamped England and Hanley and the firm continues to manufacture.

In 1900 J. and G. Meakin plates of the type illustrated were selling at $5 - 45 cents a dozen. Today they are worth $4.75 to $7 each. About this time Meakin began introducing a similar design, recognizable as clover, in gold on very thin bone china and at $2.50 for a 9-piece set and tea leaf lustre was dropped.

Ann Landers

Dad Can't Remember Son's Friends' Names

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My dad is a great guy, smart in business (an executive in a big company) and too young to be senile (51). So why can't he get a name straight? There are always lots of kids around, the same gang I've grown up with. He has seen them all hundreds of times but he gets so mixed up I could die.

He calls Howard Harold, Bill Bob — Fred is Frank and Jerry is Gerry. It's no better with the girls. Sherry is Mary and Mary is Millie. Ruthie is Rosie and Andrea is Adrian.

I've thought of making name-tags as a gag but I'm afraid the kids might think he is a

ANN LANDERS moron. What are your thoughts on this subject? — EMBARRASSED.

* * *

DEAR EMBARRASSED: One of the problems is that you "non-conformists" all look alike. Small wonder Pa gets mixed up.

I say forget it. Your friends don't attach any importance to your Dad's calling them by the wrong name. If they come from a family where there's more than one kid their mothers do it all the time.

If you want to correct him, do it nicely: Example: "Dad. This is Harold . . . . . " And please remember this letter when you are 51. Let's see how well you do with names.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can a dog be mentally ill? Our neighbors have a Basset Hound that barks for hours at a time. Sometimes he starts at 6:00 a.m. and wakes up our entire household. I timed him yesterday and he barked for three solid hours without a let-up. I thought I'd lose my mind. The dog is kept in a nice, big doghouse behind their place (and right under our bedroom window). We see a pan of water out there at all times, and we know he gets fed regularly. The animal is not being abused as the owners are not violating the law.

The neighbors are unfriendly and keep to themselves. They are not the kind a person can talk to. This morning my husband woke up with a terrific headache because he had had only four hour's sleep. Any ideas? — XX%&%&#!!

* * *

DEAR XX%&%&#!!!: You say the neighbors are not violating the law? You are wrong. Their dog is disturbing the peace and quiet is a law against disturbing.

I suggest you call the police and ask them to look into this situation at once. Perhaps the dog needs to be put on medication.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We need a quick answer. The treasurer of my husband's company has been with him 14 years. She is a lovely woman (we thought - - -) the mother of three young children. Just this week we learned she has been juggling the books, and lifted the company out of $11,000.

We are in a state of shock and don't know what to do. My husband wants to prosecute her and "let the chips fall where they may." I feel it would be cruel to subject the mother of school-age children to the newspaper publicity and a possible prison sentence. The woman's husband has a good job and he makes less money than she does. She is begging for mercy and has promised to borrow the money from her brothers, if she is spared prosecution.

No one knows about this but the bookkeeper who discovered the theft, and of course my husband and me. What do you say? — RIPPED DOWN THE MIDDLE.

< DEAR RIPPED: Your husband does not have the right to take the law into his own hands. He should turn this matter over to the proper authorities and let the judge decide if the woman deserves clemency.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is not as important as some you hear about but it bugs me a bit. My mother is past 65. She and Dad have been married 21 years. Mom has two big pictures of herself on the mantle over the fireplace in the living room. The pictures were taken before she was married so you can guess how old they are. Both pictures are old-fashioned (Gainsbyles funny) but she was rather pretty in those days.

I hoped Mom would put my sweet sixteen picture somewhere in the living room. I even had it framed. But she didn't. She put in my brother's room and he stuck it in the drawer. Every time I see those pictures of Mom I get mad. How can I get over my feelings of hate? — ONLY ME.

DEAR YOU: There's more involved here than meets the eye. I hope you will discuss your feelings with your school counselor. I have met a great many school counselors and they are great. You need to understand why your mother attaches so much importance to those outdated pictures of herself. When you do, you won't be so angry.

You Can Have A Danish Farm Holiday

By DORIS CLARK

Did you know that you could visit a Danish farm for a holiday? One week, two weeks, three weeks in which to relax, enjoy lush countryside, tour old castles (Hamlet's castle at Elsinore for one), and famous locations like Hans Christian Andersen's birthplace.

The farms are comfortable. lived - in homes; not hotel style. The one we called on was an hour's drive from Copenhagen; comprised just 18 acres of fertile land.

Mr. Poulsen used to need two hired men, plus four helpers at harvest time. Four years ago he brought the whole operation up to date by installing milking and other machinery, doing a little rebuilding of stables. Now, without any hired men, he cares for 48 cows, 48 calves, 18 little pigs (which we saw ingenuously refreshing themselves, a dozen per mother pig) and 600 hens producing 250 eggs a day.

A Canadian farmer would want 150 acres for the same number of pigs. But feed grown for the animals is supplemented here with left - over mash purchased from breweries. Cows, pigs, piglets, hens are plump and healthy on their diet.

How clean the white buildings are! We marvelled at the washed - down cement floors, the open gratings behind all stalls to simplify sewage disposal; the shining vessels and gadgets. Steeply sloping tile or slate or thatched roofs shed heavy snows easily.

Their small country home featured high ceilings, many windows, and, surprisingly, a skylight over the stairwell. We noticed that the extra-long beds, with their fluffy down puffs, were designed for the comfort of tall Danes. There was handwork on table, wall, chesterfield, kitchen counter.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Butter Tart Squares are Popular

By MARY MOORE

REQUEST FROM MARY: If anyone of our readers know what "vegetable spaghetti" is would they please write to me in care of this newspaper describing it: whether it grows above or below ground how to cook it, etc.? I have request to know how to cook and I do not.

QUESTION: Some time ago you printed a recipe for a butter tart square. I made it several times and it was delicious. Some how I lost my cook book and I cannot remember exactly all the ingredients in it. Would you be so kind as to publish it again? Several of my friends are waiting for the same recipe. Thanking you in advance. — One of Your Readers.

ANSWER: Did you forget that I request name and address on stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents? Please remember next time. We very much prefer to answer letters personally and cannot do this through column because processing time is lengthy business. In addition, this recipe was repeated here on March 14 of this year.

"BUTTER TART" PAN SQUARES

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sifted all - purpose flour
2 tbsps. white sugar
1½ cups brown sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts
2 eggs
2 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla

Cream the butter well, then cream into it the 1 cup sifted flour and 2 tbsps. white sugar. Press this with floured palms and fingers, smoothly, into an ungreased 9" x 9" pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 min. Meanwhile, mix together all remaining ingredients. When base has baked 15 min., remove it from oven and spread second mixture over it evenly. Return to oven and bake 20 min. longer until golden brown.

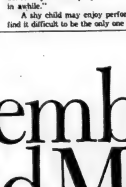
If you make a double botch in a 17 x 11 x 1" pan it does not require longer baking.

inviting us to sit on her porch, Mrs. Poulsen introduced her two sugars, Anne-Marie and Peter, answered our questions about country life — and (rather stiffly) served us samples of a favorite Danish dessert: Redgrod. It is a sort of red fruit porridge, made of red currants, black currants and raspberries, sugar and potato flour. If it happens to be cherry time, go the cherries. Every mouthful of this delectation (with fruit sugar and double - thick cream) is pure ambrosia.

For a first course the Danes go in for beans, very crisp, and little new potatoes with Bechamel sauce. Or meat cakes made up with chopped carrots and meat and eggs, or a meat loaf combining pork, veal, flour, with alternate layers of Brussels sprouts.

We were struck with the prodigal gardens and borders of colorful flowers: tuberous begonias, roses, poppies, petunias, in profusion. We looked a little higher to see lilac bushes, higher still to the tops of tall oak, pine, birch, poplar trees. And the "bog" or "heath" — a tall heavy variety which is Denmark's national tree.

Young people who holiday on a Danish farm often want to know what it feels like to help with the chores — and they may. And they rejoice in the well - cooked farm fare, which is quite something in this country of dairy farming.



The rest won't scare anybody off — and I'll supply details about how to arrange for a Holiday On a Farm to anyone writing in and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. — Doris.

KEEP AWAY

Never probe near a child's ear drum.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Show Aunt Sue how you can dance. Come on now, don't be silly. What's the point of spending all the money on ballet lessons if you can't even do a few dance steps for company once in awhile."

A shy child may enjoy performing with a crowd, but may find it difficult to be the only one in the limelight.

Don't push a child to perform if she is reluctant to do so. Ballet lessons or music lessons are given to a child to increase her enjoyment of these arts, not to train her to show off.

Orr Breaks Scoring Ice With Two Goals Against Seals

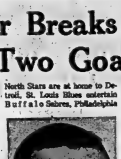
By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Bobby Orr is ready to play, it's going to be tough around the National Hockey League for Boston Bruin opposition.

The revamped California Golden Seals found that out Thursday night when the league's outstanding defenceman scored his first two goals of the season in leading the Bruins to a 5-1 victory.

Orr, the first defenceman in NHL history to win the league scoring title, was held scoreless in Boston's first two games and came out of last Sunday's encounter against Detroit Red Wings nursing a charley horse after colliding with Frank Mahovlich.

Boston general-manager Milt Schmidt said this week the 22-year-old Parry Sound, Ont., native had his worst training camp after spraining his wrist in the Bruins first exhibition game against Chicago Black Hawks.



"But he's been going real well," said Schmidt, "and requires a lot of attention from the opposition which leaves others on our team more room in which to operate."

While Orr was scoring his first two goals, centre Phil Esposito picked up a goal and three assists against the winless Golden Seals to give him 10 points.

Wayne Cashman and veteran Johnny Bucyk were the other Bruin marksmen against the West Division cellar dwellers whose lone goal was scored by Dennis Hextall on a breakaway.

Six games are scheduled for tonight and another six Sunday.

Chicago visits Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers are at Toronto Maple Leafs, Minnesota North Stars are at home to Detroit, St. Louis Blues entertain Buffalo Sabres, Philadelphia

PHIL ESPOSITO . . . Pads Point Total

Flyers are at Pittsburgh Penguins and Los Angeles Kings are host to Oakland in tonight's games.

Sunday Montreal is at New York, Toronto at Philadelphia, Boston at Vancouver, Minnesota at Detroit, Pittsburgh at Buffalo and St. Louis at Chicago.

The Golden Seals, who changed their name Thursday from Oakland Seals and skated on to the ice for Friday's lone NHL encounter in new home uniforms, extended their winless string to three straight in West Division play.

The Bruins moved into a share of first in the East Division with Montreal, each with six points.

The Canadiens, meanwhile, have given up any hope that veteran John Ferguson will rejoin the club after it was announced in Montreal Friday that the hard-rock winger's business is thriving.

Ferguson, who retired 18 days ago, confirmed his knitwear firm had been sold and that both he and his business partner had expanded their activities. He cited business pressures as one of the reasons for quitting.

Toronto veteran George Armstrong is doubtful about his future with the rookie-laden Maple Leafs and will be a spectator for tonight's game.

Armstrong said he's not talking retirement openly, but his 1970-71 contract has not been signed and there had been no indication from Toronto management they were prepared to sit down with him in the immediate future.

Gravelle Gets One

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Smiths Falls Bears defeated Ottawa Rangers 4-3 in Central Jr. A hockey Friday night with Bob Greer's second and winning goal coming late in the third period.

Shawn Howard also scored two goals for the Bears; John Gravelle and Doug Breen had one each.

Ottawa scorers were Ed Cloutier and Steve Aubrey with two each, and Bill Fox with one.

Kitchener Rangers scored four goals in the third period to defeat Ottawa 67s 5-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Friday and Niagara Falls Flyers defeated Montreal Canadiens 8-6 after trailing 3-1 in the opening of the final period.

Peter Shaw, Wayne Merrick and Byran McSheffrey replied for Ottawa.

Wayne King and Wayne Chrysler paced Niagara Falls with two goals each while Don Lever, Bill Stinson, Steve Stone and Morris Thasic scored one apiece.

Richard Martin led the Montreal scorers with two goals. Jocelyn Guevremont, Robert Lalonde, Andre St. Laurent and Bogden Podeiuski each scored once.

Guelph CMCs defeated Brantford Majors 6-4 in Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Friday night while in another game Welland Sabres and Chatham Maroons skated to a 3-3 tie.

In Guelph Rick Molinaro led the CMCs' attack with two goals while singles came from Kirt Bowman, Corky De Grasuw, John Vanbommeer and Dennis Nedow.

Voyageurs Continue Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian entries in the American Hockey League continued their winless ways at home Friday night in the only two games scheduled.

Baltimore Clippers tripped Montreal Voyageurs 5-3 while Cleveland Barons thwarted Quebec Aces 6-1. The losses were the third straight for both teams in the AHL's East Division.

Baltimore, with its third straight victory, leads the West Division with six points, two ahead of Cleveland and Rochester Americans.

Jean-Pierre Mallette and Rick McCann, with two goals each, paced the Clippers with Fred Spec notching the other. Ron Ramsbik, Brian Lavender and Bob Murdock shared the Montreal scoring.

Cleveland Barons scored three times in each of the first two periods en route to their victory of goals by Norm Beaudin, Bill Heindl, Ray Comeau, Barrie Meisner, Marshall Johnston and Bob Whitlock. Dennis Giannini tallied the lone Quebec goal to avert the shutout.

NEWMARKET, England (AP) — Nijinsky the wonder horse moves in the champion stakes here today with his American-owned hoping to wipe out the memory of his upset defeat in the Prix De L'Arc de Triomphe. British bookies made Nijinsky the odds-on favorite at 4-9 in the 1¼-mile flat race against seven other runners — the race that could climax a blazing career on the turf. If Nijinsky wins for American millionaire Charles W. Engelhard, the colt's total winnings will climb to more than $720,000. Nijinsky had won all his outings, until finishing second to Sassafras in the Paris race earlier this month. Lester Piggott, British champion jockey who rode Nijinsky to all his victories and his only defeat, will be aboard the favorite.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Challenger Chacho Castillo captured the bantamweight championship of the world Friday night, literally carving out a 14th-round knockout over previously-unbeaten champion Ruben Olivares.

Both fighters are from Mexico City.

Upstarts Compound Traffic Jam for Six Top Spots in NFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Football League goes into its fifth week Sunday with 11 teams tied for first place in five divisions, including seven upstart clubs who are out to prove they belong on top.

Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers, both picked to finish behind defending NFL champion Minnesota Vikings in the Central Division of the National Conference, have the most difficult task of holding their share of a three-way tie with the Vikings, all at 3-1.

Detroit, beaten for the first time last week by surprising Washington Redskins, travels to Cleveland for a clash with the Browns, the 3-1 leaders of the Central Division of the American Conference.

Green Bay has to take on the visiting Los Angeles Rams, certain to be an angry crew after their upset loss to San Francisco 49ers last week for their first loss in four games.

San Francisco, another surprise which pulled into a tie with the Rams in the Western Division of the National Conference, plays host to New Orleans Saints and is a strong favorite.

In the Eastern Division of the National Conference, surprising St. Louis Cardinals (3-1) are expected to keep at least a share of the top against winless Philadelphia Eagles but pre-season favorite Dallas Cowboys, also 3-1, square off against the Vikings at Minnesota.

In the American Conference, Denver Broncos remain the leaders in the West at 3-1, but the Broncos have a difficult assignment at home against Atlanta Falcons.

In the East, Baltimore Colts and Miami Dolphins, both surprises, are deadlocked at 3-1, but the Colts must play at New York where the pre-season favorite Jets are almost healthy again. Miami also could have trouble at Buffalo against the Bills.

In other games Sunday, Kansas City Chiefs play Cincinnati Bengals; Houston Oilers entertain Pittsburgh Steelers; San Diego Chargers will seek their first victory at Chicago against the Bears and New York Giants meet the Patriots at Boston.

Top and Bottom Settled, But Western Middle Muddled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First and last places in the Western Football Conference are clinched, but Canadian Football League action this weekend on the Prairies is a continuation of a fierce Calgary-Edmonton battle for second place.

Edmonton Eskimos, riding a five-game winning streak, meet the cellar-locked Winnipeg Blue Bombers today in Winnipeg, while Calgary Stampeders travel to Regina to take on the Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday.

Saskatchewan's 22 points virtually assure the club of first place and Blue Bombers, with four points on two wins and 10 losses, cannot catch either Calgary or Edmonton, both now tied for second with 14 points. British Columbia, in fourth place with 10 points, is idle this weekend.

Edmonton's Coach Ray Jauch is worried about the possibility of his team letting down after five straight wins, even though Eskimos have defeated Bombers in their last three encounters.

"Winnipeg has nothing to lose," said Jauch. "They'll try anything. We don't know what some of their new players can do."

One of Winnipeg's new players who will see limited action is halfback Dick Smith, obtained in a trade from Montreal Alouettes. Coach Jim Spavital said the amount Smith plays will depend on how much he can pick up by game time.

Doug Strong however, will start in Bombers' backfield in place of the injured Amos Van Pelt.

Eskimos will use fullback Jim Mankins, who was recently released by Ottawa Rough Riders, against Bombers.

Two kingpins, one each for Saskatchewan and Calgary, will be absent from the lineups Sunday in the Regina game, to be televised on the CFTO Western network, starting at 2 p.m. MST.

For Roughriders, fullback George Reed, for five consecutive years a Canadian all-star, is out until playoffs in mid-November with a fractured leg.

And Stampeder quarterback Jerry Keeling still is in hospital with cracked ribs and a bruised kidney he suffered in a game against Montreal two weeks ago. Keeling may be out until the start of the playoffs, but the Calgary club has refused to confirm or deny the report.

Rookie quarterback Larry Lawrence will make his second start in the Sunday game.

Said Calgary coach Jim Duncan: "He did a fine job last week against Edmonton."

"He made some mistakes which is quite typical for a rookie — we might have won the game if not for a dropped punt."

It was Edmonton's 16-13 victory last Monday that pulled them into the second-place tie.

Golf's Million Dollar Winner

TILT THOSE SHOULDERS

While it may seem natural, the "slicer" golf swing (one that is too flat) won't improve your scores. To former baseball players the sidearm swing seems more comfortable, but it won't work in golf.

When the swing is too flat, the clubface comes physically be swung along the intended line at impact. It approaches the ball from too far inside, then swings back inside immediately after impact.

The more upright shoulder tilt during the swing will get you into correct upright swing. This allows you to move the clubhead along the target line (illustration) for a longer period of time. The result is greatly increased accuracy.

Girard Blows Way to Win

KITCHENER (CP) — Ken Girard of Toronto Summit held a four-stroke lead Friday going into the final 18 holes of the 36-hole Canadian Professional Golfers' Association of Ontario tournament at Kitchener Westmount.

And he needed that cushion when, like the gusty winds that swept the course, he blew to a six-over-par 76 and a one-stroke victory over Leon DeCaire of Buttonville and Dave Clayton of Toronto Donalda.

Girard, battling similar weather Thursday, had a spectacular 68 and finished the two-day tournament with a 147 total. Clayton, who won four strokes off the pace after the first 18 holes, also failed to get his game going Friday and wound up at 148 with DeCaire.

Tied at 149 were two other Toronto-area pros, Jack Kay of Rosedale and Bobby Breen of Malton. Breen's 74 was the low score of the day.

It was 34 degrees when the first players teed off and most of them were out on the course when snow blew across the course for about 15 minutes.

It was too cold for veteran Moe Norman of Clifford. Tied for third at 73 Thursday, Norman decided not to continue play in the unpleasant weather Friday.

"It's too cold. I don't need the money," said the Kitchener native.

Knudson Defending Well

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — Defending champion George Knudson of Toronto shot a third round 72 today to take a one-stroke lead in the Wills Masters golf tournament.

The 72 gave Knudson a three-round total of 214, one stroke ahead of Bill Brask of the United States. Bruce Devlin of Australia, Brian Barnes of the U.S. and Terry Kendall of New Zealand were grouped at 216.

Knudson said he putted poorly and was lucky to be in the lead. He shot three birdies but went over par on three other holes.

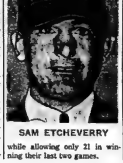
Knudson's par-72 today came after earlier rounds of 73 and 70. Most players are having difficulty breaking par on the Kingsthorpe 7,087-yard Australia Club course.

The tour carries prize money of $20,000 Australian, or about $23,265 Canadian.

Knudson entered the third round two shots behind Kendall, but caught him quickly. The New Zealand World Cup player missed the green at the 16th-yard second hole and went one under, while Knudson dropped a 15-footer for a birdie.

Etcheverry Wary of Argos Despite Previous Successes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS



Sam Etcheverry knows his Montreal Alouettes have beaten Toronto Argonauts twice this season but he also recognizes that Argos are an improved club for their meeting Sunday.

"We've played well against Toronto," said the Montreal coach as the Als prepared to defend their lead in the Eastern Football Conference race. "But you always know they are going to be tough.

"They have a lot of talent, and they've made changes since the last time we played.

"Now they've got Jim Corrigall at middle linebacker and Dick Thornton is back in there in place of Don Sutherin. They are healthier all round on defence."

Another change Etcheverry didn't mention was the fact Argos have scored 81 points while allowing only 21 in winning their last two games.

SAM ETCHEVERRY

"Toronto can score. We just have to hold the ball, move it, and score more than they do. And watch out for Marv Luster — he covers a lot of ground back there."

The Als go into Sunday's encounter at Toronto with a two-point lead over the Argos.

But Hamilton Tiger-Cats, also two points back, could catch up to the Als with a victory today over the last-place Rough Riders in Ottawa.

Today's game will be televised on the CBC eastern network and Sunday's on the CTV eastern circuit. Both games have kickoff time set for 2 p.m. EDT.

After this weekend, remaining games see Ottawa at Montreal, Toronto at Hamilton, Ottawa at Toronto and Hamilton at Montreal.

Orioles' Cuellar Picked For All-baseball All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Cuellar, winning pitcher for Baltimore Orioles in the final game of the World Series against Cincinnati Reds, and team-mate Boog Powell were named to the 1970 Associated Press all-star baseball team Friday.

Cuellar was selected as the left-handed pitcher and Powell as the first baseman in the annual poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

Chicago Cubs landed two players, the first team, second baseman Glenn Beckert and outfielder Billy Williams.

Others picked were shortstop Luis Aparicio of Chicago White Sox, outfielders Rico Carty of Atlanta Braves and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates, and right-handed pitcher Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals.

Other second team members included Tommy Helms of Atlanta Braves, second base; series hero Brooks Robinson of the Orioles, third base; Don Kessinger of the Cubs, shortstop; Harmon Killebrew Minnesota, first base; Hank Aaron of the Braves and Pete Rose of the Reds, outfield; Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians, left-handed pitcher; and Jim Perry of Minnesota Twins, right-handed pitcher.

Carleton Netters Clean Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Carleton University of Ottawa made a clean sweep of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association championship tennis tournament Friday at the weekend defending champion University of Toronto.

Toronto won the Western Division title and Carleton the Eastern Division in tournaments last week.

Marinus Wits of Carlton defeated Don Steele of the University of Toronto 6-0, 6-3, 8-6, 7-5 for the singles championship.

Wits and Paul Henry combined to defeat Steele and Peter Cho 6-3, 6-0 for the doubles title.

In teams championship play Carelton won 4-2, Henry defeated Chow 6-2,7-5; Wits defeated Steele 5-7, 6-2, 6-2; Murray Whittaker defeated Brian Robinson 1-6, 6-2, 6-4 and Terry McNally of Toronto defeated Mike Puchny 6-3, 4-6, 6-0 in teams singles matches.

In teams doubles, Robinson and McNally defeated Whittaker and Puchny 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 and Goubles championship match of Wits-Henry against Steele-Chow stood as the other teams match.

Home-breds Become Popular.

Maritime Railbirds Like to Identify

HALIFAX (CP) — Harness racing fans are no different from fans of any other sport.

"They like to identify," says Jack Cruickshank, general manager of Sackville Downs Ltd. near here, one of the Maritimes' largest harness racing operations.

The recent growth in Maritime-bred harness horses is believed to be the key to the sport's success in the region. Cruickshank estimates there are more than 400 Maritime-bred two- and three-year-olds available for racing this year.

The race fans in the Maritimes now can start following these colts and fillies when they are two-year-olds, Cruickshank says, and can stay with them through their racing careers.

As hockey fans follow youngsters through the amateur ranks and on to professional leagues, Cruickshank says, "most of the horses in the Maritimes are well known to race fans, and there is the added interest and enjoyment for the fans in watch the progress of the progeny of their old favorites who have since retired to stud."

At one time the Maritimes were considered a prime market for the aged, broken-down pacers and trotters from the eastern United States.

Says Cruickshank: "This is no longer the case due to the rather prodigious growth in local breeding stocks."

The growth in the Maritime stallion population is cited as another encouraging factor. "Twenty years ago there was only a handful of acceptable studs available, and most of them were on Prince Edward Island.

"This year alone, there are 132 stallions registered with the Atlantic Sires Stakes, and while P.E.I. remains the principal breeding grounds, there now are 31 registered stallions in Nova Scotia."

Cruickshank says that many of the stallions now producing colts and fillies for racing at Sackville Downs were the top attractions at the track not so many years ago.

He sees continued encouragement and improved breeding for Maritime horses as the key to the increasing growth and popularity of the sport.

"While harness racing is primarily a sport, the increase in the number of racing dates available and the increasing purses being paid are allowing horse people here to develop their own stock."

A number of fairly large and sophisticated breeding farms have emerged in the Maritimes during the last few years, and the trend is expected to increase as the sport and the dollars grow, he predicts.

Mo-Hawks Don't Use Low-priced Spread

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Fortunately for 1,422 Memorial Arena spectators Friday night, Mo-Hawk coach Dave Jones knows which side his bread is buttered on.

Jones reunited last year's "bread - and - butter" forward combination of George Godson, Al Ferguson, and Lorne O'Donnell for the first time that season and the strategy paid off.

The trio, who accounted for 59 of the Mo-Hawks' 134 regular - season goals last winter, were on the ice for four more Friday as the locals came up with a big 5-3 win over visiting Galt Hornets.

Jones, who had been experimenting Doug Senior as centre on the line, shrugged. "What can you do. They were clicking out there so it's hard to break them up."

Godson's goal, at 4.09 of the final period came on a three-way play from his linemates and proved to be the winner.

Defenseman Greg Marconett, off to his best offensive — and defensive — start in five Mo-Hawk winters, took a Godson pessout and pumped his second goal of the game into an empty net for insurance at 19.52 with veteran "Boat" Hurley pulled for an extra Galt attacker.

For ten minutes prior to that, the Mo-Hawks delighted their supporters by contesting themselves with dumping the puck into the Galt end and protecting their one-goal edge.

"That should teach the fellas something," said Jones afterwards. "If you keep dumping the puck in, your defencemen stay up, and your forwards stick with their wings, the other team's got to make a mistake.

"And that's the name of the game."

The Mo-Hawks made the game's first mistake early in the opening period when Vance Millar pounded on a rebound and tucked a 1-0 lead behind rookie goalkeeper Callum MacPhee with Bob Wilson serving an elbowing minor.

Ferguson and O'Donnell gave the homeowners a 2-1 edge on powerplay goals before the period ended.

Jones was infuriated with second - period Galt goals by Pete Bettiol and Bruce Reier that tied the game 3-3 after Greg Marchen's point blast early in the frame had given the Mo-Hawks a 3-1 spread.

"We handed them those two goals," fumed Jones. "Both times we had a manpower advantage in our own zone and they took the puck away from us."

Steady goaltending by Mac-Phee in the chippy second period helped keep the Mo-Hawks' share of the tie. The 23 - year - old Maritimer had 41 shots to handle in his first regular - season start, compared with the 28 shots the Mo-Hawks levelled at Hurley. Following his promising start, MacPhee informed general manager Robert Temple he may have to leave the area to accept a New Brunswick teaching job unless he can come up with local employment. MacPhee earned an arts BA from St. Thomas College, where he starred in the Maritime Intercollegiate Hockey League.

The other new faces in the Belleville lineup — Val d'or tryouts Gerdan Higgins and Serge Fournier — tested their senior hockey legs with mod-erate success.

Fairway Rookies Striking Paydirt

TRENTON — Good scoring mileage from their rookies was the sparkplug in the Belleville Junior B Fairways' attack Friday night. Newcomers accounted for eight goals in a hard - fought 9-7 exhibition win over Trenton's Golden Hawks.

Dave Smith led the Fairway point parade with three goals and an assist. Defenceman Tim Vohn contributed a goal and assist, as did winger Dave Ferguson. Other rookies who found the range were Doug James, Cliff Janitsch and Joe Clarke.

Returnee Danny Lapenetta scored once, and assisted on two other goals for the Fairways who were on the short end of a 3-2 score after 40 minutes, led 5-3 after the second frame, and matched Trenton's four third-period tallies.

Big gun for the Golden Hawks was midget graduate Steve Leech, who performed the hat trick, with two of the goals coming 22 seconds apart as Trenton pressed in the game's waning minutes.

Mike Slaven, Blm McFall, Bill Hazelwood, and Jeff Howard accounted for the other Trenton scoring.

Ron Jury went all the way in the Belleville net, with Corey Webb handling Golden Hawk goaltending.

Trojans Make Sure

The Moira Trojans, both senior and junior clinched at least tied for first place in their Bay of Quinte High School football divisions as they trampled Centre Hastings opposition by identical 60-0 scores.

Jim Lennox was the big gun for the Moira Seniors, scoring four touchdowns. Degis Gorsline counted for two while Bob Green and Rob Matthews each registered once. Tony Goncalves picked up five converts and a field goal. The duo also caught Centre Hastings for two safety touches.

Pete Stallkovich led the Juniors with three TD's and a pair of two-point conversions. Dave Rutherford and Steve Kirby had two majors apiece. John Loder and Dave Sullivan each picked up six points with Loder also getting a two-point conversion.

Five years ago, who'd have thought there'd be a Volkswagen this different?

The Super Beetle.

Nobody did. Least of all us.
Because 5 years ago, we thought the Beetle was virtually perfect.
But, because we've never been able to leave well enough alone, over 1000 improvements have been made to it since.
Like a whole new front suspension system. A bigger, more powerful engine. A new heating system that now has two heaters and a total of 7 different outlets. And a new ventilation system.
There's now a rear window defogger. A trunk that carries twice as much as ever. A wider track for an even better ride. And bigger brakes for quicker stops.
The end product of all this nit-picking? The 1971 Super Beetle.
There's never been another car like it. And that includes Volkswagens.

Commons' Rare Saturday Session To Debate Validity of Enactment

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's unprecedented invoking of the War Measures Act against Quebec terrorists took the Commons today into a rare Saturday session to debate the drastic step.

As police raids swept Quebec Friday in the wake of unleashed threat arbitrary powers that outlawed the Front de Libération du Quebec, cabinet ministers sought to reassure a troubled Commons.

Conservatives and the NDP joined in deploring the step as overkill hazardous to civil liberties despite an admitted threat to Canadian security. But the government drew Creditiste support.

"We know there is an organization which has thousands of guns and millions of rounds of guns in its hands, bombs and enough dynamite, at least 2,000 pounds, to blow up the centre of Montreal," declared Economic Expansion Minister Jean Marchand.

Prime Minister Trudeau's chief Quebec lieutenant said FLQ membership might number up to 3,000, some of which have infiltrated many of the Quebec institutions, including top posts.

Justice Minister John Turner referred to the still-unsolved FLQ kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister — the terrorist acts precipitating the first peacetime use of the War Measures Act.

The FLQ sought to become "totalitarian master in Quebec and maybe farther than that," he said.

Prime Minister Trudeau, defending government policy in the Commons and later nationally via television, said Quebec revolutionaries use bombing, murder and kidnapping in trying to tumble the social order.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said they had been consulted in advance but withheld approval.

Mr. Stanfield said it might have been wiser to employ a less drastic measure in the government's bid to smoke out the kidnappers and their FLQ colleagues.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, however, said the two Liberal leaders were playing politics. All three spoke after Mr. Trudeau's statement for the government on television.

Mr. Douglas said the day would go down in Canadian history as "the black Friday of civil liberties."

The government had not even used the powers it had under the Criminal Code of Canada to deal with the FLQ, and if it did need more it should come to Parliament for emergency legislation.

Under the federal action, a Canadian could receive a five-year jail term for belonging to the FLQ or a terrorist group, for attending an FLQ meeting or assisting an FLQ member in any way.

Mr. Trudeau said Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa and Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal had informed him the extraordinary powers were needed to meet the threat of an "apprehended insurrection."

The prime minister introduced a motion seeking Commons approval for the government action on the understanding that the powers would be revoked by April 30, 1971, unless the House granted an extension.

The debate continued until 10 p.m. Friday. There will be a vote on the motion Monday.

In an impassioned speech, Mr. Marchand said that in Quebec now "there is no more freedom, people no longer wish to go out, they are afraid."

He said FLQ members could cause irreparable damage to the Quebec and federal states and the city of Montreal.

While certain aspects of the crackdown measures were "odious," critics of the government did not know the true situation.

"Those who are well protected behind the fireplace or even in the centre of Toronto don't know what is happening in Quebec right now."

Mr. Marchand said FLQ cells have contacted each other by speeches on radio which in fact were coded messages.

Mr. Turner said that a "surrender" to the terrorist demands would have "invited escalation-hostage for another hostage for criminal." No exchange of criminals for kidnap victims would have solved the problem.

David Lewis (N.D.P.—York South) said the government's reason for invoking the War Measures Act—the element of surprise permitting rapid arrest of FLQ members—had disappeared by Friday as the action was public.

The government was trying to create an atmosphere of panic by invoking the War Measures Act in the middle of night.

"What we are faced with is a thoroughly authoritarian order.

"We need evidence of the necessity for so drastic a measure, so undemocratic a measure," he said.

However, Mr. Lewis said there was no one in the House who did not detest the actions of the FLQ.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said the rights of Canadians are in cold storage for several months. He contested the need to invoke the War Measures Act when more limited legislation might have better accomplished the government's aim.

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River) also said that legislative changes would have been better than using the War Measures Act.

Guy Leblanc (L—Rimouski) said constituents in his Quebec riding are unhappy with the CBC for being "extremely partial" to terrorist groups.

Martial Asselin (PC—Charlevoix) called on Quebec a "silent majority" to declare support for federalism.

Ringing in Ear Often Stubborn

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My ears ring. I also hear hissing and buzzing noises. Sometimes I get dizzy. Naturally, it frightens me.

I am only in my early 50s and otherwise am strong and healthy. The trouble began a few months ago after I had an attack of flu. It's making me nervous because it's with me, on and off, all day. It interferes with my getting to sleep at night.

My doctor says there's really not much he can do for me. Wouldn't you think an examination by an ear specialist might help? — Mrs K.

Comment: I believe your doctor will refer you to a specialist. Most of us know that "tinnitus" can be stubborn. Therefore we look for all the help we can get to overcome it.

In some patients help comes quickly. We discover, for example, that an infection like the flu may affect the inner ear and cause dizziness and an assortment of peculiar sounds. In some patients, getting down on salt intake is sufficient to bring improvement.

Some people with hum blood pressure have relieved of their tinnitus by prescribing drugs to lower the pressure. On the other hand, I recall quite a few patients whose tinnitus was due to sensitivity to certain medicines. Therefore your doctors will have to review your recent medicine intake.

As I said, tinnitus is often hard to overcome. In all such times that the patient hears the depressing prognosis: "You'll have to learn to live with it."

One of my colleagues suffered from tinnitus for two years. He had access to the best of medicine's physicians and therapists. Nothing seemed to help.

But one day, months after he had stopped taking treatment, the buzzing and clicking sounds in his ears disappeared. He never had a recurrence. Never knew why it came or why it went away. So you see, Mrs. K., not all patients with tinnitus should consider it an absolutely hopeless condition. Learn to live with it and you may become one of the fortunate ones who live without it. Meanwhile, be sure to get an opinion from an ear specialist.

For Mrs. O.: The prediction that you will have a boy baby? Mostly guesswork. Some doctors believe that it's likely to be a boy if the fetal heart beat is slower and stronger. It doesn't invariably work out that way. Tossing a coin might be just as effective. Even if the doctor had guessed wrong many parents forget his prediction because they are so happy to have the baby — boy or girl.

For Mrs. H.: There is a vaccine available to protect against birth defects in a baby with Rh positive blood to be born of a mother with Rh negative blood. The vaccine prevents the mother from producing antibodies that attack the baby's tissues. For further information ask your obstetrician.

* * *

For Mrs. N.: I do not agree that most mothers cuddle their babies too much. Just picking the baby down in its crib and shoving a bottle of milk into its mouth (your method) is not real motherly childcare. More than a routine, this absence of warm contact between your youngster and yourself may cause some physical or psychological problems later in life.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 18

Your birthday today: A year of relative peace opens, in which you can achieve spiritual and psychic development and bring your living conditions into more austere simplicity. Divest yourself of encumbrances, time consuming things which do not produce direct benefits. Find a new owner for unused possession. Relationships sort themselves out: some of them are outgrown by year's end. Today's natives are watchful, prudent, and usually a bit ahead of their time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Bright ideas pop up readily. Get an early, creative start on the day. If you usually make, explore some new directions or receive developments. Make a full day of it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Mental pursuits are favored now. Get a little away from the general crowd; think, line up subjects, construct plans. Spend your evening in meditation.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Creative projects will lead to new contacts, possibly romantic. Errands cheerfully undertaken can bring exceptional side-effects. Resist any temptation to be silly or superficial.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Helping seldom - seen friends brings you the chance to see life from a different perspective, to learn some mystical truth. Confidential matters can be expanded in privacy.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Catch up on your visiting of friends. Your your neighborhood to see the progress of major events. Celebrate with a bit of entertainment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Make this a sociable Sunday. Compare notes and come to your own decisions about your activities. Your planning takes a spontaneous leap forward this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 21): Your curiosity should be aroused; this is a time for pursuit of unfamiliar knowledge. Don't neglect your loved ones without some explanation — a few words are helpful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22—Nov. 21): Present your most cheerful and sensible side now. Do your part in the local confusion. In the course of the day you hear information of real interest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Go along with your companions' wishes, taking no more and no less than your share of anything. Your group expands, perhaps to include some new people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Just when everything seems dull, something happens to arouse your curiosity. Learn all you can without spoiling the good humor of this calm Sunday.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Consider today a vacation from your usual concerns, seek intellectual refreshment. Sentimental interests may take an unexpectedly happy turn.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): There is much to do, but nothing of any striking significance. Put things in right& early. Make your friends win you by visiting; then bring them home for entertaining.

For October 19

Your birthday today: View all that you do in the coming year as a fresh beginning, and work upward with present resources. Your experiments will undoubtedly involve difficult decisions which will lead to have been doing will have to be dropped or reorganized. Social contacts are less active. Today's natives aspire to leadership, are willing to try again and again through many defeats until they arrive.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You find today that you are thinking in circles around some who needed your help. Be patient and relax early. Your work is probably more strenuous than usual, so get assistance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Creativity raises vivid images of what could be under different conditions. Leave financial arrangements alone; stay within your budget — even so, you may run into a squabble.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Sudden move throws people off balance; be sure you are not the offender. Help straighten out confusion only if you are involved. Work and health factors are strongly favorable.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Try to be loving your ideas and originality, even if it's nonly a diagram. Pay no attention to criticism from people against change. Offers of secret advantages are unreliable.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Don't confide financial details to friends, nor attempt to get them to invest in your ventures. Look to outsiders and be free of entanglements later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Heavy stress on details can spoil your discussions with associates. Touch upon the main points; be ready to make adjustments. Fresh contacts show you new ways for getting results quicker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Temporary errors are bound to happen today. Other people's plans and yours run collision courses. At the last minute help is available if you are patient and peaceful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Artistic pursuits compete with serious business, perhaps for the better. Friends are very helpful where asked. The development of new resources awaits better circumstances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You have something working for you that is beyond casual observation — make the most of it. Sharing of anything is a delicate experience — enjoy being grateful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Every turn comes with a thump or a lump today, strongly up or hard to miss. Strive for balance, don't penalize anyone for what somebody else has failed to do for your benefit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your urge is to try to buy more than you can afford. What is needed is co-operation to allocate the issues. Aside from this, it's a marvelously potent day of new ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This is a mixed day of competing demands on your attention and sympathies. Influential people are favorably disposed, the problem being to get their attention.

Doctors' Return Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — About 2,000 striking Quebec doctors, facing possible legal action today, have been urged by their union executive to resume their practices.

The Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists called on all its members in a letter Friday night to obey the Quebec government's return to work order —Bill 41—and end their nine-day withdrawal of services.

The government order was issued Thursday in a tough bid to end the dragged-out dispute over implementation of Quebec's long-awaited medical care insurance plan. The plan is to come into effect Nov. 1.

Bill 41 threatened fines and even imprisonment for individual doctors and federation executives if the medical specialists haven't returned to work by today.

Doctors would be liable to fines ranging from $250 to $500 for each day they remained on strike after today. The federation would face fines of $5,000 to $50,000 and its executive members imprisonment for up to a year if the order was defied.

The government softened the blow, however, by enacting amendments to the disputed insurance legislation. Its major concession was an amendment allowing doctors to withdraw from the plan but still receive compensation for services rendered.

Three-quarters of the province's 4,000 medical specialists withdrew all but emergency services Oct. 8 to protest the medical care law, passed last July 15.

They objected to the lack of an opting out mechanism in the plan and to fee scales.

Earlier Friday, the Quebec health department said in its daily report it expects the crisis in Quebec hospitals to subside by Monday.

Supertankers May Be Banned From North

HALIFAX (CP) — Further supertanker voyages through the Northwest Passage are unlikely to get federal government sanction for perhaps five years.

This became clear with the return here Friday of the oceanographic vessels Hudson and Baffin with preliminary results of their investigations of unexpected shoals in the area the Manhattan passed through earlier in the year.

Federal Energy Minister J. J. Greene, here to welcome Hudson upon her 11-month voyage around North and South America, told a news conference that he doubts whether the supertanker Manhattan could win federal approval for a voyage because of the danger to the environment of an oil cargo.

Scientists found one shoal that would have holed the Manhattan last spring, 1½ miles off the supertanker's route during her voyage through the Northwest Passage.

"With that evidence I doubt very much if Canadian permission could be granted (for a cargo-carrying supertanker) because of the danger to the environment," Mr. Greene said.

The shoals or underwater plugs had been reported earlier by the John A. Macdonald, the Canadian icebreaker that accompanied Manhattan, but were thoroughly investigated only this summer.

The oceanographic vessels Hudson and Baffin from the Bedford Institute at neighboring Dartmouth, and their sister ship from Nanaimo, B.C., the Parizeau, began a major underwater survey that will be part of a five-year program.

Dr. W. M. Cameron, marine sciences director, energy, mines and resources department, said the shallow waters discovery "made us realize the blanks in our knowledge" of arctic waters.

For the next five years, one of the survey ships will operate in the arctic. Hudson's Arctic program, planned long before her departure from here 11 months ago, was revised for participation in the major effort to produce better navigation charts.

While the program will concentrate on crucial areas that arctic shipping would be expected to use, it must range farther than a similar program would in southern waters.

"It's not enough to know and plan a specific route in northern sailing," Dr. Cameron said. "You have to adjust your course to the movement of ice which may dictate a route that is not the logical one."

Farmers To Pay Taxes

Toronto (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture announced Friday it is withdrawing a request to its 8,000 direct and 100,000 indirect members to withhold the education portion of their property taxes.

The request went out late last month after mounting complaints by farmers over high property taxes.

Gordon Hill, president of the OFA, said the federation decided to lift its moratorium in response to an assurance by the provincial government that Ontario farmers will receive a rebate of 25 per cent of their property taxes this year.

Mr. Hill said the withholding move, although it never got into full swing, was a triumph for farmers and the federation. He said a mail poll of OFA members showed that most are prepared to go along with the property tax rebate as a first step to solving their tax problems.

Farmers say they have an unfair tax deal because they are being taxed on their home, lot, acreage and barns while city dwellers only pay taxes on their homes and lots. They say some farmers have to pay up to $1,000 a year more in property taxes than city dwellers with the same income.

About half the money raised through property taxes is used by municipalities to pay their 49-per-cent share of education costs.

The OFA has asked the provincial government to assume 100 per cent of the education bill instead of 51 per cent as at present, and lift the education portion of property taxes from farming land completely.

Mr. Hill said the federation will continue to press the province for changes in the property tax structure along the lines of the OFA proposals.

David Nopkins, information officer of the OFA, said the government's tax concession is worth about $200 million to the Ontario farming community, or up to $400 to individual farmers.

Manhunt Under Way For Kidnap Suspects

The Faces of Grief

Montrealers, young and old, line up in freezing winds Sunday night to pay their last respects to Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, whose body lies in state until the funeral Tuesday. Mr. Laporte was killed Saturday by his kidnappers.

Safety Offer Stands

MONTREAL (CP) — A government offer to give terrorist kidnappers of British diplomat James Cross safe passage to Cuba stands today, despite the murder Saturday of a second kidnap victim, Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Police Sunday issued warrants for the arrest of Marc Carbonneau, 21, a taxi driver, and Paul Rose, 27, a teacher, charging them with kidnapping in both cases. Both are Canadians "whose mother tongue is French.

Public reaction in Quebec and the rest of Canada to the assassination of Mr. Laporte, second-ranking figure in the Quebec cabinet, was united in condemning the act. Support for government action in rooting out the FLQ was hardening.

A letter from Mr. Cross Sunday said he was still alive and asked authorities to arrange for his release by meeting the main ransom demand of the Front de Liberation du Quebec—passage to Cuba or Algeria for 23 "political prisoners."

Mr. Cross, 49, was kidnapped at his Montreal home two weeks ago today.

Mr. Laporte, also 49, was killed at 6:18 p.m. EDT Saturday, a week almost to the minute after his abduction from his St. Lambert home on the south shore of the St. Lawrence across from Montreal.

An autopsy report was to be issued later today on whether he died from a bullet or from strangulation.

Negotiations between the government and a spokesman for the kidnappers collapsed Thursday night and the government Friday invoked the War Measures Act, outlawed the FLQ and gave police power to arrest without

House Empty

Police Find Laporte Hideout

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP) — Police today charged into an empty house they believe was the hideout where kidnappers held Pierre Laporte for a week before killing him Saturday.

Detective-Sergeant Albert Lizack of the provincial police said "we got an indication" from a neighbor that one of two men sought on warrants was in the house.

Descriptions and photos of the two men, Paul Rose, 27, and Marc Carbonneau, 37, were distributed Sunday, several hours after the body of Mr. Laporte, Quebec labor minister, was found in the trunk of a car parked behind a St. Hubert airport hangar a half-mile from the house

The warrants for Carbonneau and Rose say they are wanted for the kidnappings of Mr. Laporte Oct. 10 outside his St. Lambert home and British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross Oct. 5 from his Montreal home.

A note from Mr. Cross earlier Sunday said he was alive but still in the captivity of the separatist-terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Sgt. Lisacek said it was thought Rose might have been in the St. Hubert house. He told reporters:

"A light was on when I arrived. I knocked and there was no answer. I broke down two doors. You have to do that because maybe there is a guy behind a door and he might plug you."

The house was empty and Sgt. Lisacek then called in army demolition experts to search the building for any dynamite booby-traps.

Stanley Gardner, a neighbor, said he noticed strange goings-on recently at the house in this town eight miles south of Montreal.

"They came in at odd hours," he said. "They had more cars and friends than usual."

He described the occupants as two men and a girl who looked "between hippies and ordinaries." But "this is all a surprise to me."

Sgt. Lasacek said "we believe it is where Laporte was held." There was blood on the floor and signs of physical violence when he entered the frame bungalow.

None of the neighbors seemed to recall seeing the car in which Mr. Laporte's body was found. It was the same car used to abduct him from the driveway of his St. Lambert home, a few miles north of here and across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal.

Sgt. Lisacek said the house was "very messy" with "chicken bones all over the place."

He added: "Let's just say that what's in there will help us in our investigation."

He said the army demolition crew was taking no chances that dynamite bombs may have been planted in the building.

Shortly after. 6 a.m. there were some explosions in the house but Sgt. Lisacek explained:

"We use little charge to make doors fall off hinges in case they are booby-trapped."

Sgt. Lisacek said a hole had been punched into a wall separating the house from an attached garage and the kidnappers apparently used that entrance way.

"They drove the car into the garage and broke the wall down into the house," he said.

Sgt. Lisacek said demolition experts were suspicious of a trunk in the house when they arrived. It had sleeves from closing sticking out and could have contained dynamite.

"They didn't like the looks of the trunk," he said. "But we broke it open anyway."

Mourners File Past Coffin

MONTREAL (CP) — Long lines of citizens Sunday began filing past the coffin of Quebec's murdered labor minister, Pierre Laporte, lying in state in the courthouse next to Montreal's city hall.

The bells of Notre Dame Church, where funeral services will be held at 4 p.m. Tuesday, tolled out across the area.

Those who came to pay their last respects buttoned coats tight around themselves while waiting outside in 40-degree temperatures.

Mr. Laporte, 49, was kidnapped from his suburban St. Lambert home Oct. 10 by the separatist-terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec and was killed Saturday. His body was found in the trunk of a car.

Thousands gathered behind barricades Sunday evening before they were allowed to move inside the courthouse past the half-open coffin, draped with the Quebec flag and flanked by an honor guard of four provincial policemen.

Police Check Every Car

MONTREAL (CP) — Roadblocks have been set up at all bridges linking Montreal Island with the south shore in the hope of catching two men wanted for the kidnapping of British trade commissioner James (Jasper) Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, whose body was found Sunday.

A police spokesman said every car leaving the island is being checked thoroughly.

Legislation To Be Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Government House Leader Allan MacEachen announced today short-term legislation to replace the sweeping emergency powers proclaimed last Friday under the War Measures Act will be introduced before the end of the month.

Syrian Coup Brings Guerrilla Crackdown

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria's new military ruler is cracking down on the Palestine Arab guerrillas the previous Marxist regime sponsored, Arab diplomatic sources reported today.

The diplomats said Gen. Hafez Al-Assad of the air force, Syria's defence minister, has closed down the Damascus headquarters of the Saika guerrillas and ordered the central committee of the Palestine Resistance Movement to suspend its membership.

Saika guerrillas returning to Syria from Jordan are being disarmed at the border and shipped off to detention areas in northern Syria, the sources said. They reported Assad has put Syria under military control, paralyzing the Baath Socialist party government.

Assad forced Dr. Noureddin Atassi to resign as president and premier of Syria Saturday.

Assad's coup is believed to have resulted from the Syrian invasion of Jordan during the civil war there last month. Assad opposed the intervention and refused to give it air cover.

Terrorists 'Beneath Contempt'

OTTAWA (CP) — To echoing applause from all sides of the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau said today Quebec terrorists are trying to destroy the nation but "they will not succeed."

He made the statement at the opening of a grieving Commons session that paid tribute to the assassinated Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Trudeau said the brutal and cowardly slaying of the Quebec labor minister shows the "moral wasteland" occupied by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The FLQ was trying to turn Canadian against Canadian and to inspire fear and hatred and thereby destroy the country.

But Canadians had known freedom and practised tolerance too long to allow themselves to be dominated by criminals.

Looking drawn and tired after an anguished weekend Mr. Trudeau said Mr. Laporte had devoted his life to the betterment of the people of Quebec.

Canada Reacts with Shame Over Actions of 'Mad Dog Killers'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A call for unity echoed above the sounds of indignation and sadness across Canada Sunday following the killing Saturday of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

There was even a call for the government to take "these leaders . . . before a firing squad and warn them that unless they tell everything . . . they will lose th livez, for each of their assassinations."

That pronouncement came from the Federal Credibiale leader, Real Caouette, who also called the terrorists "unscrupulous killers."

Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart of Alberta said Canadians find it difficult to believe the killing could happen in this country and that "those responsible are mad dogs and should be treated as such."

Mr. Laporte, 49, had been kidnapped in front of his home a week earlier and five days after British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross, also 49, was kidnapped from his home. Authorities say they believe Mr. Cross is still alive.

Prime Minister Trudeau's repeated calls to Canadians to remain calm and united were echoed by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Sunday.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, urged an intensified manhunt for the terrorists responsible for "such a dastardly and heinous crime."

There was even a call for the needed to cast a pall of shame over the crime, with most leaders expressing sadness or even disbelief. Premier John Robarts of Ontario said it might give "some indication of the senseless type of person with whom we are dealing."

Premier Robert Bourassa, in a statement early Sunday, said the Quebec labor minister was a "victim of terrifying hatred that Quebecers have not experienced before."

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau said he hopes this tragedy "will open the eyes of people generally and give to all men in public office the courage to continue serving the people."

There was no denying the act, set in motion a unifying force across the nation.

From Premier Joseph Smallwood in Newfoundland, who said it "has shamed all Canadians in the eyes of the world," to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson of British Columbia, who said it removed "any doubts as to whether we should be soft," the feeling was one of support for federal unity.

"We can only hope that R speda doom for the FLQ (Front de Liberation du Quebec) terrorism in Canada," Mr. Smallwood elaborated.

And Mr. Peterson said: "Our full resources will be used in this province as in all other provinces in Canada to maintain law and order."

Attack on Pollution

Robert Andrus, president of the Quinte Labor Council, was one of the instigators of the Pollution Seminar Saturday at Loyalist College where Norman Pearson (right) of Guelph University decried the "frontier mentality" that has created the pollution problem.

Pollution Conference Speaker Raps Our 'Frontier Mentality'

Pollution is a matter of attitude, a University of Guelph professor told delegates at a joint Quinte Labor Council - Loyalist College pollution seminar here Saturday.

Saying the "frontier mentality" that got us into this state and will be the end of us," Norman Pearson, chairman of the centre for resources development at Guelph said that "rationality is the way out".

About 150 Quinte district residents registered for the all - day event at Loyalist. Another 50 "resource people" from business, industry and educational institutions were on hand to offer assistance to groups formed after the keynote address to discuss specific pollution issues.

Mr. Pearson stressed the importance of individual action in overcoming pollution.

"I have a basic faith in the parliamentary processes by which individual responsibility can be translated into collective action," he said.

The pollution problem exists today, he said, because man exercised his might unthinkingly.

"We have behaved as though we were set aside to have dominion over everything — we didn't see ourselves as animals, part of the web of life."

The fight to save the earth's environment involves education on a broad front of information and a change in attitude, the speaker said.

"The technical answers to pollution are known," he claimed. "As we add more people to the world we add more pollution. We have got to stop adding people, and we now have means of population control.

"Our standard of living cannot work. We have enough resources left in the world to do the job."

People were only spurred into action against pollution when it appeared that "the promise of this age of affluence might be cut off".

As an example, Mr. Pearson cited the serious pollution of lakes and rivers, saying that Canadians now face a lifetime of being cut off from commercial and recreational use of their waters.

"All pollution has always been illegal," he said. "But the laws were never powerful enough and never enforced."

He advocated a shift in the electorates' attitude toward government.

"Elect people who will do the job — a government that will govern. Don't abuse a government and then have to push it to do what we want."

Intelligent management of the environment is not as difficult as it seems, the speaker claimed.

"In Canada, we are talking about building a pollution-free environment — in Sweden they are doing it."

Mr. Pearson noted that Sweden has taken steps to prevent supersonic jet transports from flying over the country and it identified and began fighting the mercury pollution problem 10 years ago.

Of the discussion groups set up to foster direct delegate participation in the pollution fight, the water pollution seminar proved to be the most popular. Other groups discussed pollution in relation to population, pesticides, garbage, public health, municipal planning, tourism, agriculture, industry and the consumer.

Moira Flood Control Started Before 1900

The city and the Moira River Conservation Authority are now taking action to control ice jams in the river to help alleviate the danger of spring floods in the downtown Belleville area.

But, contrary to general opinion, the proposed ice control dam planned for just two miles north of Stanley Street, recalls that the channel trenching was done by the then federal government following one of the most severe spring floods experienced by the city in 1885.

The 1885 flood was much more severe than the one in the spring of 1936, according to Adams, who at the time was in his early teens.

Houses on lower Coleman Street were floated over to Mary Street and to the foot of St. Paul's Bridge Hill.

Mr. Adams recalls that one family was rescued from the roof of their home after the lower floor had been engulfed by the flood waters.

At that time there was no stone wall to confine the river south of the Lower Bridge and during flood periods huge cakes of ice floated through alleyways onto Front Street.

Neither was there any CPR railway bridge to conceivably help cause ice jams.

But after the 1885 flood — which surprisingly does not officially rate among the five most serious floods recorded — the Federal government dredged the river to create channels along both the east and west banks.

The west wall running on both sides of the river below the bridge, were also constructed after the 1885 flood.

According to Mr. Adams, spring floods since then have not been as serious.

Before the river mouth was dredged to create the two channels, Mr. Adams says the river had natural forks south of the lower bridge with an island in the centre.

Clearing floods in the Moira result from a combination of frazil ice formed in the open rapids of the river and surface ice which floats down during spring breakup period to jam at the river mouth.

The ice control dam proposed for the Moira - Reid Street area, would hold up surface ice during the breakup period and at the same time help to reduce the amount of frazil ice.

(Frazil ice is ice crystals which form in open sections of the river during extreme cold weather and float downstream to jam under the ice at the river mouth.)

A model of the proposed ice control dam has been built and is currently being tested at Queen's University.

Belleville Alderman Arthur Keegan has called for a pollution cleanup of the lower Moira and has asked for a study to determine what might be done to prevent recurring annual "messes".

Centennial Graduates First Grade 13 Class

Centennial Secondary School graduated its first grade 13 class Saturday night at its annual commencement.

The event was co-ordinated by the Centennial Student Parliament, with the prime minister, Gordon Domney and minister of entertainment Louise Ewing in charge.

Music was provided by, William McArton on the organ.

In his address valedictorian Lloyd Dunham traced the short history of the school. He was the first graduating grade 13 class. He said he and his classmates felt they had a real part in the development of the school. Frankford Walkathon Pledges Total $6,000

FRANKFORD (Special) The installation of a new floor is making equipment at the Dr. McMullen Recreation Centre is nearly $6,000 closer to reality as the result of a walkathon under local sponsorship on Saturday.

Entries numbering 184 covered a route south along Highway 33 to Trenton, across the James D. MacDonald bridge and then returning to the village on the road on the east side of the Trent River. All but a few of the participants finished the 20-mile trek.

First across the finish line was Terry Tomecek who attends Centennial Secondary School at Belleville.

The effort of Bill Reynolds, sponsored by the Frankford branch of the Canadian Legion, provided the largest single contribution to the cause. He started off the field with $1,125 riding on his performance.

Inspiration for all the contestants was United Church minister John Wesse pulling local newspaper publisher Ed Loucks around the complete course in a golf cart. Their backers produced $400 for the fund.

Recreation committee chairman Kenneth Lawrence, reporting the success of the walkers and sponsors, said the community confirmed its confidence in fund raising activities for recreation by local residents.

IN MEMORIAM

TUPPER — In loving memory of William John Tupper who passed away Oct. 19th, 1966.

He had a smile, a pleasant way,
A cheerful word for all he met,
He was so kind, so generous and true.

On earth he solely did his best,
Grant him, Jesus heavenly rest.
Sadly missed and remembered by Fred Johnston and family.

LEECE — In loving memory of Kenneth Green, who passed away October 19th, 1968.

A beautiful memory we can see,
A dear face forever smiling,
A day filled with happiness and regret,
To one that we shall never forget.
Sadly missed and remembered by wife and family.

TUPPER — In loving memory of a dear father William John Tupper who passed away one year ago today, Oct. 19, 1966.

Dad, God took you, I'll be told say,
But I can't believe it even today.
To hear your voice, see your smile,
Dad, you are the best in a while.
So you who have a father,
Cherish him with love,
For you'll never know his value,
Until he's sent to heaven above.
—Sadly missed and loving Shirley.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Frank Smith, who passed away October 19th, 1969.

The hour was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
We little knew that day we said good-bye,
That words of parting wished for ever.

It would not ask for sorrow,
You would not wish for tears,
But just to be remembered,
Throughout the passing years.
Sadly missed by wife Ethel,
Son Ken in Texas.
Make up for all he suffered;
And all he did amiss.
Wishing God had spared you,
Dad, for more than this.
Sadly missed and always remembered by wife, Cameron and Judy, daughter-in-law Norma and grandchildren Randy, Rhonda, Debbie and Angela.

Heart Fitness Y's Program

The Belleville - Family YMCA is concentrating on cardiovascular fitness for men in its exercise program this year. YMCA program director David Hahn said this morning.

With classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the YMCA offers separate facilities for any man interested in this type of exercise.

A typical session would consist of 10 minutes of slow jogging and warmup exercises, 12-15 minutes of stretching and endurance exercises and eight minutes of jogging and walking.

For the more advanced participants, there are swimming, sauna and volleyball. This program provides sufficient flexibility for the men to determine how much the content of their own program while still retaining the half-hour of specially planned exercises with leaders.

Police Consider Fitness Program

The Belleville City Police Department is giving strong consideration to a physical fitness program, chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning.

Chief Crosbie told The Intelligencer that the department did not have a program yet but it was concerned with physical fitness.

An announcement that police men in Windsor would be undergoing physical fitness exercise to ensure against overweight has created discussion on the physical condition of police.

After hearing a local doctor say in a letter that police are getting too many injuries because they are out of shape, the Windsor city police commission endorsed a resolution last week calling for a physical fitness program to be part of regular duties — even if it means overtime.

Dr. Joseph Berkeley, a physiotherapist, told the commission there has been a marked increase in policemen coming to him for treatment with sprains, strains, pulled muscles and twists. He said in the letter that many of the injuries wouldn't have happened if the officers were in better shape.

Police Chief Gordon Preston said while it would be almost impossible to make the officers' regular duty for a physical fitness program, it could be required on an overtime basis, possibly once a week.

Chief Crosbie said that he thought the 5-BX air force plan was the best for getting people into physical shape.

"You don't have to have all the equipment and it's very simple. You can do it by yourself for only 11 minutes a day. "Physical fitness is something we should all be concerned with," he said.

Hawk Wins Last Race

A crew skippered by Reg Morey in the yacht Hawk won the Mead Johnson trophy at the last competition of the Quinte Power Squadron this year.

The predicted log event was held Saturday afternoon from the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and was open to all crews.

It was followed by a shakedown cruise for new power squadron students enrolled for the initial piloting course. Classes are held Monday nights at 7 p.m. at Moira Secondary School and successful graduates of the course are eligible for power squadron membership. Eighteen are enrolled this year, and several members of the power squadron have registered for advanced navigation courses this winter.

Drive-in Held Up

A 25-year-old Belleville-area man has been charged with armed robbery after a Saturday night holdup at the Quinte Drive-In Theatre at Bayside.

William Edgar Jeffrey RR 3, Belleville, was charged after an automobile was halted at a provincial police checkpoint set up on the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway north of Trenton.

Police say the incident occurred about 8 p.m. when a man approached the theatre box office and robbed cashier Mrs. Beatrice Lebrun, RR 2, Trenton, of $151. The man then fled down the adjacent White Church Road.

About an hour later police halted a westbound automobile at the junction of the freeway and Highway 33 and its driver was taken in custody.

Police said they recovered the stolen cash but have found no trace of a weapon.

Then said they discussed the matter with the kind of weapon was used in the robbery.

MRS. GOLDIE MERCER

Woman Councillor Is Active

MOUNTAIN GROVE (Staff) —Elden Township's first woman councillor Mrs. Goldie Mercer, is supporting a number of township ratepayers who are dissatisfied with what Mrs. Mercer calls "secret service" procedures by township council.

Mrs. Mercer, in a statement to The Intelligencer, outlined a number of resolutions she has attempted to pass in the council meetings of Elden Township and said that a petition had circulated the township before it was sent to Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough.

The first resolution she tried to introduce asked that council publish a detailed and definitive financial statement for the benefit of taxpayers in the township.

The second resolution would have allowed newspaper coverage of all township council meetings, again for the information of taxpayers in the municipality.

Since her addition to the council in December of 1969 when she topped the Mountain Grove polls, Mrs. Mercer has attended four conferences on municipal government at her own expense.

Aquarium Club Hears Benn

Harold Benn, former president of the Canadian Association of Aquarium Clubs, was guest speaker for a meeting of the Belleville and District Aquarium Club at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium recently.

Mr. Benn discussed the spawning of fish and water and Bene Wilson of Tweed spoke about "the fish of the month."

Award ribbons were presented to Vincent Sinclair, Wilma Sinclair, Marguerite Wessells, Calvin Sinclair and Wallace Caslick.

In the junior class the winners were Brenda Pickle, Richard Nickle, Victor Adams, Terry Rollins and Barbara Wylie.

Fire Destroys Cottage in Ameliasburg

Smoke pours from windows of a cottage on the bayshore below Old Orchard Drive in Ameliasburg township on Saturday before flames reduced the dwelling and its contents to smoldering timbers. A brisk breeze off the water hampered all efforts to contain the outbreak from the beginning.

A summer place in natural wood effect built by Trenton's former fire chief, the late Clarence Orser, the premises had a picture book appearance in the setting of evergreen trees. It's owner, Fred Liegbig, found the place filled with smoke on returning from a trip with a neighbor.

ANAF News Roundup

Dominion president J. C. Lundgren has quite a busy schedule. He attended a directors' meeting in Toronto last week and will be in Quebec the coming weekend for the Provincial Command meeting being held there. Then Hallowe'en weekend will again find him in Toronto to attend the Ontario Command meeting at the Lakeview Unit. Several members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit, including president R. G. Burns will also attend the latter meeting.

The Pipe Band Committee regrets very much having to cancel their dance at almost the last minute. It was discovered that there had been a mixup about dates with the orchestra and they hope that the dance will be held in the near future with a date fully confirmed beforehand.

There was a good crowd in the club on Saturday afternoon and by general request, the sports chairman has again started the Saturday afternoon darts doubles with the assistance of his capable commitaire. The results are as follows: 1st Smith winners, T. Nicholson and T. Middleton; runners-up, H. Ford, R. Wirkman; 2nd match winners, F. Parry, D. Thompson; runners-up, T. Middleton, R. Bland; 3rd match winners, T. Parry, R. Burtt; runners up, T. Middleton, T. Nicholson. Come on down to the club and enjoy the fun and a chance to get in on the prizes.

Saturday evening the Mr. and Mrs. darts tournament also was started with approximately twenty couples competing. There was also live entertainment by a talented young man singing a variety of songs to his own guitar playing. It was a jolly bunch and around 11 p.m. a lunch break was held when the ladies made up lunches of sandwiches that were certainly appreciated. Chairman Grey states that this will be a regular feature of the Mr. and Mrs. dart evenings. The final results were winners, Bob and June Brooks and the runners up were Elsa Sennett and Pat Boyle. Both couples were popular winners. Next dart night is Saturday, October 31. Make up a party and join in the fun and entertainment.

There is a social evening every Friday evening for dancing to live music and these are being appreciated by ever growing numbers while social Saturday nights are held in the downstairs lounge. A good time for all and a pleasant way of relaxing after the toil of the week.

Senior Citizens Elect Officers

CANNIFTON (Special) — The regular meeting and election of officers of the Senior Citizens of Cannifton and Connaught 343 was held on Wednesday afternoon at St. Mark's Church, Cannifton.

President, Mrs. Edna Andrews opened the proceedings with a sing-along, following which the yearly report was delivered by Mrs. Elsie Brenton.

It was decided to hold a pot luck dinner and quilting bee at the Oct. 28 meeting.

Following the report, elections were held in which Mrs. Edna Adnews was returned as president. Mrs. Mae Palmer will serve as vice-president and bus convenor; Mrs. Elsie Brenton, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Lena Aikey, reporter; Mrs. Lola Pound and Mrs. Olive Farnham, auditors; Mrs. Jessie Howard, refreshments; Mrs. Julie Brenton and Mrs. Minnie Collett Corbyville visiting committee; Mrs. Edna Andrews and Mrs. M. Coulter Cannifton visiting committee; Mrs. Dora Morton, Mrs. Alice Farnham and Mrs. Jennie Whitfield, entertainment committee.

Refreshments followed the closing of the meeting.

Centre Hastings Graduates 141

MADOC (Staff) — Centre Hastings Secondary School auditorium was filled Saturday night for the 1970 graduation exercises.

This year, 30 students received their certificates of training, 71 students their four-year graduation diplomas and 40 students their honor graduation diplomas.

The program, arranged by Douglas Grahame and his committee, was highlighted by an anecdotal address on the responsible use of power by D. E. Leary and the valedictory address by CHSS's top student, Min Mah.

J. W. Mofat was master of ceremonies for the evening and C. M. Griffith gave a short principal's address.

The school band under the direction of W. Aylsworth provided music for the occasion.

Nine students were presented with Ontario Scholarships. They were Eleanor Cruise, Bonnie Hicks, Min Mah, Janet Nayler, Fred O'Riordan, Beth Price Jeff Rothennel, Thomas Thomson and Ellen Wilson.

Fred O'Riordan also won the Queen's University anniversary scholarship and the Don Whytock Memorial Scholarship as the most outstanding grade 13 graduating student.

Min Mah was recipient of the Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Co. scholarship in applied science and the award for the highest standing in grade 13.

The Intelligencer award for highest standing in grade 13 English went to Eleanor Cruise.

Belleville Student Europe Enthusiast

One of five Canadian students at the Institute at Aix-en-Provence, she was not readily accepted by French students. A "strong sense of privacy" and national pride was the reason the French students held their distance, she believes.

"French students are more serious than ours," she observes. "This again is a facet of their fervor for life."

They take their dissent more seriously too, and frequent demonstrations punctuated Miss Matthews' year as a student. Protests were held over a variety of unrelated issues — dropping of courses, the Vietnam war, deportation of foreign students and even fascism.

The foreign students took no part in demonstrations. The penalty is instant deportation and the police are quick-acting and "authoritative".

A graduate of Quinte Secondary School here, Miss Matthews is undecided about a career.

Interested to return to Europe to live, she now leans toward using her facility in languages as an interpreter.

Testing Time

The West German ambassador to Guatemala, a United States adviser in Uruguay . . . now Quebec's Labor Minister Pierre Laporte has joined the ranks of victims of political assassination.

The nation is appalled by this cowardly, gangland-style slaying. There had been some feeling that because the terrorists had not acted earlier, as they had threatened to do, the life of Mr. Laporte would be spared. But it was not to be; for the Government of Quebec can no longer be any reason for compromise in dealing with this threat to individuals and to the integrity of the nation, for Canadians no further excuse for the apathy in which our society has languished for so long.

Still unknown are the whereabouts and fate of British trade commissioner James Cross. Safe conduct for his abductors is still being offered by the Government in return for his life, but beyond that — as we have already stated — there can be no further compromise in the overall efforts of the authorities to curb the FLQ.

The hope now is that there will be a safe issue from these difficult times. As it is, the death of Mr. Laporte's a tragic anti-climax to these early days of the crisis; but political assassination is no new phenomenon, history furnishes numerous examples and life in Canada, and in Quebec in particular, may become worse before it is better. One thinks of the campaign of terror leading up to the creation of the State of Israel in 1948; and similarly in Algeria in more recent years. The same surging nationalism is at work in Quebec, although it cannot be said that a majority of Quebecers are in favor of independence; the recent election and the return of the Liberal government proved that. Be that as it may the immediate outlook in Quebec is bleak and the threat to Canadian unity real.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Trudeau's address to the nation (prior to the death of Mr. Laporte) was comprehensive in its summation of the events of this difficult time, and demonstrative in its concern for the victims of the FLQ and their families, resolute and intelligent in his approach to the problem.

The prime minister has shown statesmanship. Quite apart from the implications of the present drama, and of his speech, his own personal image has been enhanced, and Canadians can appreciate still further what this man occupies the position and reputation he does today.

If there is any criticism of the authorities' action, it is that they could have acted to curb the FLQ long before this tragic event. For several years now it has been known that terrorist groups have been training in remote areas like the Laurentians, and that arms have been stored there. Mr. Trudeau spoke in an interview of "hindsight;" clearly, what is needed, is more foresight.

Every Comfort

One of Canada's two top airlines (guess which) is plugging its transcontinental flights with a picture of a mid-ciad stewardess and a list of "necessities and-pleasures" it feels are vital to the businessman's comfort.

The flight, you see, is mainly aimed at businessmen. It is manned by stewardesses and offers various lures associated with the legend, "How to succeed in business while flying."

And what are they? Well 'Necessity Number 1" is business newspapers "to help you get ahead." And . . . er, a fellow might tire of the grind up there, so there is the latest issue of Playboy ("for women," the airline adds in parenthesis, as a sort of liter-thought — how about that Women's Lib — "we have the latest issue of Chatelaine.")

We wonder what Chatelaine thinks of being mentioned in the same breath as Playboy?

Among the other "necessities and pleasures" is "Pleasure No. 4" which does not look that bad at all, along with the black book, but which may or may not be a drawing card in the light of present trends. "Our stewardesses' latest non-uniforma," says the advertisement, "from Courrèges to the most fabulous department store." Readers can decide for themselves which one this is, but the airline adds, rather hesitantly, in parenthesis again, "If you like them, you can buy them at most of . . . fine stores."

Well we do not know how this particular flight is doing. We see no reason why it is not attracting good custom, but we have some doubts as to whether the stewardess-watching game is so interesting these days, especially in view of the bleak reception mini fashions are receiving both here and in the United States.

Desire for Better Deal—or Anarchy?

Youth in Van of World-wide Revolutionary Ferment

By CT FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The kidnappings and subsequent political developments in Quebec province point up a worldwide pattern of violence which has become particularly apparent in the last 10 years.

Guerrilla tactics—including bombings and street fighting as well as kidnapping—are in almost common use in a number of troubled areas around the globe. They have brought stringent counter-measures from police and military forces and in some cases, bloody clashes, with a substantial rate of casualties on both sides.

Behind such events are a variety of conditions, ranging from the perennial revolutionary ferment in Latin America to the bitter sectarian conflicts in Northern Ireland.

In the United States, where the story of contemporary violence began with the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy, deep differences over Negro rights and the Indochina war have repeatedly set off eruptions of violence.

The war's unsettling effects spread to Europe and helped stir the feelings of radical-minded students in such countries as France and West Germany, who were already angered by certain aspects of life in their own communities.

The result was near-revolution in France two years ago and street battles in West Germany, together with similar, if much milder, agitation in Belgium and other European states.

Japan, though an increasingly wealthy economic powerhouse, has also witnessed waves of student protest against the Vietnam war and American influence.

And the young took a leading part in the only recent crisis to rock the European Communist world, the Czechoslovak drama of 1968.

The very idea of youth has been turned into a principle of revolt, centred on such issues as the rights of students and the alleged alienation of the young from what the rebels condemn as the war and inhuman processes of Western society and its economic system.

The activities and writings of such men as Ho Chi Minh, guerrilla chief Che Guevara and Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver have transformed the issues of Vietnam, Latin American revolt and racial conflict into clarion calls for aspiring rebels everywhere.

Such personalities rank among the ideological models for some of the activists involved in another key facet of the world protest scene, the fight for greater local rights and even independence, in Quebec and other areas which, now are part of larger national entities.

Some observers find it paradoxical that an age so apparently affluent and so placid such a degree of protest and conflict.

But the rebels cite what they term the uneven distribution of this affluence, while their opponents argue that a widely-based effort is under way to modernize the Western way of life.

Women's Lib Aside—A Word for the Menfolk!

Richard Needham in
The Globe and Mail

Marion Gibson of Toronto writes: "I have been very much moss self-sacrifice, tenderness and devotion and we wives afflicted in his appetites . . .

Let nagging mothers, wives and sisters stop scolding and disparaging these heavily burdened members of the human race and remember that all the great creative geniuses of ancient and modern times have been men, and that life can be very hard for them. If Toronto does not like women, what have their mothers done to them?"

Anti-Terrorist Measures

Exaggeration in the Media

Ottawa Journal

With human concern some people are worried lest the Government establish a police state in seeking to combat terrorism.

If that were the Government's intent we should all be concerned.

It isn't.

Let's not exaggerate the Government's security efforts to protect Cabinet Ministers.

CBC broadcasters repeated many times Tuesday morning that "heavily armed troops were patrolling the streets of Ottawa." The Toronto Telegram had a flare right across its front page Tuesday afternoon proclaiming "Ottawa Has Armed City of Fear." A CBC - TV reporter Tuesday night in "questioning" the Prime Minister said: "I'm worried about living in a town that's full of people with guns running around."

What irresponsible untruth.

There can be valid anxiety that these security measures be relaxed as soon as possible. But the general public while sad and understandably upset to see armed troops around officials' residences is not demanding their removal.

The CBC-TV reporter, concerned about what he thought might be an extension of security measures asked the Prime Minister:

"If you extend this and you say OK you're going to do anything that meet them (officials and public), does this include wire tapping, reducing civil liberties in some way?"
